Trombley—Sawyer

West Guilford Gospel Hall, Haliburton, tastefully decorated with flags, was the scene of an interesting military wedding when Myra Mary, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carmel Sawyer of Maple Lake, became the bride of Pte. J. J. F. Trombley, formerly of Peterborough, and a member of the First Midland Regiment. The ceremony was performed by Pastor Hemburg of West Guilford.

The bridal party entered the hall to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Fred Cooper of Maple Lake. The bride wore a military style frock of royal blue sheer, with matching accessories, and corsage of white roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Stella Sawyer, in a frock of dusky rose crepe with navy accessories, and corsage of pink roses. Mr. Murray Scott of West Guilford was groomsman.

A wedding diner was served at the home of the bride's parents for the immediate families and close friends, the bridal couple leaving afterward by motor for Lindsay en route to Ottawa, where the bridegroom's regiment is stationed.

Women Should Exercise Discretion in Talking. Don't Blab Secrets or Bare the Faults of Members of Your Family and You Will Avoid Trouble

The charge that women talk too much is as old as creation. Doubtless that was the snappy comeback that Adam handed Eve when her gossip with the servant resulted in spilling the beans and getting them chucked out of the Garden of Eden. Anyway, from that day to this women's conversational ability has been a tradition and a target for men's criticism. Yet you never saw a tongue-tied girl who was popular with the boys, or a man who wanted a dumb wife who grouched around the house, with never a word to even throw to the cat. No, he would rather have a human phonograph, or a chatterer, or even a nagger than one who didn't talk at all. It isn't that women talk too much that gets them in bad. It is that they talk about the wrong things. It isn't the quantity of their conversation to which objection can be made. It is the quality. They choose the wrong topics and become loquacious about things that they should bite their tongues off rather than tell. There is the woman, for instance, who blabs her family secrets and tells things about her domestic affairs that would never become known if she did not herself publish them to the world. She catalogues the contents of her skeleton closet for the edification of all and sundry, and she ought to be strangled for doing it.

We have all known wives who ruined their husbands' credit and precipitated bankruptcy upon them by broadcasting that John's business is bad and that he is so afraid he can't meet his note in the bank that he can't sleep at night.

Don't Talk Too Much

We have all listened to a mother smirch her daughter's reputation by telling how late she stays out at night, what a wild crowd she runs with and how unmanageable she is. And we have known other mothers to block their sons' chances of getting a job by bemoaning how lazy and trifling they are and how hard to get along with.

Women talk too much when they let down their back hair and tell their intimate friends all of the details of their lives; about what they said to their husbands when they had a quarrel, and their husbands said to them; how they wish they had married their girlhood sweethearts instead of the men they did, and so on and so forth. For the time comes when there is a rift in the friendship and they hate the woman who knows too much about them.

Be Discreet About Past

Women talk too much when they tell the men they are going to marry everything they did and thought of doing from their babyhood up to their wedding days.

This furnishes the husband with an inexhaustible supply of material for jealousies and suspicions to which he can add as black a hue as he desires, and in times of anger it gives fluency and point to his repertoire of abuse.

Men don't drag out their pasts and make a Roman holiday of washing their dirty linen on their wedding eves and why women do it, only the God who made them and little fishes know.

A woman talks too much when she boasts to any man, either before or after marriage, about her conquests and how many millionaires she has turned down, and how much in love she used to be with some romantic hero who doesn't look in the least like the stubby man she is talking to. Every man wants to think that he is the ONE and ONLY, and he doesn't want to figure either as a last chance or another scalp on any flirt's belt.

And a woman talks too much when she keeps calling her husband's attentions to her mistakes instead of her virtues. Half the time he would never find out that she wasn't a good manager, or that she made foolish bargains if she didn't tell him so herself.

Every wife writes her own price tag for her husband. He takes her at least at her own valuation. So if she is discreet she maintains a masterly silence about her failures and gets out the band and beats upon the cymbals over her successes.

All of this is well worth consideration by the talkative sex, for it isn't how much women say, but what they say that gets them into trouble. If they would press-agent their husbands and children instead of revealing their shortcomings, their tongues might be a perpetual motion machine and their families would still ask for more.

Water Street Couple to Mark 50th Wedding Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT DECK

Married fifty years ago, March 15, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Deck of 933 Water street will observe their golden wedding anniversary Sunday. Both are enjoying excellent health and they were making preparations last night to hold a light festivity Sunday. "We don't intend to make too much of it because our only two sons are in the army. They will not be able to come home so I don't think it would be right, said Mrs. Deck. She is of Irish descent and will observe her 71st birthday St. Patrick's Day, March 17. Mr. Deck is in his 74th year.

"We have farmed all our lives," Mr. Deck told the Examiner. "When we were married in Marmora, Mrs. Deck's home, we went to live near Havelock. I had to clear most of the land before it could be used for crops. We farmed there for 13 years and then lived near Peterborough for three years." When the West was going good, Mr. and Mrs. Deck moved to Weyburn, Sask., where they stayed for three years before returning to live near Peterborough. Last November they retired and moved into Peterborough. "We worked too hard on the farm or we might have been still there," Mrs. Deck said.

Drinking and Smoking

"There is no other living in the world so nice as farming. One is his own boss and it is a healthy life," Mr. Deck pointed out. "I have neither drank nor smoked and I think I am better for it." Mrs. Deck interjected her opinion was not high of girls who drink and smoke today. "If I knew of a young man today, looking for a girl who did not indulge in these vices, I would not know where to send him."

Mr. Deck said he believed the government has caused a good deal of harm to farming by adding restrictions. "For instance, I don't agree with the pasteurization of milk. We lived years ago on raw milk and I'm sure it didn't do us any harm. It's the way God intended milk to be.

Cars have resulted in another harm to the farmer. When automobiles and tractors were unheard of, farmers had to have horses for transportation. They were fed on farm products with little cost. But today, every time a tractor or car is moved it costs money."

Mrs. Deck recommended married people behave themselves if they wish to live long and happily together.

FASHIONS

It isn't a bit too early to begin thinking of Spring. Your little girl will be thrilled with this new princess coat and dress and it is so inexpensive if you make it yourself. Choose a crisp cotton print for the dress and trim the snowy white collar with narrow ruffling. The coat should be made of light weight but sturdy woollen that will keep its shape. The dress can also be made with a dainty square neckline and it is a wise idea to make two or more dresses to go with her Easter coat.

Style No. 2623 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 4 requires 2 yards of 35-inch fabric with ⅝ yard of contrasting for dress; 1⅞ yards of 54-inch fabric for coat. Hat No. 3447, sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 years; 19, 20, 20½, 21, 21¼-inches head-size. For fabric requirements see pattern.

Many Service Stations To Be Receiving Depots

I.O.D.E. Chapters are happy to advise the citizens of Peterborough that a workable plan has been evolved in connection with the recent offer of the Imperil Oil Company to place its service stations across Canada at the disposal of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire as depots for collecting donations of good used or new books, which will be distributed to the men of our fighting forces, and donations of new clothing, new blankets and new quilts, which will be shipped overseas to Great Britain by the IO.D.E. It is emphasized that only new clothing, new knitted articles, new blankets and quilts can be accepted.

Definitely No Used Clothing

Before being brought to the service stations, every parcel of clothing should be securely wrapped and tied. A list of contents, together with the name and address of the donor, should be enclosed in each parcel. Each donor of new clothing should sign his name and address on the I.O.D.E. receipt sheet form in the service station. Books only can be brought to the service station—no magazines.

To every donor of new clothing or blankets whose name appears on the receipt sheet forms, stamped acknowledgment cards will be sent by the Provincial Chapter.

Generosity Appreciated

The Peterborough Chapters greatly appreciate the generosity of the Imperial Oil Company in placing its local service stations at their disposal, and hope that the citizens will once again rally to the need and send in their donations. Lilico motors on Charlotte street and Joseph Detcher's on George street are to be the two receiving depots.

Gym. Review Is Planned by "Y"

Plans for the Gym Review which this year will be called "On Parade" were outlined at the March meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Board of Directors. The gymnasium demonstration will be held in the Y.W.C.A. gym April 24th and 25th, with tickets at a popular war-time price. The military emphasis has had a prominent part this season in all gymnasium classes, and the program promises to command the attention of the audience with its military precision. Massed squad drills, marching formations, morse and semaphore signaling, archery and the ever-popular folk dances will have an important place in the presentation.

In May the Association will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary with a program that will include an historical pageant, a birthday reception and a Sunday vesper service.

Reports of committee conveners showed a busy month in all departments. The residence has been filled to capacity, and often the "Y" rooms registry has been called on to assist in finding accommodation for transients. The Educational Committee reported twenty-five at the March Sunday Friendly Hour, with Miss R. Young as guest speaker. The War-time Cooking Course, conducted by Mrs. W. B. Gordon and Mrs. R. H. David, is proving a helpful and interesting study, with an average attendance of about twenty-five. The Motor Mechanics' course led by M. F. E. Johnson and Mr. G. B. Beals, will be completed this month. Of the thirty-eight registered, six have attended every lecture, and twenty-one over fifty per cent of the lectures. A course for "Y" leaders has been held each Friday evening, and eight clubs with an attendance of 330 meet regularly.

Mrs. T. J. Carley presided for the meeting, and Mrs. L. J. Pettit led the opening devotional period. Miss L. Brownscombe, general secretary, was appointed to attend a conference of secretaries April 18 and 19 in Toronto. It is expected Miss Julia Capen of the National "Y" staff of the U.S.A., who will lead the secretaries' conference, will visit the Peterborough Association for a two-day conference with the Board, committee members and other volunteer workers during April.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, March 16

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds testimonies of several conflicting situations, with adverse conditions offsetting those of promise and encouragement. It is a day for approaching antagonistic and frustrating situations with balance, control and restraint.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which reserve, calm judgment, prudence and thrift may vanquish hazardous conditions menacing pocket book, stability of fortunes and personal peace of mind. Shun extravagance on all lines.

A child born on this day should be energetic, ambitious, studious and thoughtful, with warmth and generosity, yet it may be carried away by its generous impulses.

For Monday, March 17

Monday's astrological forecast should be for a particularly lively and thrilling day with matters moving to unexpected climax in all phases of living. While business, employment, etc., may be very progressive and bring tokens of preferment and probably promotion, yet the personal life, in the affections, emotions and romantic adventures may eclipse all other interests.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of sudden and startling developments, particularly in their private affairs, affectional and romantic.

A child born on this day should be talented, original, capable as well as have an outstanding personality bespeaking high adventure and romance in its life.

I.O.D.E. To Stage Fashion Show

CAMPBELLFORD, March 15—(ENS).—Members of the I.O.D.E. Bemersyde Chapter will model finery for the Easter season at a fashion show and concert to be held Thursday evening, March 20, in the High School auditorium; for the show Mrs. Edith Denike will supply the gowns and ensembles.

This announcement was made by the Regent, Mrs. G. A. Ironside, at the regular meeting Friday. Proceeds are for the Chapter's war work. Commentator Mrs. A. Armour will be assisted by Miss Eleanor Ferris, Mrs. F. F. De Carrol and Mrs. E. C. Roberts.

Preceding the plans for fashion show members heard reports from various committee heads, including the relief report by Miss Dorothy Henson, sewing committee by Mrs. R. E. Fox, and war convener, Mrs. D. Maybe. Miss Eleanor Ferris reported proceeds for draw on quilt and oil painting to be $34.15. Miss Gladys Stephen, book convener, reported that three cartons of donated library books and one carton of magazines had been shipped during the past week. Miss S. A. Shaw, Mrs. Tinney and Mrs. Bingham for the quilts they had donated to the Chapter, and also a letter of thanks to Mr. Massey for his services.

Are Mothers Blind to Outgrown Shoes?

It is common knowledge that parents usually are careful about their children's teeth or eyes . . . but what about the child's feet? The answer lies in a recent survey—seventy per cent of the school children have foot ailments! A great percentage of these foot ills were caused by outgrown shoes! It is the duty of every parent to examine the child's shoes at least once every three months! See that there is enough toe room, proper height.

RADIO CHART

Special Events

The Examiner introduces to its readers today this special Radio Chart made possible through these advertisers who have decided to use these columns weekly. Radio Chart is as correct as it is humanly possible to get radio programs. Station and Chain programs have been checked closely and also their revised programs. Hence the Examiner feels that it is offering to its readers a Radio Chart for the week which is the best obtainable. REMOVE IT FROM YOUR PAPER, FOLD IT IN HALF AND KEEP IT NEAR YOUR RADIO.

THIS FREEDOM IS PRECIOUS

Raymond Massey is coming home to take part in one of the CBC's chief war service programmes. He will be starred in the Theatre of Freedom's presentation of "This Precious Freedom", on Sunday, March 10th, at 9:30 to 10:30 p.m., E.D.S.T. The play, by Arch Oboler, is characterized as the fictional story of a tomorrow which should never happen. The author wrote it to remind those fortunate enough to dwell on this continent, just how unpleasant it would be if Nazi doctrines were imposed upon the free peoples of America and what it would mean in their daily lives. The listener is asked to imagine that he has gone off on a regular vacation into the hinterland, away from all sources of communication, that he returns by plane to find the world changed overnight. What happens in the case of John Stevenson, the hero of "This Precious Freedom", might happen to others; it might happen here! Raymond Massey did the leading role in the play when it was first broadcast in the fall of 1940. The CBC production will be broadcast from the Montreal studios with a cast of Canadian radio artists in support of the star.

RAYMOND MASSEY

P..ESIDENT TO SPEAK

President Roosevelt will made a radio address tonight on defence and aid to nations battling aggressors. He will speak at 10:30 E.D.T. for 30 minutes at an annual dinner given him by the White House correspondents. All big chains are expected to carry this address.

THE NAVY SINGS

Genial George Young, whose appearance on any stage is the signal for fun, is making a trans-Canada tour between February 25 and June 10, staging sing-songs in the chief military, naval and air force training centres. The first two broadcasts, Tuesdays at 8:00 to 8:30 p.m., E.D.S.T., over the National network of the CBC, got off to a flying start with unprecedented co-operation from Camp Debert and Camp Aldershot. The next date will be at the R.C.N. Dockyards, Halifax, and this will be the Navy's chance to show the army who can sing the sweetest, or the loudest. (Tues. March 18, 8:00 p.m.)

Reginald Stewart will step into one of his favorite roles, that of piano recitalist, on Monday, March 17. He will be heard on that date at 8:30 p.m., E.D.T., and on the three subsequent Mondays in a series of piano programmes. His first will be devoted to the performance of the Beethoven Sonata in G Major, Opus 2, No. 3.

NOTE.—Radio Chart carries the programs of the major radio stations in the Peterborough Listening Area. All Programs are as accurate as the radio station program departments and the radio chart can make them. Programs subject to change without notice.

The Peterborough Examiner

VOL. LXXXV, No. 63 — PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, MARCH 15, 1941 — PAGE 9

MAIN STREET TOPICS

CARS DAMAGED.

Cars owned by Harold Ephgrave, Leahy's Lane, and M. G. Hardill Frederick avenue, were damaged when they met in collision on Simcoe street in front of the Queen's Hotel yesterday.

TAKES TEN DAYS.

William McVeight, well known transient, told the magistrate that he would get out of town but that did not help him much on a charge of intoxication to which he pleaded guilty. He was fined $10 and costs or ten days—and he took the latter.

AN UNUSUAL REASON.

The fact that a doctor was not at home when he called was given by an accused in Police Court this morning as the reason why he got drunk. When he failed to find the physician in his office, the man told the court he had fallen into temptation. Magistrate Langley operated on his payroll this morning to the extent of $10, and costs.

FROM WAR SERVICE COUNCIL.

The letter received from Miss Mabel Patterson by the Board of Education in which permission was sought to make a collection from the school children to the fund for the people in Peterborough, England, was not in connection with the Women's Service Corps, as previously stated, but on behalf of the Peterborough War Service Council, of which Miss Patterson is vice-chairman.

WON AT BELLEVILLE.

At the Quinte district fifteenth annual Seed Fair in Belleville, Robert Armstrong, of R.R. No. 1, Ida, was the winner of first prize awards in wheat and also in barley. In such events in the junior farmers' competitions it is customary to refer to the winner as "high boy," so in the case of Mr. Armstrong it would right enough to refer to him as doubly high. He was present at the banquet where the awards were announced, and received his full share of applause.

WINS COCKER SPANIEL.

The draw for the cocker spaniel donated by W. J. Donnelly of Union Street was made by His Worship Mayor Frank Long of Campbellford, who was visiting in the city, and resulted in ticket No. 149 being the winner. This ticket was held by J. W. Crowe, 204 Brock Street, city. The draw was sponsored by members of the City Fire Department, and the amount realized was $23.45, all of which was given to the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, and appears in today's list of acknowledgments.

BRUIN'S SNOOZE IS OVER.

The big black bear at the Filtration Plant zoo awoke from his long winter sleep last Sunday and sauntered out into the wired enclosure for a view of the scenery. He was two weeks ahead of last year and has shown no inclination to doze off again. The plant operator claims Bruin is getting hungry and feeding will start at once. This can be accepted as a sign of an early spring and in line with this thought, crows were heard from the pines on Armour Hill this morning, and several were noticed winging their way across the city.

CELEBRATE ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Peterborough Rotarians will appropriately celebrate St. Patrick's Day at their luncheon Monday. The speaker will be Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's church.

TRUCKS COLLIDE.

Trucks owned by Charles Young, Young's Point and Charles Sharpe, McFarlane avenue, met in collision on Euclid avenue yesterday and both were slightly damaged.

TOO HOT....???

Spring would appear to have definitely come to Peterborough. A discarded overcoat has been lying on the sidewalk across from the post office since Friday morning and on Saturday, at noon, it had hardly shifted its position.

ADOPT NEW LIGHTING

The composing room of the Peterborough Examiner has been equipped with the new type fluorescent lighting, in the canopy sections directly over the make-up stands. Workmen are unanimous that the new light is perfect, and there is the added advantage of economy.

BUILDING A RESERVE

The Women's Institute of Bailieboro purchased this week a $200 War Savings Certificate as an investment and to boost the assets of the club. Many other organizations have also set up a reserve and at the same time have helped the government to finance the war.

CASH PRIZES FOR FISH

Cash prizes will be given American tourists for the largest fish caught in local waters adjoining Prince Edward County near Picton, and prizes will also be given for the best tourist snapshots, according to a story from that centre. Picton also plans an Old Home Week next July.

LIONS DONATE LIGHTS

The Lions Club of Bowmanville has decided to finance the purchase of a traffic light control system on No. 2 Highway in the centre of Bowmannville. The club will foot the bill up to $500, and the town will install and maintain the system. This gesture is part of a long range safety program which the Lions in the lakeshore town have been engaged in.

FOUR MAJOR EVENTS

The big ploughing match, the Fire Chief's convention, and conventions of two church organizations are planned for this city in 1941, all of which will help advertise the city, and bring business to the merchants. J. J. Dorris reported this morning that there may be one or two other conventions or picnics here but no definite arrangements have been made as yet.

CHANGE IN UNIFORMS

According to reports from the general headquarters of the Ontario Provincial Police, constables and officers will wear a new type of uniform this summer. The conventional khaki uniform will be replaced with a light grey material similar to those worn by the New York State troopers. A peaked cap for summer wear will round out the new outfit. It is unlikely that any change will be made in the uniforms worn by the highway patrol officers.

War 25 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press.

March 15, 1916—Austria-Hungary declared war on Portugal. French recaptured positions at Verdun. Allied airmen raided Krupp works at Essen. Italians resumed offensive against Austria on the Isonzo front.

March 16, 1916—German attacks at Le Mort Homme and Fort Vaux, Verdun, repulsed with heavy losses. Royal Dutch Lloyd liner Tubantia torpedoed and sunk off Netherlands coast. Admiral von Tirpitz, head of the German navy, resigned.

Cedar Canoe Is Donated To War Victims

A sixteen-foot cedar strip canoe complete with paddles, carpet, cushions, and lazyback is the centre of attraction in Scarfes' window on Hunter street this week, and it has been donated by J. B. O'Dette and Sons, Boat Builders, to the Peterborough British War Victims' Fund.

The canoe is the best of its kind in the realm of canoes, being more expensive than the canvas-covered or the basswood plank boats, and it is a masterpiece of boat building craftsmanship. The canoe alone retails at $65.00 and complete with the accessories would be worth over the $100.00 mark.

Tickets are being sold at 15 cents or two for a quarter or a book of ten may be had for a dollar. The tickets are on sale at Grafton's, at Scarfes, at the Examiner from Mr. Mann and from any of the O'Dette boys.

The canoe will be placed on display in the big window at the Examiner office at a later date and will also be put in Grafton's window for a while, so that everyone may have a look at it.

This is a fine gesture from this thriving company and will undoubtedly bring a considerable sum to the British War Victims' Fund.

Letter Of Thanks From England

HAVELOCK, March 15—(ENS).—A second letter has been received by Mrs. Price from Agnes Mallory of Stansted, Essex, regarding the parcel sent to England from the United Church.

The letter was as follows: Mrs. Chalk said she would write to your association and tell you how very grateful we were for the lovely box of gifts you sent to her for the children of the bombed areas. She very kindly sent them on to me as we have a depot for the refugees and Stansted is about two miles away from Elsenham and I thought I would just like to tell you how much they are appreciated by the children and the mothers. I hope some of them will write to you but I am afraid most of them don't write very much. The courage and the spirit of the people is simply wonderful, and although many of them have lost nearly all their possessions or had to leave them behind you hear very little grumbling.

At the moment we are having a lull and everybody is wondering what tricks the Jerrys are up to and what we may have to endure in the future but we are all trying to keep cool heads and brave hearts and as the King said, "To put our hand in the hand of God and our trust in Him and we shall see it through." We Canadians who live in England are so proud of what Canada is doing and what the women are accomplishing, and fancy the United Church-women sending 696,000 soldiers' comforts to the Canadian Red Cross.

The Canadian Women's Club in London are raising money to buy automobile canteens for the Canadian forces. They do appreciate these canteens and we try to have Canadian women staff them. It is great to meet some one who talks one's own language, the boys say. With renewed thanks and with best wishes to you all for the grand work you are carrying on.

Canadian Woman Killed

LONDON, March 15 (CP Cable)—Mrs. Kathleen Humphreys, one of the most prominent Canadian women war workers in England, was killed Saturday night in the bombing of a London restaurant. She was with a family party when the bomb exploded and her son James and his wife are in hospital with injuries.

A daughter of the late Hon. James Dunsmuir of Victoria, B.C., Mrs. Humphreys, together with her daughter Jill, had been driving a Canadian Young Men's Christian Association Mobile Canteen and had planned shortly to take over the mobile canteen presented to the Canadian Women's Club by G. Howard Ferguson, former premier of Ontario.

Fourth Member Of Denne Family Passes In City

The fourth death in a well-known Peterborough family within a few months and the second within a couple of days occurred this morning when Anne Denne, widow of the late William H. Graham, died in St. Joseph's Hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Graham was a daughter of the late Henry and Mrs. Denne, and was born in Peterborough, although she had lived a large part of her life in Kingston, returning here nine years ago.

A brother, Roland Denne, died in November last, and since the New Year two sisters, Mrs. Bell, formerly of Winnipeg, and Miss Margaret Denne, have also passed away, the death of Miss Denne occurring only on Thursday.

Surviving are one brother, T. H. G. Denne, and three sisters, the Misses Gertrude and Edith May Denne of Peterborough and Mrs. W. B. Schulte, Freeport, Ill.

Mrs. Graham's husband, William H. Graham, died on September 29, 1932.

Many friends of Mrs. Graham and of the Denne family will be grieved to learn of her death. She was a member of St. John's Church before she was married, and since her return to Peterborough from Kingston.

The funeral will take place on Monday, March 17, from Mrs. Graham's late residence, 116 Dublin Street, to Little Lake Cemetery, with Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's Church officiating.

One of the largest meetings in months, the club had its members out 100% except for three of their number who were unavoidably absent.

It has long been the ambition of President John Troke that the Kiwanis Club attend divine service some Sunday, in a body. It has finally been arranged, for Adjutant Norman Buckley, of the Salvation Army, has issued a blanket invitation for the club on Sunday, March 23rd. The service will begin in the Salvation Army Temple at 7.00 p.m., and the members feel it is most apropos in that the 23rd of this month is to be the National Day of Prayer, as decreed by His Majesty, the King. A showing of hands was requested by Mr. Troke, and it was discovered that about 70% of the members expect to attend the service.

Boy Would Like Canadian Letters

A span of time, twenty-six years, was bridged recently, when a Peterborough man wrote to a district in England to find if any of his past acquaintances of another war era were still there. The communication he received in reply contained some of the heartache and pathos all Canadians suspect exists in England, but is spoken of by Britons lightly.

A picture is painted of a little English lad, only nine years of age, and who is likely to be a cripple for the rest of his life. He was intended as a visitor to Canada at the time of the evacuation of the English children, but his mother could not give him up; one fateful night, a bomb fell in his neighborhood and he was wounded badly.

John Knight is the boy's name, and today he is in an English hospital, his frail body alive to every sense, but still it is thought that his future life will be that of an invalid. A plea is made by the writer, John's aunt, that Canadian children write to him, for he is very fond of receiving letters. His interest centres now in the collecting of foreign stamps, and perhaps some Peterborough boys would find it possible to send him some. His address: Master John Knight, Grant Ward, R.S.C. Hospital, Eastern Road, Brighton, Sussex, England.

Bomb Victims Are In Need Of Your Help

The total of $10,419.98 was reported by Fred G. Mann today as the amount already received by the British War Victims' Fund. With the renewed drive by the Nazi air raiders on Great Britain the need for additional money is becoming more evident every day. During the past week English and Scottish towns and cities have been heavily bombed and the Peterborough and District War Victims' Fund is one way in which people can help these stout-hearted people.

In today's report Mr. Mann has subscriptions from the Induction Motors Department of the C.G.E. with $5.00 and the Westclox Social and Athletic Club with $7.65. The cocker spaniel donated by W. J. Donnelly and raffled by the fire department netted $23.45.

Fraserville W.A. Busy On Quilts

FRASERVILLE, March 15. —(ENS).— The monthly meeting of the W.A. was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. A. Wood.

A busy afternoon was spent in quilting, followed by a short devotional program. Mrs. A. Wood read the scripture lesson. Silent prayer was held for one of the members who had so recently passed away. Jean Holden gave the lesson thoughts. Mrs. H. Ouelette gave a very interesting paper on Home Missions. Supper was then enoyed.

Among those ladies present were Mesdames W. Waterman, A. Hewitt, P. Moncrief, D. Moffatt, H. Ouelette, O. Pue, A. Wood T. Yelland and Miss Jean Holden.

Y.P.U. Meets.

The weekly meeting of the Young People's Union was held on Thursday night at the parsonage. Preparations for the crokinole tournament for Monday night were made. Missionary convener Mrs. H. Ouelette was in charge of the meeting. Edgar Hogg gave a paper on Miss Kim and Miss Audrew Lewers on Miss McKinnon of Korea. Thelma Yelland read a poem. A contest was enjoyed.

School Heating Case Presented To Minister

Alex Sollitt, member of the Board of Education did a little missionary work for the Board this week while attending the Ontario Motor League meeting.

He took time out to interview the Hon. Norman Hipel, Minister of Labor and pointed out that because of War Emergency Classes at the Collegiate and South Central Schools, the Board faces increased janitor costs and will have to instal a new heating system at the South Central School. The latter school was not being used extensively up to the time the classes were started but now the existing heating system is inadequate for the demands.

Mr. Hipel referred Mr. Sollitt to H. H. Kerr, supervisor of technical education in the youth training program, and this man will lay the case before the Federal officials in Ottawa on Monday.

Mr. Sollitt explained that the expenditure for the new heating system is considerable and he is hoping the Government will see fit to assume part of this extra expense.

Dr. Middleton has resumed practice at his own office, 184 Charlotte street, (Bridgeway Building).

THE Biggest Events

For the old world are yet to come. Everything in the trend of our times indicates a movement toward a grand climax. That climax in the scriptures is always described—

"When the Son of Man shall come in His glory and all the holy angels with Him. Then shall He sit upon the Throne of His glory."

Are you ready, through the saving work of Christ for this event? Don't postpone preparedness.

Regatta Site Is Not Chosen

Wallace Point Canoe Club is already busy on plans for its 11th annual regatta which will be held on the Wednesday before Civic Holiday, but so far no decision has been reached on whether or not the affair will be held at Little Lake or down the river in the usual spot at Wallace Point.

The club is composed of Peterborough athletes, and the regatta is regarded as a Peterborough regatta, but the fact that it is held so far distant prevents hundreds of people who have no cars from enjoying the sports.

Gordon Minty, swimming instructor, in commenting on the great regattas of yesteryear, said he believed they lost their popularity because those in charge did not bother to train any young talent, and he paid tribute to the Wallace Point Canoe Club for the fine work they are doing in training boys to paddle, swim and dive.

As a special feature of the regatta this year the committee is planning to have a single sculls event, and hope to bring Jake Gaudaur of Orillia down for the day. This man summers at South Beach and is one of the most promising of the young crop of scullers in Canada today.

Father And Sons Banquet At Knox

The fatal failure of leadership, political and military, in the battle of France and in the years that led to the climax of 1940, was the subject of an address by Ralph Standish at the father and son dinner at Knox church Thursday night.

Robert Ralston was chairman and Orme Benson led the company of one hundred fathers and sons in community singing. After the toast to the King Reuben McDonald R.C.A.F., proposed a toast to the Church, to which Captain, the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt replied.

The toast, "The Dads," was given by Bill Allen with J. Lancashire replying, and "The Lads" by Andrew McKenzie and the response by Bill Gardner.

Mr. Standish was introduced by A. Pitchford, and John Fowler sang several selections. At the conclusion of the program A. Gillies moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Standish and H. J. McCannan expressed the company's appreciation of the dinner served by the ladies.

Seven Classes Operating For War Work

At a meeting of the Board of Education on Thursday night, D. G. Melton, chairman of the Board, paid tribute to both F. E. Johnston, head of Vocational department, and the principal of the Collegiate, Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, for the work of conducting and organizing the War Emergency Classes.

It was reported at the meeting that at the present time are seven classes of pupils enrolled in War Emergency Work, a total of 125. Two classes are composed of members of the Royal Canadian Engineers studying electricity and they will finish on April 16th. There are four classes which operate on an all night schedule and the others are worked in between regular school hours and the evening.

Mr. Johnston told the Board that the extension to the machine shop is working out very satisfactorily and that the electrical equipment is carrying the sustained loads without any apparent strain. The machines, too, seem to be standing up under the steady use.

102 Graduates Placed at C.G.E.

Since June of last year 102 graduates of the War Emergency Classes have been placed in the C.G.E. plant alone and others have found employment in Peterborough and in other centres.

"I want Dr. Kenner and yourself to know that the Board is deeply appreciative of the fine work that you are doing in conducting these War Emergency Classes," said Mr. Melton.

1939 Tax Arrears Lowest In Six Years

Going over the 1939 tax roll last night, a practice adopted by Alderman Gordon a few years ago, the legal committee of which he is chairman found Friday night that payments of the taxes due in the roll were more satisfactory than for any of the other years they examined.

The roll of 1939 was regarded as being in better condition than any other for the preceding five years. The committee examined the entire roll at last night's session. They also recommended to the police commission that applications for operating licenses be not granted to any taxi men who have business taxes in arrears.

Help Win The "Scrap"

Canada's nation-wide salvage campaign is to be held Next Month.

Every part of Canada is expected to take part in this drive in which metals, paper and other scrap will be collected for war purposes.

Members of Parliament have been asked to act as the contact between their constituency salvage organization and the Central Salvage organization at Ottawa.

I am anxious that West Peterborough's part in this important national effort should be as large as possible and in order to facilitate the riding organization I would like to get into touch with local organizations who have already been collecting paper, metal or another scrap.

Will the officers of those organizations please write me as soon as possible, giving me the particulars of what is already being done. This is urgent.

Tweed Woman Get 3 Months

TWEED, March 15—(ENS). — Following a raid on her residence, in which a quantity of liquor was found concealed in a panelled wall in the clothes closet, and a number of people were found in an intoxicated state on the premises, Mrs. Walter Vilneff was sentenced to three months imprisonment before Magistrate Butler.

A number of local merchants have been victimized by a cheque artist who made the rounds of the village. He produced credentials to show that he had relatives living in this vicinity, while he also exhibited a bogus bank book showing a substantial balance. On the strength of these, several business men cashed cheques which proved to be worthless. Chief of Police J. Clair Hayes, is working on the case.

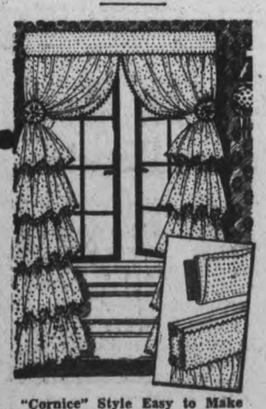
New Curtains to Welcome Soft Breezes of Spring



"Cornice" Style Easy to Make

Spring is curtain-making time! You can easily make these enchanting ones of crisp dotted Swiss—even if you never made curtains before.

The smart "cornice" is just a 4-inch band of crinoline covered with the Swiss. Fold a strip 12 inches wide three times around the crinoline, as the diagram shows, and stitch rickrack along the edges. Then stretch band across top of window casing and tack at sides, concealing the tacks with rickrack flowers.

The curtains are two straight pieces from the "cornice" to about 12 inches from the floor. To sew on the lowest ruffle, you split the bottom hem of the curtain, insert the ruffle and stitch.

The other ruffles are stitched on upside down and allowed to fall over.

That's all! And you can as quickly make other attractive curtains for your entire house! Our 32-page booklet tells in detail how to make drapery curtains, formal draperies, glass curtains, swags, valances.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of New Ideas in Making Curtains and raperies to Examiner Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

FOOL THE DECLARER

YOU CAN figure out sometimes that a false-card by you could not possibly influence your partner's play, but might befuddle the declarer into misreading the situation. That is the time to use your smartness, especially if by doing so you can make the declarer try a finesse which is doomed to lose, or strive for the break of a suit which is not evenly divided.

West led his club K and followed with the 10, which South took with the A. Trying to keep West out of the lead, South finessed the heart 10, won with the Q by East, who had discarded the spade 6 on the second club and now returned the spade 3.

Some real figuring had been done by West. Knowing that South bids No Trumps originally only with a 4-3-3-3 distribution, he saw the diamond suit would break evenly for four tricks. These, plus three marked heart tricks and two black aces, would give South nine tricks. If only West could make South finesse diamonds. He saw how, by playing the spade Q on South's A.

West could tell South would read his hand thus: five clubs because East discarded on the second one, three hearts because he would soon have to follow suit on two more heart tricks, so that if he appeared to have only one spade, South would place him for four diamonds and so would finesse the suit.

That is what South did. After winning the spade fourth trick, he took the heart K, diamond K, diamond A, heart A, heart J with West trashing a club, and then finessed the diamond 10. East won with the J and cashed three spades, setting the contract. If West had not false-carded on that spade, South would have played the diamond Q on the tenth trick, dropping the J, and the 10 then would have made his ninth trick.

Your Week-End Lesson

If West had raised his partner's spade suit during the auction, and South finally gets into a contract of 5-Clubs, North having bid hearts, too, what card should West lead from the following hand, and why?

New US Bombers Let R.A.F. Hit Hun Cities

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.)

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP). —There was obviously a direct connection between enactment of the United States aid-for-Britain bill and the furious British-German exchange of air blows that followed.

Britain wanted to give a bomb-illustrated notice to the German people that they can expect more and worse immediately; that American help for Britain is already effective.

The German counter blow at the Liverpool area was obviously planned to follow up the Nazi boast that American help will come "too late." It also probably is a forerunner of immediately intensified Nazi air attack on British ports to supplement the war at sea.

Conflicting accounts of losses and damage do not obscure the most significant fact of that night of air duelling. It is a demonstration that Britain has held in reserve a powerful and slowly accumulated bomber force now turned loose.

With replacements assured by the United States aid program, Britain can risk her reserve in stepped-up offensive action. She is already reaching out to harvest the first fruits of American help.

Concentrated on Fighters

From the outset of the war Britain has faced a difficulty in shaping her plane-production program. She has had to concentrate the bulk of her own production capacity at home on fighter craft. They were vital for defense from invasion. They could not be obtained overseas except by sea and subject to the perils of the Nazi air-and-U-boat blockade. Only heavy bombers can span the Atlantic on their own wings.

The concentration on fighters has necessarily restricted British bomber production at home. Britain has looked across the Atlantic for the assured supply of attack aircraft that could arm her to launch an aerial offensive on a major scale. And she could get and has got bombers from the New World by air, regardless of the Nazi sea blockade.

How many of the ships that blasted at Berlin or other targets in Germany may have first flown across the Atlantic is unrevealed. The number may have been comparatively small, but it is clear that Britain is counting heavily on air-ferried planes to meet future bomber replacement requirements and steadily increase the size of the long-range bomber fleet.

That is what the stepped-up blasting at Berlin and other distant targets means. With United States financial and industrial help assured, there is no longer reason for Britain to conserve her bomber strength unduly. She has thrown her reserve into action now to seize the offensive in the air. Indications are that the British bomber force now available for attack use may play a vital role in the gathering storm of the Battle of the Atlantic.

Night Rule Is Near

Caution in expenditure of that bomber reserve up to now has been an essential element of British policy, sharply limiting the scope of Royal Air Force counter attacks except relatively close to home where British fighters could provide protection for the heavy ships. The scale of British daylight raiding along the "invasion coast" in recent weeks has testified to the growing strength of the fighter force. Announcements that British night fighters scored heavily against Nazi raiders blasting at Liverpool indicate also that in the short-range type of craft British factories are attaining new production levels.

British fighters still control the daylight over Britain. If night fighters have actually attained a one-in-twenty rate of destruction against German bombers, the hour when night air control will be achieved may be in sight.

WASHINGTON (AP).—The United States is building six powerful battle cruisers, a type new to the navy, as part of the huge two-ocean fleet program. There were no details as to characteristics of the ships but the table showed they would cost a total of $320,400,000 — $53,400,000 each.

President Signs Historic Aid Bill

President Franklin D. Roosevelt is shown signing the historic lend-lease bill at the White House in Washington, D.C. He put it into immediate effect by ordering prompt release of a large quantity of army and navy materials of war to Britain and Greece, from supplies already on hand. To supplement these he announced he will ask Congress for $7,000,000,000 more to carry on the "aid to democracies" program.

County Farm Topics

Committees Are Named To Lay Plans For Plowing Match
Cheese Factories Urged To Instal Cool Curing Equipment

Fourteen cars of western grain have been bought by Peterborough county farmers up to Friday noon this week. Two of them were wheat and oats consigned to J. E. Brown, representing the Norwood Farmers' Club, and the twelve others were oats and barley purchased through Peterborough Co-Operative Service.

E. H. Brown, Co-Op manager, says the quality of the grain is exceptionally good. He mentioned one car of oats from the Peace River area, clean, plump, thin hulled, which would grade with the best oats produced in this district.

A large quantity of the grains bought from the west on the government's free-freight plan is being ground at the Co-Op mill. Some of the buyers have their own grinding equipment.

Buy Seed Potatoes

Mr. Brown told the Examiner the Co-Op is buying a car of certified seed potatoes from Prince Edward Island. The purchase will be about 600 bags.

The feed department is turning out around 200 bags a day, and an egg grading station is being organized to be in operation by April 1st for the grading and sale of eggs on a co-operative basis.

Crop Improvement

The Peterborough Crop Improvement Association is holding another meeting Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. A snow storm last week prevented most of the members attending, and it is hoped this follow-up will bring out most of the members. In spite of labor shortage the Association will probably undertaken certain work for this year, especially to prevent a lag from their accomplishments in recent years.

Plowmen To Meet

Plowmen from the district from Deseronto to Ontario county are being invited to meet some of the local directors next Wednesday afernoon to canvass the outlook of obtaining help for the provincial match that is to be held here next October. Men are expected from Victoria, Durham, Ontario, Northumberland, and also from the Deseronto plowmen's group.

Since G. A. Gillespie has assumed the general chairmanship of the local committee for the provincial match the following committees have been appointed.

Finance Committee: Chairman, G. A. Gillespie; V. Eastwood, E. B. Fowler, D. B. Falkner, H. C. Sootheran. Securing necessary funds, insurance, ticket selling, paying accounts.

Grounds Committee: To supervise headquarters area, provide roads, culverts, etc. Chairman, George Hooten; J. N. Lillico, Ira Robson, William Parrington, R. T. Lillico or son.

Bacon Board Fund

The federal Bacon Board deduced $2,258,760 from the proceeds of pork products shipped to Great Britain during 1939 and 1940, and still holds $395,939 of that amount. The difference was expended on storage charges, British Ministry of Food deductions, for shrinkage loss, United States freight and exchange charges, salt bags, and other items including the difference in the amount received from the British Food Ministry for bacon purchased under the original agreement after its expiration and before completetion of the present agreement.

To Cheese Patrons

W. J. Moore, dairy instructor, is appealing to cheese factory patrons to invest some of their 1940 premium money in cool curing equipment. The government pays 50 per cent of the cost, and Mr. Moore contends that an efficient plant will pay for itself in one season. The Trent Bridge factory proved that, he says, and they are all set not only for this year's operations but also for the extended future when Canadian cheese should be more strongly entrenched than ever in the British market. Consistent quality production from year to year is essential if Canadian cheese is to hold and expand its present position, and cool curing is one of the primary factory conditions which Mr. Moore feels can be provided in every factory out of the present bonus, which may be discontinued after the war.

He reports that Port Perry factoy is likely to add a third vat this season to its equipment, a factory may be opened at Claremont, and Allenbury's of Lindsay are also considering the idea of going into the production of cheese.

Cheese patrons' meetings next week are all on Saturday, at Dunsford and Bobcaygeon, afternoon and night respectively, and at Hastings at 1:30 standard time.

Honor P. Ewing Percy Clerk Past 40 Years

WARKWORTH, March 15—(ENS)—P. S. Ewing has been clerk of the township of Percy for forty years. He assumed the office in 1901 and except for a short period has held it ever since. Yet perhaps never in those forty years was he more completely surprised than last Tuesday. At the council meeting after business matters had been cleared. Reeve Thomas A. McMillan rose and after a few congratulatory remarks regarding Mr. Ewing's long, faithful and efficient service, presented him with a valuable chair on behalf of the council, the police village, trustees, the deputy clerk and the treasurer.

All those concerned expressed their appreciation of Mr. Ewing's services and their best wishes.

Mr. Ewing thanked them for the gift and the friendly thought which prompted it.

One of Mr. Ewing's characteristic hobbies is the memorization of good poetry, and on this occasion he quoted Browning's lines on "Friendship":

"Hail friendship since the world began,
Heaven's kindest, noblest boon to man,
All other joys with meteor fire,
Quenched in the mists of time expire;
But thou unhurt by fortunes blast
Shinest, brightest, clearest at the last."

raider was downed during attacks on various parts of Western Germany, and the official German news agency quoted German pilots returning from Britain as saying they were having difficulty dodging searchlight beams being used by British night fighters.)

Britain's defenders downed four more Nazi night raiders during attacks which a communique said were "on a considerable scale and spread over most of the country."

Think City Newcastle

The number of casualties was reported "not large" at the town in the northeast (perhaps the naval building and shipping centre of Newcastle which has been attacked before, but never heavily. where numerous fires were started and shops and industrial buildings were damaged.)

The attack there was described as "sharp." Some explosives crashed into the heart of the business district. A midtown newspaper office was among the buildings hit.

London had another fire-bomb shower but the incendiaries were doused by emergency squads and volunteers almost as fast as they struck.

The raids lasted longer than on most nights recently. London, usually quiet by midnight, did not have its last all-clear until 3 a.m.

The Admiralty announced last night the appointment of Admiral Sir Percy Noble, recently commander-in-chief of the important China station, as commander-inchief of the Western approaches to Britain —making him virtually the leader of Britain's "Battle of the Atlantic."

Informed sources said the western approaches command already had been extended to meet the submarine threat and the British Press Association forecast a "titanic struggle" for mastery of the vital shipping lanes.

Of the German planes reported downed over Britain during the night, three were destroyed by night fighters and one by anti-aircraft fire. Two of the Nazi raiders crashed into the sea.

On the offensive side of the picture two British fighter planes made night visits to German airdromes in occupied-France and attacked 20 Nazi bombers from low altitudes.

The fighters also machine-gunned anti-aircraft guns, fuel tanks and searchlights, the Air Ministry news service declared.

Depth Charge Plane

Willow Grove, Pa., March 15 (CP)

DEVELOPMENT of an autogiro designed for protecting ships against submarines and capable of carrying heavy loads of depth charges was announced today by the Pitcairn Autogiro Company.

Agnew E. Larsen, general manager, said plans for the 'giro had been offered to the United States navy department following demonstrations of a lighter model before naval officers at Bolling Field, Washington and other places.

The company already has perfected a plane which can take off or land vertically on a space no larger than the deck of a ship.

The Pitcairn Company currently is engaged in building a number of smaller autogiros for the British government.

Allen's apartment in St. Petersburg around noon Wednesday. They said they did not know whether she was dead when they put her into the luggage compartment of an auto and started north.

Motive for th murder was not robbery, police said. The woman was buried with her diamonds and there was a watch on her wrist. The body was wrapped in a blanket before being removed from the apartment.

He testified that Allen awakened him around 12.30 a.m., Wednesday, and told him to get up because "Mrs. Rawlins wants to ride all night." Allen, Hogan and Mrs. Rawlins then spent the next nine hours drinking in bars. Allen and Mrs. Rawlins argued a great deal, Hogan continued.

At mid-morning the three went to Allen's apartment, on the second floor of a semi-private dwelling, Hogan testified. Hogan said he tired of hearing the other two argue and went on the front porch to smoke.

"I heard some one fall upstairs," Hogan said.

Returning to the apartment Hogan related, he found Mrs. Rawlins sprawled on the floor and Allen pulling a cord around her neck. She had been beaten on the head with a wine bottle, which lay shattered on the floor.

"Well, we're both in it now," Hogan quoted Allen, adding: "I killed her because I was damn tired of arguing."

Buried Body by Road

Hogan testified the body was put in the car between 3.30 and 4 p.m., Wednesday. He said they drove toward Tampa but changed their route and went to Melrose, where he borrowed a shovel from his sister, telling her he wanted in to help a motorist whose car had mired down on a road.

Hogan told the jury he and Allen buried the woman's body in a gave they dug beside a new road near here between 8.30 and 10 p.m.

Later, he said, they returned the shovel to his sister's house at Melrose, had coffee there and headed back toward St. Petersburg. State Patrolman R. L. Robinson halted them south of Brooksville after he had trailed their car nearly twenty miles.

The patrolman said Hogan was asleep on the rear seat when he stopped the car. Allen, he said, first claimed they had been in a fight near Gainesville, but later explained the blood by saying they had killed a hog.

When Hogan awoke, the officer testified, he told Allen that they might as well tell the truth, but the full story wa snot recounted until Sheriff Law had called in the St. Petersburg officers.

Hogan told the coroner's jury that Allen's real name was Joseph Carlin and that he formerly lived in Philadelphia.

a speech which lasted from a few minutes after five until adjournment was reached at six o'clock.

He criticized the plan on many grounds, particularly on the basis that the Government retained no right to the services of the men after they had been trained except for defence of Canada in event of invasion, and charged incompetency and waste in building military camps.

Col. Ralston suggested the opportunity for criticism was not well-chosen since the charges were made at a time when Munitions Minister Howe was absent from the Chamber, and when there was no immediate opportunity for reply from the Government since it was the last sitting of the week.

During the debate Mr. Gardiner said the Mennonites of Canada, who cannot be forced to take up arms, had signified a willingness to serve in any theatre of war in non-combatant capacities.

He said he hoped a large portion of the Doukhobors, who enjoy similar exemption, would also agree to non-combatant service. But, he said, a small portion of this sect would probably refuse to participate in any form of compulsory service.

Equal Share For All.

Tom Reid (Lib., New Westminster) and Harry Leader (Lib., Portage Le Prairie) said all Canadian citizens should be forced to bear an equal share of the defence of their country. Mr. Reid said the Doukhobors were the only group in Canada to defy the law successfully.

Mr. Hanson estimated that, including capital costs, the compulsory training plan had already cost the country $25,000,000. He wondered what certainty there was that the country would retain its rights to the service of these men after they were trained.

He said they were attached to reserve units "but on paper only." They did not actually join the units.

"The country has the right to utilize the services of these men in the event of an invasion of Canada," Mr. Hanson said.

"Time and time again we have had it explained in this House by the Ministry that the first line of defence in this country was not here but over there.

"Then why has not the government had the courage to go the whole way and retain the absolute right to utilize the services of these men for the defence of Canada over there.

"That shows the weakness of the whole position of the government with respect to this training and the government will have to justify its failure to go the whole way before the eyes of the people of this country before the people will be satisfied."

Waste In Construction

Mr. Hanson said his investigation convinced him there had been great waste in the construction of military camps because of the "desperate" haste in obtaining materials. He said more business-like methods should have been adopted.

Defence Minister Ralston interrupted to say that if the government had moved slowly and with all precautions it would have been accused of letting "red tape" hold up operations.

Mr. Hanson spoke in detail on lumber deals and the cost of a camp at Fredericton which he said would probably reach $254,000 and would "advertise to this country government incompetence and government waste."

"My whole city is seething about the cost of these 30-day training units," he said.

"That is because the honorable gentleman lives there," suggested Mr. Gardiner.

Howard Green (Con. Vancouver South) said the government should make "some clear statement as to its purpose in connection with the compulsory training plan so that the Canadian people might know."

The fact that all the trainees were likely to be drafted from the 21-year-old class was acting as a deterrent to men under 21 getting employment. Potential employers feared such youths would have their work interrupted by compulsory training.

Favors Larger Group

The trainees should be chosen from a much larger age group, and by lot, and then placed in the active army for defence of Canada, he said. Wider exemptions should be provided also for those in essential occupations.

Mr. Gardiner said it was proposed to call the 21-year-old class first to supply recruits for the four-month training periods about to be initiated. It was possible enlistments from that class in the active army would exhaust the number available and then the call would go to the 22-year-olds and so on up through the age groups.

Mr. Hanson and a number of private members on both sides of the House urged a wider latitude for training postponements and easier methods of obtaining postponements for young men on farms.

Mr. Gardiner said new regulations for the training plan would be available next week which would provide for easier arrangement of postponements. It would be possible to arrange postponements by mail without the applicant appearing before a board.

Plan Of Awarding War Jobs To Be Revealed

OTTAWA. March 15 (CP)—Outline of procedure in awarding and checking war contracts will be given the special House Committee on war expenditures at a meeting Tuesday, it was indicated yesterday.

After approving its first report to the House of Commons, the committee prepared to start its check on expenditures with a view to ascertaining all possible economy in war purchases.

J. T. Thorson (Lib. Selkirk), committee chairman, said it was planned to have munitions and supply officials give evidence Tuesday, in line with the committee idea that the method of awarding contracts should be made clear before individual inquiries were launched.

The report to the Commons told of the committee's intention to write members of parliament asking suggestions as to suitable lines of inquiry. In addition, it was indicatd that a check might be made of recent House debates on the war program to see if any matters requiring investigation had been mentioned.

"In all our inquiries we must keep before us the understanding that this committee is designed to see that all possible economy is obtained for Canadians," Mr. Thorson said.

The report to the House told of the committee's decision to appoint sub-committees to which specific subjects might be allocated for inquiry.

The committee asked permission to print copies of minutes of proceedings and evidence as it thought fit. This was expected to mean that only evidence given at open sessions would be printed.

Liner Bremen Ablaze Huns Admit

Claim Cause Mystery; Heavy R.A.F. Raids Over Port Thursday

BERLIN, Mar. 17 — (AP). — Fire of undetermined origin aboard the German Lloyd liner Bremen was described in a late afternoon press conference to-day as "big and still continuing."

Authorities declined to give further details.

After the first anouncement of the fire by D.N.B., German news agency, in Berlin, the agency later substituted a Bremen dateline for the story. (The indication was that the ship was at Bremen.)

(The British Broadcasting Corporation commented: "It will be recalled that the Royal Air Force last Thursday night carried out a particularly heavy raid on the German docks and shipyards at Hamburg and Bremen.")

When asked whether reports the Bremen had been sunk were true, authorized sources said that, since the Bremen was in an unrevealed port, obviously she could not be sunk.

Boom Just Starting

Washington, March 17 (AP)

WILLIAM S. KNUDSEN, defence production chief, disclosed today that the $7,000,000 British aid program plus defence contracts yet to be awarded would require a 60 per cent increase in United States industrial activity.

Kudsen, director of the office of production management; Sidney Hillman, associate director, Secretary Frances Perkins and other government officials addressed a conference called to consider how to increase the number of trained workers.

"We've got to go into production," Knudsen said, "on a scale in America that has never even been approached before."

Hillman asserted that "We here under our democratic institutions can do the job much better in the long run that it is being done in other countries where the totalitarian governments are in power."

A 13-Mile Battle

North Bay, Ont., March 17 (CP)

PAT WHITE, amateur aviator, reached his home here today suffering from frost-bite and exposure after crawling and staggering 16 miles through one of the wildest blizzards of the winter when he abandoned his home-made airplane on the ice of Lake Nipissing.

White went out in the plane yesterday. He landed 13 miles from shore when his machine ran out of gasoline. Guided only by dead reckoning he headed for shore across the slush-covered ice. The last few hundreds yards he crawled, reaching a fisherman's shack where he warmed himself before continuing. A search party was ready to start out this morning when White reached home.

FDR All-Out Call Blocks Move To Cut Aid Total

WASHINGTON, Mar. 17—(AP)—President Roosevelt's call for the most urgent all-out national effort in the lease-lend program lined up administration forces solidly to-day against any attempts to cut the $7,000,000,000 fund asked to provide the implements of war for embattled democracies.

The Office of Production Management opened a two-day conference with industrialists and labor leaders here to-day to perfect methods for training an adequate supply of workers to meet defence plant needs as they materialize.

The American people, the President said, "recognize the extreme seriousness of the present situation."

"That is why they have demanded, and got, a policy of unqualified, immediate, all-out aid to Britain, Greece, China, and for all governments in exile whose homelands are temporarily occupied by the aggressors.

Cheered in Britain.

President Roosevelt's Saturday night speech was cheered by the British press to-day as bringing the United States virtually into the war and denounced in German and Italian broadcasts as the start of a "dictatorial policy of expansion."

The Rome radio, heard by the C.B.S., said: "The speech is interpreted here as the announcement of direct participation of American soldiers on both continents (Europe and Asia) and the foreshadowing of a tremendous blood bath."

SubZero Blast Freezes 51 To Death

16 More Adrift On Floe, Four Perish In Manitoba Blizzard

(By the Canadian Press.)

Winter's fading breath blew strong winds and frigid blasts into the United States Midwest over the week-end, snuffing out the lives of at least 48 persons in two states, endangered the lives of 12 other who were adrift on ice floes in northern Lake Superior, and added four more in Western Canada.

North Dakota, which bore the brunt of the storm, counted 30 dead wit hfears expressed the toll might be increased, while in neighboring Minnesota 18 persons perished.

The winds reached near hurricane velocity—gales of 85 miles an hour being reported. Sub-zero marks were reported in several Minnesota and North Dakota cities today — with the lowest of 14 below at Roseau, Minn.

The death list was increased by three today with the finding of the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Foss and their 18-year-old daughter Roselyn, of Beltrami, Minn., on a highway near Lockheart, Minn. They had frozen to death in the bitter cold.

Like many others of the death, their automobile had stalled in the storm and, trying to walk to safety, they had walked to death.

Manitoba dug itself out from the worst blizzard in years, counted four dead, and like the rest of Western Canada prepared for continuation

The Mahukona is a 2,512-ton vessel belonging to the Matson Navigation Company of San Francisco, and normally carried a crew of 26 persons.

Constable Shot In Fracas With Soldier

LONDON, Ont., Mar. 17 — (CP). —Pte. Albert Cornell, 18-year-old soldier from Camp Borden, Ont., was charged with attempted murder to-day following a shooting affray here early this morning in which Cornell and Constable Irving Robertson of the City Police Force were wounded. Both are in hospital and it is expected that Cornell will appear in court a week from to-day.

Constable Robertson was shot in the right leg and the soldier was wounded in the arm and hip, but their wounds were not believed to be serious.

The shooting is said to have followed an attempt by police to arrest Cornell.

Before the shooting, Constable Neil Brock was slugged over the head and his revolver taken from him allegedly by Pte. Cornell and a soldier companion.

Pte. Cornell's companion, whose identity has not been established, was being hunted by police.

The two soldiers were travelling in an auto with alleged stolen licence plates. The car was spotted by Constable Brock, and he halted it near the C.P.R. Station.

Constable Brock, a rookie with about two months' service, got into the car and ordered the soldiers to drive to police headquarters. Suddenly, one of them slugged him over the head with a short club, and the other attacked him with a beer bottle, knocking him out.

Constable Brock recovered consciousness in the auto, which had been abandoned by the soldiers.

The alarm was then given by Constable Brock, and scout car crews were rushed into North London.

No Bombing Athens Rome Tipped

ROME, March 17—(CP).—A "reliable source" said today Britain had warned Italy and Germany that Royal Air Force bombers would attack Rome if Axis planes bombed Athens. (There was no British comment on this report).

The warning was said to have been conveyed to Berlin and Rome through Vatican channels.

It presumably was presented to the Vatican through the British Minister for transmission to Italian and German diplomats accredited to the Holy See, although nothing could be learned in Vatican circles.

Hint Hog Bonus For Live Grading

TORONTO, March 17. — (CP).—Possibility that the government's bonus on hogs will apply to live as well as rail grading was held out to a delegation from the Domestic Packers' Association which conferred with Agriculture Minister P. M. Dewan in a closed session to-day. The bonus of 50 cents to $1 is to apply to carcasses that pass through the regular trade channels. The delegation sought to have the bonus paid for hogs bought on the hoof as well as those killed under Federal government inspection.

"As a result of a meeting between the small packers and the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. P. M. Dewan, we are hopeful of the continuance of live grading and live marketing of hogs in the province which is so vital to the farmer who is concerned with the operation of a profitable and competitive market.

"The Minister stated that matters relating to the operation of the hog question are still in a formative stage and he will consider favorably all our representations. He stated that the 'last thing' he wanted to do was to hurt the domestic packer, the farmer or the small butcher."

Walter Thomson, solicitor for the Association, added that the interview was "friendly anh unherstanding."

"All we want is to continue live grading in the province and that is what we hope to get."

The system of rail grading prevails in plants where hogs are slaughtered under Federal government inspection. There are no government inspectors in the small packing houses which do all their buying on a live basis.

240,000 NAZIS IN BULGARIA.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—A military expert just arrived from a tour of the Balkans estimated tonight that 16 Nazi divisions—perhaps 240,000 men—now are massed on or within striking distance of Bulgaria's frontier with Greece.

These, he said, are in addition to 12 divisions— about 180,000 men—in Nazi occupied Rumania.

Navy Engineers' Coup In Somaliland; New Gains At Cheren

CAIRO, March 17—(AP).—British forces have recaptured Berbera, capital of British Somaliland,general headquarters announced today, at the same time revealing British and Indian troops have taken "important heights covering Cheren," key city in the drive into Eritrea.

The Gulf of Aden port, evacuated by the British forces last August when Italian forces occupied British Somaliland, was retaken yesterday, a communique said, after a successful landing in co-operation with the navy and air force.

When the French capitulation left Britain alone, surrounded in British Somaliland by Italian East Africa, the british authorities abandoned the colony with only a covering fight to protect the withdrawal.

Since then, however, Britain has taken the offensive in East Africa.

In a strange trade—by force of arms—they had won Italian Somaliland, almost three times as big and three times as populous as British Somaliland, and had made inroads into Eritrea and Ethiopia, Italy's other East African possessions.

British Somaliland has an area of about 68,000 square miles and a population of about 350,000.

On the African east coast just below the Bab El Mandeb Straits between the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden, British Somaliland is sandwiched between French Somaliland and Italian Somaliland and shares an inland frontier with Ethiopia.

The British forces encountered machine-gun and artillery fire from shore emplacements at Berbera, but the batteries of British warships quickly wiped out this resistance, it was authoritatively reported.

Italian resisitance was described as slight. About 100 prisoners were

Thyssen Given Up

Vichy, France, March 17 (AP)

INFORMED sources said today that Fritz Thyssen, German industrialist who helped bring Hitler to power and then fell into disfavor, had been surrendered by Vichy to Germany and that he is believed to be in Dachau concentration camp.

These sources asserted Thyssen, a refugee, was handed over under terms of the French-German armistice. He had been living at Cannes, on the Riviera, when he was arrested in December by French police, they said.

Croats, Serbs Urge Premier Stand Firm Some Call For Aid To Greeks, U.S. Pledge Of Aid Strengthens Cause

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 17—(AP).—Yugoslavia's resistance to Nazi pressure has stiffened suddenly, diplomatic observers declare, influenced by United States pledges of anti-Axis aid and by reports that a British expeditionary force is streaming into Greece.

In consequence, these sources said last night, the divisions Germany poised across the Bulgarian border from Greece apparently are hesitating despite declarations from Berlin they would strike if British force set foot in Greece.

If they did attack, it was pointed out, their communications would be extended down a 500-mile corridor flanked by still-neutral Yugoslavia and watchful Soviet Russia.

Yugoslav newspapers printed editorials reflecting a renewed will to retain national independence. Typical articles denounced those who "by threats, deceptions and promises which humiliate the Yugoslav people" try to divert the nation from "neutrality and peace."

Decrying "insults to Yugoslavia which cast doubt on her moral and material strength," the usually pro-German newspaper Vreme declared: "Yugoslavia is strong. Yugoslavia can be resolute. Yugoslavia, by her open, honest and determined attitude, will contribute to the consolidation of her national destiny and her own peace."

Some diplomatic sources expressed a belief that since Yugoslavia has refused so far to join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance, Germany m! try to release the forces she has across the frontier from Yugoslavia by offering to accept a non-aggression or friendship pact instead.

A strong bloc of Serb military and political leaders has taken the position Yugoslavia should go "all out" to the aid of Greece now that the British are reported preparing a Balkan front.

Strong Croat factions had gone far toward a "peace at any price" stand, but over the week end the union of Serb and Croat societies telegraphed Regent Prince Paul and Vice Premier Vladimir Macek to "stand firm" in resisting any demands which would violate Yugoslavia's neutrality.

Yugoslav military preparations continued, with troops seen on the march, planes in the air, and the requisition of more and more public buildings for military use.

Diplomatic messages said last night that another British mechanized division was landing in Greece as the British command built up 100,000 troops already reported

4 Die, 114 Injured As Saboteurs Wreck Express

BADEN, Pa., March 17—(CP). — Pennsylvania railroad officials today blamed saboteurs for the derailing of a crowded passenger train—three of those cars plunged into the freezing waters of the Ohio River—killing four persons and injuring more than 114 last night.

E. W. Smith, vice-president of the railroad, said: "All the spikes were removed from one rail" and the wreck was "very definitely caused by sabotage."

The Cleveland-Pittsburgh train was roaring along at 60 miles an hour when it met disaster near this small town about 22 miles northwest of Pittsburgh.

The locomotive jumped the tracks and overturned, whipping its four coaches and baggage car over a 50-foot embankment to the river. The baggage car and two coaches were partially submerged. The other cars lay twisted along the river's edge.

Engineer A. R. Weigle of Cleveland was killed. His "buddy," Fireman C. H. Millburg, of Alliance, who escaped with cuts and bruises, remembered that a freight train was scheduled to pass the wreck in a short time and might plow through scores of injured and dazed passengers wandering about the tracks. He quickly ran back and flagged the freight to a safe stop.

Other dead were a 9-months-old baby and a woman, unidentified, and Harry Kennedy, 45, a Pennsylvania railroad clerk.

Lloyd Report Toll Already Past 30-Month List In Last War

LONDON, March 17. — (CP).— Lloyd's reported to-day that British, Allied and neutral shipping losses in the first 18 months of the war were slightly under 5,000 000 tons—700,000 tons more than in the first 2½ years of the First Great War.

Lloyd's list and the Shipping Gazette gave British, Allied and neutral losses up to March 2 as 1,245 ships of 4,962,257 tons.

Total German, Italian and Axis-controlled vessels lost were given as 422 ships of 2,028 140 tons.

(The German commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland had claimed March 13 that German armed froces have sunk more than 9,000,000 tons of British shipping since the war began.

(Lloyd's register of shipping listed 21,001,925 tons of British Empire shipping at the start of the war—8,977 steamships and motorships of 100 gross tons or more. At the beginning of the war Norway, Denmar, Belgium, Holland and France had 12,320,686 tons of shipping, of which Britain obtained an undisclosed number of vessels).

In the first 30 months of the last war the Allies and neutrals lost 2,341 ships of 4,316,000 tons.

The breakdown of losses in the 18½ months of the present conflict showed Britain lost 757 ships of 3,-171,273 tons, Allied nations 193 ships of 875,202 tons, and neutral nations 295 ships of 915,782 tons.

For the first time in a published list the tonnage lost in the withdrawal from Dunkirk was included. The June, 1940, losses for Britain, including Dunkirk, were 72 vessels of 280,556 tons, and for the Allies 39 ships of 169,348 tons. These figures did not include many small pleasure and fishing craft.

German losses since the outbreak of war were listed as 60 ships, of 268,542 tons captured and 77 ships of 420,947 tons sunk. Lloyd's explained that this included only the losses of German ships whose names

Canada Up On War Schedule

Howe Reveals Dominion-Made Vehicles Carried Wavell Army

PORT ARTHUR, March 16. — (CP).—Hon. C. D. Howe, Federal Minister of Munitions and Supply, told a Chamber of Commerce banquet audience here Saturday night: "I am certain that our war effort in Canada is far ahead of any schedule set for it."

The Minister said that at the end of the government's fiscal year, April 30 Canada will have expended $1,000,000,000 in the sinews of war, or about 25 per cent of the total national income of the country.

Speaking of criticism of his department, he said that when he took the responsibilities coincidental to his cabinet position he knew he was exposnig himself to criticism but had accepted that responsibility also.

There was through it all "nothing that would suggest improprieties in my department," said Mr. Howe.

The Minister told of his trip across the Atlantic when the ship he was a passenger on was torpedoed. Mr. Howe spoke of the rescue of the passengers and crew and of his visit to the old country, describing his audience with King George VI in bomb-scarred Buckingham Palace. Then he spoke of his return to Canada, crossing the Atlantic on the battleship King George V.

In Fort William Mr. Howe, declared that the campaign of the British Middle East army in Africa was carried on largely through the use of motorized equipment from Canada.

Construction work is proceeding on new planes which will manufacture guns and tanks, said Mr. Howe. Production soon would start.

After the heroic British withdrawal from Dunkirk, the demand had come for guns of all descriptions. Canada now was turning out guns ranging from the Lee-Enfield rifle to field artillery and naval guns.

Next came a call for explosives

Greeks Turn Assault To Massacre

Musso Goes To Rome His Prestige Badly Weakened

ATHENS, Greece, March 17 (AP)—Mussolini's personally - directed "big push" aimed at breaking Greek resistance in Albania cost the Italians 50,000 effectives out of a force of 120,000, jubilant Greek spokesmen asserted today.

The week-long series of violent attacks, backed by 300 planes, but repulsed everywhere by Greek forces inferior in numbers, now has dwindled almost to local actions, they said.

(The Greek radio, in a broadcast picked up in New York by the Columbia Broadcasting System, said Mussolini had gone back to Rome "with his prestige weakened and his authority shaken."

(Earlier Greek dispatches said Mussolini had ordered his Generals to "do something" by last Saturday, when Athens reports said he was scheduled to return home. There has been no acknowledgement or denial from Rome of Mussolini's presence in Albania but the Italian radio Saturday said he re-

Fifth Column Gives Eire Much Trouble

The Fifth Column situation in Eire at the present time was probably the most serious to be found anywhere, Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's Church told Rotarians today in a St. Patrick's Day address to the members of the service club, as they celebrated the natal day of the patron saint of Ireland.

Canon Robertson's address dealt with the decision of Eire to stay neutral in the present conflict and the failure of De Valera to turn over Irish ports to the British navy in the present emergency.

To understand those decisions on the part of the Irish people he said it was necessary to know the background of Ireland, not only the remote background but the immediate background. Ireland had been described as the land where the inevitable never happened and where the impossible often did and another reference to Ireland was that the Irish people had not history. The things that happened in the past three hundred years were still alive and real to the Irish and they accounted for the present refusal on the part of Eire to take up arms with the rest of the British Commonwealth against Nazism.

What had happened in Ireland three hundred years ago and since Rev. Canon Robertson declared, resembled what the Nazis were doing today. The persecution of earlier days and the mistakes in policy that had been made in modern times, were reflected in the situation today, the speaker declared, adding that if De Valera had turned the Irish ports over to the British navy conditions in Ireland might have been worse for the British cause than they are now.

All Empire Suffering

"The whole British empire is suffering with Ireland because of conditions for which the Irish people are only partially responsible," declared Rev. Canon Robertson, himself a native of Cork.

The speaker was introduced by Fred L. Roy and thanks were expressed to Rev. Canon Robertson by Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr.

Irish music featured the luncheon, the program including the singing of "An Irish Lullaby" by Mack Gordon. The menu included green pea soup, a genuine Irish stew and green-colored ice cream, while shamrocks were distributed and worn by the members.

15,000 Cigarettes In Two Weeks

Every copper dropped in the "Buckshee" boxes around the city means four and one half cigarettes for the Canadian soldiers overseas.

This statement was made today by Bob Hotrum, chairman of the Buckshee Fund, for the local branch of the Canadian Legion when he appealed to local people to help this branch of war service along.

Two weeks ago the boxes were placed in the stores throughout the city and collections for the first two weeks, were sufficient to purchase 15,000 cigarettes for the soldiers. This money is sent to the Canadian Legion at Montreal, where the cigarettes are purchased, and forwarded to the Canadian Legion War Services in England. At this point they are distributed to the Canadian soldiers in different parts of England.

At the F. and G. store on Park and Charlotte the girls on duty in the refreshment booth section claim that when children come in to spend five cents. They usually buy four cents worth of candy and drop the other cent in the Buckshee box.

Almost every store and barber shop in the city has a Buckshee box and the need for cigarettes is great because on a B.B.C. broadcast Sunday, eight of the ten Canadian soldiers interviewed asked for cigarettes.

Germans Slash At Bristol For Eighth Time

LONDON, March 17 (CP)—Nazi bombers concentrated last night on Bristol, west English port, causing "considerable damage" and "a number of casualties, including people killed," the government reported today.

Bad weather kept the Royal Air Force from making any major sorties during the night.

Waves of bombers poured high explosives on the town for several hours but all fires were reported under control by morning. One raider was shot down.

London had an alarm before midnight and some raiding was reported in other districts of England but a communique said casualties were few and damage small.

Several persons were reported killed Saturday night when a bomb hit a dance hall in a London suburb and wrecked a bus outside. It was the second dance hall hit by a bomb on successive Saturday nights.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 17—(AP)—Warning that sacrifice and inconvenience lie ahead for all, President Roosevelt on Saturday night made a "total victory" over the dictators the objective of an American "total effort," unflaggingly sustained, to place the implements of warfare in the hands of nations resisting aggression.

"You will feel the impact of this gigantic effort in your daily lives," he said in an address before the White House Correspondents Association. "You will feel it in a way that will cause you many inconveniences."

Jury Disagrees On Newell; Order New Trial

TORONTO, March 17 (CP)—AC. H. A. W. (Bill) Newell today awaits further trial for the silk-stocking murder of his pretty young Finnish wife, Aune, after a jury in his three-week trial here failed to reach a verdict after 10 hours of deliberation Saturday.

Mr. Justice J. C. Makins ordered the trial of the 26-year-old Russo-Finnish war veteran traversed to the spring assizes but Newell's counsel reserved the right to ask transfer of the case to another county where winter assizes have not yet been concluded.

Newell's wife was found strangled by one of her own silk stockings in a secluded part of Toronto Island last Oct. 6 and Newell has been in custody since a few days after the body was discovered. His trial was marked by frequent outbursts as he objected to testimony of Crown witnesses and Saturday, while Mr. Justice Makins was delivering his charge to the jury, Newell was ordered from the court for the third time during the 18 days of trial when he interrupted the jury address.

The jury retired at 12:46 p.m. and returned at 10:15. After delivery of the report of disagreement, Mr. Justice Makins asked the jury if there was a possibility that further consideration would result in a verdict. The foreman replied that there wasn't.

The War Today

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Mussolini's week-long offensive in Albania has ended in disaster and probably contributed considerably to Axis embarrassment over th sudden stiffening of Yugoslavia towards German demands that she join the alliance.

Greek authorities said Mussolini had been touring the front in an armored car, personally directing operations after ordering his Generals to "do something" by last Saturday. The result, said the Greeks, was a "real massacre" in which the Italians lost 50,000 men.

Meanwhile the Greeks were reported being reinforced by large numbers of British troops ferried across the Mediterranean from Africa while the army of the Nile was strengthened by new forces from the Antipodes.

Simultaneously with publication of these reports came a sudden stiffening of Yugoslavia's attitude toward Germany while the press, under the thumb of the government, urged that the country maintain its neutrality and warned that Yugoslav arms were strong. It was considered that the Yugoslav government, stalling for time, might have felt itself fortified by arrival of the British forces in Greece. One newspaper even called for Yugoslav armed aid to Greece.

Germany with 500,000 troops massed on the Greek-Bulgarian border, still withheld its attack, although Hitler in his memorial day speech Saturday promised Mussolini that German troops this year would bear the brunt of fighting Britain which Italy had been forced hitherto "to face alone."

There were reports also that the Germans were uneasy about the attiude of Russia whose forces are standing in large numbers along the new Rumanian-Bessarabian border. Rumanian soldiers on that frontier were said to have been replaced by Germans.

nicle said the speech indicated "America is all out to win. In a technical sense she still is not in the war, but in every real sense she is in it up to the hilt."

The Daily Sketch said 'in effect" the speech was "a total declaration of war against Hitler, as complete in its terms as if it had been an official ultimatum of a fight to the finish."

The Sydney, Australia, Herald declared editorially: "Roosevelt...discarded the last vestiges of diplomatic restraint and called for a total effort which will not stop before victory."

In Germany the Deutsche Diplomatische Politische Korrespondenz asserted Roosevelt was trying to create a "world order" of his own.

It charged him with having "falsely represented" the Axis powers as intent on destroying all elected administrations and declared "he is not so much concerned about the security of the democratic system as for satisfying his own lust for power."

New Hope For Millions

The New York Herald Tribune, commenting editorially upon President Roosevelt's call Saturday night for an all-out effort by the United States to achieve "total victory" against barbarism, said today that "never have Americans faced a job so well worth while and never can there have been less doubt that a job will be done."

"There is a kind of bewilderment among the Axis propagandists as they try to explain the appearance of American industrial power upon the scene. The brave voice of Greece explains it better than any other: 'The president has officially and irrevocably signed the death warrant of the new order.'"

The Times said:—

"The president's ringing words of Saturday night were heard around the world both metaphorically and literally....in millions of homes in England, in Canada, in Australia, in Greece, in China, wherever the aggressor has moved or threatened, hopes have risen, hearts are higher, and men and women move with new courage...."

TORONTO, March 17 — (CP). — The Ontario Legislature will proceed with second readings of bills today as a prelude to the start of the budget debate Tuesday. Premier Hepburn delivered the budget Friday and announced a surplus of $12,800,364—an all-time high.

Many Of Irish Serving Country

As the sun rose upon what was to have been a beautiful St. Patrick's Day, a Peterborough man walked into Boyd's Grocery store on George street and began discussing Ireland and the war. J. S. Boyd, who is Ulster Irish, became convinced of the need for education amongst Canadian citizens as regards Ireland and the war and has come forward with information he hopes will clear up the situation.

Primarily, Northern Ireland is at war with Germany, and has been since the beginning of hostilities. As part of the British Empire, those from Northern Ireland have enlisted right and left, and have lined up with troops from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the British Isles and other parts of the Empire. The contribution being made by the Irish in the Dominions is as wholehearted and as far reaching as any other race of men, Mr. Boyd maindown through the years.

ULSTER'S OWN

By Gunner (Piper) Gray

The war drums have rolled out their clarion call,
And three regiments we know were there on the ball,
They've been Ulster defenders right down through the year,
They're the "Rifles," the "Skins," and the ould "Fusiliers."
They were there at the start to hold back the Hun,
You can bet your last bob they missed none of the fun,
They rushed into the fray with three hearty cheers,
Did the "Rifles," the 'Skins," and the ould Fusiliers.'"
Lord Haw-Haw's a liar, a truth you'll admit
He stated that our boys shirk doing their bit.
But they'll give him the lie and they'll move him to tears,
Will the 'Rifles," the "Skins," and the ould "Fusiliers."
If the Nazis invade us at Hitler's desire,
They'll have jumped from the frying-pan into the fire,
For they'll dash Hitler's hopes and drown Goering's jeers,
Will the "Rifles," the "Skins," and the ould "Fusiliers."
Our boys form a stumbling block, sturdy and wide.
But Hitler says "No," he'll take them in his stride,
He will need to be fit if this hurdle he clears,
Of the "Rifles," the "Skins," and the ould "Fusiliers."
This sixpence a day is not much you'll admit,
But 'twill help these boys somewhat while doing their bit.
It will help to buy fags and a few extra beers,
For the "Rifles," the "Skins," and the ould "Fusiliers."
Now drink to their health and pledge Ulster's own,
Amidst war and strife they ne'er utter a groan.
And round off the toast with three hearty cheers,

and then a request for aircraft. Canadian plants now were manufacturing sufficient planes for training purposes as well as for shipment to Britain.

Mr. Howe said his department had been criticized for not starting a shipbuilding program immediately. He explained that it was guns that were needed first—the supply of ships at the middle of last year was regarded as sufficient, with vessels from all European countries being taken over.

The minister stressed that war is never static. What was sound policy today might be unsound a month from now. Fewer shells were being fired in this war than expected, and it was possible that shell-making might have to be curtailed.

During the visit to the plant of the Canadian Car and Foundry Company here, Mr. Howe told a gathering of more than 2,000 employees that the plant's output of 15 hurricane fighter aircraft a week made it the largest plane factory in Canada.

"The airplane you are building has been bearing the brunt of the defence of Britain," Mr. Howe said. "You are well on your way toward completion of your first large order for Hurricane planes.

"New orders are now being placed, partly for planes for Britain and partly for planes for Canada. As long as production can be kept on its present efficient basis you need have no fear of the lack of orders."

"I would like everyone of you to feel that your every operation here is a step toward the defeat of Hitler and a return to a peaceful world.

"Airplanes are moving from this plant to England at the rate of about 15 per week. Other similar plants on this continent are delivering their quotas of planes for the Battle of Britain.

HASTINGS

Father And Son Banquet Enjoyed

HASTINGS, March 17.—(ENS).—St. Patrick's colors furnished a very attractive setting for the 'father and son' banquet, which was held in the basement of Trinity church on Friday evening. The banquet was sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary and proved most encouraging.

The tables were artistically decorated with shamrocks and green and white trimmings.

At the head table were represented three generations of two families, namely, Mr. Fred Dodd, son Walter Dodd and grandson Wayne Dodd; Mr. John Fleming, son Vernon Fleming and grandson Boyd Kelly.

After the bountiful supper served, an efficient committee of W. A. ladies, Rev. J. E. Glover as toastmaster, led in a sing-song.

A toast in honor of the king and country was given by Reeve L. E. Kelley, after which Earl Scriver sang "There'll Always Be an England."

W. W. Knight gave a pleasing saxaphone solo.

The toast to 'Our Church' by Grant Sine was responded to by an elder of the church, Mr. J. E. Oliver.

Mr. Marvyn Preston sang a solo and Mr. Earl Darling a piano solo.

Mr. A. V. German expressed a toast to 'Our Guests' which was reponded to by Rev. C. McCullum, rector of St. George's Anglican church who brought greetings from his congregation.

The guest speaker, Leo. W. Copp, of Peterborough, Inspector of Public schools, was introduced to the assembly and his splendid address on 'The Stars' proved a real treat.

Disney Influence On African War Front

The squadron crest painted on this Italian plane shot down at Gazala is the big bad wolf that roams around in the short films produced by Walt Disney. Even on the war front he provides a laugh for a British Tommy.

Betty Compton "Shakes" Jimmy Walker

KEY WEST, Fla., March 17. — (AP).—Mrs. James J. Walker was successful Saturday in her second effort to divorce the former New York mayor, whom she accused of flying into "apparently insane tempers for the most commonplace things."

A final decree allowing her to resume use of the name Betty Compson was signed by Circuit Judge Arthur Gomez. Joint custody of two young adopted children was arranged and a financial settlement was approved.

Judge Gomez threw out Mrs. Walker's first suit on March 5, holding that she had proved incompatibility, but not cruelty.

The former British show girl returned to court with another action based on charges of extreme cruelty and habitual indulgence in a violent and ungovernable temper.

She told of a fear of bodily harm when Mr. Walker was angry and said he sometimes threatened to hit her.

Mrs. Walker said she and the former mayor had not lived together since last August and could not do so again.

Mr. Walker did not contest the divorce action.

Mrs. Walker discussed her plans for the future at her appearance in court. She said that she would open a dance studio in Miami soon.

All In The Last Sentence

Perhaps you recall something about the German freighter, Lech. It was reported in the news only a few days ago as quite an accomplishment. The Lech had arrived in Rio de Janeiro after having been able to run the British blockade.

The skipper was Commander Brinkmann, and of course he talked with the reporters as one who had had an adventure on the high seas. Had he any trouble getting through? Was it much of a trick to evade the British vessels and make the trip to Brazil?

And the answer was that it had indeed been very simple. The skipper had made no change whatever in the course he had charted, and in fact he had seen no British vessels, and it had all been very delightful.

Commander Brinkmann had more to say. He was delighted to be able to arrive in Brazil with an assortment of German merchandise which had been selected particularly for the people of that country. The Germans could assert like the British, that "they always delivered the goods."

We admit that at the time we were somewhat puzzled about all this. It caused us to wonder if the Lech went through with such ease that the same thing could be done again, and possibly again after that.

But when we got close to the end of the story there was a little something or other which made it look different for Commander Brinkmann, brave skipper that he must be, announced that the Lech would remain in the harbor until the war was over!

Enough To Defeat Hitler

Some makers of aluminum utensils in United States are said to have been speeding up production so they would beat the time when the Government is likely to announce that aluminum is needed for war purposes.

We read of others who have been seeking to invade other markets which they realize will soon be overtaxed or closed to them. Indications are that the all-out effort in United States is not going to be long delayed.

Some critics have been busy trying to figure out to a decimal point how many planes and ships can be made per week or per month, and they have concluded the program will be slower than anticipated.

There is a general disposition in the press to accept the seven billion dollars mark as something quite indefinite. The New York Post states the case this way:

"The only safe limit we can place on our productivity is that we must produce enough to defeat Hitler."

To our way of thinking that is an admirable way to state the case. And it can be applied to Canada just as well as to United States, not only in mechanical production, but in every line of effort which in any way has a bearing on this war. It may look like an open or a loose way of calculating, and it may not meet up with the studied requirements of accounting, but it expresses exactly that which cannot be stated in precise terms: "Enough to defeat Hitler."

Talk Of Conscription

Hon. R. B. Hanson, House leader of the Conservative party at Ottawa, moved up about as close as one could to urging conscription in Canada for overseas services. He had been attacking the thirty-day training period, and the same criticism was being utilized for the four-months proposal. He felt that after having made such an investment in housing, instruction and equipment there should be something by which the Government knew it was able to retain its hold upon those who had been trained. It was then he said:

"Why has not the Government had the courage to go the whole way and retain the absolute right to utilize the services of these men for the defence of Canada over there, after giving them four months' training and spending the huge sums of money we have spent on their education?"

"The defence of Canada over there" can mean only one thing, and that is overseas service. "Retaining the absolute right to utilize the services of these men" means nothing else than conscription.

It was also suggested in the debate that during the last election the Conservative party had been on record against conscription. That is correct, and it is also a fact that the Liberals were opposed to it, and their official position today would be the same.

But the election platform of any party settles little enough during war years. When the election was on the war picture was much different to that of today. It had not sprawled its geographical structure all over the country, and it had not gone down into Africa, nor was there a French ally taken out of the picture then.

There is something wrong with our present method, and chiefly because the making of a decision as to what a young man shall do has been placed upon the young man, and not taken over by the Government. So it is we have the situation where the young man can do as he sees fit. He can be conscripted for home defence but not for overseas service, so in that way we have two kinds of soldiers, and it is a situation which our Government should seriously consider. Whether Mr. Hanson has the authority to commit the Conservative party to out-and-out conscription is something which is not clear, but we believe it would be an error for any party in Canada to measure present need and future prospective need by the yard stick of what had been said during the previous election campaign when conditions were far removed from being in the position which faces us today.

Using Registered Seed

For fifteen years there have been annual exhibitions held by the the Quinte District Seed Fair. This year the Fair was in Belleville; in 1931 it was in Peterborough when C. T. Ketcheson was president, and again in this city in 1938 when the presiding officer for the year was Gordon Hancock. On the final day there is always a sale when all the seed exhibited as well as the potatoes are offered by auction. It is claimed that is one of the best features of the Fair, as those who bid successfully will take away the seed, all of which is registered, and plant it on their farms, and in this way the use of good seed is encouraged.

The layman looking at an exhibit of rows of bags filled with good seed would have difficulty enough in knowing how it was that the judge was able to select No. 1 and so on down to No. 6 in many cases. Actually to the casual observer all the bags look much the same. George A. Elliott, of the Department of Agriculture, explained to an Examiner representative, how the work was done, how a sample of the grain was taken which was representative of everything from top to bottom of the bag. The points considered are plumpness, color, evidence of fertility and so on.

The work of having registered seed spread widely on the farms of Ontario has not been rapid, and the belief was expressed by several of the officials at Belleville that the young farmers' movement, centred in the office of the District Representative in the various counties, was the agency through which the idea was going to gain momentum. In a general way, although it was admittedly an estimate rather than a known fact, it was stated that not more than one per cent. of the farmers of the province were yet using registered seed. The yield per acre is larger, and the cost is not a serious consideration. Registered seed oats for instance sell for about 75 cents per bushel, and looking at the exhibits, well-filled and free from impurities, it did look to be worth the money.

The young boys from the farms of Hastings, Durham, Prince Edward, Ontario, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Northumberland, Peterborough and Victoria receive attention at the Seed Fair, and the accuracy with which the county teams will proceed with the intricate business of judging seed and pronouncing results speaks well for the future of farming. They make their own exhibits as well, and the prize money is not only in cash, but in the fines and purest seed grain. In fact one boy won a purebred Ayrshire bull calf as a prize.

The people who participate take the business seriously, and the results they secure indicate the Seed Fair is entirely practical.

Much Comes And Much Goes

There was something in the papers the other day about Ann Sheridan, who had gone on strike in the movies some months or weeks ago because she was being paid only $600 per week. She came to the conclusion that she was worth a great deal more, and the film company was certain enough was being paid.

The upshot was that a few days ago Ann returned to the job at the same salary, $600 per week.

There has been another story getting quite an airing in the papers and it has to do with Joseph M. Schenck, a prominent figure in Hollywood who is being charged by the United States government with evading $412,000 in income taxes during a period of three years.

His secretary produced long records showing what the household expenses had been; gave in detail what had been spent for flowers for actresses; the amount which went out for entertainment and so on. To the person who lives in an ordinary or humble way the figures appear to be overblown, but the lawyer for the defendant urged that it was necessary for Schenck, a leading figure in the movie industry, "to make a show of high living."

And that is rather an expressive statement, isn't it? "To make a show of high living." Perhaps there may be something in that which the average run of people like. Possibly they might not be attracted to the moving picture places to see that which is just ordinary and within the range of their own vision and their own pocket books.

The records do not indicate that many people finish with Hollywood with a sufficiency. There was another bit of news a few days ago about Jackie Coogan, who is liable to be drafted in the United States army at something like $30 per month. There was a time when his earnings had been $4,000,000, but he has none of that now. By the time payment is made for a manager, an agent, a lawyer, and for all the services in an expensive domicile, a large cut has been taken from even a substantial salary, and when the government takes its share of taxation, what is actually left for the actor or actress may be small enough. Much has come in and much has gone out. "Making a show of high living" may be the dominant note in Hollywood, but according to the score book there are few who succeed there, and the number who emerge with a competence is still in a lower bracket.

Must Be a Nice Place

Algoma must be a friendly place. Reading the Sault Ste. Marie Star we noticed something in the correspondence forwarded from Mount Zion. It was this:

"Apologies to Harold Blackstock who also returned from McFadden's Camp last week and whose name we failed to mention. Sorry, Harold."

We have no idea how large Mount Zion may be, but we rather fancy the name. Nor do we know how the correspondent there goes about the business of rounding up the news, but this particular correspondent appeared to take it as a personal failure that Harold had returned and not been mentioned in the budget sent to the Star. So he gets an item all to himself and it concludes with a direct apology for having overlooked him.

Now that's nice. It accounts for the one who got away last week and leaves the score even. So we come to the conclusion that Mount Zion must be as attractive as the sound of the name it bears.

NOTE AND COMMENT

There are 12,500 employers of labor in Canada, so that means making a lot of calls when a fellow sets out looking for the kind of job he desires.

Foreign Minister Suner of Spain says both Germany and Spain are struggling for one common cause—a new Europe. We don't know about the new Europe but they have both done what they could to destroy the old one.

Barber in Chatham charges the regulation 40 cents for cutting hair, after which he buys the hair for 10 cents, making the cost to the customer 30 cents. Paying anything at all for the hair which could be taken off some domes would be nothing less than plain bribery.

TOO LATE NOW

(By A.R.K.)

¶ The salesmen came and called on me, they started many years ago, they talked of gold streaks running free, of scraping riches with a hoe.

¶ They talked of land where there was oil that yearned to push into a vat, they told me how to cease my toil and make my dwindling wallet fat.

¶ They told me of good lots to buy where cities yet unborn would grow, they said I'd be a wealthy guy, with coach and four I'd come and go.

¶ The village banker shook his head when I drew out my hard-earned kale, I should be fed on tea and bread and locked within the village jail.

¶ I scoffed at warnings he would give, I said he had a foggy brain, I dreamed of gold put through a sieve, gold head upon my sunday cane.

¶ The stocks I bought were short on gold, they never seemed to thrive and pay, there were no nuggets ever sold, the place is all closed up today.

¶ The oil wells spouted not at all, the thing was dry right from the start, the city grew not large or small, the houses are three miles apart.

¶ And now I think and now I sigh, recalling what the banker said, I was indeed the reckless guy and bats had homes within my head.

The Minister Will Write And Get the Facts

From Parliamentary Hansard

Mr. ADAMSON: The Anaconda American Brass Company have offered to run this government plant entirely and absolutely without fee. I understand from the information I have received that the Canada Wire and Cable Company is charging a fee for the operation of their plant. Further than that, the Canada Wire and Cable Company had never made brass sheets and rods before. They had to go to the Anaconda company in New Toronto and ask them, first, to help them with their layout of plant, and, further, to train men in their private plant—not in the government plant—in the manufacture of brass sheets and rods.

When this information was presented to me I naturally investigated the matter, because this concern is in my riding, a company that is vitally important to the welfare of York West, and one on whose lists there are today the names of some four thousand men wishing for employment. Therefore I assumed with my constituents who are members of this organization that the reasons why the contract was given to the Canada Wire and Cable Company could not be lack of labor in York West, because there is plenty of labor available there. Then I said, perhaps there is a power shortage in York West, so I inquired of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission and officials of the company and found that ample power was available. But one of the members of the company said to me: "Yes, we had lots of power and that the deal was put through by a Mr. Henry"—I think the name was—"who said there would be opportunity to get plenty of power from the Beauharnois company, they had a surplus of power, and that they could build their plant in Montreal."

The questions being asked in my riding today are these: Here you have a plant in Ontario that makes an original bid $1,500,000 lower than the bid which was accepted; you have a company that offers to operate the government-owned plant without fee, and that, a company which knows the business. My constituents come to me and ask, "Is the government getting value for the money in this matter?"

Here is a discrepancy; when Anaconda company were asked to build a plant which they say will produce 120 million pounds of brass sheets and rods, they were held to their original contract, whereas the Montreal plant, I find in the minister's statement, bid for a plant of 100 million pounds capacity and are charging $2,300,000 more for approximately the same size plant.

This is a serious matter, and one which this committee and the special committee which is set up to investigate war expenditures should investigate. But another matter has been brought to my attention. The suggestion was made to a very high official of the Anaconda American Brass Company that he should increase the price one cent a pound so that the Canada Wire and Cable Company would be able, or the government would be able, to write off this plant in Montreal.

Mr. HOWE: My hon. friend is making serious allegations. Is he able to prove what he is saying?

Mr. ADAMSON: This is a matter that has been given to me—

Mr. HOWE: I trust my hon. friend will be prepared to repeat his allegations before the committee he mentions. I will see that he is called personally.

Mr. ADAMSON: I shall be prepared. The information was given to me by a person whose name I am not prepared to reveal to this committee.

Mr. HOMUTH: The hon. member does not have to, either.

Mr. HOWE: My hon. friend made a suggestion as to who gave him the information.

Mr. HANSON (York-Sunbury): No; he said he had the information.

Mr. HOWE: He mentioned the source.

Mr. ADAMSON: My constituents, many of whom are employed at this plant—

Mr. HOWE: From my intimate knowledge of the whole situation I would say that the facts and information given by the hon. member are erroneous, and his innuendo about the Beauharnois company is wholly false.

Mr. ADAMSON: That is interesting, but it is not the information I have received from sources which I believe to be entirely reliable.

Mr. HOWE: The hon. member mentioned that he got the information from the Anaconda company, did he not?

Mr. ADAMSON: I am not speaking for the Anaconda company.

Mr. HOWE: I will communicate with the Anaconda company tomorrow and see just how much information my hon. friend got from it.

Mr. ADAMSON: I shall be very glad if the minister does so, and I should be interested to see the reply he gets.

"CUT" THE CAKE

"Just a minute. I want to try a piece of my sister's chocolate cake."

Letters To The Editor

SEES REASON IN IT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—When you copied that article from the London Free Press, in your issue of March 3rd, you apparently were asking for further discussion on the subject of the British Israel view. The article from the pen of Mr. Stanley Uptigrove of Byron, R.R. 1, gave evidence that he is well read up on his subject, and his summary showed up many very important, and interesting points, which would be received with much interest by thousands of readers, who are eagerly following the progress of this new-old evangel.

It cannot be considered a new evangel when it began with the calling of Abram, and to such as have found the key, it is interwoven with the scriptural history of God in His dealings with Israel, His chosen servant race, continuously throughout the books of the old, and new Testaments.

Our first wonder, then, is why this new interpretation of the future of the Israel race should not have been revealed until about the beginning of the nineteenth century, and that surely is a legitimate reason for wonder. A centennary celebration was held in the summer of 1940, in honor of the memory of one, Mr. Sanderson, I believe, who wrote the first book on the subject of the British Israel doctrine. Many books have been printed since then, and in this present day, the Anglo-Saxon world is being flooded with literature on this most fascinating subject.

That it is the true interpretation of the Scriptures has been proven beyond a doubt, and earnest students who are willing to put their preconceived prejudices aside, and make use of the findings of highly trained, and scholarly men, who have spent much time, and research on the subject, will find that their doubts and questionings will be satisfactorily answered.

Briefly stated, there are two reasons why this evangel had not been released earlier in the history of the race. The first is that Israel was carried into exile in 721 B.C. and according to the prophet Daniel, their sentence of exile was for 2520 years. Add 721 to 1800, and you have the exile ending at the beginning of the nineteenth century.

During this period of exile, the Gentile races had their innings, and have brought the world to the present state of chaos.

For the second reason, see St. Paul in Romans 11-25....For I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery....that blindness in part is happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in.... Thus it is quite manifest that Israel lost their identity during the exile ....and in these latter days is being brought back, through the evangel taught by British Israel, to a knowledge of their glorious future....redeemed, and ready for the service in the Kingdom, for which they were called in Isaac.

ALPINE MACNAB.
Peterborough, March 14.

• These Lads of Manchester

When war began an experiment was started in one district of Manchester to introduce adolescents to some form of National Service.

A scheme was worked out for employing boys as messengers in the A.R.P. service. Today there are a dozen boys trained under this scheme who have won the confidence of everyone with whom they come in touch and who, during the heaviest raids on Manchester, have done distinguished work.

It is not easy to become a member of this small band of messengers. Recruits have to serve a probationary period with the trained youths before they are recommended for training. If, during the first quiet months of the war, a boy missed a lecture he was put back and had to wait before he could begin training again.

The difficulty of being a messenger increased the keenness of youths to serve, and the result was that when raiding began the boys were trustworthy, competent and courageous. They have all had a full warden's course.

Mr. Pevitt, the head warden, discussing some of the things done by these messengers, said: When a shelter was hit, two of them conducted all the people to another shelter in safety. Bombs were falling round them, and they gave instructions to people when to throw themselves down. They also carried the children. Another messenger was blown down a staircase, and the rim of his steel helmet was bent into curves by the blast. He picked himself up and began to help the wardens to move people who had been killed and wounded. Later he reported on the courage and ability of a probationer messenger who was working with him.

When a house was hit a 12-month-old child was trapped in the cellar. A messenger was lowered through a small hole by his legs and, although the building was liable to fall at any moment, he got the child out and was then pulled out to safety by other workers. Another boy was wounded when he was out reporting on the damage done by an incendiary bomb. "Most of them are sixteen or seventeen years of age" said Mr. Pevitt, "and they have given outstanding service. We all rely on them."—Manchester Guardian.

WRONG WITH THE SCOTS

When Mr. Ernest Brown was invited to be the guest at luncheon of the Edinburgh Chamber of Commerce he was Secretary of State for Scotland. It was as Minister of Health he came to Edinburgh, however, and he confessed in his speech that he was rather startled when Mr. Churchill asked him to become the Scottish Secretary. Though he is not the first Englishman to have held this office, it is a rare distinction.

Before coming north, Mr. Brown sought and received the Prime Minister's permission to tell the company one of the things Mr. Churchill said to him when he was appointed nine months ago. 'Ernest," observed the Prime Minister before Mr. Brown left Downing Street, "let me remind you of what Lloyd George said in the last war about the Scots, for I agree with it. There is only one thing wrong with the Scots—there are not enough of them."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

LOTS OF RULERS

Montana isn't as populous as Alberta but in addition to a Senate of over fifty members it has a Legislature with 102 members. It is now proposed to cut down the membership of the latter body to 90 members. All the states except Nebraska have dual legislatures. In Canada only one province has dual legislative chambers, Quebec with its Legislative Council comparable to the Senate; and the Legislature. Quebec with three million people requires less legislators to direct its affairs than Montana though it pays its members more generously.—Lethbridge Herald.

ARABIAN NIGHTS TALE

The Aga Khan, a figure out of the Arabian Nights, stands out strangely under the color of Neon signs and the glare of Klieg lights. He is an Oriental potentate. He is one of the wealthiest men in the world. He is the religious head of an important Mohammedan sect, the Ismailis, and the spiritual ruler of 50,000,000 people. He is the owner and breeder of race horses and has several times won the Derby. He is a modern statesman and, three years ago, capped his career by being elected president of the League of Nations Assembly.

Part prince and part pope, part saint and part man-about-town, with one foot in the mystic East and one in the mechanized West, the Aga Khan is the world's greatest human paradox.—Vancouver Province.

USEFUL STICKER

A PRACTICAL method of encouraging tourist visits to Manitoba has been devised in a new version of the old automobile sticker.

This new sticker, which is to have wide distribution, carries the Canadian ensign and the Stars and Stripes, on either side of a full-color representation of the Manitoba coat of arms. A slogan reads "En Route—Manitoba."

Former welcome stickers were pasted on windshields after the tourist arrived in the province. This new one is sent to the prospective tourist to suggest the visit. All along his route to Manitoba he advertises the name of the province and carries the suggestion to others that they, too, should be "en route to Manitoba." It is a good idea.—Winnipeg Tribune.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And the waters prevailed, and were increased greatly upon the earth; and the ark went upon the face of the waters....And every living substance was destroyed which was upon the face of the ground, both man, and cattle, and the creeping things, and the fowl of the heaven; and they were destroyed from the earth: and they that were with him in the ark ....And God remembered Noah, and every living thing, and all the cattle that was with him in the ark: and God made a wind to pass over the earth, and the waters asswaged. —Genesis 7.

A Bit of Nonsense

Price of Silence

Over the counter of the pawnshop a musician handed his violin with the brief comment: "How much?"

The pawnbroker examined the instrument and replied: "Five dollars."

"Five dollars! That's ridiculous! Why, the neighbors offered me more than that!"

When he did so he discovered a letter. It ran:—

Dear Mr. X,—Very many thanks for your letter of the 10th January, the contents of which I note and for which I am very much obliged.—Yours sincerely.

"Me? Buy a horse? No, sir."

"Sure you don't want a horse?"

"No, sir. What should I want with a horse?"

The Reason Why

"What made you become a night watchman?" John asked his uncle.

"Well," said uncle, "with a wife and eight kids I never could get near the fire at home!"

OAK FLOORING

The best oak flooring comes from the Southern States. There is a possibility before the end of this year, due to the exchange situation, that this most excellent oak will not be allowed to be imported. Therefore it would be wise to plan to lay new oak floors now while there is still quantities available. Prices have not advanced — a room 10 x 10 would cost approximately $9.50 for the flooring.

R.M.C. CADETS ELIMINATE PETES FROM THE JUNIOR BASKETBALL

Petes Are Down Seven Points In Tight Battle

Royal Military College of Kingston smashed Peterborough's Junior O.A.B.A. hopes in a sudden death Eastern Ontario final in Cobourg's high school gym, Saturday night. The local juniors bowed out 29-22, after a nip and tuck battle with a big, fast R.M.C. team that built up an early lead and then set up an air tight defense to hold off the hard fighting losers. R.M.C. took an 8-2 lead in the opening minutes of the ball game and held the edge through most of the first half until with the half nearly over, the Petes rallied to tie it up 13-13 at the rest period. Kingston actually decided the issue as the last half got underway with three quick field goals that the losers never quite got back. They climbed to within four points at one stage and were battling to the end, but couldn't catch up. R.M.C.'s big advantage was in the defensive side of the ledger, a compact, efficient zone defense consistently thwarting the Petes scoring plays, and some good long shooting by the winners gave them enough points to win out. The losers had a good share of the play but were not presented with the scoring chances that the winners had, and the bigger R.M.C. got the lions share of the rebounds to add to their advantage. It was close and fast all the way but Kingston got the jump at the start of each half and their early last period edge was too much to overcome.

Stokes with 7 points was top scorer for the winners with Sills and Winslow also prominent. Currie with six points and Rogow led the losers. The teams:—

R.M.C. 29—Stewart 4, Winslow 4, Sinclair 2, Frost 2, Troop, Sills 4, Powers, Hughson 4, Stokes 7, Rowal 2.

Peterborough 22—Currie 6, Craig 5, C. Gillespie 4, Rogow 4, K. Gillespie 1, Burns, Gardner 2.

S.O.E. No. 1 is top for the Elsie Bennett Trophy at present with 58 average, but no results have been received for this week's game.

The Legion needs 2 points to be sure of the Hope Cup, as the Wanderers can come through with a double to top them should they drop both games.

Only two entries have been officially received to date for the President's Cup playdowns.

Please telephone 3067 and notify the secretary.

We are also glad to report that only two single fees are now outstanding and these no doubt will be paid this coming week.

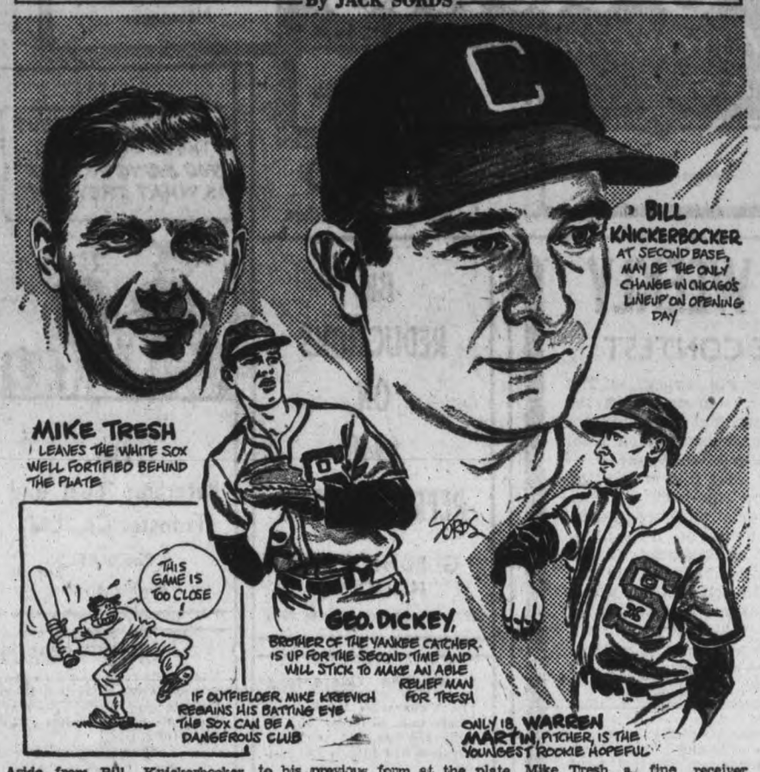
MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Chicago White Sox: Plenty Tough

By JACK SORDS



Aside from Bill Knickerbocker, who probably will be the second sacker this year, the Chicago White Sox lineup on opening day will be the same as of last year.

Manager Jimmy Dykes plans to start Knick, acquired from the Yankees in the deal for Ken Sylvestri, at the keystone sack.

In interviews with newsmen at the Pasadena camp, Manager Dykes listed outfielder Mike Kreevich as the big question mark. Kreevich, who had a six-year major league average of .308 before last season, fell down to a weak .265 in 1940. If Kreevich returns to his previous form at the plate, the Sox may be doubly dangerous.

The pitching staff shapes up fine with Edgar Smith, Ted Lyons, Johnny Rigney, Bill Dietrich and Lefty Lee topping the staff. Rigney may get a draft call which would be a blow.

Most talked-of rookie in camp is George (Skeets) Dickey, catcher, and brother of Bill Dickey of the Yanks. Skeets is being given a good chance to break into the regular lineup. He once had a trial with the Boston Red Sox. Last year he spent with Oklahoma City where he hit for .315. Of course, Mike Tresh, a fine receiver, is the No. 1 backstop and Dickey will have to oust him.

For new pitching help, the Sox have Johnny Humphries, from Cleveland, and Joe Haynes, from the Senators. Rookie slabmen are headed by Orval Grove, from Oklahoma City; Jack Hallett, from Shreveport, and Warren Martin from Jonesboro.

Don Kolloway, big infielder from Oklahoma City, may break into the infield. He has starred in the training camp sessions.

Porcupine Club Stands In Way Of Toronto Team

Only the doubtful quantity of South Porcupine Ankerite blocked today the vision of a clash between Montreal Royals and Toronto Marlboros that may well decide Eastern Canada's representative in the Dominion hockey final with the Western champion.

With eight teams still in the running in the East, both the Royals and the Marlboros have only one more club to eliminate before representing Quebec and Ontario respectively in a semi-final round. The Royals look sure bets but Marlboros have yet to test the worth of South Porcupine's challenge.

A 3-2 victory over St. Catharines Saturday sent the Toronto club into the Ontario final by giving them the best-of-seven series 4-2 in games. They next meet the Ankerites, champions of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association which last season gave the East the Allan Cup with the disbanded Kirkland Lake Blue Devils.

Meanwhile, the Royals showed there is little to stop them representing Quebec for a third straight time by trouncing St. Jerome Papermakers, 7-2, in Montreal Sunday. It was the first game of a best-of-three series with the Quebec Intermediate champions, and the series is expected to go no further than two matches.

The winner of the Quebec-Ontario meeting is favored to take the winner of the other Eastern semi-final —between the Maritime champion and the Ottawa and District title-holder.

Sydney Millionaires favored to win the Martime title, lead Halifax Navy, 9-8, in a total-goal final with the second game in Halifax tonight.

If successful, Sydney will probably meet Hull Volants, who trounced Petawawa Grenades, 8-2, at Ottawa Saturday in the first game of a series for the Ottawa and District title. It is a best-of-three game series.

In the Memorial Cup hunt, Oshawa Generals start the defence of their Dominion title tonight in the first game of a best-of-five series with Toronto Junior Marlboros for the Ontario title. The winner of the Ontario crown draws a bye into the Eastern final, while the Quebec, Maritime and Ottawa districts vie to decide the other semi-finalist.

In the Ottawa District, Pembroke Little Lumber Kings defeated Ottawa Canadiens, 4-2, at Pembroke Saturday and need only one more victory to advance into cup playdowns against Charlottetown, Maritime champion. Montreal Junior Royals lead Clearpoint, 2-0, in best-of-five series to decide the Quebec title-holder.

Marlboros Win O.H.A. Title Saints Bow Out

TORONTO, March 17—Destiny marked them with its manual sign, and today Toronto Marlboros are Southern Ontario's senior hockey monarchs.

This extraordinary group of puckchasers, carrying only ordinary credentials, crashed the gates leading to the O.H.A. throne room with a 3-2 overtime victory over St. Catharines Saints at the Gardens Saturday.

In a gripping climax to a series that produced six stubbornly fought duels, Destiny's Dukes rode to the heights on Don Dunbar's sudden-death goal in the sixteenth minute of extra play.

The Tie-Breaking Goal

Perhaps it was fate's fitting gesture that Dunbar should emerge as the hero. Just a little guy with a big heart and plenty of hockey savvy, he typifies the fighting qualities of the Dukes.

A gifted opportunist, Dunbar made no mistake when his big moment came Saturday. There was a scramble around the St. Kitts blueline. Dunbar poked the puck away from Grant, then he poked it away from Backor. The disc landed in open territory, and Dunbar darted in, gained possession with only Forder to beat.

With amazing equanimity, he forced Forder to make the first move, sifted to the left and lifted the puck high into the rigging.

Dunbar's picture play offered a dramatic climax to a tense tussle that kept 6,510 fans engrossed. It was glorious reward to the gallant Toronto puck hounds, who had shaken off two discouraging breaks that might have stopped less-courageous workmen.

They almost mobbed the little blond centre in their frenzied joy, did everything but kiss him—and maybe they did that, too.

Danning Finding Outfield Job Bit Of A Puzzle

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

When the Kingston Combines and the Hamilton Nationals decided at the end of full time Friday night with the score on the round tied, that they would not play off then but would meet in a third game this week they simply tossed the O.H.A. rules of competition out of the window. Their decision was directly against the regulation governing this situation which reads as follows: "In all playoffs between group winners where goals on the round count the second game shall be played to a finish to decide a winner on the round, even if the 10 minute overtime period is exceeded but no game is to exceed 30 minutes overtime." That is about as clear as the English language can make it but the two teams chose to ignore the rules. They did not even play the customary 10 minutes overtime but called it a night, counting on another big gate in the third game.

* * * * * *

If there was anything left of the John Ross Robertson tradition in the O.H.A. this deliberate flouting of the rules would be punished by drastic action; in fact at one time teams who chose to ignore constituted authority in that fashion would have both been tossed out of further competition for the season. The Kingston and Hamilton teams, however, believed they were quite safe in making their own arrangements and disregarding the rules. They probably left, and were quite justified in doing so, that the fact that the O.H.A. would take a nice juicy cut of the third-game gate would be enough to cause the governing body to overlook the fact that the constitution had been pitched into the garbage can. Under the amateur code these days strange things are done and nobody seems to worry about them, least of all the members of the governing bodies. The professional loops have a greater regard for rules than the amateur outfits under the modern setup.

* * * * * *

Honey Tompkins has been setting up something of a record in his performance in the first two games he has played with the Kingston Combines. After stealing the show in Hamilton by scoring two of his team's four goals and having assists on the other two he came back Friday night and had the pleasure of notching the only marker scored by the Kingston club. Thus the player borrowed from the Petes to replace Walt Gerow has had a hand in every goal scored by Kingston and has taken the limelight right away from the stars who have been getting all the head-line all season with the Combines. The Petes' gift to Kingston has in fact saved the series for the group winners and may in the third game prove to be the winning factor. His performance will give Coach Wallie Elmer a chance to say that he knows how to pick talent for he passed over the Belleville squad to take Tompkins.

Junior Cagers Bow Out

Another Peterborough team vanished from the stage in provincial playdowns Saturday night when the Y.M.C.A. junior O.A.B.A. squad were defeated 29 to 22 in a sudden death O.A.B.A. game at Cobourg by a husky Royal Military College quintette from Kingston. The young Petes gave the big Cadets a hard battle for the honors but a rock-bound zone defence by the R.M.C. team that worked to perfection on the narrow Cobourg Collegiate gym floor spelled disaster for them. The winners were not so formidable offensively as they were on the defence but they did not need to be as the Peterborough attackers found the path to the basket almost completely closed. The Petes managed to hold the Cadets to a 13-13 tie in the first half but a quick surge for three baskets at the beginning of the second half gave the winners a margin that held to the end despite a fighting finish by the Petes.

Bill Walshe of the Kingston Whig-Standard says the teams in Eastern Ontario would do well to seek Senior A grouping next season. Here are some of his reasons: "Granted that teams in the eastern circuit may not be of senior championship class but they are much better than many others in the Dominion with the highest amateur rating. A Senior A classification would give the eastern group more prestige and qualify the champions for a Canadian championship chance. There is no doubt that at least four of the five clubs in the eastern Senior B group this winter would trim many of the Senior A teams, in fact, beat most of them, especially the Ottawa Valley and Ottawa City League crop. Smiths Falls, trailing team in the George Van Horne series this winter, would have entered the Allan Cup playdowns as Ottawa Valley representatives with a victory over Petawawa Gunners and certainly Kingston Combines, Peterborough, Belleville and Whitby were stronger than the Falls squad. There are other groups across Canada that qualify for the Allan Cup which in actual competition would be outclassed by the teams in the O.H.A. eastern Senior B section. Oshawa seniors were edged out of the Ontario Senior A finals by Marlboros, beaten by the sensational goal-tending of Bas Bastien, and the same Oshawa team was forced to the limit to squeeze out a last period win over the Kingston Combines here last week. Critics at the Oshawa-Kingston game claimed the Combines would more than hold their own in Senior A company and with one or two experienced players added would probably make a strong showing in the playoffs."

When the Peterborough Outboard Marines were eliminated in a very close round by the Trenton R.C.A.F. team in the O.A.B.A. they probably saved themselves a lot of grief at that. Saturday the Flyers were booked against the Earl Grey team, the Toronto winners, and when the smoke of battle had cleared away the Queen City representatives had trimmed the Airmen on their own floor 56 to 30 which with the second game coming up in Toronto can scarcely be described as good news for the Flyers. Casey and Breathet tried hard to stem the tide but the Earl Grey team, paced by the stellar Junior Fox who tossed in nineteen points, was simply too good for the Air Force quintette.

Marshall's New Championship

Congratulations to Al Marshall, Peterborough's crack swimmer who added another championship to his list in Hamilton Saturday night when he defeated Teddy St. Aubin, Hamilton flash, in a special 100-yard breaststroke race for the Ontario championship. It was not Al's favorite distance and the Hamilton pool was regarded as a handicap but in spite of that fact he defeated the Hamilton boy in a thrilling race. Now Marshall is Canadian and Quebec breaststroke champion at 200 yards and Ontario champion at the 100-yard distance. This winter he has defeated St. Aubin, his closest rival for the honors twice in succession, the last time in his own pool and at his own distance Saturday night.

The last scheduled game in the Ladies' Basketball League will be played tonight at seven o'clock when the Quaker Aces meet the "Y" Cadets. The postponed St. John's-"Y" Gym game will be played on Tuesday evening at seven. A win for the Gym team will put them back in a tie with Westclox for second place. If this happens, the "Y" and Westclox will get together Thursday night in a sudden death contest to see which squad will oppose the Quaker Aces in the senior playoffs, with the losers hooking up with St. John's in the junior division. Of course, a win for St. John's Tuesday will settle the whole second place argument and will put the "Y" and the church team in the junior group and the Aces and Westclox in the upper section. In either case the city playoffs are scheduled to commence next Friday and it will be a two out of three game series in both the junior and senior groups.

About the only feature in the N.H.L. closing games over the week-end was the battle for the Vezina trophy which saw Turk Broda by reason of two great performances against Chicago climb into a very advantageous position in the race for the coveted silverware. Broda only allowed one goal in the two games while Brimsek and Mowers both were scored on twice in a single game. As a result Brimsek with 101 goals against him is out of the race and Broda with his job over has only allowed one more Gordie Drillon, Toronto, scored two goals and three assists to pace the Leafs to a 7-1 victory over Chicago at Toronto Saturday night.

Stu Smith, Canadiens, picked up his first two N.H.L. goals and assisted on another as the Canadiens beat New York Americans, 6-0, in Montreal Saturday night.

Walter (Turk) Broda, Toronto, enhanced his Vezina Trophy hopes by shutting out the Black Hawks, 3-0, in Chicago to allow them only one goal in the two-game series with the Leafs.

Roy Conacher, Boston, scored what proved to be the tying goal as the Bruins played a 2-2 overtime draw with Detroit yesterday.

Lynn Patrick, Rangers, tallied twice to bring his goal-total to 20 in the Rangers' 6-3 victory over the Americans last night.

LEAFS WIND UP SCHEDULE WITH DOUBLE VICTORY OVER HAWKS

Drillon, Broda Lead Leafs To Double Win

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The case of Walter (Turk) Broda was rested today and a verdict awaited only the last-minute defence of young Johnny Mowers.

The temperamental Turk, making his most serious bid for the goalkeepers' award in five National Hockey League seasons, concluded his evidence brilliantly during the week-end. Called twice to the stand, he held Chicago Black Hawks to one goal in two games as Toronto Maple Leafs turned in 7-1 and 3-0 victories.

The results left it squarely up to Mowers, who was placed in the defending position for the trophy when New York Rangers almost ruined Broda's bid by pouring eight goals by him in one game last week. One goal better than Broda with one game to go, Mowers needs a shutout in his final match to win the award.

Brimsek Eliminated

A 2-2 draw yesterday with Boston Bruins left Detroit Red Wings' brilliant young rookie with 98 goals scored against him in 47 games while Broda has allowed 99 in 48 matches—his complete season. The two goals the Wings put by Frankie Brimsek in earning the draw eliminated the Bruin goalie from the race with 101 markers chalked up against him.

Making the road rougher for Mowers is the fact that his final match is in Boston Tuesday against the Bruins—who have lost only one game since Dec. 21 in the brilliant drive that carried them to a third straight league championship. It is the final game of the regular schedule, action on all other fronts being concluded during the week-end.

Amerks Beaten Twice

Only team that won't be around when the Stanley Cup playoffs open on three fronts Thursday, New York Americans bore the brunt of some experimenting in their two matches that rounded out the five-game week-end. Although some of the ideas were new, the results were the same old story to the Amerks—who bowed to the Canadiens, 6-0, in Montreal Saturday night and the Rangers, 6-3, last night in New York.

In Montreal, Coach Dick Irvin tried out his theory of alternating two goalies and it worked to keep the Americans scoreless.

Combine For Shutout.

Switching places at about five minute intervals, Goalies Bert Gardiner and Paul Bibeault combined for a shutout.

At New York, the Rangers and the Amerks tried out a rule change in which the player with the puck is always onside with his teammates if offside, skate themselves back into play without a halt. The change cut the number of whistles in half, but failed to lessen the number of goals scored against the Amerks.

Gordie Drillon reaped a five-point harvest in the Leafs' first victory over Chicago at home Saturday night. A crowd of 11,744 watched Drillon bag two goals and three assists to pace the attack.

In the return game at Chicago, the Leafs won out before a crowd of 13,012 on counters by Lex Chisholm and Pete Langelle. The Toronto defence played close to the vest to help Broda bag his fifth shutout.

A crowd of 10,049 watched the Bruins and the Wings battle to their overtime deadlock in an afternoon match at Detroit.

LAKEFIELD

Knox Rink Wins Mixed Bonspiel

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 17 — (ENS). —The final game in the mixed bonspiel between rinks skipped by F. Wannamaker and J. Knox was played last week, and proved to be very exciting. The score was tied going home and Knox lay two and Wannamaker's last stone stopped about one foot short of cutting him out and winning the game.

The winners were Miss Margaret Sanderson, E. Sloan, Mrs. D. Davis, and J. Knox, skip.

The play in the vice-skip bonspiel for the Tanner Cup commenced on Thursday evening, being a knockout affair.

Glen Ross Blanks Foxboro 2-0 For 3rd Crown

TWEED, Mar. 17 — (ENS). — Thrice champions of the Centre Hastings Rural Hockey League, Glen Ross Sailors took the deciding game of the final playoff series with Foxboro on Friday night by 2-0 before a crowd of four hundred rabid fans. The game had everything and gave the largest crowd of the season real hockey entertainment.

The teams played two periods of scoreless hockey in a closely fought contest. Art Macdonald was responsible for the first goal of the game, which came in the last period after five minutes of play, when he snared a pass from Russ Pyear to tally the first counter. The other counter was scored by Vandervoort climaxing a neat passing play, Pyear to Martin to Vandervoort.

The free-for-all occurred in the third period, when Coach Townsend blew his whistle and raced out on the ice to question a decision of the referee. It was the cue for fireworks and Red Townsend suffered considerable mauling from several that pumped the boards to chime in. Order was finally restored and the game proceeded with Townsend off the Foxboro bench.

Omeeme Hawks Win Two At Fenelon Falls

LINDSAY, Mar. 17. — Tired fans straggled home shortly after 5 a.m. on Saturday leaving the Fenelon Falls Hockey Moonlight to steam on to Omemee with the remainder of its load.

Despite lagging limbs and sleepy eyes, this vanguard of Lindsay's hockey enthusiasts .... numbering over one hundred....could smile broadly in appreciation of the great night experienced at the playoffs and final BIG night of the Fenelon Falls Hockey Tournament.

Scores from Lindsay, Omemee, and other points motored to the Cataract Village to see four scrappy teams battle for first place and a chance to have a crack at the highly-touted Brandon's Waterloos on Monday night.

The crowds who boarded the hockey moonlight at Lindsay early on Friday night, added to the throngs at the Fenelon Falls arena and before the games had started the fans were packed in three or four deep and the rink was echoing to the cheers and cat-calls of hundreds of voices.

Representatives from the service clubs of Lindsay were present, despite the fact that Daisy, Lindsay's $1,000 cow, could not be persuaded to board the special train, spurning all advances from her many admirers. She could not be moved, in spite of the pleading of her manager, and her limpid eyes (so 'tis said) grew stubborn, in the age-old way of pampered females when their wishes are crossed. So Daisy stayed at home.

In the first game the Palm Billiards, a powerful, tricky aggregation, downed the Toronto Mecca Grills 3-2 and in the second round Omemee Blackhawks, for years the deadliest outfit in this district, played a neck and neck game with the Lion boys, breaking away in the third period to pile up a comfortable lead of two goals and the game ended 5-3.

Traffic Mishaps Top Weekend Toll Of Twelve

TORONTO, March 17.—(CP)—Traffic accidents were the largest factor contributing to a fatalities toll of at least 12 in Ontario during the week-end. Illuminating gas asphyxiation, falls and drowning were among the other death causes.

An investigation has been started at Sudbury into the death of apparently robust, five-year-old Kenny Flaro who spent Sunday playing out-of-doors, ate a hearty supper, played again in the basement of his home and then, entering the living room, collapsed, lost consciousness and died. An autopsy will be performed.

Eighty-two-year-old Miss Hannah Law of a Toronto suburb died early Sunday apparently of a heart attack after climbing a steep, slippery embankment.

Baby Drown in Tub.

In Dresden 14-months-old Gerald Shaw of Petrolia drowned on Sunday in the home of his grandmother Mrs. Melissa Dynes, when he fell from a couch into a tub of water.

Four persons lost their lives when they were struck by cars. Nicholas Rosnick, 58, of Toronto, died on Saturday of injuries received when he was struck. In St. Catharines 13-year-old James Callaghan was killed on Saturday when knocked from his bicycle. Richard Mason Rankin, 67, of Hamilton, was another victim on Saturday. In the village of Beachville, Mrs. George Russell of Woodstock was killed on Sunday crossing the highway at a spot a few yards from where her husband was killed 17 years ago.

Three fatalities were caused when cars crashed. Leo Janiske of Detroit was killed near Simcoe on Saturday when a car operated by Robert Latshaw, Detroit Free Press sports reporter, crashed. At Oakville Stanley Bozyl, 26, of Toronto, was killed when his car failed to round a turn and crashed on Sunday. Mrs. Cora Gracey, 55, of Springfield, Ont., died in a London hospital on Saturday of injuries received when a car operated by her son Glen, 19, collided with a car operated by Sidney Powell of London.

abandoned. There must be "no war profiteering."

The President hailed the passage of the Lease-Lend Bill by Congress as a decision ending "any attempts at appeasement in our land; the end of urging us to get along with the dictators; the end of compromise with tyranny and the forces of oppression."

The address was one of the President's most vigorous utterances, a speech bristling with determination to eliminate Nazism as a world force and dedicating the material and industrial resources of the United States anew to that purpose.

The President was enthusiastic—he spoke almost with pride—in his praise for the courage of the British people who are "fighting in the front line of civilization" and of their "brilliant and great leader," Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

As a "studio audience" for his grim remarks, Mr. Roosevelt chose the annual dinner of the Correspondents Association, a gay affair, which the President always attended but never before has addressed. From the ballroom of the Willard Hotel, his words went out, not only to the people of the United States by way of all the big networks but by short wave in fourteen languages, including those of all the German-occupied nations. The address was carried in Canada by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

As the President spoke, he was frequently interrupted by applause, particularly when he said that arms production should not be obstructed by "unnecessary strikes" or "by short-sighted management."

Repeatedly Mr. Roosevelt stressed the importance of national unity, and as often said it had been achieved. With national unity and a "will to sacrifice" thrown into the drive for a maximum output of war materials, he said there already had been a reversal in Nazi thinking that democracy could not rise unitedly and face a crisis.

The Will to Sacrifice

"Upon the national will to sacrifice an dto work depends the output of our industry and our agriculture," he said.

"Upon that will depends the survival of the vital bridge across the ocean—the bridge of ships which carry the arms and food for those who are fighting the good fight.

"Upon that will depends our ability to aid other nations which may determine to offer resistance.

"Upon that will may depend practical assistance to people now living in nations which have been overrun, should they find the opportunity to strike back in an effort to regain their liberties.

"This will of the American people will not be frustrated. either by threats from powerful enemies abroad or by small, selfish groups of individuals at home.

"The determination of America must not be obstructed by war profiteering.

"It must not be obstructed by unnecessary strikes of workers, by short-sighted management, or by deliberate sabotage.

"For, unless we win there will be no freedom for either management or labor.

"Wise labor leaders and wise business managers will realize how necessary it is to their own existence to make common sacrifice for this great common cause.

"There is no longer the slightest question or doubt that the American people recognize the extreme seriousness of the present situation. That is why they have demanded, and got, all-out aid for Britain, Greece. China and for all the Governments in exile whose homelands are temporarily occupied by the aggressors.

"From now on that aid will be increased—and yet again increased—until total victory has been won."

British morale is now "stronger than ever," the President said. The British people are "braced for invasion whenever the attempt may come—tomorrow—next week—next month." In Winston Churchill they are "blessed with a brilliant and great leader." But the essence of their morale is that "one essential fact" is completely clear in the minds of the masses of the British people. This is that "they would rather die as free men than live as slaves."

These "plain people," civilians and soldiers alike, Mr. Roosevelt said, are "fighting in the front line of civilization" and holding that line with a fortitude which will forever be the pride and inspiration of all free men" everywhere. But, he added:

"The British people and their Grecian allies need ships. From America, they will get ships.

"They need planes. From America they will get planes.

"They need food. From America they will get food.

"They need tanks and guns and ammunition and supplies of all kinds. From America, they will get tanks and guns and ammunition and supplies of all kinds.

"China likewise expresses the magnificent will of millions of plain people to resist the dismemberment of their nation. China, through the Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, asks our help. America has said that China shall have our help.

"Our country is going to be what our people have proclaimed it must be— the arsenal of democracy.

"Our country is going to play its full part.

"And when dictatorships disintegrate—and pray God that will be sooner than any of us now dares to hope—then our country must continue to play its great part in the period of world reconstruction."

For the people of the United States—each of whom, he said, has a "stake" in the outcome, the President outlined the nature of the "sacrifices" which he foresaw.

"You will have to be content with lower profits from business, because obviously your taxes will be higher," he said.

"You will have to work longer at your bench, or your plow or your machine.

"Let me make it clear that the nation is calling for the sacrifice of some privileges, but not for the sacrifice of fundamental rights. Most of us will do that willingly. That kind of sacrifice is for the common national protection and welfare; for our defense against the most ruthless brutality in history; for the ultimate victory of a way of life now so violently menaced.

"A half-hearted effort on our part will lead to failure. This is no part-time job. The concepts of "business as usual" and "normalcy" must be forgotten until the task is finished. This is an all-out effort — nothing short of all-out effort will win.

"We are now dedicated, from hence on, to a constantly increasing tempo of production—a production greater than we now know or have ever known before —a production that does not stop and should not pause."

Recalling that in a speech several weeks ago he spoke of four freedoms—fredom of expression. freedom of worship, freedom from want and freedom from fear—as the essential bases of a post-war world, he called them "the ultimate task."

"By winning now, we increase the stature and dignity of human life," he said.

U.S. Troops On Duty In Newfoundland

Institute Hears Dental Talk

MARMORA, March 17 (ENS). — The monthly meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rice. Mrs. H. W. Sabine, president, occupied the chair.

In the treasurer's report it was shown that $11.50 had accrued from three card parties at the homes of members. The correspondence dealt with the Summary Day which is to be held in Marmora on April 18. two letters of thanks from members, and a form from the department regarding war work. Mrs. S. Grier kindly offered her home for the April meeting.

Each member was asked to bring two quilt blocks to this meeting to make two quilts for war work. The roll call was "Hints for Home Nursing."

The feature of the evening was an address by Dr. C. V. Wallace. The speaker sketched the advances in dental health work from 1626, and listed the different items that were included in the first dental kit mentioned in medical journals. The work of the comparatively few dental surgeons when the World War broke out in 1914 was eulogized as being of a great benefit to the soldiers. Dr. Wallace also discussed the necessity of care of the baby teeth, and six year molars and touched upon abscesses and their causes and other diseases of the mouth.

The program which followed was unusually fine. Mrs. W. Holland and Mrs. Frank Grant gave short humorous readings. Mesdames P. Gray and L. R. Rundle sang two duets, "Till the Lights of London Shine Again," and "We'll Meet Again." The latter was a song Sergt. Robert Gray, who is with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in England recently sent his mother.

A Treasure Trail was then conducted, with Mesdames E. C. Pentice and F. Sweet performing the duties of masters of ceremony. Following the singing of the National Anthem, a delicious lunch was served by the committee in charge.

Doing "Flying" Time

According to the rules, each U.S. army air corps officer must spend a certain amount of time in a plane to meet with the stringent "flying time" regulations. To an officer in an administration post, this is no easy job and hence the link trainer is brought into use. Brig.-Gen. Carl Spaatzs, chief of the planning division of the U.S. Air Corps, climbs into the trainer to do some "blind flying."

Opposition is expected, however, to Attorney-General Gordon Conant's measure to abolish grand juries for the duration of the war. A bill to enlarge the classifications for jurors is expected to pass without incident.

Budget The Highlight

Presentation of the budget was the highlight as the legislature closed out its fourth week. The surplus, the fifth in the seven-year rule of Premier Hepburn's government, was the largest since Confederation. The premier also predicted another surplus of $9,743,965 for the next fiscal year.

The week opened with a discussion on automobile liability insurance during which Highways Minister T. B. McQuesten promised action to ease restrictions on motorists with good records. A six-year-old feud on timber policy between Lands Minister Peter Heenan and Mayor Charles Cox of Port Arthur, both Liberals, was renewed Tuesday.

Frank Spence (Con. Fort William) advocated less restriction on mining stock salesmen and more help for the prospector Wednesday and Works Minister Farquhar Oliver closed out the throne speech debate Thursday with a strong case on behalf of agriculture. Mr. Oliver claimed the farmer must be placed on the same price structure as that of industry if he was to do his proper part in the war.

The government moved to implement its program of farm bonuses when a bill was introduced to subsidize the production of cheese and bacon. Two cents per pound will be paid to a person producing milk which subsequently is processed into cheese. Hog producers will get from 50 cents to $1 per carcass, according to grade.

Estimates were tabled along with the budget. The cost of farm bonuses were placed at $3,800,000—some $800,000 higher than previously estimated. Included in this figure is $200,000 to pay freight charges on western grain.

Education Costs Up.

The education department will have an all-time high budget of $13,588,630. One reason for this is the restoration of full grants to public, separate and vocational schools. The grants were cut 15 per cent. this year due to a low appropriation.

The government will spend $300,000 to boost the tourist trade—$240,000 more than spent this year. An increase in the wolf bounty from $15 to $25 is expected to cost $813,000 more than the $27,000 estimated for this purpose a year ago.

Two side issues developed during the week. Conservative Leader George Drew called attention to the number of absentee members Monday and said it was "high time" they realized thir absence prompted respect for the "very privileges we are fighting for." He said he was not criticising members unavoidably absent. Some 30 were away at the time.

The other incident was on a lighter vein. Mr. McQuesten, the bachelor Minister of Highways, revealed he was responsible for the change in the name of the brdige at Niagara Falls from 'Honeymoon' to 'Rainbow.' The old name, he said, didn't appeal to him.

Toured Front in Car

Some Greeks said there was evidence that Mussolini had toured the Albanian front in an armored car exhorting his commanders to break through the Greek lines at any cost.

Captured Italian officers, the Greeks said, declared that Fascist divisions averaged losses of 40 to 50 per cent of their effective strength in the offensive, which was launched over a 20-mile front from the Viosa River to the southern slopes of Meunt Tomoros but which was centred mainly on a three-mile sector from Mount Trebeshina to the village of Boudese, around embattled Tepelini which has been the graveyard of more than one Italian general's reputation, the Greeks aver.

The Greeks brought Tepelini under their fire early in December but it remains in Italian hands, although for three months it has been a ghost town, without a breath of life visible in the daytime and without lights at night.

(The town's strategic value lies in the fact that it straddles a road junction, one prong on which leads to the Port of Valona, and the other leading to Berait, in the heart of the Albanian oil fields.)

City's Eighth Attack

BRISTOL, England, March 17 — (CP).—The German Air Force reverted to its one-town-a-night attacks last night and showered high explosive and thousands of incendiary bombs on this West England port.

It was the eighth concentrated attack on Bristol since September 24.

The raids started lightly but as the night wore on high explosive and fire bombs fell steadily in increasing numbers "for some hours."

Authorities said few serious fires resulted because of the alertness of fire watchers.

JOINS THE AIR FORCE

Elmer N. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Hall, 249 Park street, has joined the Royal Canadian Air Force and has reported to the Manning Pool, Toronto. Before joining up he worked at Foley and Wilson service station.

H..'S SLIPPING.

Detective-Sergt. W. E. Leagher is surely slipping. For the first time on record he failed to greet St. Patrick's natal day this morning with a green tie, and worse than that he had no sound reason for the non-appearance of the verdant neckwear.

DUE FOR PROMOTION.

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson, 395 Edison Avenue, that their son, Pte. William Anderson, now overseas with an Eastern Ontario regiment of the 2nd Division, is Acting Company Quartermaster-Sergeant.

ALLOWED TO GO.

A soldier from a Toronto unit was allowed to go in police court this morning when he appeared on a drunk charge. He had engaged a taxi cab Saturday and then refused to pay the charge, and as a result was arrested. When informed that the man's leave expired this afternoon Chief Constable Newhall withdrew the charge against him and the soldier was given his liberty.

A SECOND OFFENDER.

A local man who pleaded guilty this morning as a second offender to being drunk had his case adjourned for a week. It was pointed out that the man could not possibly raise a $10 fine in that time and that he would probably lose his job, so the magistrate announced a week's stay to see what happened in the meantime.

WINDOW IS BROKEN.

Police are endeavoring to locate the person who at 1.30 Sunday morning threw a snowball through a window of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Hubel, 193 Romaine Street. The missile smashed through a storm window and broke the inner window.

WAR WORK.

The lady employees of the Robert Fair Company have been devoting their Monday evenings to war work for the past seven weeks, and their labors have produced items of great value to British war victims. Quilting sessions are held in the store, and several quilts and afghans are ready for shipment, and also babies' clothes and other articles.

A NICE JOB.

Davina Collins, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collins, 26 New Chamberlain Street, is doing a good job at helping the air raid victims. She has made several dozen multi-colored yarn golly-wogs to be worn on women's coats or women's hats and has sold $4.50 worth at ten cents apiece. She is a Grade 3 pupil at May's School, and turned in that amount of money to the fund today.

AN OUTSIDER'S COMMENT

A visitor from a western Ontario city remarked this morning that Peterborough people have been spoiled. He was lauding Board of Works officials for the efficient manner in which they cleared away the snow particularly in snowploughing the streets. His comment yesterday was that people who are so well treated might at least shovel the slush off the streets in front of their homes when a thaw comes. Where he comes from they have to shovel the snow without any assistance from the municipality.

THRESHERMEN COMING

The Threshermen's convention Thursday and Friday this week is expected to bring several hundred visitors to Peterborough. The first meeting will be held in the city council chamber until noon Friday, and will then be transferred to the Canadian Legion Hall for the afternoon and evening program. Farmers and threshermen generally are invited to attend the sessions. There will be a dinner and dance Friday evening. The ladies of Stewart's Hall, Otonabee, are providing the supper. Speakers will include V. S. Milburn and one of the heads of the Fire Marshall's Department.

FIRST AID EXAMINATIONS

Bell Telephone employees are cramming for their first aid examinations scheduled for Wednesday of this week. The men study from the St. John Ambulance text book, under direction of plant instructors and a local doctor conducts the examinations. A. B. Smith of Sudbury is a new member of the local Bell organization, having been transferred to the plant department at Peterborough this week.

DRIVER ESCAPES INJURY.

Archie Collins, a driver for Herb. Withers, narrowly escaped injury on Saturday when the garbage wagon he was driving toppled over the high bank at the north end of Rubidge Street. The team of horses smashed the harness and plunged down towards the Jackson Park Creek, rolling over and over. They were lying in a tangled mass when the wagon which had caught in some brush came hurtling down on the mare and horses. The animals were injured and are not on the road to-day, but the man escaped with a few bruises.

RAILWAY MEN INVITED

Peterborough railway men are invited to the meeting of the Engineering Institute at the Kawartha Gold and Country Club Thursday, March 20 to hear a talk on "Some Aspects of Railway Signalling" by J. M. Mercier of the C.G.E. test department. He is a graduate of the University of Montreal Ecole Polytechnique and made a study of the subject for the purpose of writing a graduation thesis. This is the annual Junior and Student night beginning with dinner at 6.30. Those wishing to hear the after-dinner program are invited at 8 o'clock. It will include interesting movies.

TREES AVAILABLE

The county reforestation committee of which W. A. Anderson is chairman is appealing to farmers to make a special effort to plant some trees this year. It is recognized that agriculture's war contracts have to get first attention, but it is being urged that the reforestation program of the last five years should not be allowed to lapse. The committee is arranging to have trees delivered by truck from Orono to a distributing point in the city. This eliminates cost of transportation. The co-operation of teachers is also being solicited to maintain the interest of school children.

BAR DOORS.

Purse Snatcher Secures $18 From Local Lady

Mrs. J. Coombs of Lakehurst was walking south on Park Street at 10 o'clock in company with Mrs. H. L. Ross, 540 Bolivar Street.

Near King Street the two women met two young men travelling north. As they were passing one of the youths suddenly snatched the purse from Mrs. Coombs' hand and the two men ran north on Park Street.

The police were immediately notified and Constables Archie Menzies and Leo. Murphy investigated. They followed footprints in the fresh snow as far as the corner of Park and Elm Streets, but there the trail was obliterated by other traffic.

This morning the purse and money were found by a small boy tossed on to a pile of lumber on Denegal street. It is thought that the thieves lost their nerve and threw away their booty. At all events the contents of the purse were intact.

Noted Writer Is Scheduled To Visit City

"No effort is being made "to boost the war"; and the question forces itself on the observer's attention whether Mars can be won in an atmosphere of official indifference to public emotion."

That was the last sentence of a wireless news report to the New York Times April 13, 1940, from its Paris correspondent, P. J. Philip who will be the guest speaker of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce at its annual dinner meeting Monday, March 24, at the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Philip was writing of the ruthlessness of the German invasion of Norway and Denmark in the spring of last year, and some of the phrases clarified now by event and fulfillment indicate his awareness of the state of the French nation before the German 'blitz' hit them.

"....The Government and above all the information service is, through lack of willingness to face the facts and despite the efforts of newspaper men to tell them, creating that feeling of apathy which is as the events in the north have shown the deadliest peril of all.... Even now the situation is presented with no reality. It is just a film story that is being told in fragments to an audience that does not fully realize it is true."

Free To Discuss Events

Mr. Philip was an observer of the French people after their first winter of war in the fancied security of the Maginot Line. His speech here will not be reported, and it is understood that he wishes to feel free to discuss events which he has seen in their development and climax, tragic chapter of history in the making.

P. J. Philip is one of the galaxy of foreign correspondents of the New York Times, whose name give authority to their news reports and comments. He is now the Ottawa representative of the Times, having replaced Frederick T. Birchall, but a year ago he was living in Paris where he had for years represented the great American newspaper. Mr. Philip is one of the celebrated company of such men as: Harold Callender of London; Herbert L. Matthews, Rome; Walter Duranty and G. E. R. Gedye of Moscow; C. Brooks Peters, Berlin; Otto D. Tolischus of Stockholm and Berlin; Robert P. Post and Raymond Daniell also of London; G. H. Archambault of Paris, and others who comprise in all probability the most expert and reliable and well connected news gathering force in the world.

This is intended to be an introduction of Mr. Philip to citizens who desire to hear him next Monday night. The dinner tickets are only one dollar a plate, and it is expected that there will be a keen demand for them.

Look At Flag With Reverence

Speaking to the members of St. John's Church, Boys' Communion Club Sunday morning, F. D. Kerr, K.C., outlined the formation and patterning of the 'Union Jack.'

The speaker reminded the boys of the sacrifices of the patron saints —not patrons as we know them today, one who is asked to sponsor a hockey team or a formal dance, which usually indicates his approval of the proposed idea and ends up with a dollar-and-cents contribution, but those whose lives have indicated great sacrifices, even of their in an endeavour to teach the principles and give a living example of Christianity to their fellow men.

Using as a text-theme the one hundred and twenty-first psalm "I will lift up mine eyes unto the Hills," the speaker referred to the Cross of St. George, part of our flag's pattern, as representing the sacrifices of St. George, the Patron Saint of England. Likewise, the chosen Saint of Ireland, St. Patrick, with his imprisonment, release and return to Ireland, is represented by the cross of St. Patrick. St. Andrew's and St. David's cross also form part of the flag's pattern representing the similar sacrifices of the chosen Saints of Scotland and Wales.

"When you look at our flag," the group was told, "look at it not with a sense of vain pride but with a deep sense of reverence and thankfulness for what it represents. It has on it no markings of eagles suggesting oppression, but rather it stands for supreme sacrifice and opportunity for Empire service."

Speaking also of the birth-place of British justice and mercy the speaker referred in a very informative manner to Westminster Hall in London, England, so far as we know, not damaged by German bombs. Connecting the church with the administration of justice and parliaments, Mr. Kerr reminded the boys that each day's session of the present parliament was opened by recited prayers.

Several young boys were welcomed by the chairman into the club. The speaker was introduced by Claude Hewitt, while Robert Crocker moved the organization's thanks to the speaker.

Two Women Facing Shoplifting Count

Two Havelock women and a man appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to answer charges arising out of an alleged shoplifting incident in a local store.

Mrs. Vera Smith and Mrs. Irene Pollock were each charged with stealing three dresses and other articles of clothing, and Borden Cross, Tweed, was charged with receiving some of the articles, knowing them to have been stolen.

On the announcement from Crown Attorney McElderry that counsel for the accused, D. F. Miller, Havelock, could not be present this morning as I wanted an adjournment, all three cases were adjourned until Thursday without any plea from the accused.

Legion Ladies Contribute $50.80 To Fund

Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion topped the list of contributors to the Peterborough District Branch War Victims Fund today with a cheque for $50.80, the proceeds of a raffle.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hurry, George street, made up a beautiful Afghan and donated it to the Auxiliary so that it might be raffled and the proceeds handed over to the Fund. The ladies sold tickets with a will and the magnificent total obtained reflects the hard work and determination of this group to do something really worthwhile. Mrs. J. Dionne, Lansdowne street was the lucky winner, the draw being made at the last bingo evening.

Keene Group Does Well

The little village of Keene continues to do its bit in helping the air raid victims, and this morning, D. D. Brown, manager of the Bank of Toronto in the village turned a donation of $35.35 from the Tillicum class in the village. There has been several contributions from the organizations in this municipality and almost all of them have been substantial.

Room 14 of the Prince of Wales School sent along $1 which is listed as prize money and the Confederation School staff added $8.00. The Ever-Awake Bible Class of St. James United Church contributed $5.00, and an equal sum was brought in by a representative of the office girls at Neill's Shoe Store.

Mrs. Mary Thackeray, 460 Stewart street has donated a hand-made lace table cloth to the Fund, and the Order of the Eastern Star with Mrs. L. H. Deyman, supervising will sell draw tickets at 15 cents each or two for a quarter. The tickets were donated by the Peterborough Printing Company.

Only $600 is needed now to send the total over the fifth £500 and when this is reached the local people will have the satisfaction of having sent £2,500 to the sore-distressed people in England.

Victory To Come This Year Minister Says

"Victory will come to the British Empire and her Allies this year" were the words of Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr in his sermon in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Sunday night, when he further predicted that "by September, the tire of battle will have turned if ineed the whole Hitler campaign has not by then collapsed."

His conviction based on the prophesy contained in the scripture according to Isaiah, Dr. Barr said that history is repeating itself, and Hitler, like his prototype, Sennacherib, King of the Assyrians will find himself defeated as in the story told so vividly by Byron, beginning, "The Assyrian came down like a wolf on the fold...."

The Assyrians stood poised before the very gates of Jesursalem, but they did not enter the city. It has never been satisfactorily explained, said the minister, but it has been suggested that plague affected the armies of Sennancherib, or that a defeatist spirit destroyed their morale. More likely the truth, Dr. Barr declared, is the assumption that it was through prayer that the "Holy city" was saved. As the Assyrian horders approached the city the king and the people were in prayer and it was not the opposition of superior forces, but the strength of God, and here came the end of the career of Sennancherib.

God Answers Prayer.

This miracle, among others in history through the ages, said the speaker, proves that God does answer prayer. More modern examples were cited; at Waterloo, when Napoleon had an army of 35,000 men under the command of General Grouchy to augment his forces at the crucial moment that chosen moment advanced existed, and was gone, and the army of Grouchy did not move. Again there has been so satisfactory explanation, but again, the preacher said, it was the prayers of an earnest Britain. In the Great War when a German horde under General von Kluck had all but encircled Paris nothing happened, and there began one of the most inexplicable retreats in military history. The Geramns began their celebrated retreat through Mons for no apparent reason, and aPris was saveld. The Germans went back the same way they came.

London has been bombed repeatedly, said Dr. Barr, and in each instance, as the scripture and in the retreat through Mons, they have returned the way they came. At the present moment, the speaker continued, the Germans stand at the borders of Greece and the time finds, as before, a king of Britain and the people in an attitude of humble prayer. Next Sunday is the day.

This is the critical year of the war, said Churchill, and his words found themselves being re-echoed by Roosevelt and by Hitler as well, but Hitler brags and boasts of coming victory. "But history," said Dr. Barr, "will vindicate the fact that the prayers of the righteous only are answered and for this reason we should pray definitely.

"Hitler has blasphemed against God repeatedly," the speaker said.

"We must prepare ourselves for the great event of victory," the minister said, "and by constant consecration to God's purpose we must fit ourselves to receive the victory and to prepare ourselves to act better in the new social reconstruction which will surely occur."

SOUP FOR AN ARMY

Young Farmers Hold Social Evening

A most successful social evening was held in the Co-operative Building on Friday evening by the Peterborough Club of United Farm Young People, and this group has decided that a social affair will be a monthly feature of their activities.

Organized in January primarily for the purpose of education for farm young people, the officers of the local branch voted to vary the program with a dance once a month. The first educational meeting was held late in February and two men prominent in the rural affairs of the district gave addresses. A quiz contest with questions pertaining to the growth of the co-operative movement and the United Farm Movement livened the proceedings.

The next meeting will be held in the Co-op. Hall on Wednesday, March 26, and special speakers have been arranged for to discuss the Federation of Agriculture, a subject that is in the forefront of rural life at the present time.

About 200 attended the dance on Friday evening, and it was strictly an invitation affair. Music was provided by Leahy Brothers' orchestra and the calling off of square dances was taken care of by Gordon Morrison.

Winners of door prizes in the form of War Savings Stamps were Miss Sedgwick and Jack Harrison. Orville Braden won the novelty price for gentlemen and Miss Dorothy Johnston took the ladies' prize. These were drawn for by numbers. Spot dance prizes went to Miss U. Maybee and Irvine McIntosh, and Stewart Whittington won the second spot dance.

Man Given 10 Days For Theft Of Blanket

Andrew Ryan, a transient, who makes Peterborough his favorite port of call, was sentenced by Magistrate Langley to ten days in jail in police court this morning after he had changed his plea and pleaded guilty to stealing a blanket from Herbt. Asselstine.

"I plead guilty, Your Worship," he said. "We were all drunk at the house that day."

"If you give him a moderate sentence he has promised to stay away from Peterborough," Chief Constable Newhall announced.

"But he's a Peterborough man," said the Magistrate.

"No, he's not. That's the trouble, we can't rid of him," returned Chief Newhall.

Roy Flint, similarly charged, had his case dismissed when the Crown announced that no evidence would be offered in his case.

Cyclist Suffers Painful Injuries

Clare W. Heard, 30, of 15 Moir Street, was seriously hurt Saturday afternoon when his motor cycle got out of control on Highway 28 near Bailieboro and he was pitched onto the pavement.

The unfortunate cyclist sustained three fractures of the left leg below the knee and had his right hand broken. He was picked up by a passing motorist and brought into St. Joseph's Hospital, suffering from shock as well as from his many injuries.

Heard, who is local agent for a motor cycle company, had his machine out on the highway for the first time this year Saturday and was riding toward Peterborough when his front wheel suddenly began to "shimmy" and the machine got out of control. The rider was thrown heavily to the pavement.

St. Patrick's Birthplace

Now there's always a pull, t'wixt the Scotch and the Irish,
And the cause of this squabble is plain,
If the Scotch claim St. Patrick, at least it's a guess
That the Irish are sure to complain.

This question is sure to arise.
It may have been Scotland, and again sure it mightn't.
Bejabers, we'll look for home ties.

It wasn't in Scotland he took to drive snakes out,
And you'd think he'd stay tolling at home;
And if he'd been born in the land of the heather,
Would the Irish have let him alone?

So we'll not be too sure of our friend St. Pat,
Let Scotland hang on to her theory;
The heart of the Irishman clings to his saint,
Be it only to keep up this query.

60 Farmers Attend Norwood Meeting

Sixty farmers attended the dairy meeting at Norwood Saturday afternoon. It was one of the series that has been planned to promote interest in the production of cheese this year, and in fact of all dairy products including condensed milk and butter.

The speakers were George A. Elliott, William Newman of Lorneville, Joseph Tully of Otonabee, W. J. Moore and F. C. Paterson.

Mr. Tully was recruited for this meeting to speak on practical phases of feeding cattle, and is reported to have made a helpful contribution to the subject of ways of increasing this country's volume of milk this year.

The final meeting in the district will be at Hastings next Saturday afternoon. The speakers will be Mr. Elliott, Mr. Moore, Clarence Mann and Frank Paterson.

Holy Name Society Organizes Class In Public Speaking

An earnest plea for every co-operation to defeat Hitlerism and maintain the standards of freedom which we enjoy but fail to appreciate was made by Major Jim McGrath, M.M., in his maiden speech before the Holy Name Society Public Speaking Class on Sunday.

Major McGrath explained to the class that the Germans have always been a military nation, and the more resistance an enemy put up, the worst treatment they get when conquered. He made his talk most interesting by telling several stories of his experiences in the last war, which further emphasized the point that Germans understand only the doctrine of force.

Public Health

The other speaker on the program was Ronald McPherson, B.A., sanitary inspector for this city, who gave a discourse on the history of public health in Canada. He traced the growth of public health services from the earliest days in this countr yand mentioned the different epidemics, and the terrific death toll that went with them. In 1847, he said, there was an epidemic of typhoid fever that resulted in 15,000 deaths.

The vote of thanks to the speakers was voiced by Patrick O'Toole.

Five minutes of general criticism was allowed for members in the audience following each speaker, and then an analysis of the talk and the criticism was given by Mrs. J. G. Wharry, who was guest critic.

Next Sunday afternoon, the public speaking must be finished by three o'clock to make way for a general meeting of the Holy Name Society. The speakers are Leo Hatton, assistant manager at Zellers; Paul Roche, optometrist, and Peter McGillen, and each will choose his own subject.

In Life We Must Balance Losses With Our Gains. Women Who Never Marry Will Find They Are Just as Lucky in Life as Many of Their Sisters Who Have Husbands.

Tons of advice are handed out to wives about how to be happy though married and but few tips are given to women on how to be happy though unmarried. Yet this problem is of vital importance to the girl bachelors who see no man, either dark or fair, coming into their lives, as the fortune tellers say. Perhaps the reason for this is that it is far more difficult, and complex proposition to be happy though married than it is to be happy though single, because the wife's well-being depends not upon herself alone, but mainly upon her husband, whereas the unmarried woman makes her own fortune. Also, if a marriage turns out badly the wife is actively miserable, but the worst that can happen to the old maid is a passive regret that she missed drawing a prize in the lottery. The spinster may be lonely, but she doesn't have to endure a bad husband. She may feel that she has missed the best in life, but she has certainly escaped the worst. Hence she is not in need of so much counsel and consolation. Now if I were going to advise a woman about how to be happy though single I should urge her, first of all, to put out of her mind any thought that there is any discredit in her remaining single, and that because she didn't marry is any indication that she lacked beauty and charm and failed to attract men. The term "old maid" is only a jibe in the mouths of fools and dates them as being as prehistoric as the dodo.

Women had to marry in the days when matrimony was the only gainful profession that was open to them and when they had either to marry or starve or be the fringe on the edge of somebody else's family. But now, whether a woman marries or not is just as much a matter of choice with her as it is with a man.

On Same Social Footing

The girl bachelor and the man bachelor stand upon exactly the same social footing. If they are intelligent and interesting and agreeable, both are much sought after in a world where brilliant and delightful men often seem to have a faculty for marrying dull and impossible wives, and vice versa.

Then I would exhort my unmarried woman to come down to earth and look at the matrimonial situation from a practical instead of a romantic standpoint. Of course, every woman would like to find her ideal mate. She would like to have a husband who is strong and reliable; who is tender and loving and sympathetic; who is generous and prosperous; who is intelligent and interesting and a perfect companion with whom one would never talk out.

Not Always Lucky in Marriage

The trouble with women is that when they think about getting married, and how unhappy they will be if they don't marry, it never seems to cross their consciousness that they won't be the lucky ladies who get the perfect husbands.

They compare their lots with those of the heroines of the fairy tales who married and lived happily ever after, and not with that of their sisters and their cousins and their aunts who are married to good-for-nothing drunken husbands they have to support or to philanderers who break their heart with their unfaithfulness or to wanderers who never spend an evening at home if they can help it.

Then I would tell the woman who wants to be happy though unmarried to espouse a career. I should tell her to get into some work that she likes and finds congenial and that will fill her hands and her mind and give her something interesting to do and think about and plan for, and by which she can earn a comfortable living.

Life Is Series of Compromises

The reason that women in the past were afraid not to marry was because if they did not have a husband and children on which to expend their energies, there was nothing for them to do. There was nothing for them to hope for, nothing to plan for.

They had to waste their lives in useless work, making tatting and crocheting tidies. And they were pests to other people because, having no interest of their own, they had perforce to interest themselves in other people's affairs. And they were bitter because they knew the horror of dependence.

Finally, I should say to the unmarried woman who wants to be happy, that all life is a series of compromises. We have to be continually striking a balance between our losses and our gains, no matter what our lot may be, and happiness consists in putting the loud pedal on our blessings and the silencer on our misfortunes. And that goes equally for the married and single.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Could you suggest to me what kind of rice would be the best to eat? Whenever we go to the store and ask for rice the storekeeper gives us any kind. Since there are many varieties, what is the best. Thanking you in advance, Madeleine Denomme.

ANSWER: Broadly speaking there are five different varieties of rice: (1) Brown rice from which only the hull has been removed—best from both a flavor and health standpoint; (2) unpolished rice retains most of the minerals, is grayish in tone and comes almost always in boxes—much more desirable in flavor and nourishment than polished; (3) polished rice is the most commonly sold—it is white but not shiny and comes in all different shapes and sizes; (4) coated rice gets through a talc and glucose process to give it a lustre, and must be so labelled—the coating washes off easily, has no advantage, and increases the cost; (5) wild rice is long and greenish and is used as a dressing for game, is expensive and available only at exclusive grocers.

In buying ask for long-grained unpolished and you will have the most desirable rice procurable, both from appearance and flavor angles. For health buy brown rice.

Chinese Method of Boiling Rice.

Wash 1 cup rice, and put in 2-quart saucepan with 2 cups cold water (and for Canadian tastes 1 teaspoon salt—although the Chinese do not use salt), cover saucepan very closely and stand over hot fire. Do not lift cover once until ready to serve. When water boils hard — which usually takes about 10 minutes—reduce heat so that water boils slowly exactly 10 minutes. Remove from heat and stand in warm place 10 minutes—never lifting lid throughout. The water will be all absorbed and each rice grain separate.

QUESTION: I read your column and find it very interesting indeed. I am a girl who is going to be 16 next month and I plan to invite a group of 12 girls to a party. I plan the party to be on a Sunday afternoon so I wonder if you could suggest a menu that mother and I could fix. Do you think that I should get place cards? Your suggestions would be very much appreciated. — Anne Leurhak.

ANSWER: Since your birthday is in April could we give the party an Easter and Spring air?

Choice of Tomato Juice or Cream of Corn Soup
Hot Spiced Baked Ham
(See method)
Hot Tea Biscuits or Cornmeal Muffins
Large Salad Bowl: Celery Hearts, Radishes, Sliced Head Lettuce, Tomato Wedges.
Mayonnaise or Boiled Dressing
Strawberry Ice Cream with Topping of Melted Lemon Wafers
Cocoanut Macaroons Hot Chocolate

You will see that I have suggested that you serve this meal buffet style —I think girls of 16 would like the free and easy air of buffet service, and you or your mother or some dependable friend could preside over the ham and slice it expertly as it is required, just as one would preside over the tea pot at a tea table.

Some of your guests will doubtless be dieting and will be glad to have tomato juice in place of soup — serve the tomato juice generously, chilled, in a large glass pitcher. Maybe you have, or could borrow, an old-fashioned soup tureen.

The lemon wafers for the ice cream topping should be slowly melted over hot but not boiling water in top of double boiler.

Hot Spiced Baked Ham.

Wipe a high-grade smoked ham all over with damp cloth and place, rind side up, in uncovered roaster, and bake uncovered at 300 deg. Fehr. for 4 hours at least. One-half hour before meat is done, remove rind, cover fat portion with 1½ cups brown sugar with which is mixed 1 teaspoon mustard. Stick whole cloves into surface of ham about 1 inch apart. Sugar and mustard may be omitted and ham may be basted during last half-hour of cooking with cider. Hot Spiced Applesauce or Hot Raisin Sauce are nice accompaniments.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, March 18.

A particularly lively and progressive day is read from the dominant planetary aspects, with the promise of much pleasure and personal gratification all along the line. Group interests of a humane or welfare objective are under unusually good augury and should end in high achievement toward desired aims, but it would be well to exercise much precaution in handling all writings or documents with an eye to possible fraud, duplicity or falsification.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and enterprising year, with much personal gratification and enjoyment. Matters of a public or humane nature are under excellent stimuli for the attainment of advanced objectives, but it would be well to use every precaution against fraud, treachery or misrepresentation. Intimate associations also benefit by circumspection. With this domestic and affectional affairs should flourish.

A child born on this day should be very enterprising, progressive and clever, with noble and humane impulses, although it might, under high strung nervous energy be prone to resort to expediency rather than principle.

The quaint and lovely garb of days gone by was displayed by girls of the C.G.I.T. of St. Andrew's United Church at a St. Patrick's tea held Friday afternoon by Number Two group of the Women's Association. Mrs. Paige Rowell, president of the Women's Association, and Mrs. E. W. Young, received with the group leader, Mrs. A. Moir.

The parade of old-fashioned costumes was of unusual interest, not only because of the beauty, rich colors and materials of the gowns, but because of their historical background, all having been originally worn by members of Peterborough families. There was a frock of rustling black taffeta with bustle back, exquisite lace trimming collar and sleeves, worn by Miss Linden Hall's mother between sixty and seventy years ago; a frock of the same period belonging to Miss Margaret Ferguson's aunt, and a white muslin green and brown coin-dotted costume, with ruffled jacket and hoop skirt, worn by Miss Edith Ferguson's mother over sixty years ago.

Beautiful brown velvet, fashioned all in one piece, with ruffled back breaking into a train, was one of the gowns Miss Linden Hall's mother wore forty years ago, and the model displaying a lovely frock over fifty years old, at one time in the wardrobe of Miss Elizabeth Scott's mother, also carried a doll dressed in the family christening robe, and wrapped in a red silk quilted cape, the latter a treasured heirloom at least seventy years old.

Other costumes included two dresses belonging to and worn by Mrs. L. M. Brooks; a gown owned by Mrs. Hazel Anderson's mother, one worn by Mrs. Nelson's aunt forty years ago, a boy's suit at one time the property of Mrs. B. L. Barns' brother, with matching cap, and a dress owned by Mrs. J. A. Morgan. The costume modelled by the pianist, Miss Mildred McIntyre, was the wedding gown worn by Mrs. J. E. R. Munro's mother. Mrs. J. Osborne and Miss Ruth Barns were in charge of the parade, and models were Miss Joan Pitchford, Miss Pat Hardie, Miss Jean Johnston, Miss Marelin Munro, Miss Marion Nelson, Miss Anne Boyle, Mrs. Terry Glover. Miss Bette Boyle was commentator.

Mrs. A. Belleghem and Mrs. H. Wightman were general conveners fo the tea, and during the afternoon Miss A. Moir, Miss M. Ferguson, Mrs. W. H. Thompson and Mrs. J. W. McDermitt presided at the tea table, which struck a cheerful note of spring with its yellow linen cover, centre of daffodils, and appointments of crystal and silver. Tea was also served at individual tables with novel candy favors in the St. Patrick's Day theme. Tea hostesses were Mrs. I. T. Lillico, Mrs. J. G. Wharry, Mrs. G. L. Fowler, Mrs. B. F McNeeley, Mrs H. Tremaine, Mrs. Mulligan, Mrs. Whalon, Mrs. T. Detcher, Mrs. T. H. Glover, Mrs. J. Johnson, Miss E. Scott.

Attractive tables of homecooking were in charge of W.A. groups, Number One table convened by Mrs. George A. Gillespie, Mrs. H. Beall, Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge; Number Two by Mrs. V. Hamilton, Mrs. L. M. Brooks; Number Three by Mrs. R. D. Brown, Mrs. D. V. Ketcheson, Mrs. D. T. Crawford, Mrs. R. Cotton was treasurer

Hamilton and Mrs. Foster.

Mrs. Armstrong invited the ladies to meet at her home for the April meeting.

Visitors to Lindsay on Friday were Mrs. Austin Fallis of Ballyduff, Mr. A. H. Monk and Helen and Ralph Rowan of Brunswick.

Mrs. Austin Fallis was the guest last week of her sister, Mrs. J. J. Clarke.

Mr. Carvus Lee has been busy delivering large wood orders to customers in the village.

Mr. Bill Phillips has been at the farm home of Mr. Orm Kincade, asssisting with the care of stock in the absence of Mr. Kincade, who was managing a farm stock sale near Peterborough for Mr. Richard Challice.

Bethany Ladies Assist Dorcas

BETHANY, March 17.—(ENS).—The Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Anglican church held their March meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. McCartney. There were ten ladies present, and owing to the inclemency of the weather a number of others sent in donations for the Lenten luncheon.

Dorcas work had been arranged and passed around for the completion of articles partly made. A sum of money was voted to the conveners of that committee to buy goods needed for furthering the work. Letters were read from recipients of fruit and flowers.

Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. D. Cairns, Mrs.

Bantam Champs Defeated By Warkworth

CAMPBELLFORD, March 17.—(ENS)—Campbellford bantams who succeeded in sewing up the Eastern Ontario title without losing a contest met their match in Warkworth who took them for an 8 to 6 score in the local arena. It was their first defeat but in the eyes of their Coach Harold Dunk they are now better seasoned for the playoffs. Besides the local sextette was stepping a bit out of class since the Warkworth outfit pitted against them came in the midget category so the locals are still technically undefeated by any team in their own class.

Despite the fact the visitors came out on top they were headed by a 6 to 4 count at the end of the second period and the bantams opened the scoring with two in the first while the Warkworth outfit gathered but one. The game was clean and fairly fast though ice conditions left much to be desired since patches of water which had been evident during the afternoon were still discernable.

G. Jacobs, L. Dunk and D. Free who each notched a pair of counters during the exhibition, were the local marksmen.

Only one game remains in the bantam schedule—the return engagement with Wooler on Monday evening however it will not change the group standing since the visitors are at the bottom of the group anyway and only because they are entitled to a second game with Campbellford was the game arranged.

As soon as a winner for the Western Ontario section has been declared a playoff series with Campbellford will be arranged. With ice permitting local officials are hoping for a home and home total-goal series but if the weather should moderate before the winner is declared a sudden-death fixture on neutral ice will decide the champion.

Otto Laderach Sets Record In Bethany Run

(By the Canadian Press.)

Using combinations of everything from axle grease to brilliantine for speed and more speed, the senior division of the Peterborough Ski Club wound up its competitive season for this year with the running of the downhill race at Bethany yesterday. In spite of the mild weather, the course was exceptionally fast, so fast that we're quite certain Otto Laderach blasted out a new course record on his second run. The times of the top four runners were so close that at the end of the first run only two-fifths of a second separated them. There were twelve entries in the race.

A third in the downhill together with his first in the slalom run last week-end was good enough to give Jack Holland the combined event with a score of 97.76 points. In second place came Toby Westbye with a second in the downhill and a total of 93.89 points. Don Shiner picked up enough on yesterday's race to give him third place in the combined with 90.14 points. Results of the downhill follow:

2, Toby Westbye, 23.2, 23.8: 47.
4, Don Shiner, 26, 24.8: 50.8.
5, Bob McKinnie, 25.8, 26.6: 52.4.

Twelve entries. Starter, C. Boate. Timer, R. White. Recorder, H. Matthewson.

Aside from the downhill, over two hundred skiers schussed their way over rather heavy snow during the day. A good man were quite content with "arm chair" skiing in the chalet for most of the day and needless to say the chalet was one busy spot what with waxing, lunching, gossiping and just resting. Toward the end of the day the "Wild Indian" Hill Blasters got oranized once again and could be seen attempting to schuss a one-man track four abreast.

Derna was found abandoned and virtually unoccupied, and the Imperial army pushed on across the desert.

Jones, Armour Win Big Match

NASSAU, Bahamas, March 17.—(CP).—Bobby Jones and Tommy Armour, returning to the golfing wars together for a reunion of champions, still haven't lost a golf match as a team.

They beat Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen 3 and 2 Sunday in the finale of a 36-hold Red Cross match refereed by the Duke of Windsor. They did it with a five-under-par pace through the last 16 holes.

It appeared for a time that Sarazen and Hagen would square the match. Hagen dropped a 25-foot putt to win Sunday's second hole and reduce the carry-over deficit to a single point.

Armour won the next in par, however, and Jones took the fourth with a 20-foot birdie putt. Tommy captured the sixth with another birdie after a great approach shot within six feet of the pin, and the team had a lead too large to overcome.

Pittsburg Team Squeezes Out Buffalo Bisons

(By the Canadian Press.)

It wasn't until the very last minute of the regular season that the closest race on record in the American Hockey League and its multi-named predecessors was decided. But the six top teams will be able to start the playoffs tomorrow without further complications.

Hanging in the balance in the final week-end of the long campaign were second and third place in the high-powered Eastern division and third in the Western group. The latter spot wasn't decided until Pittsburg and Indianapolis, playing the last game to finish last night, wound up in a 2-2 tie.

Put Into Playoffs

The single point the Hornets gained in that draw put them into the playoffs. They had virtually clinched their post Saturday by whipping the Buffalo Bisons, 2-0, but Buffalo came back last night with a 3-2 overtime victory over the Cleveland Bisons to get into the struggle again.

As it was, Pittsburg and Buffalo finished with 48 points each but the Hornets got the call because they won 21 games to the Bisons' 19. That obviated the necessity of a replay of a protested Indianapolis-Pittsburg game, which had been tentatively set for tonight if the outcome would have affected the playoff status of either team. The Indianapolis Capitals, who had a chance for third place up to Saturday, wound up three points away in fifth place after dropping a 2-1 decision to Cleveland before last night's tie.

In the Eastern division, the Springfield Indians advanced to second place Saturday night by beating Philadelphia, 3-2, in their final game of the season. But the New Haven Eagles had the last word word about the position last night when they walloped the Hershey Bears, 11-4, and thus funished a point ahead of Springfield.

Philadelphia's Ramblers finished last in the Eastern group but they had the consolation of trimming the pace-setting Providence Reds 6-3 in their final game and of finishing with 56 points, only one less than Hershe, which was second in the West. Hershey lost both games over the final weekend, 4-3 to Providence Saturday and then to New Haven.

The playoffs starting tomorrow, Providence at Cleveland hook up in a best-of-five series while it's New Haven against Hershey and Springfield against Pittsburg in two-of-three rounds. The winners of the second and third-place playoffs will meet in a semi-final for the right to take on the victor in the first-place series.

DRAFTED FOR LOVE

By RUTH AYERS

YESTERDAY: Hal proposes, but April puts off a final decision. She is still in love with Kent. Comes word at last that Kent's eyes are all right. Ann is making preparations for a wedding. But the day Kent arrives, April refuses to see him.

APRIL PLANS ESCAPE

CHAPTER XVIII

BUT you couldn't keep yourself barricaded in a room forever. April knew she would have to face Kent some day. In the first few days of his return, her absence wasn't noted, apparently.

Mother said, "Well, at first glance you'd never know anything had been wrong. The operation was a marvelous success. But sometimes—looking at him—" Her voice trailed off.

April jogged her. "Yes, sometimes what?"

Mrs. Burnett sighed. He's changed, of course," she began uncertainly. "Anyone would who went through such an experience. And now and then it seems as if I catch a strange, questioning look in his eyes—as if he wasn't quite sure himself it was true."

"Oh, I think I know what you mean."

Mother brightened at once. "He asked for you last night, April."

"Yes? What did he say?"

"Well, he wanted to know if you'd gone away. After all, dear, you're the gay one in this family, always going places. Why don't you come down tonight?"

"I'll see how I feel."

KENT had wanted to know if she had gone away. Perhaps he hoped she had. Perhaps he wanted her away. The phrase began to hammer in her brain.

Meanwhile, downstairs, Ann sang all day. But when she came into April's room, she'd lower her voice as if April were really an invalid and the room a sick room. If she'd been blooming when Kent's letters were coming, she was radiant now in Kent's return. Faint color had crept into her white skin, her eyes shone.

"There's one thing I want to thank you for, April," she said.

"Thank me"

"Yes, you didn't tell Kent about my audition with Vivano, did you?"

"No, you asked me not to."

"We'll keep that to ourselves," Ann said.

"Sure, right in the bosom of the family."

Ann changed the subject quickly. "Think you'll be up to being a bridesmaid, sister? Kent and I are going to set a day soon."

So it had come. A wedding. Ann's wedding to Kent!

Every time Kent drove over from the Carter house on the hill, April found another excuse so she might stay in her room.

But a plan was forming in her mind. Kent Carter had asked if she had gone away.

She would go away-

THE idea took shape, grew. There was a place where she could go, quietly and without fuss.

If she confided in Mother and Dad beforehand, they'd make a fuss. But if she could slip away without them knowing and then send a letter telling where she had gone, they wouldn't be alarmed.

So on a Monday in mid-January, her plans completed, she packed her bag with the few things she needed. "I feel better already," she told Nip as he nosed into the suitcase. "I've moped about Kent Carter long enough."

She knew she couldn't carry out her plans alone. There would be no way of driving the roadster, no means of getting to the train by herself.

Waiting until the house had quieted that afternoon, she took her suitcase downstairs and hid it in a clump of shrubbery by the front porch. Yes, the brown bushes were perfect camouflage for the brown bag.

Then she came into the hallway and telephoned to Hal Parks. "How about picking me up at 8 o'clock tonight?" she asked.

Hal said he would be there, on the nose, with bells on. Nothing, he added, could have suited him better.

Now that she had started, fate began to play very helpfully into her hands. She learned from Octavia that Kent would not be coming for Ann that night until 8.30. So she came down for dinner with the family for the first time.

She found herself looking from one face to another with an almost hungry look. They were all dears, Mother and Dad and Ann, who seemed about to burst with happiness. She, April, had been the thoughtless one, the selfish one.

Octavia pressed compone and fried chicken on Ann, her "honey chile," but once or twice April caught Octavia's eyes on her, something unfathomable and sad in their dark depths.

"I have a date tonight," April announced. "With Hal Parks."

Dad protested, but not too much. Mother smiled vaguely. "I couldn't bear to lose both my girls," she said.

That made April choke for a minute, but she was surer now than ever she was taking the best way. Better to have them all hurt for a little while than to stay and betray the terrible ache in her heart for Ann's sweetheart.

"It will do you good to get out," Ann was saying.

"You have to take the plunge

Drafted For Love

By RUTH AYERS

some time," April answered. "I've paid penance long enough, don't you think?"

"Penance?" Ann's voice was grave.

AFTER dinner, April hurried upstairs to dress. She chose a plain gray wool frock, with matching turban, a red pocket-book that held make-up, money, the key to the suitcase hidden outside and another key.

The money was enough to take her to her destination. The key would do the rest. She was going to the little town upstate on the river where the Burnetts had their log cabin. Surely, when she wrote home that she was there, they would understand, know she was safe. And she would stay until after Ann's wedding, resting, forgetting.

She was downstairs, her fur jacket on, at quarter of 8.

"It's for me," April called, and hurried, with only the trace of a limp, to answer the door for Hal.

But it wasn't Hal who stood there. It was a shabby, bleary-eyed old man. Winkie Appleman. And beside him was the burly figure of the town constable.

Learn to Play a Guitar by Simple Diagram Way

Make a Hit With Your Music

And with diagrams and directions anyone can learn to play the harmonizing chords used in accompanying a song.

With the fingers of your left hand you press the strings near the frets at the points where the fingering 1, 3 and 4 is indicated. At the same time your right hand plucks the strings near the sound hole, producing the chord. Pluck first with the thumb (X in the lower part of the diagram) and follow immediately with the other fingers—playing them together.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of EASY LESSONS IN GUITAR PLAYING to Emsminer, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHEN TO LEAD THE TOP

YOUR BEST lead, in your partner's suit, is ordinarily fourth-best if he is a card reader. It will help him know you have a goodly number of cards in the suit and tell him how many the declarer has, thereby giving him a line on the declarer's count in other suits. But if you have supported your partner's suit during the auction, he already knows about your possession of length in it. The thing he doesn't know is how high your top card is. For that reason, it is generally best to lead the top of the suit if you have already shown length.

South didn't have a chance to make this contract without help from his opponents. But he got some, beginning with the opening lead. West, having supported the spades of his partner, had right there one good reason for leading his J. Another was that North's double had placed most of the hostile high card strength with North, so that a high lead through him was preferable to a low one. But West led his spade 3, the fourth-best.

When North played the 8 on this, East was afraid South might have the J, either singleton or doubleton. So he didn't dare play his 9 or 10. He put up the K, and returned the club 10 to try to limit cross-ruffing of the red suits. It brought forth the J, Q and K. Declarer then led to the club 9, sent the heart 10 through, then the heart J, cleared trumps with the club A, laid down the heart A and led the diamond 7. East could not guess his partner's singleton K, so split his honors, the J losing to the A, which at the same fell stroke dropped the K.

Now it was easy. The diamond 3 to the 10 lost to the Q and East hated to lead. A diamond lead from his 8-4 into the 9-6 was distasteful, so he laid down the spade A. South ruffed this, played the diamond 9 for a discard of the heart Q, ruffed the diamond 6 in dummy and cashed the now set-up spade Q for the final trick. Notice what a different story there would have been if West had made it easy for his partner with an opening lead of the spade J.

Toronto, March 17 (CP)

TWO aged spinsters, Ada A. Braybon and her sister Elizabeth, were found dead and a third woman, identified only as Mrs. Spencer, was found dying as a result of escaping coal gas fumes in the Braybon home on Pears avenue Saturday.

Neighbors, who became alarmed when they noticed a bottle of milk and a loaf of bread on the steps of the home had not been taken in, broke into the house and found the women.

Both of the Braybon women were more than 80 years old. One of them was blind and the other partially blind. They were beyond aid when Mrs. Jacob Owen, a neighbor, got into the house.

Butter Steady, Eggs Drop On Farm Market

Eggs sold down to 18 cents before the close of the farm produce market Saturday. Prices generally were 20 to 23 cents, and apparently most of the morning's business was around the 20-cent mark, with ample supplies.

Butter was steady at 35 cents with some prices up to 37 cents and others down to 34. Poultry was hardly sufficient for the demand, and prices were firm. Broilers were 35 cents a pound and last year's pullets 20 to 25 cents.

The only sign of the passing of winter were a few bunches of "pussy willows." On the outdoor market sales of fresh meat were brisk, according to dealers' reports. Pork was 12 and 14 cents a pound, and beef also at those figures, 12 and 14 cents.

Potatoes were unchanged in prices from last week. Cobblers were $1.10. White Stars, $1.25, and Green Mountains $1.10. Norman Moncrief's apple prices were: Spies, 35, 40 and 50 cents a peck and from $1 to $1.85 a bushel. Stars were 35 cents a peck and $1.15 a bushel, Russets, 40 cents a peck and $1.25 a bushel. Harold Doig quoted Spies at $1.75 a bushel.

Herb Doig had some Spies at $1.50, carrots 20 cents for six-quart baskets, turnips eight for 25 cents, beets and parsnips 25 cents a peck.

George Stephens was quoting body bardwood at $25 for a truck load of three cords. He told The Examiner that wood cutting in the northern part of the county is not as active as in other winters. Labor is scarce, and the price is decidedly firm for the best maple.

Norwood Boy Finishes Galt School Course

NORWOOD, March 17.—(ENS.—After five and a half months at the Aircraft Training School, Galt, where he took a course in aero-engine mechanics, Howard J. Lemon has now been accepted in the R.A.C.F. as an Aircraftsman.

This was the result of first taking the short course given in Peterborough Collegiate last summer, in auto mechanics, which course was listed in the Peterborough Examiner and so came to his attention. From this he was advised to take up the Galt course.

W.M.S. Mystic Tea Happy Even At Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, March 17 (ENS) — "We're pleased you have decided To come here today.
For we can assure you
A fine cup o'tay;
Look well o'er the menu,
Choose what you will,
The cost will surprise you,
When we hand you the bill."

Such was the witty little verse written on the menu-folders at the W.M.S. mystic tea, held at the home of Mrs. Frank Darling, Regent street, on Friday afternoon. True to the name each item on the menu was mysteriously named and so that the guests cautiously gave the order to the dainty waitresses, but when the order was brought, many were the exclamations of surprise and delight.

Each table was centred with green candles and the rooms were hung with the St. Patrick's colors of green and white.

In charge of the arrangements were Mesdames P. H. Darling, W. J. Charlton, J. McKerchar and G. E. Renwick, waitresses were the Misses Winnifred Murphy, Maryalyce Renwick, Helen Kelly and Constance Orr.

The proceeds which were most gratifying will be devoted toward the expense fund.

Pot Luck Supper

Shamrocks, green streamers and St. Patrick motives formed the attractive decorations for the pot luck supper held in St. Andrew's Church on Friday evening.

Although the posters stated the event would be a pot luck supper, there was plenty of variety on the well laden tables with hot scalloped potatoes and cold meat forming the main course.

A short but interesting program followed the supper hour with Rev. J. M. Young as chairman.

The program opened with community singing, composed of many popular and well known songs, with Mrs. Harold Trude at the piano and Roger Davis leading.

Readings were contributed by Mrs. J. M. Young and Miss Lillian Calberry, also a uphonium solo by A. H. Clark accompanied by Miss Jean Clark and a guitar solo and instrumental by Miss Jean Garbutt.

A short quiz contest conducted by Mrs. Alex Rosborough also added to the enjoyment of the evening.

Miss Pearl Peacock, Miss Patricia Earnshaw and Mrs. V. Brown have returned after visiting friends in Toronto.

Mrs. Hugh Lawrie, Mrs. T. Lawrie and A. McElroy of Port Hope were recent guests of friends in the village.

Of interest to friends in Lakefield and Peterborough is the announcement of the marriage on March 1 in the United Church parsonage Cobalt by Rev. R. J. Scott of Mildred Helen Bailey of New Liskeard to John Webster Noel Bromley also of New Liskeard. The groom is the son of Chief and Mrs. G. C. Bromley of New Liskeard, Mrs. Bromley was formerly Minnie Webster, daughter of Mrs. Webster and the late W. J. Webster.

Mrs. S. A. Grylls, Mrs. F. L. Erskine, Mrs. E. H. Northey, Mrs. J. Brown and Mrs. J. Knox were among those who attended the Skating Carnival in Toronto last week.

Millbrook Drive Over The Top For War Stamps

MILLBROOK, March 17 (ENS)—The local campaign, under the chairmanship of Ivan L. H. Gray, for the regular purchase of War Savings Certificates, has gone over the top, the objective of $600.00 per month having been passed by fifty or sixty dollars.

The team standing highest was captained by Douglas Sheppard, its objective of $150.00 being surpassed when pledges amounting to $360.00 were turned in. The team next in line was that captained by Councillor H. D. Bigelow, which reached $205.00; and the other two, though not meeting with as ready a response in their respective areas, turned in a fair amount in pledges, the captains, R. A. Ford, and G. T. McPherson, with their committees, calling on every citizen in the territory allotted.

The fact that the village as a whole went beyond the objective set is the more commendable since there are no local factories, or other industries, where the weekly wage of workers could have deducted from it a certain amount toward the buying of the War Saving Certificates or Stamps.

Patching Party

Mrs. J. R. Eakins extended the hospitality of her home for the weekly "patching party," on Friday, beginning at 2 p.m., the event being under Red Cross auspices, with the president, Mrs. T. A. Campbell, and the quilt convener, Mrs. Charles Thorndyke, in charge.

The attendance was the largest yet, over forty women gathering for this work meeting, and an unusually large number of quilt blocks being completed in readiness for the quilting on Tuesday afternoon, which is regularly held in the council chamber of the town hall. As soon as the weather is warm enough all the work will be done in the large concert room upstairs in the hall, and the patching parties, which have been such a success, throughout the winter months, will be discontinued.

The usual cup of afternoon tea, with sandwiches and cake, was served about 4.30 p.m., the social hour being a popular feature. Next Friday the party will be at Mrs. Thorndyke's home and donations of material for patches, or for the plain white foundation blocks, will be gratefully received.

Hastings Red Cross Euchre Happy Affair

HASTINGS, March 17—(ENS).—Thursday evening a delightful euchre was sponsored by Mrs. Grant Sine and Mrs. C. M. Baker in aid of the Red Cross, held at the latter's home.

Thirteen games of euchre were played, and in keeping with the date confusing stunts were acted during each game, those failing to act having to pay a forfeit. Eight tables were played and $9 realized.

The living room was most attractive with Empire decorations; the fireplace being draped with the Union Jack, over which a picture of the King and Queen was placed and on either side were red, white and blue candles.

Prizes were War Savings stamps tied in handkerchiefs and were awarded to Mrs. Russel Jones and Mr. Clifford Scriver.

Evangelistic and social work in the Columbia Coast Mission was described in an interesting address by Miss Clara Williamson, when the monthly meeting of St. George's W.A. was held on Thursday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. A. Following the address the members decided to make a complete baby's layette for the Columbia Coast Mission.

Mrs. A. C. McCullum, who recently organized a Junior W.A., displayed a beautiful wool afghan for the Red Cross, made byt he young girls.

Nazi Cruisers Now Prowling U.S. Side Sinking Ships Minus Guard, Says Churchill

LONDON, March 18—(CP).—Prime Minister Churchill announced today the sinking of three German U-boats yesterday in the battle of the Atlantic, which he proclaimed "one of the most momentous ever fought in all the annals of war."

Mr. Churchill, introducing John Winant, the new United States Ambassador, at a Pilgrims' luncheon, also declared that "not only German U-boats but German battle cruisers have crossed to the American side of the Atlantic and have already sunk some of our independently routed ships not sailing in convoy.

This statement apparently referred to sinkings long past and was unconnected with information given to the United States Government that a German submarine is heading into the Western Atlantic to prey upon British shipping off the North American coast.

The Prime Minister said the German warships had sunk vessels as far west as the 42nd Meridian, on the North American side of the Atlantic. (The 42nd Meridian is about 1,500 miles east of New York).

"Only yesterday I received the news of the certain destruction of three U-boats," he told his audience. "Not since October, 1939, have I been cheered by such a triple event."

Anyone can see, Mr. Churchill added, "how bitter is the need of Hitler and his gang to cut the sea roads between Great Britain and the United States, and, having divided these mighty powers, to destroy them."

In Optimistic Mood.

Then speaking with an optimistic note regarding Britain's own sea, and air power, he said:

"American destroyers which reached us in the autumn and winter are increasingly coming into action. Our own flotillas are growing in number. Our air power over the island and over the seas is growing."

Introducing the United States ambassador to the luncheon audience, Mr. Churchill predicted that "the day will come when the British Empire and the United States will share together the solemn but splendid duties which are the crown of victory."

Mr. Winant declared that "the American people have now girded themselves" to give Britain ships, planes, guns, munitions and food "with the utmost speed in the greatest volume and with all the skill at their command."

ABOARD A CRUISER SOMEWHERE IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, March 18—(AP). — The British fleet, demonstrating anew its control of the Mediterranean, has escorted some of the largest convoys of the war from Central and Eastern Mediterranean ports to Greece without a trace of enemy interference.

Tankers and freighters of every description, loaded with important war supplies and British and Allied forces splashed through the Mediterranean and the Aegean with our armed escort.

Right Through Danger Zone

The convoyed ships frequently sailed within a few miles of the Italian shore batteries on the Dodecenese Islands.

Zig-zagging fanwise, they easily passed through what are called the German and Italian "bomb alley" areas, where air attacks had been expected and have been mose frequent in the past.

The cruiser on which I am a passenger acted as a "shepherd" for the entire "flock" of ships. While some cruisers and destroyers moved

Sees Election Near

Toronto, March 18 (CP)

HON. George S. Henry, Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for York East and former premier of the province, told members of the York East Provincial Riding Conservative Association last night that signs pointed to a provincial election if Premier Hepburn "can find an excuse to hold one."

"Hepburn always builds up a surplus prior to an election," Mr. Henry said in referring to the $12,000,000 surplus announced in the Ontario budget last week.

Leslie Frost, Conservative member on the legislature for Victoria, told the meeting that "we will bury anything, even our political loyalty, to see that the war is brought to a successful conclusion."

Attaches said the embassy was assured he also will be permitted to receive visitors as soon as an investigation of his case is completed.

At Least 40 Hurt In Montreal Fur Plant Blast

MONTREAL, Mar. 18 — (CP). — At least 40 persons—perhaps many more—were injured to-day when an explosion of unknown origin blasted out the top of a block-long building housing the firm of A. Hollander & Sons, Limited, fur dyers.

More than 500 persons, most of them women and girls, were working in the five-storey plant when the explosion ripped through the third floor, blew out a wall, and tore the roof off the building, at Queen and Wellington Streets along the Montreal waterfront.

Rushed to Hospital.

In the confusion, police and fire officials were unable to estimate how many had been injured or whether any were dead. Preliminary reports said at least 40 had been hurt, but many had been rushed to hospitals by taxicab before authorities reached the scene.

Firemen, responding to a two-alarm call, poured water into the flaming, smoking shell which once was the upper part of the building. Squads of police kept back throngs of persons gathered about the fire.

Still dazed by the shock, Henri Guerin, a foreman on the blasted third floor, said the explosion was "terrible." He said he had "no idea" what caused the blast.

A Put-Up Job?

BERLIN, March 18—(AP.—Nazi propaganda sources asserted today that reports of a German long distance U-boat being en route to American waters were a "put-up job by American war inciters.'

They called the reports an attempt by the munitions industry to create war panic in the United States.

160 Injured In Ohio Train Crash

Fear Several Dead As Freight Hits Munition Commuters

WINDHAM, O., March 18 (AP)—A railroad official told the Youngstown Vindicator that 40 workers were seriously injured, 125 or more less seriously injured, and "several may have been killed" today when an Erie railroad freight train crashed broadside into a commuter train carrying 600 construction workers to the United States War Department's $15,000,000,000 Ravenna shell-loading plant.

The collision occurred within the 24,000-acre government reservation, where thousands of workers this fall will begin turning out shells at the rate of 1,000,000 rounds a month.

The westbound 10-coach commuter train, bringing men from Youngstown, was leaving the main Cleveland-Youngstown tracks and backing into the arsenal station, an Erie railroad spokesman said.

To do this the passenger train had to back across the eastbound tracks. The freight locomotive, going east, struck the commuter train at about its middle.

Five coaches were derailed.

The freight locomotive crashed onto its side and 10 freight cars left the tracks.

Hospitals at Warren, Youngstown and Ravenna, as well as the army's field hospital within the government reservation, received the injured.

Last Minute News

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Britain is continuing to unload supplies — anti-aircraft guns, searchlights and sound detectors—at several Greek ports, advices received here in a diplomatic message from Athens said tonight. These are for an army of 300,000 men Britain is said in diplomatic circles to be establishing in Greece. Britain, according to this information, is concentrating now on defence of Greek mainland ports and on preparing communication lines and airfields against Nazi bomber attacks when the "backyard of Europe" battle breaks out.

London, March 18 (CP)

THE King sent the following message today to the Pilgrims luncheon for John Winant, the new United States Ambassador:—

"The new ambassador of the United States of America has come on his mission to us at a fateful moment in the history of our two countries. The warmth of our welcome to him will testify to the feelings that are uppermost in all of us today of gratitude to the people whom he represents and of admiration for the great statesman who stands at their head."

Fascists Beaten Off In Eritrea With Heavy Loss

CAIRO, Egypt, March 18 (AP)—Italian counter-attacks against positions recently captured by British forces in Eritrea have been repulsed with heavy Fascist losses, British general headquarters announced today.

The communique said more than 800 prisoners were taken.

(This, presumably, was at Cheren, mountain stronghold barring the British way toward Asmara, the capital of Eritrea, and Massaua, its chief port. The British command said yesterday that important heights outside Cheren had been taken.)

A Royal Air Force communique said British planes dive-bombed and machine-gunned Italian troops and gun positions in the Cheren area and attacked the railroad southeast of the town. One Italian plane was shot down.

British planes attacked the Italian stronghold of Tripoli in western Libya Sunday night, starting large fires on the south side of the harbor, in hangars and among military stores, the communique said.

"A direct hit was observed on the Spanish mole," it declared. "Other bombs straddled shipping and quays."

Last 5 On Floes Rescued By Tug

L'ANSE, Mich., March 18—(AP)—Five fishermen who were swept on a Lake Superior ice floe to the Huron Island shores Sunday arrived at Portage Entry today aboard a fishing tug commandeered by Captain Fred Sollman of the Portage Lake Coast Guard Station.

Although the men had suffered somewhat from exposure, none was reported in serious condition.

The five men — Dewey Johnson, Tom Ross, Ray Archambeau, Toby Hackman and David Maki—were the last of a group of 19 ice fishermen and a woman who were trapped by a sudden storm Sunday morning which broke up an ice field near Skanee Point, approximately eight miles from shore.

Nine men and the woman were found by beach patrols yesterday after their floe touched shore near Pine Point, and late Sunday night five others reached a lumber camp after making their way to the mainland of Michigan's upper peninsula near the Huron Mountain district.

German Sub Headed For America

Will Prey On Supplies Britain Bound Is Washington Tip

WASHINGTON, March 18—(AP).—Sumner Welles, acting United States Secretary of State, said today he had been told by Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador, that the British Admiralty had received reports a German submarine had been reported in North Atlantic waters.

WASHINGTON, March 18 (AP)—At least one German U-boat is heading across the Atlantic today, the United States has been informed, under orders to operate off the American coastline where underseas raiders sent 65 vessels to the bottom in First Great War days.

The details of the government's information were an official secret and the exact character of the submarine's mission was not indicated, but informed sources saw only two possibilities if the reports prove correct.

The first was that the U-boat was being sent to the shipping lanes of the Western Atlantic to prey on vessels carrying United States aid to Britain, and thus make good Hitler's thrice-repeated promise of recent weeks that "wherever British

Greek Wounded Marvel How Hospital Escaped The Shambles

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 18 (AP) — Eleven Greek soldiers, headed home from the war in an exchange on prisoners, declared today British bombings they witnessed at the Albanian port of Valona had reduced the town to wreckage, the port to a shambles.

The Greeks, most of them mere boys and all legless, passed through Belgrade in an Italian Red Cross train of 18 cars carrying prisoners home for exchange. They were in a hospital at Valona awaiting transportation when British planes concentrated on the port in a recent raid.

"It was the most terrific bombing conceivable," one young Greek said. "The whole city seemed to tremble. How they avoided hitting our hospital I cannot imagine. Every other big building seem to be wrecked."

Valona is the southernmost Albanian port still in Italian hands. It lies 28 miles from Tepeleni, pivotal point in last week's fighting.

Ten of the 11 lost legs as a result of frost bite—which took a heavy toll on both sides among men who battled through the winter in Albania's snow-banked mountains. The other lost his legs when machine-gunned.

"This is a happy moment," one of the soldiers said. "You don't realize what we would have gone through to get a Greek cigarette." One Greek had lost both hands, as well as both legs.

King George II of Greece thanked his army last night for what he termed a smashing blow dealt a week-long Italian offensive the Greeks said Premier Mussolini directed personally.

"The whole civilized world follows with astonishment Gree feats of arms," the King said in a message to his troops. "You won because in your veins flows the blood of those who fought at Marathon and Thermopylae....I am very deeply moved by your gallant action....I thank you in the name of the Fatherland, and you may be assured every Greek has unshakeable faith that at all costs the honor and liberty of Greece will be defended."

The Greeks said the Italians showed no disposition to renew last week's intensive assaults, reported to have left their 11th Army shattered and cost the Fascists 50,000 casualties.

APPROXIMATELY 1,000 persons were killed in Nazi bomb raids on the Merseyside March 12 and 13 and on the Clyde area March 13 and 14, the air ministry and ministry of home security announced tonight.

Stratford Area Bogged Worst In Fifty Years

STRATFORD, Ont., Mar. 18—(CP). — Transportation facilities of Stratford and district remained crippled to-day with the storm that gripped the district on Sunday continuing with unabated fury.

One of the three trains halted by huge snow drifts got through to Goderich last night, but a mixed passenger and freight train remained stranded between Wingham and Kincardine this afternoon with the wheels of the baggage car off the track. An auxiliary train got stuck between Clinton and Wingham en route to help release the mixed train.

Passengers were taken to Seaforth, Clinton and Goderich from the train last night, after they had spent all day in the coach eating up the supply of peanuts, chocolate bars and sandwiches on the train.

The majority of rural schools in the district were closed to-day, the teachers having advised pupils who braved the storm on Monday not to venture out again if it continued. No buses were running from Stratford to London or Goderich, but after a one-day stoppage buses were Turkish newspapers made no mention of foreign reports that British troops had landed in Greece, nor did they hint at Turkey's intentions in the situation.

Berlin Claims Blaze On Liner Doused—London Suspects Trap

LONDON, March 18 (CP)—Royal Air Force bombers last night sank a large enemy supply ship off the Frisian Islands in addition to attacking Wilhelmshaven, Bremen, Rotterdam and Oldenburg, the air ministry announced tonight

"Numerous explosions and fires were observed in dock and industrial areas" of the German ports of Wilhelmhaven and Bremen, both naval bases, the communique said.

At Rotterdam, in occupied Holland, it said, a large fire broke out among oil storage tanks, and single aircraft also attacked the German ports of Emden and Oldenburg, about 25 miles northwest of Bremen.

The "large enemy supply vessel" was said to have been sent down in a torpedo attack by an airplane of the coastal command.

"An investigation into the conflagration has not yet been concluded" these sources said.

No additional light was thrown on the ship's location, although publication of dispatches yesterday from Bremen had been taken as indication the liner was tied up there

LONDON, Mar. 18—(CP).—British authorities were puzzled to-day by the Germans' frank disclosure of fire aboard the liner Bremen, and one authoritative source said he suspected it might have been bait to lure British bombers over a trap.

So far the Air Ministry has not claimed the R.A.F. bombers set the liner afire in their heavy raids last week on German ports.

LONDON, March 18 — (CP). — British bombers carried out a "fairly heavy" attack on Bremen and the German naval base at Wilhelmshaven during the night, the Ministry of Information announced today.

Britain had a comparatively quiet night.

An early afternoon air raid alarm sounded in London when a small formation of German planes headed Westward over the Thames Estuary. The formation turned south.

Pick Midnight Landing Spot – Navy Guns End Opposition

LONDON, March 18 — (CP). — Four men in a skiff led the way for a "liberation" fleet which stole up the British Somaliland coast under protection of naval guns at midnight Saturday, the Government said today, and recaptured Berbera, the colony's capital.

By 9.20 a.m. Sunday, the Ministry of Information recounted, the subsequent landing force of Indian, Somali and Arab troops and armored cars had wrested the town from the Italians who entered it when the British forces withdrew last August.

Reoccupation of the city was announced yesterday.

A two-point landing was effected, the ministry went on, quoting a cable from the port of Aden. The landing parties were guided by a photographic outlay of the Italian defences made previously by Royal Air Force planes.

"Just before the zero hour one of our warships crept in as near to the coast as possible and lowered a tiny skiff," the account said.

"In the skiff were three men under the command of a lieutenant. Their task was to mark the landing beach without being detected by the enemy.

"After what seemed an age a signal flashed the success of this operation and expectation grew tense.

"Suddenly at the zero hour the dim peace of land and water was ripped and shattered by the flash and thunder of naval gunfire. Away on the right, the west wing force went into the assault and the way had been paved for a Somali force to land and advance along the shore toward Berbera, about two miles distant.

OTTAWA, March 18. — (CP) — "Construction of the 808 elementary flying training planes, required under the air training plan, was completed this week, many months ahead of the original schedule," Munitions Minister Howe announced in a statement today.

Orders for these planes, 404 Fleet Trainers and 404 Tiger Moths, in which pilots receive their initial flying experience were placed with Fleet Aircraft and De Havilland Aircraft.

Mr. Howe said that under the original contract, delivery of the 404 planes required from each firm would not have been completed until 1942. In May 1940, both com-

Canada's Stand However Satisfies U.S.

WASHINGTON, March 18—(CP). —Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau refuses comment on London reports that the British Government is disturbed by a decline in the relation of the Canadian dollar to that of the United States.

Questioned about the report at his press conference yesterday, Mr. Morgenthau said:

"All I know is that Dr. W. G. Clark, Canadian Deputy Minister of Finance, has been here twice and we have conferred with him. Dr. Clark, the last time I saw him, said Canada could get through the year all right, so far as her supply of American dollars was concerned. That's enough for me."

Army, Air Force Recruiting Problems Aired

OTTAWA, Mar. 18 — (CP). — A picture of present and prospective recruiting problems of the Army and the Air Force was before the House of Commons to-day, together with a statement that a joint committee of the Army, Navy and Air Force is working on the general question of manpower.

Yesterday two key war ministers Defence Minister Ralston and Air Minister Power, discussed the make-up of the forces who fight on land and in the air.

Col. Ralston said the Army has no shortage of recruits in sight, thanks to the fact that Canada's overseas forces had not suffered casualties; but Air Minister Power saw a possible future problem in securing enough young men of the high educational and physical standards required to those who ride the skies in battle.

"The Navy, the Army and the Air Force have a committee working at the present time with a view to what may be a joint recruiting call, having regard to the needs of the three services we visualize this summer," Col. Ralston said.

The two ministers held the centre of the stage at afternoon and evening sittings as the $1,300,000,000 war Appropriation Bill was under discussion. The same discussion was to continue to-day.

Col. Ralston answered criticism directed by Conservative House Leader Hanson at the compulsory training plan and the purchase of lumber for Maritime military camps, and Major Power said Canada had succeeded in mass production of air crews under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

14 Homeless In Lindsay Fire

LINDSAY, March 18 (Special)—Fourteen persons were rendered homeless on Monday when fire swept the old Veitch Hotel block on Kent street, causing $3,000 damage.

George Menn, 70, who occupies an apartment with Bert McPhee, escaped in time and was locked after by neighbors. Stock and merchandise in Babcock's fruit store and Russell's beauty parlor were destroyed.

Among those who were forced out of their living quarters were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Willis, Mrs. Donnegan and three children, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woolridge and two children and Mrs. Ellis and one child. Most of the tenants were unable to save anything except the clothes they were wearing.

OTTAWA, March 18 (CP)—Canada's important part in the development and operation of new devices aimed at overcoming the night bomber menace in Britain was described in guarded terms to the House of Commons last night by Air Minister Power.

Highway officials sent six snow plows out in a futile attempt to keep roads clear. They described the storm as the worst in 50 years.

Hotels in this district were jammed full of people who had to abandon cars when the going became too tough.

No Sign of Let-up.

While reports from Shakespeare and New Hamburg indicated the wind had abated to some extent and that the occasional car and truck was drawling along No 7 and 8 highway to Kitchener, railroad officials of Stratford declared there was no sign of any let-up in the violence of the storm in the Clinton, Wingham and Kincardine areas.

Highway traffic snowplows were starting out to-day to attempt to open up main roads, but the officials issued the same warning, advising motorists to keep off the highways because of poor visibility

John Holland, operator of the store at St. Columban, had 15 motorists and truck drivers for dinner yesterday. Most of them left their cars in the St Columbus districts, walked south to the tracks and took the train.

Typical of the plight of many travellers were three Goderich residents, a man in uniform, a young lad and a young woman. They left Goderich Sunday afternoon with London as their destination and they were travelling by car. They reached London at noon hour today Their car had left the road late Sunday afternoon between Seaforth and Clinton. They eventually got to Seaforth and spent the day waiting for a train to Stratford It arrived at Seaforth about 10.30 o'clock last night and more than an hour later reached Stratford. The three spent last night making the best of it on the benches of the C.N.R. waiting room here.

Two Brussels school teachers home for the week-end have not yet reached their schools. They managed to get to Seaforth, but the road north from there is blocked hard. Leaving their car in Seaforth they returned to Stratford and hoped to get to Brussels by train some time to-day

There were about 135 passengers aboard the Goderich-bound train which became stranded in the snow drifts two miles east of Dublin.

The War Today

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

A combination of circumstances is believed holding up a German assault on Greece and it is within the bounds of possibility that the assault may never take place.

Germany is believed to have been unprepared for three events: the increasingly rapid deterioration of the Italian position in Eritrea, British Somaliland and Ethiopia, the collapse of the Italian offensive in Albania which was spurred personally by Mussolini, and the arrival of British reinforcements in Greece.

Failure of the Italian offensive, accompanied as it was by huge losses, appears to have left the Italians in an exhausted condition in which they would be ready to prey to a counter-assault by Greek forces. It was suggested, in fact, that the fall of the key town of Tepeleni, held stubbornly for weeks by the Italians, might result from a Greek counter-attack.

The three main events were believd to have given rise to other conditions in which the Germans may hesitate still further to attack Greece. First, the strength of the Greeks, the reported arrival of strong British reinforcements in Greece and the obvious willingness of the United States to appropriate staggering sums to help arm the Allies and China. All these have encouraged Balkan resistance to Axis demands.

For instance, Yugoslavia, after being reported on the verge of joining the Axis, began stalling and now apparently has placed Germany in a position where she would be glad of a Yugoslav signature to almost any document that would save the Wilhelmstrasse's face.

The Yugoslav press has become increasingly hostile toward German demands. So has that of Turkey. Germany is said to be rushing south more troops in addition to 16 divisions now reported on the Greek-Bulgarian border and 12 in Rumania. It is not certain, however, that these may not be designed as defensive, rather than offensive forces.

Considerable importance was attached in Tokyo to a report that Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, now on the way to Berlin and Rome, would stop both en route and on the return trip for conferences in Moscow.

It was suggested that Japan was, perhaps, being pressed by her two axis partners to take a more effective part in helping to establish the "new world order." Japan yesterday reduced her rice ration considerably, giving a further indication that she is finding the "China incident" an increasingly severe problem.

In addition Japan for a long time has not felt any too safe over her proximity to Russia and it was thought Matsuoka might try to obtain some kind of a border guarantee from the Soviets, preliminary to more concrete action in her partnership with Germany and Italy.

What form this action might take was not clear, although influential sections of the Japanese press have been attacking Britain and the British Commonwealth and have been unanimous in assailing President Roosevelt's Saturday night speech.

Mr. Winant told the Society he would do "all within my power to carry out" the common policies of Britain and the United States.

"The great mass of common men the world over," the ambassador declared, "is not deceived by Nazi talk of a new world order.

"They realize there is no order, or security, in tyranny. They want what the British people want. They want what the American people want.

"They want a friendly, civilized world of free people in which Christian virtues and moral values are not spurned as decadent and outmoded—a world where honest work is recognized."

Boost From Over The Sea

The text of Prime Minister Churchill's speech at the Pilgrim's luncheon today follows:

We meet here today under the strong impression and the impact of the historic declaration on Saturday last by the president of the United States.

And where could there be a more fitting opportunity than at this gathering of the Pilgrims to greet the new ambassador for me to express on behalf of the British nation and Empire the sense of encouragement and of fortification in our resolve which has come to us from across the ocean by those stirring, august and fateful presidential words.

You have come here, Mr. Winant, to a community which has been tried and proved before mankind and history, and tried and proved to a degree on a scale and under conditions which have not previously been known to human experience.

We are here a free society governed through a parliament which rests upon universal suffrage and upon the public opinion of the whole nation.

Call Out To Everyone

We are being subjected to daily attacks which if not effectively resisted and repelled would soon prove mortal.

We have to call our whole people—men, women and children alike—to stand up with fortitude and composure to the fire of the enemy and accept increasing privations while making increasing effort. Nothing like this has been seen before.

We have our faults, and our social system has its faults, but we hope that with God's help we shall be able to prove for all time, or at any rate for a long time, that a state or commonwealth of nations founded upon long enjoyed freedom and steadily evolved democracy possesses, amid the sharpest shocks, the faculty of survival in high and honorable, and indeed glorious debate.

At such a moment and in such an ordeal, the words and acts of the President and people of the United States come to us like a draught of life and they tell us by an ocean borne trumpet call that we are no longer alone.

We know that other hearts in millions and in scores of millions beat with ours, that their voices proclaim the cause for which we strive. Other strong hands wield hammers and shape the weapons we need, other keen and gleaming eyes are fixed in hard conviction upon tyrannies that must and will be destroyed.

We welcome you here, Mr. Winant, at a moment when the great battle in which your government and nation are deeply interested is developing its full scope and severity. The Battle of the Atlantic must be won in a decisive manner. It must be won beyond all doubt if the declared policies of the government and people of the United States are not to be forcibly frustrated.

Not only German U-boats but German battle cruisers have crossed to the American side of the Atlantic and have already sunk some of our independently routed ships not sailing in convoy. They have sunk ships as far west as the 42nd meridan of longitude.

Must Have Supplies

Our here, upon the approaches to our islands, an intense, unrelenting struggle is being waged to bring in the endless stream of munitions and food without which our war efforts here and in the Middle East—for that shall not be relaxed—cannot be maintained.

Our losses have risen for the time being and we are applying our fullest strength and resource and all the skill and science we can command in order to meet this potentially mortal challenged. Not only, I must remind you, does our shipping suffer by attacks of the enemy but also the fertility of its importing power is reduced by many of the precautions and measures which we must take to master and dominate the attacks which are made upon us. But our strength is growing every week.

The American destroyers which reached us in the autumn and winter are increasingly coming into action. Our own flotillas are growing in number. Our air power over the island and over the seas is growing fast.

We are striking back with increasing effect. Only yesterday I received news of the certain destruction of three German U-boats.

Not since Oct. 13, 1939, have I been cheered by such delectable tidings of a triple event.

It is my rule, as you know, not to conceal the gravity of the danger from our people and therefore I have the right to be believed when I also proclaim our confidence that we shall overcome them.

Hitler's Main Goal

But anyone can see how bitter is the need of Hitler and his gang to cut the sea roads between Great Britain and the United States and, having divided these mighty powers, to destroy them one by one.

Therefore, Mr. Winant, you come to us at a grand turning point in the world's history.

We rejoice to have you with us in these days of storm and trial because we have a friend and a faithful comrade who will 'report us and our cause aright.'

But none who has met you can doubt that you hold and embody in strong and intense degree the convictions and ideals which in the name of American democracy President Roosevelt has proclaimed. In the last few months we have had a succession of eminent American citizens visiting these storm-beaten shores and finding them unconquered and unconquerable.

Mr. Hopkins, Mr. Willkie, Col. Donovan and now today we have here Mr. Harriman and yourself. I have dwelt with all these men in mind and spirit and there is one thing I have discerned in them all.

They would be ready to give their lives, nay be proud to give their lives, rather than that the good cause should be trample down and the darkness of barbarism again engulf mankind.

You, Mr. Ambassador, share our purpose. You will share our dangers. You will share our interests. You shall share our secrets.

And the day will come when the British Empire and the United States will share together the solemn but splendid duties which are the crown of victory.

Two Criminal Cases Set DownAtCobourg

COBOURG, March 18 (Special to The Examiner).—Cobourg Spring Assizes opened here yesterday with four cases on the docket, of which two were criminal and two civil actions. Mr. Justice Kelly presided. The criminal cases consist of a manslaughter charge against John Kemp of Morganston in connection with the death last October of William Greenley of Percy Township, who is said to have been struck by a car driven by Kemp. He is also charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident. In the other criminal charge, William Turner, Hope township farmer, is charged with attempted murder in connection with the shooting on January 25 of Fred C. Richardson, Cobourg lawyer, in his Port Hope office.

Approves of Grand Juries

Mr. Justice Kelly expressed his endorsement of the grand jury system as an institution of the democracy which millions were prepared to fight for on the field of battle. At the outset of his address he outlined the duties of the grand jury.

"You do not try the guilt or the innocence of a man," His Lordship said, "but you check to see if there is any sort of case against him. You are a safeguard of his rights.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of letting these conditions become chronic. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store or any druggist, a package of Hem-Roid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is highly recommended, is easy to use, and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk a chronic pile condition when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.—(Advt.)

Condition Followed Attacks of Influenza and Lasted Until He Rid His System of Excess Acids and Impurities This Safe, Natural Way.

MR. JAMES BARRATT

"Syntona surely has been a wonderful tonic for me and I advise any one who is feeling rundown at this time of year to take it," said Mr. James Barratt, well-known London man, residing at 331 Simcoe Street: "I had different attacks of the flu and it left me weakened and rundown. My appetite was poor and what food I did eat only upset my stomach. After eating I was troubled with stomach gas, acidity, heartburn and cramps. Soon after that, I began to have dizzy spells and headaches. Then, the pains spread into my legs and back and I felt tired out and listless.

"That condition hung on so long that I thought I would never get over it, when one day my wife persuaded me to try Syntona. I was only taking it a couple of days when my stomach began to feel better and I got relief from the headaches and dizzy spells. After a few weeks the pains left my back and limbs, I could eat and sleep fine, and I felt better in every way."

Syntona produces these results without the aid of harsh drugs or depressors. It is made only from the pure extracts of Herbs, Roots and Barks. It aids in the proper assimilation of food for energy and resistance and in the elimination of excess acids and irritating waste matter.

Plans Progress For "Y" Exhibition

Plans are progressing rapidly in preparation for the annual Y.W.C.A. Gymnasium Exhibition, which will be held in the "Y" Gymnasium, Thursday and Friday evenings, April 24 and 25.

Owing to necessary war work the sewing for this year's presentation will be curtailed to about fifty costumes. The purchasing and cutting of material is already under way, and three groups of sewers have volunteered from Murray Street, St. Paul's, and George Street groups.

A reduced war time price has been thought best by the Physical committee and approved by the board of directors. The support of the public is needed more this year than ever, since the Y.W.C.A. in war time is given extra responsibility and many new avenues of service. Peterborough Y.W.C.A. has accepted this added work in its regular budget without increasing its appeal to the citizens. Each department is therefore most anxious to meet its share of the expense of the association, and the pageant is one revenue producing event of the year.

The gymnasium review this year will be called "On Parade," and Miss C. F. Littlefield has an interesting program including military squad drill, rifle drill, morse and semaphore signalling, medau eurythmics, gym. swim exercises, pyramids and military gymnastics, rope climbing and ring exercises, skipping and the baby keep fit exercises; English country dances, National folk dances, including the Highland Fling, Sword Dance, Sailor's Hornpipe and Irish Clog and Jig.

FASHIONS

If you've been looking for a dress that will slim your figure and be just right for spring, your search will end here. This is the perfect dress for the more mature figure because of its paneled skirt and interesting shoulder yokes. The matching jacket is loose fitting and neat just the way you'll like it. Make your new print frock on these lines - complete satisfaction and at a budget price. A dark printed rayon crepe will be your standby all spring and summer for all occasions.

Style No. 3370 is designed for sizes 16, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch fabric with 2½ yards of edging for short sleeved dress; 2¼ yards of fabric for long sleeved jacket.

Clever Three-Act Comedy Presented by Dramatic Club

A rollicking three-act comedy that causes its audience to shed a tear one moment and shout with glee the next is Wilber Braum's "You Can't Beat the Irish," presented Monday night before a crowded house in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum by the St. Peter's Dramatic Club, assisted by talent from the Sacred Heart and Immaculate Conception Parishes. Never was there a more appreciative audience, the quick response to Irish wit giving added encouragement to a cast in which Ted Davine alone is making his stage debut.

Once again under the capable direction of George Lynch, the play deals with natural, lovable Irish folk, but not for one moment are they held up for ridicule, as is so often the case. Instead, "You Can't Beat the Irish" appeals whether you're Irish or not, warming the heart with its friendly portrayal of everyday family life.

As Mrs. Mary Malone, the typical mother who lives only for her children, Miss Anne Simons is easily the star performer, and carries the heaviest role. She speaks with an Irish lilt that is a pleasure to hear, and assumes the witty dialogue with an enviable naturalness. Tommy, her oldest boy, Danny, the youngest, and Peggy, the beautiful daughter, make up her entire world, and much of the fun comes in when she sees through their "blarney" and firmly lays down the law.

To reveal the story of the play would hardly seem fair to those who plan to see tonight's performance, but we do give assurance that the interest never drags for a moment, with plenty of excitement, mystery and romance delightfully and gaily blended.

Evidence of experienced directing was apparent in the creditable performance given by each player. Nora Moher in her characterization of the movie-struck daughter who longs for culture, was excellent, and Clem Galvin as Tommy Malone, the bread-winner of the family, was completely at ease and won the adoration of the audience. Alice Collins carried the difficult role of awkward, love-smitten Ellen Murphy with admirable finesse, and Andrew Marrocco was fine as Armand Ravel, a gesticulating Frenchman. Ted Devine interpreted the part of "Danny Malone" the youngest son, who spends most of his time losing jobs; Ed. Murphy took the part of a manly Irish youth; Captain Denis Dooley's part as head of the plain clothes squad was taken by Bernard Jones; Mrs. Nora Mariarity by Mrs. William Prindible; Sylvia Carston by Adele McMurray, and Anne Ravoli by Doris Strickland.

Make-up and lighting were in charge of Mr. John McCabe, and properties of Mr. E. Prete. Improvements in stage arrangements over previous seasons were noted. Music in keeping with the theme of the play was supplied by St. Peter's School Orchestra, with Miss Bernice Flynn at the piano. Attractive vocal solos were also given during intermission by Mrs. D. Campanaro and Miss Geraldine Collins. A second presentation of "You Can't Beat the Irish" will be given in the Lyceum tonight.

James V. Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. McEwan (Ottawa), Mr. and Mrs. McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. O'Toole, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Howe, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. H. Mesley, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Doxsee, Mr. and Mrs. P. Stenner, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. D. Darling, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. MacDonald.

St. Patrick's Tea Is Held By W.M.S.

Group One of Mark Street Women's Association held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Cecil Larmer with fourteen members present. Mrs. Gordon Eason was in charge of the devotional period, with scripture read by Mrs. Eason and prayers by Mrs. H. Hunter and Mrs. Aker. An inspiring reading, "The Lighted Windows" was given by Mrs. Beavis, and Miss Jean Larmer was heard in a guitar solo.

Plans were made for a St. Patrick's tea to be held at the home of Mrs. DeNure, 577 Armour road, on Thursday, March 20; and Mrs. Beavis offered her home for the next meeting on Monday, March 24. Tea was served by the hostess after the meeting.

Junior Alumnae Nurses Give Tea For Friends

Members of the Junior Alumnae of St. Joseph's Hospital entertained their friends at a St. Patrick's Day tea from four until six o'clock. About seventy guests called during the afternoon and were received by Miss M. Mullen, president, Niagara Falls; Miss M. Cain, Lindsay; Miss K. O'Grady, Norwood; Miss A. Crough, Ennismore.

Miss M. Tolmie, Wainright, Alberta, poured tea from an attractively arranged table covered with an ecru lace over green, with tall green candles in silver holders and a rose centrepiece filled with daffodils. Spring flowers were placed effectively throughout the room. Serving were Miss M. McCall, Lindsay; Miss E. Strano, Huntsville; Miss E. Leahy, Indian River; Miss P. Duffus, Peterborough; Miss I. McGlynn, Toronto.

Of interest to the guests was the demonstration by Miss E. Barnett, Warsaw, and Miss H. Windle, Renfrew, of the use of the iron lung.

War Fund Aided By C.D.S. Dance

The sum of $32.10 in aid of the British War Victims' Fund was realized Monday night at a St. Patrick's dance sponsored at the Kawartha Club by the staff of the C.D.S. Although unpleasant weather kept a number from attending, the party was a successful one, with arrangements smoothly carried out under the direction of Mr. Percy MacDonald. The door prize of a $5.00 war savings certificate was won by Mr. Earl Fowler, and spot dance awards of fifty cents in war savings certificates were won by Miss Aileen Jefferies and Mr. R. Boate. Music for dancing was provided by Jimmy Duffus' orchestra.

Among those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Jamison, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Girven, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Armitage, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Miller, Mr. and Mrs. R. Hutton, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Mesley, Mr. and Mrs. Cote, Mr. and Mrs. Don Sidey (Bewdley), Mr. and Mrs.

ADORING HUSBANDS SHOULD BE UNDER LOCK AND KEY

Wives With Mates Who Continue To Play Romeos Should Consider Themselves Lucky Indeed.

Dear Miss Dix—I have been married 13 years and my trouble is that my husband is too much in love with me. He demands too much of my attention and keeps up the tactics of our courting days. From the office he calls me up for dates as if we were not married. He wants me to dress up for him all the time. He buys me things he cannot afford, such as dresses, hats and so forth, and comes home and wants me to put on a floor show for him. He tells me that my figure is still beautiful and tries to convince me that nothing is too good for me. Do you think I should humor him and do the things he likes or insist upon him being more settled? I love him and he is devoted to me and never looks at another woman. He didn't act this way when we were first married. This spell has come over him during the last few years and seems to be permanent, and I am wondering if I should try to do anything about it.

BEWILDERED WIFE.

ANSWER—I don't wonder that you are bewildered. This lover-like conduct in a husband doesn't seem natural, for most men after 13 years of marriage have dropped the tactics of courtship and not only do not pursue their wives with flowers and gifts, but also have to be reminded of the Little Woman's birthday. Ordinary wives, reading your letter, will find it difficult to believe that any woman is fortunate enough to possess such a rare specimen of the Genus Husbanditis as you have. For it is the general opinion among women that if the romantic, middle-aged husband ever existed he has perished along with the dodo, and there is no longer any such an animal.

So, instead of wondering what you shall do about this pet of yours and trying to devise ways and means of cramping his style and curing him of his pretty tricks, just thank heaven for your luck and keep him under lock and key so no predatory lady can steal him.

Women Hard to Please

But your problem shows how hard it is to ever please a woman. Apparently, she never knows what she wants, and when she gets what she thinks she wanted she finds it isn't what she desired after all.

For here you are complaining that your husband loves you too much, while millions of your sisters are beating on their breasts and wailing out that their husbands do not love them enough. They are starving for the little attentions that your husband lavishes on you, and you are fed up to the gills with them. Can you tie it?

All of which seems to go to prove that Nature knew best when she ordained that there should be a definite time for the honeymoon to set and for men and women to put aside after marriage the pretty cajoleries of courtship and get busy with the realities of life.

For it is true that we can get as satiated with sentiment as we can with lollypops, and no sensible human being wants to be perpetually kissed any more than one wants to live on ice cream.

After all, the finest compliment that husbands and wives pay each other is when they take each other for granted and prove their devotion by their acts instead of their words.

Mothers Deserve Holidays Also

Dear Dorothy Dix — Holidays! Thanksgiving holidays! Christmas holidays! Easter holidays! What pokes! Do you know that three-fourths of the schoolgirls would rather go to school than have a holiday? Why? Because our mothers think that on a holiday we should do their work. What are the housewives for, any way? We work just as hard as they do, slaving at our books, worrying over examinations, and we look forward to a holiday as a time to rest and forget all cares. But we find ourselves turned into servants. We don't think it fair. What is your opinion?

SOME TEEN-AGE GIRLS.

ANSWER—What about mother's holiday? Probably you have never thought of that because she has never had one since the day you were born. She has slaved for you all your life. She walked the colic with you when you were a baby. She nursed you when you were sick. She has cooked and washed and scrubbed for you. She has sat up nights making you the pretty dresses in which you have flaunted around at parties and picnics. There have been no holidays on mother's calendar.

Think of that a little bit before you begrudge washing the dishes, or making up the beds, or minding the baby for mother on your holiday. She isn't asking much of you. Just to lend a hand with the chores, so that, maybe, she can sit down for an hour and rest her tired feet.

Just to put your strong young shoulder under the family burden and make it a little lighter for her to bear. Maybe what she wants most of all is just to have the proof of your sympathy and understanding and love that you will give her by showing her that you are eager to help her.

She won't impose on you. She won't ask too much of you. You will find her in the pantry making up sandwiches for you to carry on your hiking party, or in the kitchen pressing out your "formal" to wear to the party, and she will be doing it with a song in her heart if you have given her a little holiday, too.

And some day you will have a home of your own and a husband and children to care for, and then how thankful you will be for all you learned when you helped mother with the housework.

When It's Time To "Take a Walk"

Dear Miss Dix—Will you please tell me how to release myself from a girl I have been going with for quite a while? I don't want to hurt her feelings, but it gets monotonous to travel around with the same person all the time. She doesn't want me even to look at any girl I dated before I met her, and my friends say she has trained me to do as she wants me to do. I am a poor boy. Her people have a few dollars, and my family thinks she can urge her people to pay me to join her church. I am 24. She is 20. What can I do?

FRANKLIN.

ANSWER — You seem to have about as much backbone as a fishing worm or else you would break away from the girl of your own accord. After all, you are not married to her, so you are free to get up and leave whenever you are good and ready, and there is nothing she can do to prevent it.

Certainly you will let yourself in for a lifetime of misery if you marry a girl of whom you are tired already and who has shown you how tyrannical and bossy she would be as a wife.

I don't think you need worry about anybody paying you money to change your religion. It isn't done.

TESTED RECIPES . . .

By MARY MOORE

One of the letters in the mail bag this morning took me back to my first week of married life. The writer was a bride and asked me sometime to please tell her through the cookery page how to broil two lamb chops—just two mind—but very thick because that was how "hubby" wanted them. When she broiled them she never could get them cooked through to the centre.

Broiled Lamb Chops

A one and one-half to two-inch chop requires from 20 to 35 minutes to cook it through—with broiler rack place about 2 inches from flame or electric grill. Wipe chops, remove superfluous fat. Place chops on broiler rack which has been rubbed with some of the lamb fat. Broil under electric grill or flame of gas oven or over live coals. In gas oven have chops 2 or 3 inches below moderate flame, sear both sides, lower flame and cook until done, turning occasionally. In electric grill chops may be a little closer, and do not turn after putting in until they have seared for 5 minutes, then turn and turn frequently afterwards. To see if they are done insert sharp knife close to bone where chop is thickest—it must be cooked throughout—lamb cannot be served underdone as your might serve a steak. Serve with hot mint sauce.

Makes Debut

Miss Patricia M. Hanrahan, who made her debut this season at the Debutantes' Ball, held at the Mount Royal Hotel, Montreal, Quebec. Patricia is the daughter of Mr. Edward J. Hanrahan and Mrs. Hanrahan, who before her marriage was Marion Gorman, both of whom are former residents of Peterborough, and still remembered among musical circles here. A 1939 graduate of Villa Marie Convent, Montreal, Patricia is a second-year student in Science at McGill University, and her ambition is to major in chemistry. She has many friends in Peterborough, having summered with her parents at Rice Lake for several seasons.

WE . . . NOTICED

....That however you are styling your hair now, when the first Spring days appear over the horizon you'll be cutting it short. According to the artists of waves and swirls, no one with a place to hold in the world of fashion will wear hear hair longer than five inches all over her head when she steps out in the Easter parade this Spring.

....The war is responsible for the short hair cut favored by the hair stylists this year. In England, where the majority of the girls are wearing service caps, and where there is little time to fuss with hair, short bobs have been found to be most becoming and also most easy to handle. This idea has spread to the United States and Canada.

....However, it must not be imagined that hair styles are plain and uninteresting because the bobs are short. The majority of the short bobs are shown with some sort of a pompadour effect in front, and that much attention is given to the back effects, where "blending" swirls are introduced effectively.

For Wednesday, March 19

JUDGING by the lunar transits this day may be expected to develop some rather adverse and trying situations. While there may be much initiative in putting over important objectives, yet there may be disintegrating and tricky conditions to cope with, possibly by methods of compromise or perhaps connivance. A similar state of affairs may obtain in the private, domestic, affectional or social life. Prudence and discretion are enjoined in all personal contacts.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a fairly lively and productive year with some new and important projects getting favorably under way. However, there may be difficult and frustrating situations to cope with, with treachery, fraud and subterfuge to handle with kindred shrewdness and intrigue. Private associations in domestic, social and affectional contacts also require tact, finesse, and possibly compromise.

A child born on this day may be energetic, enterprising and have fine constructive ability but may encounter many trying and treacherous conditions to test its stamina. A similar adverse condition may prevail in its intimate relations, calling for vigilance and discretion.

Softly Tailored Classics Popular

Softly tailored classics in sports dresses continue to be popular. Traditionally styled shirtwaists or coat models still prevail. In some cases, new treatments of the shoulder line have been adopted. Necklines attract attention. There is a slight preference for the casaual open-neck collar and there's a great deal of interest in the low-cut in V or square interpretations.

Pleats and pockets are a highlight. Skirts with a slim look boast easy motion, with all-round stitched pleats, cluster or kicks. The box pleat is good. Multiple pockets slot, stitched inlay or patch lend a lovely finishing touch. Prints with jackets are popular. So are crepes, in gold or print.

The dropped waistline is suggested now and then by a puffed gathered band around the hipline.

Uncle Sam Means Business

We quote:

"The British people and their Grecian Allies need ships. From America they will get ships."

"They need planes. From America they will get planes."

"They need food. From America they will get food."

"They need tanks and guns and ammunition and supplies of all kinds. From America they will get tanks and guns and ammunition and supplies of all kinds."

"You will feel the impact of this gigantic effort in your daily lives. You will feel it in a way that will cause you many inconveniences."

"You will have to be content with lower profits from business because obviously your taxes will be higher. This is no part-time job. The concepts of business as usual and normalcy must be forgotten until the task is finished."

There is something filling and satisfying and convincing in that Roosevelt utterance. It was more than a mere address; it was the plain enunciation of the articles of faith of the free people of the world.

It was just as applicable to Canada as to United States and the rest of the world. If this war is not won then nothing else matters.

Prime Minister Churchill long since has shown what great leadership can do for a nation. President Roosevelt gave an example of the same thing in his latest address. It was clear cut and emphatic. It was stronger in its wording and more definite in its appeal than anything which has yet been placed before the Canadian people.

For that reason there should be some plain speaking on behalf of this country and for this reason: During the debate at Washington on the aid to Britain measure there were critics who wanted to know if Canada was putting up anything in the way it was proposed United States should contribute. There did not seem to be a thorough understanding of the fact that Canada is financing its own war effort and paying its own soldiers, airmen and marines. We believe it would be advisable for the world situation to be officially reviewed as something supplementary to the Roosevelt address, and for the plain purpose of showing to the people of United States that the North American continent is bound together in the same spirit of sacrifice.

Your Uncle Sam is not bluffing. Neither are the people of the British empire. Nor are the Greeks.

The World's Greatest Bluff

"A criminal indifference to the sacrifice of their men." That is the charge made against Mussolini, against the secretary of the Fascist party and chief of the Blackshirt army who accompanied Mussolini to Albania.

Mussolini spent the best part of a week on the Albanian war front, and his purpose was to do something to stop the success of the Greeks. The people at home were dissatisfied with lack of progress, and Mussolini himself could have found no pleasure in the hammering being inflicted on his troops.

He ordered that something be done by Saturday, March 15, and the events of the days preceding and occurring on that date are now being discussed by correspondents on that war front.

The forces engaged were 120,000 men, and losses are reported to have mounted to 40 per cent. of that number. One can even discount that figure and still have a staggering total of dead men.

We read that where Mussolini ordered that counter-charges be undertaken there was no chance of success. The positions held by the Greeks were such that they could not be dislodged. The claim is that a general who had any regard for the lives of his men would never have ordered such a movement because every known law of strategy was against it.

And after bringing about those staggering losses Mussolini went back to Rome.

The great man who concluded that because he smashed the natives of Ethiopia he must be a military genius.

The great man who went across and rooted the ruler from the little land of Albania and came to the conclusion that he was powerful.

The great man who finally ventured near the front of battle and applied the stupidity of his own weak mind to the business of driving his warriors to unheard-of risks, only to have them mowed down as grain before the reaper.

Has the world ever witnessed a greater spectacle of a great bluffer being laid bare before his own people? He should have walked in sackcloth and ashes and by a back street on his way home.

Mr. Parker Has An Idea

The Examiner has received a letter from Andrew Parker, of Valjean, Sask. Mr. Parker is a general merchant (phone 10-R2) and according to his stationery he is also a Notary Public. At the moment he has an idea which seems good to him, and he is passing it on widely. He says in his letter he is sending copies to all the principal papers from Victoria to P.E.I., to service clubs, associations and social organizations. When a great body of public opinion has been created Mr. Parker anticipates that members of Parliament will find it well to pay attention and his plan will then become operative.

Mr. Parker of Valjean believes we should have a lottery for the raising of war funds. Tickets would be sold at the 14,000 post-offices in Canada and there would be no commission on sales. Each month there would be a draw. On the basis of a million dollar sweepstake there would be awards of approximately half a million dollars, but these would be paid in government securities, so it is argued that the government would be getting all the money.

Our belief is that Mr. Andrew Parker of Valjean, Sask. (phone 10-R2) should do a little more thinking. If each month there were awards of half a million dollars from a lottery plan paid out in Government bonds or securities, would not that be piling up the obligation which the Government would eventually have to meet?

One important matter is overlooked, and that is the fact that the Government has the power to compel revenue. Another is that the people of this Dominion are also coming along quite well in the serious business of handing over their money. They are not in the mood at the moment to consider this war from the standpoint of needing a lottery to support it. If Mr. Parker desires to think of large amounts then he might consider that everything we have is at stake in this war—our homes, factories, our jobs and our future, including the business of Mr. Parker of Valjean, Sask. (phone 10-R2). Mr. Parker admits his letter of explanation is long, but requests that it be published. We think not.

The Ontario Surplus

Premier Hepburn announced in the Legislature that he had gone through the year and ended with a surplus of more than $12,000,000. On the heels of that announcement came the remark from Leopold Macaulay, financial critic for the Conservatives, that he would proceed to prick that bubble.

It often enough seems to come that way. The business of the financial critic of the party in opposition is to show that a surplus claimed by the Government is actually not a surplus at all. And that in turn causes one to question if the method of bookkeeping is as direct and simple and apparent as it should be. If a bank or industrial corporation issues a statement covering the year's work it is accepted as being a true statement. It is audited and certified and that ends it. Our belief is that government financing should be done the same way.

Hearing of a surplus is good news, but a surplus of $12,000,000 in a year when there is such pressure placed upon the taxpayers is almost too good because it indicates that the Government is actually taking in more money than is needed to pay the bills, and right now and for a long time to come the Federal Government should have first call on the paying ability of the people of the Dominion.

A Cow Called Dewdrop

Dewdrop Johanna Changeling is admittedly quite a name to bestow upon a cow, and we doubt whether that full name is used by the individual who takes the milking stool and pail and proceeds to attend to business

But this cow with the remarkable name, owned by Douglas Hart of Woodstock, is quite out of the run of ordinary cows. There is nothing of the garden variety about her. In eight lactation periods (which would be quite close to eight years) she has produced 176,590 pounds of milk, and 6,176 pounds of butter fat in strictly twice-a-day milking. Rounding out the ninth year there was 26,231 pounds of milk and 868 pounds butter fat, and that would mean about 1,085 pounds of butter.

We have heard farmers say they cannot afford to go in for cows of this grade, as the stock costs too much, but there is actually a tremendous difference between the output of such a cow with 26,231 pounds of milk in a year, and many of the cows which are not doing over 5,000 in a year. We dare say there are a good many places in the country where they do not know exactly what is being received from a cow during any stated period.

That Woodstock cow is credited with being the highest all-time producer in the Dominion. That may be why she is entitled to wear such a name as Dewdrop Johanna Changeling, even if she seldom gets it in every-day usage.

32 Years In Prison

Edward Herr, who at times refers to himself as Hess, is nearing the mark of three score years and ten, and St. Thomas appears to be his home when he is away from the penitentiary at Kingston. In all he has spent 32 years in confinement. He is going to Kingston for another two years, as the result of three burglary charges which netted him a purse of old coins, and an antiquated pen and pencil.

Edward Herr started out as an average young man; he used to play ball with a team in London, and then turned toward the building trades. He has always done the same thing when he turns toward crime—he steals. The chief of police in St. Thomas says he can take one look at a job and tell whether Herr did it, after which it is merely a case of going and bringing him in.

Undoubtedly it was such cases which caused sections of the United States to declare a man a permanent offender with his fourth conviction, and that carried with it a life sentence. Edward Herr may be what is known as quite a character, but he is at the same time a plain nuisance.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The King of Italy may be thinking much these days, but as usual he is saying little.

Papers in Rome announce that United States has actually entered the war. And that is something which one would find it difficult to say about Italy.

In one week there were 23 strikes reported in U.S. plants handlnig war orders. It would be interesting to know why they are all coming to a head just now.

There are new regulations which call for no left turns on some of Hamilton's streets. But it's a trifle awkward getting any place by just going in a straight line.

Car salesman in Guelph was sent to jail for 15 days for drunk driving. He may know how to sell them, but he certainly knows little enough about when not to drive 'em.

There was a stabbing case three months ago, and a tobacco grower of East Elgin has been deported as a result. We have plenty of bad habits of our own, but stabbing is something which does not belong here, and the same goes for the stabbers.

Reports have been current that color blindness does not bar an individual from active service in the air force. But that is not so. There was a color-blind passenger in a U.S. plane who said he could readily detect camouflaged gun emplacements, but it turned out that he had previously worked on the emplacements which he afterward detected. There are a number of otherwise fit young men who have been turned aside because of color blindness.

HOBO MAN

¶ My Hobo Man called in today, he's been for several months away, been working for a bit; and he is looking brown and strong, his flabby fat has almost gone, in fact he seems quite fit.

¶ His middle used to seem too large, much like a floating river barge, his jaw was much too fat; but he's been taking exercise, at six each day he has to rise, and he looks trim and flat.

¶ And there was calous on his hand, at first 'twas hard to understand, he used to be so soft; I used to tell him he should toil, and gouge great holes into the soil, at that he used to scoff.

¶ He'd bummed for years, he told me so, and reckoned he'd keep on the go, he roamed lands far away; he used to tell me when he came, cross farm dogs chased him down the lane, he had no place to stay.

¶ He didn't want a meal this time, just stopped a bit to rest his spine, he had no tales to spin; he says he's fit as anything, looks on to happy days of spring, I'm rather proud of him.

¶ He thinks yet of the open road, he travelled light without a load, of such perhaps he dreams; but he's got three good meals a day, a goodly place at night to stay—some money in his jeans.

CAP and BELLS . .

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

YESTERADY was Saint Patrick's Day and I suppose that most of us were conscious of the fact. In a country so conglomerate as Canada these national days of celebration have a significance which we cannot overlook, a significance greater, in some ways, than they enjoy in the lands from which they come. It is as though, on Saint Patrick's, or Saint Andrew's, or Saint David's, a part of the population suddenly stood apart and said: "Look at us; we are good Canadians for 364 days in the year, but upon this special day we choose to remind ourselves, and you, of our homeland, the land of our fathers." I think that this is a very fine thing and I hope the day never comes when we in Canada neglect the Saint's Days of the British Islands.

C & B

Unfortunately, to many people the very word "Saint" has a denominational significance which makes them reject it. I think that this is a great pity, for as I said in this column some weeks ago the lives of the saints make extremely interesting reading, though not always quite in the way that the writers intend. And the British Saints, George, Patrick, Andrew and David, are no longer so much religious as national figures. Like Britannia, or the Lion and the Unicorn, they are a part of our national paraphernalia and we should all know something about them. How many of us know anything about Saint Patrick?

C & B

Of course, saints by their very nature are legendary people, and their lives are generally cloaked in mystery. Authorities refuse to agree about the birthplace of Patrick, though they are all confident that he was not an Irishman. One says that he was born toward the end of the fourth century at Killpatrick, which is between Dunbriton and Glasgow. The Welsh historians, on the contrary, say that he was born at Aberilychwr in Pembrokeshire, and was the principal of the college of llityd until he was guided by God to convert the Irish; he sailed to Ireland on a millstone. A great-uncle of mine, a profound rationalist, was convinced that this millstone was a piece of volcanic pumice, of a sort found in that district; being light, it would float. He was never able to gain any general acceptance of his idea.

C & B

A more sober account of Patrick's history says that when he was a boy he was captured by Irish pirates and was forced to spend six months in Ireland as a cattle herd before he escaped to his home. He became a priest and travelled through Europe to Italy, where he was charged by Pope Celestine to return to Ireland and to convert the natives. At first he encountered great difficulties among the wild and savage people, and it is with this part of his life that the familiar story of the shamrock is associated. The shamrock was used as a magic herb by the Druids and thus was a familiar and venerated object to the Irish. When Patrick landed near Wicklow in 433 he attempted to preach to the inhabitants and to explain to them the doctrine of God as a Trinity in a Unity, the Three in One. This baffled the Irish as it has done many people since, until Patrick plucked up a trefoil from the ground and said: 'Is it not as possible for the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, as for these leaves, to grow upon a single stalk?" It is for this reason that the shamrock has become a significant symbol in Ireland.

C & B

PATRICK'S most famous miracle was that in which he banished the snakes from Ireland. Like most saints, he began his career as a miracle worker early in life. It is recorded that as a child he was once requested to gather fuel; he returned shortly with a few pieces of ice. His nurse chided him, saying that wood would have been a wiser choice, whereupon Patrick placed the ice in a heap, prayed over it, and presently it broke out into flame. This seems a rather ostentatious use of his power, but it must be remembered that he was only a child at the time, and probably had not yet awakened to a full sense of his responsibilities. But to return to the snakes. Patrick banished not only these, but all venomous reptiles, insects and beasts from his adopted land, so that even the wood grown there had power against them. King's College, in Cambridge, is built of Irish wood, and it is claimed that to this day no spider has ever been found in the building. Patrick died at Down in Ulster in the year 464, on March 17th, the day we reserve to his memory.

C & B

The miracle ascribed to Patrick are many, and some of them sound as though the Saint made a rather arbitrary use of his power. He sailed upstream without a wind, fed 14,000 men from the flesh of five animals, made fires burn cold and did other amazing but harmless things. But he was also given to striking stiff those who contradicted him, and once he cursed a river so that it never after produced fish. It is also recorded that once, when Patrick was crossing a river, one of his teeth fell out; his disciples sought for it diligently, but could not find it until night, when it shone from the river bed, says the chronicle, "as a radiant star." So impressed were all present, including the Saint himself, that they built a church hard by, and placed the tooth beneath the altar.

C & B

So great is the eminence of Patrick that we usually forget that this is also the day of Saint Joseph of Arimathea, he who loaned his tomb to the followers of Christ for the burial after the Crucifixion. Joseph also brought the Holy Grail, the cup from which Christ drank at the Last Supper, to England, and placed it in the first Christian church ever to be built, that humble erection "of wattle and daub" which he built at Glastonbury. Joseph planted his staff at Glastonbury, and it blossomed on Christmas Day, and, strange to say, it blossoms on Christmas Day still. I have seen the Holy Thorn of Glastonbury myself, but not at the proper season, though I have been assured by persons of unimpeachable honesty that the plant really does blossom at Christmas. The present thorn is not the original, but a cutting from it. The original was cut down by Cromwell's army during the Civil Wars.

Letters To The Editor

There is a little pile of letters on one corner of the desk and it keeps on growing. The letters come from people who do not sign their names, and unless we know who wrote a letter we are not going to print that letter.

It is not necessary to print the name: the writer can use a pen name if desired, but the paper must know with whom it is dealing.

We have tried every known way to try and make the thing plain, but still they come without names attached, and that is why the little pile on the corner of the desk is beginning to show evidence of increasing stature.—Ed. Examiner.

TWO SEPARATE PEOPLES

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—My attention has been drawn to a letter which appeared in your issue of March 7 under the caption, "Theory a Human Invention" and over the signature of one C. E. Tatham. I do not know your correspondent, nor have I ever heard him preach, but I do know for a certainty he is complaining about something he knows very little of, judging by the statements in his reply to the London letter of Mr. Upthgrove. To begin with your correspondent has made the same mistake so many others have made in their attempts to destroy the teachings of British Israel. They persist in using the terms Israel and Judah and applying them as having reference to one and the same people. Mr. Editor, I submit this is indeed the result of the "blindness in part" and is certainly of human origin or invention. This misuse of these terms has brought about the confusion we find in the ranks of professing teachers and believers and has resulted in the complete disbelief of all religious teachings by many people.

This is due to the fact that these teachers have failed to consider the distinction between Israel and Judah, one of the greatest historical facts of the Old Testament. The story is to be found in 1st Kings 12 chapter. When we read that the twelve tribes were divided into two separate houses or kingdoms, now known as the northern kingdom of Israel 10 tribes, and the southern kingdom of Judah two tribes, and in verse 24 we read, God says, "This thing (the division) is from Me." The Bible clearly distinguishes between Israel and Judah, between the house of Israel and the house of Judah from that time forward and we can only understand the Bible story by noting this clear division between the two nations.

God Himself says "My word shall not return unto the void." Nor will He alter the word that has gone out of His mouth. The Jews know they are of Judah and they pray for the return of their 10 tribed brethern, whom many Jews recognize today as their Anglo-Saxon protectors. Time and space do not permit me to treat this phase of the matter further, suffice it to say there are many quotations of scripture too innumerable to mention which prove the division to be of divine origin.

The belief is held by many teachers that at the time of Ezra and Nehemiah all that was left of the twelve tribes after the captivities returned to Palestine and became the nation of the Jews. This is entirely wrong, and is not according to scripture, as the Bible tells us. Those who returned from the Babylonish captivity were of the house of Judah, the house of Israel being still in Assyria "unto this day." The history of the Jewish people is well known, and needs no comment here, certainly they have suffered divine disfavor, but then that is as it was foretold. The time of their restoration is at hand, as is also the case with the house of Israel. Hence we have the prophet Ezekiel's word for it as contained in chapter 37: 16-28.

The history of the house of Israel since their captivity is such that surely no one with an open mind and his eyes open could fail to see the connection between the nation and company of nations and the Bible. To say that the promises made to Israel have not yet been fulfilled is not true and further proves that your correspondent does not agree with the inspired men of God who spoke as they were moved by the Holy Ghost, see 2 Peter 1: 19, 21.

The matter of squeezing the British and American peoples into the land of Palestine would indeed be a major rehabilitation problem, but the Bible tells us no such thing, and certainly not British Israel.

The British Israelites believe the Bible to be the inspired word of God. It is the revelation of the divine will and purpose and it presents God's great plan for the development redemption and restoration of mankind. If we allow the critics to shake our faith in the covenants made with the patriarchs how are we to depend upon the word of God in the gospels and the epistles? Our faith in the Bible message of the love of God and the story of the redemption demands that the word of God spoken to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob is also true and stands as firm today as of old unbroken and unbreakable.

In closing may I suggest to Mr. Tatham in all kindness that he give a little more time and that he examine more carefully the case for British Israel. Let him remember there are many in our ranks today who held similar views to his own until by the grace of God and honest investigation finally accepted British Israel truth. We believe God's word is final and is not subject to debate.

BONUS TO FARMERS

Editor Examiner:

Sir.—Behind the proposal to bonus certain farm products is the implied admission that the farmer has not had a square deal, that he suffers from some form of social injustice, which is the truth. The farmer demands justice, not charity. Instead of doing the obvious, removal of that injustice, it is proposed to create another one by money grants from the taxpayer's pocket, involving the whole community, so we shall have a double dose of injustice, making the condition of agriculture worse instead of better.

Such a plan has nothing to commend it being neither common sense nor good business leaving, as it does, the primary injustice unrectified. It is the most stupid, costly and futile proposal to aid agriculture possibly to imagine. Why not remove the primary injustice, then there would be no need for a bonus. Have we no statesmen in Canada? Is the breed extinct?

COMPOSITION

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The young lady whose composition this is, is a student in our local Collegiate. I believe this is a very good composition coming from a 15-year-old Peterborough student.

DISCHARGED SOLDIER.

LEISURE—Angeline DeCarlo, 10a Com.

When a circus comes to town, it is only natural for us to make the best of our leisure by enjoying ourselves there; but in war time, our thoughts are cast abroad, and we wonder what we can do to help our young Canadian soldiers, who, are fighting so fiercely for freedom.

First we may think of our sewing and knitting, and we say to ourselves, "Could we make them some clothing?" and "Where can we find the time?" Oh yes! There is plenty of time; what about our leisure, the time unoccupied each day. It may be only ten or fifteen minutes, but it soon adds up, and our sewing or knitting would quickly grow.

So whatever you do try to be of service, after all this is our war as well as anybody else's; and, when we win, as we surely will, that dear little Island across the ocean, shall be permanently made "Mistress of the air, land and sea."

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Now Naaman, captain of the host of the king of Syria, was a great man with his master, and honourable, because by him the Lord had given deliverance unto Syria: he was also a mighty man in valour, but he was a leper. And the Syrians had gone out by companies, and had brought away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid: and she waited on Naaman's wife. And she said unto her mistress, Would God my lord were with the prophet that is in Samaria! for he would recover him of his leprosy.

So Naaman came with his horses and with his chariot, and stood at the door of the house of Elisha. And Elisha sent a messenger unto him, saying, Go and wash in Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again in thee, and thou shalt be clean.

Japanese Are Termed Nazis Of East

A gathering in the parish hall of St. John's Church on Monday night was told of the significance of the Japanese moves in the far east and their connection with the affairs in the Western Hemisphere by Mrs. John Davidson, lecturer and traveller. Mrs. Davidson is no stranger to the parish she visited as she is a daughter-in-law to Archbishop Davidson, one-time rector of St. John's Churhch. Braving the fury of the storm, she motored from Toronto to speak to her audience which was waiting when she arrived.

In speaking of the far Eastern struggle as part of the "battle of the world," Mrs. Davidson told of the semblance of the Japanese to the Germans, and termed them the 'Germans of the East.' In many ways the Japanese people are like the Germans Mrs. Davidson said, their ability to bow to authority, their observance of system order and subservience are not factors unfamiliar to those in contact with the Hitler regime.

New Order In Mind.

It becomes rather clear to the observer that Japan has a new order in mind as certainly as has Germany, and the Asiatic axis asked for by her may result in a war between Nipon and the United States. This "axis" was proposed recently by Japan to Australia, and its significance has not yet been fully felt.

With Foreign Minister Matsuoko in Berlin at the present time, the speaker felt that the entire position might take on a clarity when the meaning of the change of government became known; April 3 has been spoken of as a date in this connection.

The implication of the Japanese situation at the present time is such that significance is found in the indivisability of the matters existing between China, Britain and the United States, the speaker said, and she termed the Japanese army group "devilish."

Wil Risk a War.

When asked, after her lecture, if she thought Japan would really risk a war to the finish involving the powers of both Britain and the United States Mrs. Davidson said that she did. In this matter she was in harmony with statements made recently in Peterborough by Dr. A. J. Bruce, who said that the present rulers of Japan would willingly risk a war with the other mentioned powers if the reward would seem great enough were victory achieved. Mrs. Davidson said that the temperament of the ruling class in Japan is such that they would not be inclined to regard improbabilities as being impossibilities, and for this reason, their optimism in considering the weights of the various factors present, are dangerous.

U. S. Navy's "Super" Dive-Bomber

Finally unveiled is the navy's new 'super' dive bomber, claimed to be the best in the world, shown here in flight. Built by the Curtiss-Wright Aircraft Corporation at its Buffalo, N.Y., plant, the two-place all-metal craft is known as the XSB2C-1. It is powered by a 1,700-horsepower Wright Cyclone engine and is said to be faster and have greater range and striking power than any of its rivals. It is built to operate from the deck of an aircraft carrier and carries its bombs in a bay within the fuselage rather than under its belly or wings. This reduces the 'drag' and allows greater speed and fuel economy.

With The Boy Scouts

We are glad to say that the scout craft show will be held in the old Bank of Montreal office on George street. The office has been acquired with the kind permission of C. S. Cummer, manager of the Bank of Montreal and will be open to receive exhibits on Thursday, April 17, and open to the general public on Friday and Saturday, April 18 and 19. Just four weeks away. Are you preparing for the event. We hope to make it the best yet. We need your help and co-operation.

Entry Forms.

On Tuesday of this week a cub leaders' training course will start. The meetings will be held in the association headquarters at 7.30 p.m. All cub officers are requested to attend this course. The only equipment needed is a note book and pencil.

A special award will be made to the winners, and the posters will be displayed in the windows of the building where we will have our display. These posters must be in the hands of Skipper Groombridge by Saturday, April 12.

Patrol Leaders, Attention.

A patrol leaders' conference is being planned for the week of the Eastern holidays; the official days have not yet been stated, but the first meeting will be held in St. James'; the second in the Salvation Army headquarters; the final one at St. Luke's. This gives everyone a chance to attend all three meetings. Ask your scouter for full details. A novel court of honor will be formed during the conference and will consist of one patrol leader from each troop in the city.

We understand there will be a banquet at the final meeting. Make arrangements now to attend these meetings.

Patrol Leaders' Conference at Port Hope

An invitation has been received from Port Hope for some Peterborough leaders to attend a conference on March 29 in that town. It is hoped that one patrol leader from each group can arrange to attend. Anyone desiring to go please get in touch with Assistant Commissioner L. A. Grant and transportation will be arranged. As this is only a few days away I would urge that immediate action be taken. Don't forget the date: March 29.

With the 11th, North-Enders

A Parents' Night of the 11th Peterborough troop is being arranged for Friday next, March 21, at 7.30 p.m. All parents urged to reserve that night to be with their boys. A special speaker is being arranged for that night.

St. John's (Anglican).

The Troop.—After flag-break and inspection two cubs joined the troop through the medium of a the coming-up ceremony. John Greatrix and Murray Paterson were accompanied on their way by Akela after saying adieu to their brother cubs. Scouter gave them a warm welcome and introduced the new scouts to their patrol leads.

Instruction was given by the following leaders: G. Green, signalling; K. Marshall, tenderfoot tests; K. Brown, knots; scouter, mapping; Frank Blackburn passed his second class signalling. Stick relay, jumping relay and Poison Well were among the games played.

The Crew.—All members of the crew are reminded that the meeting of the crew will be held on Thursday of this week in the den, and don't forget to bring some wood along with you.

The Pack.—After the opening ceremony uniform inspection was held. The pack said farewell to Cubs Murray Paterson and John Greatrix, who went to join the troop and continue their scout training.

Akela Frank Pammett paid the pack a visit. Jimmy Blaiklock and Jack Gray were promoted to the rank of sixers of the Red and Grey sixes respectively, whilst Roger Hendren was made seconder of the Red Six. The following instruction was given: Skipping by Raksha; ball throwing by Kim; tenderpad by Baloo; signalling by A.D.C. L. A. Grant. Many tests were passed.

2nd Armour (St. Luke's Anglican)

The Pack.—New sixers' boxes had been completed and presented to the sixers this week. Scouts Donald Little and Sheldon Smith were on hand to give assistance in the instruction work. A game of "Roundabout" was played. Bob McRae passed skipping; Dori McKay, skipping and cleanliness; Rudolph Pollock, cleanliness and time; Russel Andrews., compass, and Billy Davis, somersault. The first three boys have now completed their first star work.

All Saints' (Anglican).

The Pack.—Two new leaders have been added to the strength of the pack, Miss Peggy Houghton, who is the new Bagheera; Miss Barbara Meiklejohn, Baloo. We wish the new leaders, Happy Hunting.

Murray Street (Baptist).

The Pack.—Following inspection, the game of Circle Four put some real fun into the pack, and one or two stunts followed.

Baloo instructed in knotting. Bagheera taking signalling; Akela Frank Pammett and Akela Quirt McKinney visited the pack during the evening. The White six were again winners of the six competition and received the pennant and some jelly beans. Frank Wynne and Leslie McDougall having recently completed their tests, were presented with their first star; Leslie also receiving his second stripe.

Paul Cowan, a former Toronto cub, has joined the pack and renewed his promise before Akela and the pack. Scouter Albert Watkins passed following boys in first aid, for their first aider badge: Jack Sutcliffe, Donald Grant, Robert Pelty, Ronald Beals, Trevor Davis, Jack Pollock, Paul Cowan and Keith Borland. These eight boys have been studying first aid as a special class for some time.

Sacred Heart (Roman Catholic).

The Pack.—A real busy evening was spent in the jungle; Baloo giving skipping instruction; Bagheera, signalling; Akela, time, knots and new chums. The following tests were passed: skipping, Harold O'Rourke, Donald Moher; time, George Drumm, Bobby Woodhouse, Bernard Monaghan; knots, Carl Heath, Jack Kennelly; folding clothes, G. Drumm, B. Monaghan, C. Heath, B. Woodhouse. Awards of merit were also presented by Akela for the cub craft runners-up.

Next Thursday the cubs will have a St. Patrick party, an award for good conduct at special services.

The Troop.—A little reshuffling took place at the recent meeting, when Frank Lucano and Frank Gosselin were promoted to patrol leaders of the Fox and Bulldog patrols respectively. Joe Hoey and Bill McAuliff passed their signalling tests. On Saturday several boys went hiking out Nashua way, and built fires on the snow and to prove their ability Jim Daley and David Jones passed their cooking tests.

The Eagle patrol came through to win the pennant for the second time, and it looks as if they will fly away with the scouter's cup unless the Foxes and Bulldogs perk up a bit and get down to business.

A paper collection is in progress. Each boy being requested to gather up 300 lbs. of paper. The dead line for this and second class tests is drawing closer all the time. So get busy, boys.

George Street (United)

The parents and friends of John Outram, Cecil Morrow and Kenneth Heard were present to witness the investiture ceremony, during which those boys became fullfledged Wolf Cubs in the great brotherhood of scouts. During the ceremony, Elwin Wright renewed his promise as a wolf cub. Akela Marshall presented the boys for their investiture, and also presented the boys with their neckerchiefs and caps, whilt Rakesha presented the lapel buttons.

Games of leap frog, skin the snake, and dog and bone were enjoyed by all during camp fire. Many boys had to imitate a kitten lapping up milk. This caused lots of fun. Kim's game was also played.

Good hunting to our new cubs.

—The Skipper.

Two Pioneer Women Celebrated Their 96th and 91st Birthdays

WARKWORTH, March 18—(ENS) Mrs. Thomas Dennis, Percy Township's oldest resident, observed her ninety-sixth birthday on Sunday. She is a daughter of the late James Henry Houghtalling and Harriet Owens and was born in Prince Edward County, March 16, 1845. At the early age of six weeks she came with her parents to Percy Township. After her father had cleared land to build, they moved to Alnwick township, the farm is now owned by Mr. William Houghtailing and is situated along the Cobourg highway from Hastings.

In 1874 she went to Sarnia and married Thomas Dennis of Seymour Township. They lived for about a year in the state of Michigan after which they came back to Alnwick Township, later they went to Toronto where Mr. Dennis passed away in 1919. Following his death she came to Percy Township.

Three Left Of Family of Eleven

Mrs. Dennis and her only surviving sister, Mrs. Isaac Cornelius who is eighty-eight, live happily together about a mile from this village. The only other surviving member of a family of eleven is a brother, Ezra Houghtailing, Cobourg. She has one son, William, of Toronto, five grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

She recalls the days when she was a weaver and spinner and of making clothing from the cloth she had woven and of the dangerous times before the land was cleared when the country was infested with wolves and many other interesting stories of days gone by.

Used Crutches

For about eight years she has had to go around on crutches owing to a broken hip, but for all that she is bright and cheery.

With all the beautiful crocheting, knitting of socks and the writing of weekly letters and reading, she seldom wears glasses. Although her hearing is affected she enjoys good health and hopes to reach her hundredth birthday.

To a lover of the past it is a delightful place to visit for in her home are many interesting relics, each with a story.

On the occasion of her birthday, she has had congratulations from her many friends who wish for her many more happy birthdays.

A direct descendant of the Girouxs who came from France and settled at Valleyfield, Que., she is the oldest daughter of the late Timothy Giroux nd Virginia Langevin and was born March 17, 1850. When she was only six months of age her parents went to Peterborough, where her father's people managed a lumbering business but after a few months they moved to Norham, where her father operated a hotel for forty years.

After her marriage in 1868 to Wallace Dingman she lived on a farm in Percy township until twenty-eight years ago. Since then she has lived in Warkworth. Her husband passed away in 1920.

In Good Health.

Mrs. Dingman, who is in the best of health, is able to do all her household duties. She is a Roman Catholic and is a most devoted member of St. Jerome's Catholic church. She is one of a family of twelve and she believes seven of that number to be still living. A sister, Mrs. Ellen Craig who had been living for some time in Belgium with her daughter, had a trying experience when she and her daughter were among those who escaped from that country at the beginning of the war. They came to Brighton.

Mrs. Dingman is the mother of eight children, three of whom are deceased. Those living are: William and James of Warkworth; Mrs. Catharine Kelly, Cramahe township; Mrs. William Lawlor, Guelph, and Mrs. Agnes Macoun, Toronto.

Ontario House Seeks Better Deal For Widows

TORONTO, March 18 — (CP). — Leopold Macaulay, financial critic for the Conservatives, opens the budget debate in the Ontario Legislature today. The discussion is expected to be lengthy, as more than a dozen Liberal members have expressed a desire to participate.

A precedent was established in the Legislature yesterday when Senator Claude Pepper of Florida addressed the members from the floor of the chamber and told them United States would not "run out again on the world" after the war is over. Later a recess was called to permit the Senator and Mrs. Pepper to meet the members personally.

Strong support of the belief that a widow of a man dying without a will should be well taken care of came from several members during debate in committee of the whole on a bill to amend the Devolution Estates Act.

The amendment, sponsored by Attorney-General Gordon Conant, would give the widow priority rights on the first $5.000 of her husband's estate. If the estate was valued at $50,000, two thirds of the remaining $45,000 would go to the widow and the residue to the next-of-kin. If the estate was valued at more than $50,000 the widow would get half.

As the Act now stands, the widow is given the first $1,000 and one-half the remainder. When the amendment was first introduced this was made to read the first $1,000 and two-thirds of the balance. A further amendment providing for the larger amount was made upon the suggestion of Conservative members.

Other Proposals

William Duckworth (Con. Toronto Dovercourt) claimed the widow should have all the estate if it was worth $50,000 or less Leslie Frost (Con. Victoria) said that in cases where there was a widow and children, the widow should get the first $50,000 on the understanding she would care for the children. If the estate was worth $25,000, two-thirds should go to the wife and one-third to the children.

John Glass (Lib. Toronto St. Andrew) concurred with Mr. Frost's suggestion.

Mr. Conant demurred about changing the act to bring in the children specifically. He said there were too many complications. It was decided to allow the Bill to stand to permit reprinting with Mr. Conant's latest amendment.

Among the bills given first reading was one to provide for women serving as jurors. It would be left to the presiding judge to determine whether all-women juries should be chosen or whether to excuse women by reason of the nature of the evidence.

Conservative Leader Col. George Drew entered the debate on the Estates Act with a suggestion that the bill be allowed to stand over because in cases where the law was of such long standing, there might be an effect which was not immediately apparent.

Mr. Conant said he was sure there was not the remotest possibility of any adverse effect.

The bill respecting mixed juries exempts registered nurses and members of women's religious orders living in convents from serving as jurors. Also free from being summoned for duty are wives of magistrates, sheriffs, coroners, constables and other court officials.

It will be left to the presiding judge's discretion as to whether an all-women jury should be chosen or whether to excuse women by reason of the nature of the evidence.

MILK BATH BRINGS PROTEST

When milk was rationed in Nottingham, England, a resident protested that he had seen a picture of a film star having a bath in it and wanted to know if that was where the fluid was going.

President Calls For "Total Victory"

Calling for "total victory" over the dictators, President Roosevelt told the world in a speech at the White House Correspondents' annual dinner, that the United States would not be stopped by any threats from giving all-out aid to the democracies in their battle against the Axis powers.

Pre-Fabricated House Can Be Erected In Nine Hours

Local building contractors lean to the opinion that pre-fabricated houses, which are to be built under government contracts will scarcely be necessary in this city, because the number of prospective homes for this spring, being built for local people should do much to alleviate any housing shortage.

The Dominion Housing Commission which has been investigating ways and means of avoiding a housing shortage which is expected in the Spring when war industries will be in full blast, are apparently satisfied that a pre-fabricated house might be the answer to the problem.

Will Not Be Sold

The houses are to be erected in centres where there are large wartime projects underway and where there is a marked housing shortage. The houses will not be sold but will be torn down after the war.

D. Kemp Edwards Company of Ottawa, along with several other contractors, constructed one of the houses according to plan, so that Housing Commissioners and other government heads might see the actual dwelling.

The house is a one-storey affair with no basement nor verandah. It measures 24 x 24 and the height of the walls are 8 feet. It is constructed of built up panels, four feet wide and eight feet long. There is a furnace room on the ground floor, with a hot water heating system. The roof is shingled. In Ottawa the sample house was put together in nine hours by a large gang of workmen.

Will Call Tenders

Plans for this type of house are in the process of completion and tenders will be called by the government in the near future. The houses will be erected in places such as Halifax, Nobel, Pickering, Hamilton and others.

As plans are not complete the exact layout is not known but it is generally accepted that the house will have five rooms, two bedrooms and bathroom, a living room and a kitchen.

The house is still an experiment, many changes will be introduced before the final decision is given. In the model house at Ottawa the walls were built of four foot sections, and the floor as well. The upper and lower plates are dadoed out to accommodate the sections, which are built on sixteen inch centres.

One of the first problems on this type of house is to find a manufacturer with a plant large enough to turn out the out material in quantity, and if any manufacturer accepts a contract he will find it necessary to construct jigs and forms to insure uniformity of all sections.

In short it is a wholesale manufacturing proposition and as the Peterborough Lumber Company has one of the largest planing mills in the province, equipped to undertake this work, it is likely the local company will tender on the houses when the opportunity comes.

Havelock Ladies Have Busy War Work Meet

HAVELOCK, March 18.—(ENS)—The Havelock Belmont Red Cross Society met on Monday afternoon in the council chamber with 25 in attendance and the president, Mrs. A. McLauchlin presiding. The afternoon was spent in quilting two quilts, with the surgical department busy making bandages. Afternoon tea was served around 4 o'clock.

At 4:30 o'clock work was stopped and all repeated the war prayer. A letter from head office was read, suggesting the many thing that were needed in clothing for children. Moved by Mrs. Easterbrook and Mrs. McCutcheon that the secretary write a reply to this letter stating that the Havelock Red Cross will do their utmost to make as many things as possible, also asking that patterns be sent for to make garments. The cutting committee were advised to send for the material at once, and in the meantime can fill in the order for more pyjamas. The following donations were received this week: Quilt tops donated by Mrs. Robert McCutcheon, Grade VIII, in Havelock Public School, Mrs. Hunter and Miss Chambers; two batts were donated by Mrs. Diaper; a girl's skirt and patches donated by Mrs. Gardner and children's sockees by Miss Chambers. Moved by Mrs. Spencer and Miss Wright that thanks be extended for the many contributions received this week. It was reported that all finished garments had been shipped to head office in Toronto, also a balance in the bank of $117.81.

Moved by Mrs. L. Sanderson and Miss Mary Seeney that all accounts, amounting to $7.23 be paid.

The president asked that everyone keep in mind the amateur contest, to take place April 4 under the auspices of the social committee of the Red Cross Society.

Mother Not to Blame for the Children's Colds

Despite all the mother can do the kiddies will run out of doors not properly wrapped up; have on too much clothing; get overheated and cool off too suddenly; get their feet wet; kick off the bed clothes, and do a dozen things the mother cannot help.

Half the battle in treating children's colds is to give them something they will like; something they will take without any fuss, and this the mother will find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, a remedy used by Canadian mothers, for the past 48 years.

Y.M.C.A. Ladies Extend Winning Streak

The Y.M.C.A. team of the Ladies' City League counted another four points when they defeated Kawarthas all three games at Duffus' Alleys last night. It was the third night of bowling in a seven-week schedule, the Y girls coming through each time without losing a game. Outboard Marine won 4 to 0 from the Examiner and Lucky Strikes added four for their bye.

In the Westclox-Commercial match, Margaret Selkirk of the former team chalked up a fine 726 score, the best individual effort for the evening. Mrs. J. C. Green had the top single, 286. Miss Selkirk's best was 282 and Miss Sisson, who was third, hit 270.

Best team score of the night was turned in by the Lucky Strike ladies who totalled over 3000 pins for their three games.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Boston Bruins finished a great season in the National Hockey League 11 years ago tonight with a record of 38 wins in 44 games. They lost five and tied one and Cooney Weiland, then star centre and now the team's coach, captured the scoring championship with 43 goals and 30 assists. Bruins took the league title but lost the Stanley Cup to Montreal Canadiens.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

New York Yankees: Whole New Infield?

By JACK SORDS

Yankee prestige, built on many pennant winning baseball teams, will rely on a changed club this year as Manager Joe McCarthy seeks to build a winner from new material at many places.

Only in the outfield, where Joe DiMaggio, Charles Keller and George Selkirk hold sway, will the Yanks show the same old faces — unless the planned-for change fails to materialize.

The infield will be hard to recognize. Sale of Babe Dahlgren to the Boston Bees creates a vacancy at first base. Joe Gordon, regular second baseman, will be shifted to first with Jimmy Sturm, rookie from Kansas City, ready to take over if needed.

At the keystone sack, the sensational duo of Phil Rizzuto, shortstop, and Gerald Priddy, second baseman, may take over if their play in spring training warrants it. Rizzuto and Priddy also are Kansas City boys. Red Rolfe will hold his job on third. Frank Crosetti will be chief infield replacement, according to present plans.

The Yanks may rely on a young pitching staff unless the veterans Ruffing, Gomez and Murphy can return to old-time form. It is believed either Ernie Bonham or Marius Russo may fit in as the star pitcher of the club, based on their work last year.

Several rookie pitchers have been brought up. They include Ardizoia Rinaldo, George Barley, Norm Lindell, Don Hendrickson, John Lindell and George Washburn. Lindell won 18 for Kansas City. Washburn won 18 for Newark.

Bill Dickey still is around for the catching duties, but the Yanks added Ken Sylvestri, a good receiver, from the White Sox, and Warren Rosar is ready to help. Tommy Holmes, a .312 belter with Newark, is outfield rookie help, but will have to work hard to stick.

Mowers Can Win The Veniza Trophy With Shutout

There are a number of reasons why Turk Broda of Toronto Maple Leafs should win the Vezina Trophy this season. The reasons are good and solid, backed by form and figure and leaving nothing to chance. But as all devotees of such deeply informative literature as Cinderella and Alice in Wonderland will attest, good reasons are a vastly over-rated commodity.

To win the Vezina Trophy, a National Hockey League goalkeeper must allow fewer goals than any other goalkeeper in the N.H.L. during the playoff season. Such an achievement requires more than sporadic flashes of brilliance, goes to the man with the ability to stand in a goalmouth night after night—a total of 48 nights—and make a noise like a brick wall.

Broda has done fairly well. He has allowed only 99 goals in 48 games and he didn't have the best defence in the league in front of him. He has a better record than Johnny Mowers of Detroit, who has given 98 goals in 47 games in his first season of professional hockey. The averages are: Broda, 2:06 goals a game; Mowers, 2:08. But Mowers may win the Vezina Trophy, thus illustrating the superiority of Cinderella stuff over arithmetic.

Mowers' last game of the season will be played against Boston tonight and therein lies a further mathematical reason why Mowers should lose his slim margin and Broda win the Vezina. Boston has scored 164 goals in 47 games so far his season, an average of 3:49 goals a game. By that dead reckoning, the record should read after tonight's game as follows: Broda, goals against, 99; Mowers, goals against, 101.

One thing is certain. Only a magnificent job against Boston can give J. Mowers a shutout and the Vezina Trophy tonight.

Draft Unlikely To Hit N.H.L. Teams Seriously

NEW YORK, March 18.—(CP)—Chiefly because most of the players are still Canadian subjects, the five United States teams in the National Hockey League do not look forward to any great disruption of their playing strength next season as a result of compulsory military service.

The principal indicated loss to hockey for the 1941-42 campaign is Murray Patrick, stalwart defenceman of New York Rangers and second son of Manager Lester Patrick. He has been ordered to take preliminary physical examination.

The only other player who is known to have received his selective service questionnaire is Sam Lo Presti of Chicago Black Hawks. The goalie said recently that he believes if he is to be called it will not be until after this season's Stanley Cup playoffs are over.

Murray Patrick, 24, expects to be summoned for a year's training this spring, but not before the playoffs are over. He has taken out first citizenship papers and consequently is subject to the draft. He is in the peak of physical condition, and thus probably will not be deferred, the club is resigned to losing him for one year.

Hank Greenberg Is Put In Class 1A

DETROIT, March 18.—(AP)—Hank Greenberg, Detroit Tigers' outfielder, reported to have been recommended for a deferred status under the Selective Service Act, has been placed in Class 1-A and is subject to immediate call for United States army duty when his number comes up, Greenberg's draft board announced today.

"Henry Greenberg has been classified in Class 1A, but his case is being referred to the medical advisory board for a report. If that board reports that he is not fit for general military service, the classification will be reconsidered by the board."

Greenberg was originally examined by a physician at Lakeland, Fla., where the Tigers are in training, and it was widely reported that the American League slugger, whose salary is reported to be $50,000 this season, would not be called for army duty for the time being because of his feet.

By FRED D. CRAIG

With the Stanley Cup series coming up Thursday the favorite pastime right now is trying to dope out the result of the annual struggle for professional hockey supremacy and we might as well get into the thick of it, despite the fact that experience should have taught us that there is nothing as uncertain as a hockey race. In the first place then we might as well climb out to the end of the limb and select the Boston Bruins, three times in a row N.H.L. champions, to grab the battered old tinware. We are not forgetting that a Boston team with an even better record than this one was thrown for a total loss in the Stanley Cup series. That unexpected development is still fresh in mind but it does not stop us from selecting the 1941 Bruins to take it all. Any team that is good enough to finish up with a record of only one loss in its last 31 games is surely powerful enough to be the first choice for professional honors.

* * * * * *

The opening round brings the Bruins and Leafs together and it will be a close, hard series, as all Boston-Toronto playoffs have been but we are calling Art Ross's team to take the series in not more than five games, especially if Syl Apps is out for most of the fixtures. On the season's record and especially on the story of the last six meetings of the two clubs the Bruins stand out. Their margin has not been wide but it has been consistent and it must be remembered that the Bruins go into the playoffs at full strength, their whole team intact, with Clapper playing his best hockey of his career as a defence man, the Kraut line just hitting its real stride in time for the big test and Bill Cowley setting a new all-time record for setting up plays. That is a combination that will take a lot of stopping.

* * * * * *

If anybody is to stop the Bruins it will be the same club that did the trick last season, the New York Rangers. We are picking Lester Patrick's club to be the outfit to face the Boston team in the final round for th reason that the Rangers did not hit their form until the last month and they are going into the playoffs in good shape. They will have a tough time eliminating Jack Adams' battling Red Wings but we believe they will have the class to do it and that afterward they will carry on and win the semi-final round from Canadiens who should take the faltering Chicago Black Hawks. So there's the whole program. Boston to oust the Leafs, the Rangers to triumph over Canadiens in the next round and the Bruins to battle through the final round to take the Stanley mug. We could be wrong, of course, but anyway there is a shot at the series. Take it or leave it.

Admits Rules Were Broken

Here is the Kingston version of the decision to play a third game to decide the Combines-Hamilton series: "The rules of the playoff, according to O.H.A. constitution, are for at least thirty minutes of overtime in a home-and-home total goal series but with plenty of time to declare a winner and both teams worn tired it was agreed to play again on Kingston ice next Wednesday. Although against the rules, and it was impossible to get W. A. Hewitt, the O.H.A. secretary, on the phone, it was figured that an extra game would be a fairer test, which would probably avoid the danger of a fluke goal in extra play deciding the series. Hamilton players did not want to continue, claiming the ice was bad, although Wally Elmer, coach of the Combines, was in favor of playing extra time, according to the rules. In the discussion, which started before the third period and lasted several minutes after the game, it was decided to postpone play until next Wednesday. Probably the decision to meet in a third game was the wisest and it should help the Combines as they have been far from their best hockey in the last two games. Granting that Hamilton checks consistently and has a solid defence with a brilliant netminder, the Combines missed on most of their best scoring chances by wild shooting, after coming yards from the nets when in close. The crowd was the largest in many years and the rink will likely be jammed to the rafters again on Wednesday, considering the class of hockey, the closeness of the play and the importance of the series as the winner will likely step into the O.H.A. senior finals with Owen Sound, winners over Kitchener-Waterloo, as it is understood Windsor will not play."

* * * * * *

One of the most important games of the season in the Ladies' Basketball League will be the battle tonight between the St. John's team and the Y Gym. A win for the Y team will tie them for second place with the Westclox girls and necessitate a sudden death game between the two teams, the winner to meet Quaker Aces for the senior championship and the loser to clash with St. John's for the junior title. On the other hand a victory tonight for the church team would give Westclox undisputed possession of second place, and set the stage for the playoffs which open on Friday night. It has been a great season in the girls' loop and the playoffs should be productive of a lot of excitement before the winners in the two series are decided.

* * * * * *

Judging by the interest some of the fans are showing in the race for the Vezina Cup you would almost imagine that the enthusiasts rather than Turk Broda were going to get the $1,000 bonus if the Toronto goalie comes through. One fan rang up last night to inquire as to the result of the Boston-Detroit game, believing that it was scheduled for Monday instead of tonight and his only interest was to know what Mowers did in the net for the Red Wings. The Niagara Falls boy who performed brilliantly against the Petes several seasons ago is on the spot. The only way he can win the goalie championship is to shut out the most powerful team in hockey on their own ice. It has been done but if Mowers performs the feat tonight no one can begrudge him the honors.

* * * * * *

The Generals Start Well

Oshawa Generals, showing the same faculty of being at their best for the crucial test of the playoffs exploded a bomb in the camp of the Toronto Marlboros last night when they defeated the Dukes 5 to 2 in Toronto in the first game of the Junior A finals. The series is a best-of-seven affair and the win away from home gives Oshawa a nice start. Tracey Shaw's team played smart hockey, according to all reports and had the moxy to come through with three goals in final period to take the verdict from a team that has had the edge on them all season. The series is not over yet by any means for there is a lot of power and class in that Marlboro lineup but at least the Generals have got away on the right foot. Many Peterborough fans follow the achievements of the Oshawa club with interest and a number of them are planning to see some of the playoff battles.

* * * * * *

Young hockey players who think it smart to rough it up and take a poke at an opponent with little or no provocation should take a look at the penalty column of the National Hockey League and notice that the men who are up at the top of the scoring race are the birds who concentrate on getting the old boot heel into the nets and leave the rough stuff to the rest. Leading the parade is Boston's Bill Cowley who has had only eight minor penalties in 47 games, or an average of one every six games. Bryan Hextall of the Rangers, tied for second, has the same record; Gordon Drillon of the Leafs, also tied for the second slot has had only one penalty all season and Syl Apps and Lynn Patrick, on even terms with Hextall and Drillon have drawn only three and six penalties respectively. Next comes Syd Howe of Detroit who has averaged one penalty per every dozen games.

Leading Aces Win 40-9 Over Cadets

Quaker Aces, leaders in the Ladies' Basketball loop completed their scheduled games last night by swamping Y Cadets 40 to 9 in a league fixture in the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium. The win gave the Aces a season's record of 12 wins and three losses and leaves them holding first places with a two-game magin over the second-place Westclockers.

It was the fifteenth straight loss for the young Cadet team. The Y juniors, playing their first organized basketball are years younger than the rest of the players in the loop and their lack of experience and size has told heavily against them, but they played out their schedule and have the satisfaction of knowing that they have improved materially as a result of the campaign.

Against the league leaders last night they hadn't a chance to win, but they never stopped trying and had at least the satisfaction of scoring the last point when Nellie Smith sank a foul shot as the game ended.

The Aces set a lively pace in the first half, paced by Dorothy Weese and E. Alexander and they were leading 26 to 6 when the rest period arrived. The Cadets had a great share of the play in the second session, but were outscored 14 to 3, with both teams missing chances by inaccurate shooting.

Dorothy Weese with 12 points, E. Alexander with 11 and Agnes Grady with 8 were the chief scorers for the winners while Dorothy Saunders, Nellie Smith and Irene Stewart did the scoring for the Cadets. The teams:

Y Cadets (9)— Nellie Smith 3, Irene Stewart 2, Beverley Pringle, Shirley Pringle, Sheila Maguire D. Saunders 4, J. Collins, M. Lawless.

Training Camps Find Shortage Of Kid Marvels

No one seems to know just why but there is a noticeable absence of kid marvels at the sun-baked major league training camps.

A years ago everyone was talking about Brooklyn's sensational shortstop rookie, 19-year-old Hal Reese, and the Detroit's Tigers pitching find, 18-year-old Harold Newhouser. And in 1939 the big noise was Detroit's fancy-priced pitcher from Seattle, 18-year-old Fred Hutchinson, who didn't last long in the majors but is back with the Tigers again, trying to hang on.

Perhaps the most spectacular of all the boy wonders of recent years was Bob Feller, who was only 17 when he made his first spring training trip with the Indians.

No New Kids

This spring there's not a single new kid star. There are about two dozen youngsters no older than 21 and some of them are good enough to stick in the majors but there's not a headliner in the group.

The one you may hear the most about this year is Hal Reiser, who may play centre field for the Brooklyn Dodgers. And Hal is not really a newcomer. He made the spring trip with the Dodgers two years ago. Hal is just 21.

Another young Dodger who should win some games this summer is Pitcher Ed Head, who copped a dozen for Elmira last season. Head, a six foot one righthander, is 21.

The Cardinals have a good looking young prospect in Matt Surkout, a pitcher who won 19 for Decatur in 1940. Dick Conger, a 20-year-older who had a trial with Detroit last spring, is trying to catch on with the Pirates. The Cubs have a kid named Her Chmiel, 20, who is getting a chance on the strength of three no-hit games he pitched for Lane Tech in Chicago.

Whip Marlboros In Sparkling 5 to 2 Battle

TORONTO, March 18—Oshawa's fleet Generals struck a solid blow in defense of the Dominion championship they've held for the past two seasons by fashioning a scintillating 5-2 victory over Marlboros in the first game of the O.H.A. Junior "A" finals at the Gardens last night.

Lightning-like offensive thrusts in the third period produced three goals for the Generals, broke a 2-2 deadlock and brought an important victory in the titular tussling. It gave Oshawa a distinct edge in the 4-of-7 series, second game of which will be played at Oshawa Wednesday night.

Packed Punch, Class

Exhibiting a wealth of speed and skill, Tracy Shaw's smoothies hit peak form in the third period, got their passing plays clicking with perfect precision, and literally skated the favored Dukes into the ice.

Wally Wilson, slimly built centre of the first-string line, headed a brilliant cast of tireless operatives. He scored once and did the playmaking for two other goals. It was the first line that carried the scoring mail. Roy Sawyer bagged two goals, and Norm McAtee had two assists. All three were members of the Dominion championship team of last season.

An artistic bit of playmaking by Wally Wilson early in the third period turned the victory tide in Oshawa's favor. From the faceoff starting the final frame, Wilson gave Norm McAtee the puck. McAtee made a return pass at the blueline and Wilson flicked the puck across the line to let Sawyer romp through with only Cleary to beat. Sawyer made no mistake.

The goal came after only 26 seconds of play and from then on, the Generals flashed the type of hockey that in two previous seasons was good enough to gain the national title. Whatever hopes the Dukes entertained of a comeback were quickly jilted when Ken McNaught scored on a swift-striking manoeuvre with Ron Wilson and Jim Conacher. Conacher completed the scoring chores by sinking Ron Wilson's pass.

Marlboros appeared headed for victory when Tommy Depew bagged the first goal after six minutes. Depew took Gillespie's back-pass from a faceoff in Oshawa territory and his screened shot eluded Goalie Dick Schad. But Oshawa struck back for the equalizer five minutes later when Gaye Stewart was serving a penalty. Sawyer tipped in Hewson's shot after Wally Wilson had engineered a power play in the Dukes zone.

Wally Wilson Again.

Generals gained the lead in the last minute of the first period on an odd play. After taking McAtee's relay, Wally Wilson slid the disc between the Duke defencemen. He darted in, beat Goalie Joe Cleary to the disc and slid it under the netman into the cage. Doug Gillespie knotted the count at 2-2 with the only goal of the second period, a solo effort at the 3:12 mark.

Marlboros drifted back to the style of disjointed hockey that marked their first two games with Guelph. Defensively, they were wide open, were continually caught out of position. On the attack, Gillespie Goldham and Morris were the most dangerous threats.

Oshawa played smart hockey to win. Schad was steady in goal and was afforded grand protection by stocky Frank Eddolls and Hewson. Both attacking units showed the benefits of good coaching, with Conacher and Ron Wilson performing with the same dash and fire exhibited by the first-stringers.

Lethbridge Crew Shelves The Stampeders

WINNIPEG, March 18—(CP). — Playing-Coach Kenny Stewart, who succeeded Frank Coulson as pilot in mid-season, today sharpened his Lethbridge Maple Leafs for their second drive on the Allan Cup trail in three years. Leafs trimmed the 1940 Western Canadian Senior Hockey champions, Calgary Stampeders, 4-0, last night to win the Alberta crown, taking the best-of-five series, 3-2.

Meanwhile Port Arthur Bearcats, who won the Allan Cup in 1939, after Leafs were knocked from the running by Kimberley Dynamiters, chalked up 26 scoring points in defeating the Winnipeg Seventh Infantry Brigade, 14-3, in the Thunder Bay-Manitoba Interprovincial best-of-three series opener.

In Saskatchewan, Freddie Metcalfe, former Lethbridge coach, saw his Regina Rangers shut out Yorkton Terriers, 2-0, to take a 2-1 lead in the provincial final. Rangers took the first game of the best-of-five series 4-2, and lost the next encounter 4-0.

Baldy Northcott of Winnipeg, who gained fame as a star forward on Montreal Maroons National Hockey League sextet before turning to coach in his home town, today held the unique distinction of being the mentor of two Manitoba teams in the play-offs.

Rangers Advance

While Northcott's 7th Infantry Brigade were taking the worst beating of their lives at Port Arthur, the former professional guided his Winnipeg Rangers into a commanding lead in the Manitoba Junior final in Winnipeg. Rangers downed East Kildonan 7-4 and need one more win to cinch the title. They took the opener of a best-of-five series Saturday 4-3.

President Johnny Cameron, an experienced coach, handled the reserve army team in Northcott's absence, but didn't appear to have any effect on the one-sided score. Long before the series Bearcats were odds-on favorites to skip through Manitoba's best and engage the Saskatchewan champions in a Western semi-final.

The two teams tangle again Wednesday night.

Sydney and Hull To Clash In Semi-Finals

(By the Canadian Press.)

With Sydney Millionaires and Hull Volants installed as opponents in one Eastern Canada semi-final, four teams remained today in the running for the opposite berth in the final that will decide the East's representative for the Allan Cup.

A 7-0 victory over Halifax Navy last night gave the Millionaires the Maritime title and the right to continue in Cup playdowns against Hull Volants, who meanwhile won the Ottawa district crown by beating Petawawa Grenades. The Volants will travel to Sydney for the first games of the series March 22.

With the Ontario and Quebec champions to clash in the other semi-final, two teams remain in each division. Montreal Royals, already leading St. Jerome by one game in a best-of-five series, are highly favored to win the Quebec crown but the comparative worth of Timmins Bisons and Toronto Marlboros has yet to be judged.

The Marlboros and the Bisons will present a battle of unknown quantities when they open their best-of-three series for the Ontario title in Torono Wednesday. Marlboros showed great form in winning the O.H.A. title, while the Bisons are champions of the N.O.H.A., which gave the Allan Cup to the East last season through the now-disbanded Kirkland Lake Blue Devils.

Start In Montreal March 24

The series between the ultimate Quebec-Ontario winners, according to dates announced by President George Dudley of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, will start in Montreal March 24. The remaining games will alternate between Toronto and Montreal on March 26, 28 or 29, March 31 and April 2.

Hull earned the right to carry the Ottawa district banner into Sydney March 22 by outscoring Petawawa, 11-9, to take their series in straight games. The second game of the eastern semi-final also will be played in Sydney March 24, with the teams returning to Ottawa for the next three games March 27, 29 and 31 as necessary.

The Millionaires disappointed by only beating the Halifax sextette, 9-8, in the first game of a total-goal series but ran away with last night's game to take the round, 16-8.

Oshawa Generals started the defence of their twice-won Memorial Cup meanwhile by beating Toronto Junior Marlboros, 5-2, in the first game of a best-of-seven series for the Ontario title at Toronto. The second game will be played in Oshawa Wednesday, with the ultimate series winner drawing a bye into the eastern final.

In the other bracket, Montreal Junior Royals, who won the Quebec crown by defeating Clear Point Maple Leafs 11-0 last night to sweep their series by three games, and Charlottetown Royals, Maritime champions, are awaiting the winner of the Ottawa district title. Pembroke Little Lumber King have a one-game edge on Ottawa Canadiens and can finish the series tonight.

The Ottawa and district champion will meet Charlottetown first, with Royals standing by to take on the winner for the right to play the Ontario champion.

LOS ANGELES, March 18—(AP). —Boradway Bob Pastor punctured another California bubble of the ring last night, but it took all the heart and experience he could command to do it.

Patsor weighed 184 pounds, Thompson 180.

British Storing Up Hate For The Huns

OTTAWA, Mar. 18 — (BUP). — Harold Dingman, formerly with The Globe and Mail, who recently joined the London staff of the British United Press, gave his first impressions of the Battle of Britain last night in an overseas broadcast heard here.

Dingman was introduced by Bob Bowman, in charge of the CBC's weekly, "With the Troops in England" show.

"I have found England beautiful and sad," the Canadian correspondent related. "London is scarred over wide areas. One night recently the Germans dropped thirty-seven high explosive bombs and thousands of incendiaries in a slum district. There was no nearby military objective, it was deliberate murder."

The spirit of the English was splendid, beyond praise; "never give up, they only store up hatred of the Nazis," Dingman said.

Bombs had dropped near him at various times, but he had escaped injury. Night clubs, meanwhile, operated as usual during a raid, and while the music stopped when the alarm was given, few patrons went to the shelters. "They seem to feel, and I agree, that it is better to dance and sing than to run to the shelters every time," he said.

He visited two contingents of Canadian troops. They were billeted in fine old English estates and continually practiced "real war under service conditions," he continued.

"They are itching to fight the Germans — either in an attempted invasion or in any other part of the world."

"I haven't met any food shortage. The Englishman still has his beef and mutton and eggs and tea, although they are rationed. But no body goes hungry," he emphasized.

He said the women were wonderful, bandaging the wounded in bomb attacks, bringing food to the firefighters, carrying the dead. More than 900,000 women were enlisted in voluntary services.

The Canadian Red Cross was also doing splendid work, Dingman states. "It reaches into every city."

"I wouldn't trade my pob for any in Canada," the correspondent concluded, "despite conditions over here."

Plan A Success

"Today I am able to say that, with 60 per cent of the plan in operation, and about 10 production lines —that is, series of schools—operating, we know now that we can and have gone in for mass production and have succeeded," said Major Power.

"Not only have we succeeded in producing what was originally intended in the plan we have almost double it."

He said he did not mean the plan itself had been doubled; the output had been accelerated to get more output at a time when it was most needed. By next September the plan would automatically "flatten out" and the number of trained men scheduled to be produced at that time would be produced.

Without giving the actual figures which he said would be useful to the enemy, Maj. Power told the House that if the original plan called for 500 trained pilots, observers and air gunners at this stage the air force had succeeded in producing 950. It had fallen about five per cent short of doubling the output called for in the original schedule.

The air minister broke new ground when he revealed the call sent out by the air force for radio operators and technicians last fall was related to meeting the menace of night bombing to British cities.

Canadians Assist.

He said Canadian and to some extent, American scientists, contributed to the development of the devices now being put to use to make night bombing more dangerous to the enemy, and that Canadian radio men had been sent overseas to operate the devices. More of these men were needed and he invited members of the House to help in locating men fitted for the work.

Col. Ralston said the active army was not open for recruits every day. As men were required to reinforce units oversas or for new units they were obtained on the quota system from reserve units.

Mr. Power said the air force recruiting problem was complicated by the fact that "a plus" men were required. Air crew recruits had to be in medical category A, have good eyesight and matriculation standard in education. This meant that out of possibly 90,000 men in the 21-year-old class only 16,000 would be available for the air force.

Col. Ralston said the 30-day compulsory training plan started last fall met the requirements of the reserve army in view of equipment and accommodationn available. Canada had a large reserve army of about 175,000 available for home defence.

Plan Spares Industry

The four-month training plan, now starting, had advantages in that it would draw fewer men away from industry and give recruits advanced as well as basic training. It was evolved, he said, following his return from England after a sutdy of the British system.

"It (the present plan) provides for four months' training—two months' basic training and two months' advanced training," said Col. Ralston. "That means that future additions to reserve will be completely trained in all weapons, which as individuals they may be called up to fight with.

"It avoids the system of reserved occupations by the simple expedient of confining the calls to a very limited group unless circumstances change materially or the numbers in this age group should prove unexpectedly small.

"It also embodies this desirable feature: That young men at the time of their coming of age are reminded to recognize and prepare themselves for their responsibilities for the defence of Canada."

The minister said that if men for compulsory training were chosen under a selective draft by lot from a wider age group than at present it would involve complicated machinery of boards or committees to deal with exemptions for men in essential occupations.

Claims Charge Unfair.

Dealing with lumber purchases for the camp at Debert, N.S., criticized by Mr. Hanson, Col. Ralston chided Mr. Hanson with playing a game which might be fair in peace time, but "it is not a fair game in time of war."

He said lumber purchases were made through the Timber Controller's Office and only one per cent. of the lumber bought was purchased from H. J. Mackenzie of Truro, N. S., whom Mr. Hanson described as an insurance agent.

The minister quoted prices to show that the price paid to Mackenzie was lower than that quoted by the Fraser Company on comparable lumber. He said he was sure it was that concern Mr. Hanson had in mind when the Conservative House Leader spoke of lumber firms he had represented as a lawyer.

Air Minister Power said one of his "headaches" as he termed his difficulties, was the ambition of all air recruits to be pilots. Although the work of observers and air gunners was important, all the lads donning the blue uniforms want to be pilots.

The minister expressed some sympathy with the men told to train as air gunners because their chances of obtaining commissions were slim whereas 50 per cent. of those qualifying as pilots and observers were granted commissions, 33 per cent on graduation and 17

Need 3,000 For Emergencies.

Need 3,00 For Emergencies.

He also said it was rather hard on men who joined up expecting to get overseas in six months to have to spend a month or so on guard duty, but this was necessary in order to maintain a reserve of 3,000 or 4,000 men at hand for emergencies

Major Power said it was possible the Air Force was responsible for some delay in aircraft production by changing specifications. He said there were two schools of thought, and he would not take sides in the controversy as to whether the manufacturing agency should have complete control of production or be subject to some instructions from the service.

It was a question of whether the man who used an instrument should have a say in how it was made. Naturally the user wanted to improve the instrument as much as possible, while the maker wanted to get designs settled and get into production.

ships cruise we shall set against them our submarines."

The second—considered more remote because of the mention of offshore operations—was that the submarine might be a commercial vessel like the unarmed Deutschland which made two trips to American ports in 1916 with cargoes of dyestuffs and chemicals.

White House, state department, navy and other interested government agencies refused any comment regarding the submarine reports. Senator Burton Wheeler (Dem.-Montana), an isolationist, declared, however, that the information had come from Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador.

Wheeler Blames Halifax

The Montanan, a leading exponent of the lease-lend program, claimed he had learned this from "thoroughly reliable authorities" and accused Lord Halifax of giving the tip to frighten the state department and the American people.

Other sources reported that the information was obtained from an intercepted message sent to at least one German submarine, believed to be a type capable of long range operations for an extended length of time.

A submarine operating in the Western Atlantic shipping lanes would be inside the Pan-American Neutrality Zone, now patrolled daily by air and surface ships of the United States Atlantic fleet. However, the belligerents have not recognized the validity of the zone in which the American republics have banned hostilities.

If a U-boat is en route to American waters, qualified persons here believe that it probably would be a 1,500-tonner, carrying a crew of 55 and with a range of about 10,000 miles without refuelling.

The distance between New York and Bordeaux in occupied France is 3,300 nautical miles, so a submarine of this type could cross the Atlantic, cruise for an additional 3,000 miles in operations and still have ample fuel for the return trip.

The big question to persons informed on naval matters was whether Germany possesses any 1,500-ton types. The last official pre-war information listed nothing larger than 800-ton classes. Theoretically, these persons said, an 800-tonner could make a round trip.

Recalling that the Deutschland displaced 2,400 tons, these sources did not rule out the possibility that Germany may have included some big types in her intensified submarine building program. The United States fleet has three experimental 2,740-ton craft now in service.

Before the submarine report became known last night, Lord Halifax, talking to reporters at the state department, expressed confidence that Germany would be unable to interrupt "substantially" the flow of United States aid to Britain.

The envoy indicated that only a small percentage of supplies from the United States were failing to get through the Nazi counter-blockade and that he anticipated no great difference in deliveries as the Germans step up their submarine campaign.

duties in November "and they have been followed recently by many hundreds more."

"That is why we have been combing the country from one end to the other to find radio mechanics who are being sent over for that purpose," he said.

"If any member knows any radio mechanic who wants to enlist and go overseas at the earliest possible moment, I would be only too glad to get his name and send him over."

Maj. Power referred earlier to a statement by Air Vice Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding, former chief of the British fighter command who said recently in Ottawa that certain new devices had been developed by United Kingdom authorities, and that he hoped before long night bombing would be overcome. Then the minister made the disclosure of Canadian participation in this effort.

Canada had been "of great assistance to the Mother Country" in recruiting a "considerable number of these young men and sending them over for the purpose of doing this very important specialized work."

"We are now engaged in a war for the preservation of what we call democracy. If you examine all the institutions which make up a democracy you will find none more democratic than a grand jury. You are representing the people and are absolutely unhindered by any official no matter how high. You are one of the bulwarks of a freedom for which millions are offering their services to maintain on the field of battle. It is not something of the past which has outlived its usefulness but something that is very necessary today. You protect the accused and at the same time you protect those who might be injured by those taking part in crime," declared Mr Justice Kelly.

"You are an expensive body and an expensive petit jury is awaiting your decision, but that is no reason why you should hurry. However, do not let curiosity to hear more of the witnesses, prolong the case after you have reached a decision on it. You may be the last grand jury to sit here. There is a bill before the legislature to abolish grand juries. But as you may have gathered, you have heard a judge who does not think it is wise to abolish you, but if the legislature so directs it, there is nothing to do but obey," concluded His Lordship.

Mr. Justice Kelly also directed that the grand jury also inspect the various institution when their other work was completed. Following are the members of the grand jury:

In the latter case plaintiff alleges that on January 25th, 1939, one of the company trucks was proceeding in a westerly direction along the highway two miles west of Trenton when struck by a car owned by J. H. Cowan and driven by Francis Cowan.

British Invasion Barge In Action

The Admiralty has released this photo, made during the sensational raid on the Lofoten Islands, off the coast of Norway, recently, showing a British invasion barge in actual action. The barge is armored with high shields fore and aft, behind which rapid fire guns operate. The barge is self-propelled and carries 50 fully-equipped men. The Lofoten raid was a tryout for barges of this type, which, it was announced in London, might be used for invasion of Axis territory, either German or Italian.

Havelock Honors Faith Mission Couple

HAVELOCK, March 18—(ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane of the Faith Mission Hall, are leaving this week for Vanvouver, to continue in the same work. Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane have been in Havelock about two and a half years, taking over the work of Mrs. Kinnaird and the late Mr. Kinnaird.

Before coming to Havelock they were preaching God's word in Africa and England. Just before leaving for Canada, they happened to be talking to a Dr. Jeff, who inquired about their work, and during their conversation asked what part of Canada they would be living in. And they told him they expected to be living in Havelock, Ont.; "Why, that is where I was born." said the doctor. "My father practised there."

Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane have made many friends in Havelock and vicinity, in all denominations. They have been workers in the churches as well as doing much community work, and will be greatly missed. They find a change is necessary on account of Mrs. McFarlane's health and a warmer climate was advised.

Prior to their departure, services have been held in the Mission Hall every night for two weeks, and meetings have been attended by people from all walks of life. Ministers from the different churches have taken part in the services.

On Friday last a social evening was held in the Mission Hall, when many were in attendance to say farewell to Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane and to wish them God-speed, prosperity and health in their new home in Vancouver.

During the evening the presentation of a purse was made to this worthy couple, who replied in very gracious manner.

A program was arranged of songs and contests and refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane leave on Wednesday of this week for Vancouver.

Look in Your Mirror

A message from The Newspaper Publishers Committee
HON. W. A. BUCHANAN, CHAIRMAN

HERE'S a homely truth we can't deny:

"Free men can't STAY free without a free press!"

Unless you have the simple facts about the everyday things that happen around you . . unless you know when your government goes off the track, whom to praise and whom to blame, whom to support and whom to kick out of their job, democracy just won't work!

You know all that. It would not occur to you to deny it. For the same reason it probably has never occurred to you to do anything about it.

And there's the rub, there's the danger!

Its name is complacency, smugness.

But you say, "no army is yet at our gates and God willing, never will be." You say, "where's any dictator trying to make me goosestep in a funny shirt?" And mostly stop there . . .

Yet there is a threat. It has many aliases, many disguises. In one of them this villain looks a lot like what you see in your mirror. Yes, like YOU!

Granted you'd know if your liberty was suddenly taken from you. But is your ear to the ground for the first signs of a gradual, piecemeal, almost voluntary surrender?

That's what usually happens first!

Bit by bit, restriction by restriction, rule by rule it grows. Each rule at the time very logical, very necessary, very happily accepted. Then suddenly the bonds tighten ever so little more, and freedom is gone!

Today we have a free press. We get the facts. Editors can say exactly what they think, whether you like it or not, whether they're "agin the government" or not. Both you and your newspaper can still speak out . . .

And don't forget that this free press which we all so easily take for granted, gives us our economic freedom, too . . . assures us our right to buy as we choose . . . makes certain we have the facts to buy wisely. Without the open market place you have in freely competitive advertising, you'd constantly miss bargains, be soon without a standard of values; you could easily be the victim of monopoly, the dupe of regimentation.

You want an uncontrolled, controversial press . . . a press free to grind or to blunt anyone's axe. You've got it. The problem is to keep it for your children and your children's children.

"But very well," you say, "what can I do?" Suppose you start this way:

First, read your newspaper regularly, and read it carefully. Keep posted on things. All these free facts do no good in your wastebasket!

Second, think about what you read . . . recapture the old fun of arguing the big stories over the back fence with your neighbour. Make sure he knows how the free press is his shield against oppression.

Third, be vocal! Get mad every once in a while. If you smell a dangerous restriction coming, speak out to the government. If you know of a story we miss, or a fact we get wrong, or a meaning we seem to twist, speak out to us, your newspaper.

Write, phone, wire, talk . . . do anything but take the future for granted!

NOTE: The Newspaper Publishers Committee, speaking through its chairman, will bring you one of these institutional advertisements in this space each week. Clubs, patriotic societies, business firms or individuals who would like reprints may have them by writing to the business office of this newspaper.

tow truck men are in demand today carting frozen autos into warm garages to thaw them out. Usually the Examiner lot is jammed with em 'oyees' cars, but this morning there were only four, and the long line of cars in front of the C.G.E. had been reduced by at least one-third. Busses were doing a great business and will continue to do so for the next few days, for the weatherman says it will be cold until after Wednesday.

APPLICANTS PLENTIFUL.

William Mellis, manager of the local office of the Department of Labor on King Street, reported this morning that 465 men and boys have their applications in to take the War Emergency Classes at the Collegiate. This activity has slowed down somewhat due to a slackening in the demand from industries but it is expected that many more men and boys will be absorbed into local industries as soon as production programs get underway.

AIR FORCE POPULAR.

Air force blue was conspicuous on the city streets over the week-end as many of the budding aviators were home on leave. It was the first time since the war started that there appeared to be more air force men in the city than any other branch of the fighting force.

STILL GOING STRONG.

Sale of War Savings Stamps at the Peterborough Collegiate for the week ending Monday was up to the same high standard of the past four weeks with $710 worth being disposed of. A new feature was added this week when sale of War Savings Certificates topped the sale of stamps. The total amount, cash and cheques, for Certificates was $716.00, giving the students a total sale for the week of $1,426.00.

IT'S REALLY FROZEN UP.

A local man who drove home on Sunday night through the slush and rain, left his car standing out of doors. When he tried to start it on Monday, he found every door frozen shut except one. He couldn't depress the clutch pedal, nor the brake pedal. The motor wouldn't turn over either. Fearing the car might be locked he tried pushing it, but no one would budge it. The car is still sitting on the road, and if the Chief of Police enforces the overnight parking rule, the Magistrate will be told that only an autogiro with a magnet could move the car to a garage.

THICK ICE LAYER

Ice on Rice Lake is twenty-six inches thick. Some of the Bewdley folks were curious about what the winter's continuous frosts had done to it, and chopped a hole through the covering after they shovelled through the top layer of snow.

LIONS CLUB ENJOY ADDRESS

Pilot Officer Jerry Wool of the Royal Air Force, was the guest speaker at the regular dinner meeting of the Lions Club at the Kawartha Club house Monday evening The speaker was introduced by Fred Sipps and Alderman Max Swanson voiced the thanks of the members. Following the meeting the members stayed for the St. Patrick's dance which was arranged by Herb Jamison, manager of the C.D.S. and president of the Lions Club. Proceeds will go to the British War

SMALL FIRE

A small fire broke out at the home of G. A. Goheen, 293 Dalhousie street about 9:00 a.m. on Tuesday. A defective chimney was the cause of the blaze, according to Fire Chief George Gimblett, who said damage would amount to between $25 add $60.

ATTENDING CONVENTION

Harold Marshall of this city is this week attending the annual convention of refrigeration service engineers being held in Toronto.

SLIGHT DAMAGE DONE

Slight damage was done to two vehicles in a traffic accident on Bolivar street in which a car driven by Chief Dan Whetung of Curve Lake met in collision with a truck stopped on the wrong side of the street.

TWO CARS DAMAGED

Cars owned by Norman Dwyer, 231 George street, and W. H. Borland, 551 Weller street, were damaged when they met in collision at the intersection of Park and Weller street. Dwyer was driving south on Park street and Borland who had been travelling north on Park street was making a turn into Weller street when the accident occurred. The grill, license plate and front bumper of Borland's car were damaged while Dwyer's machine suffered a damaged wheel and possibly a bent axle.

SKILLED MEN WANTED

Posters on the walls of the Employment Service office on King street indicate there is a brisk demand for skilled tradesmen for industry. Tool and diemakers, machinists and sheet metal workers are being sought by many industries and any local man who is qualified to fill any of these positions may obtain complete information from William Mellis, local manager.

FUNERAL POSTPONED

The funeral of Mrs. John F. Handley at Mount Pleasant, which was to have been held on Tuesday afternoon, has been postponed until Wednesday. Bad weather and the conditions of the roads have made the change necessary.

AS A FIRST OFFENDER

Pleading guilty to being drunk but declining to plead to a previous conviction a local man got a break in police court this morning when the police had no the evidence in regard to the conviction available and the charge was treated as a first offence He escaped with a fine of $10 and 75 cents costs.

Chief Gimblett Re-elected Head Of Legion

Fire Chief George Gimblett will begin his fourth consecutive term at the helm of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion by virtue of his acclamation at the annual election of officers held in the Legion Hall on Monday night. The financial report and a complete resume of the work already done by the members of the Legion was read by the president, and the promise of even greater things in the direction of war work was forecast. "The organization in Peterborough is in good sound shape," said President Gimblett, "and the officers and executive are extremely pleased with the existing conditions."

The other officers elected include, Major Douglas Loomis, M.C., 1st vice-president; Arthur Nokes, 2nd vice-president; and the following members for the 1941 executive: C. D. Heath, Andrew Rutter, Robert Hotrum, Peter Wallace, and Stan Longhurst, with A. Miller as sergeant-at-arms.

M. R. Hynes Suffers Injuries To Head

M. R. Hynes, 493 George street, suffered injuries to his head and ribs Monday in a traffic accident on Lansdowne street, involving the truck he was operating and a Toronto-owned automobile.

Hynes, driving a truck owned by Williamson Brothers was coming out of a laneway on Lansdowne street, and had backed his vehicle across to the south side of the street when it met in collision with an eastbound car, driven by Hector Smith, 60 Pine street, Toronto. Hynes was thrown against the door of his truck by the impact and was knocked unconscious.

He soon revived however and his injuries are not regarded as serious.

Firemen Called To Nine Fires During Bad Wind

Peterborough householders' property was jeopardized yesterday no less than nine times by chimney fires, and today another good start has been made. In the face of repeated warnings, Fire Chief George Gimblett has lost patience, he said this morning, and unless steps are taken in the direction of proper care for chimneys court cases will follow.

"Peterborough has a bylaw requiring chimneys to be kept in good repair," the Chief said, "and after today I fully intend to prosecute."

Explaining even more clearly, Chief Gimblett said, "I mean that after today, Tuesday March 18 each chimney fire arising from neglect on the part of the householder will be the cause of a court case; many warnings have been given and in spite of the efforts of the department, no abating has been discerned in the number of fires breaking out."

It has been explained by the head of the Fire Department, that though windy weather starts the fires, it is only because of the poor condition in which the chimneys are allowed to stand that the adverse weather affects them. "Almost 100 per cent of the chimney fires in Peterborough could be avoided," he said, "if proper care were exercised."

Provincial Police Add $1,612 To Fund

The largest contribution for the Canadian Police Spitfire Fund yet received from outside by Inspector James F. Reid, Dominion treasurer of the fund came along this morning when $1,612.74 from officers of the Ontario Provincial Police was forwarded by William H. Stringer, commissioner of the Ontario force.

"The total fund is now over the $8,000 mark," Inspector Reid stated this morning.

The $2,000 raised by the Peterborough police department is still the biggest amount subscribed to the fund. This morning's donation brings the total up to about one-third of the amount required.

Open Letter To The City Council

Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen of the City Council:

I would like to make application for the privilege of exclusive sale of dew worms on the new London street bridge. Should you decide on granting me this privilege, I promise to patrol the bridge thus preventing any fisherman from knocking an eye out of any pedestrians who have courage enough to attempt to cross; also to work in the interest of the Fish and Game Society to see that no undersize fish are taken, or that any one takes more than their limit; moreover I will be there in the interest of the fish. Positively promising to protect them from anglers cheating by putting more than one hook on any one line or cutting a worm in two, "the cheap skates." Anyone who would be guilty of such should have their tackle confiscated. He or she can have no heart at all, especially if they have ever seen a catfish smiling, swimming against the stream.

In regard to the trapping privilege, I have no objection to this going to the game warden as he never did like opposition, particularly out of season. Most game in any case was originally intended for the Lyons.

Concluding, I will also be on the look out for any suspicious looking wolves and will report immediately to Charlie Kingan.

Yours truly,
LEMME SQUIRM.
Box 13,
Goose Pond Centre, Ont.

P.S.: Don't delay action on this as the season will not be long slipping around and I think I should have some official-looking uniform.

Sub-Zero Weather, Rough Streets Put Extra Demand On Taximen

"It felt like someone was coming at you with a knife," was Herb Stinson's description of last night's sub-zero wind on the way out to Bridgenorth some time about midnight.

Shortly after two o'clock the Stinson cars rolled into their barn and stayed there.

"There's a limit to what you can endure," Mr. Stinson said this morning. "You can't get help. The best of them are off to the war. There's always another day to take care of, and I said to myself anybody out last night after two o'clock did not deserve much sympathy if they had warm homes to stay in."

Mr. Stinson's son Max is with the Engineers down at Debert, and when business piles up in peaks like last night and this morning the "Dad" sorely misses him.

Mr. Stinson's description of last night's stinging wind is expressive and graphic. According to his experience, demand for cars picked up again as owners found their own stalled by the six-below-zero weather during the night, and refusing to start.

"The boss at the Examiner was one of them," he added. From other taxi sources it was learned that last night's service was running almost half an hour behind orders. Roads were icy and "rutty," and the pace had to slow down for safety.

"We did the best we could to handle it last night," Darrell Rose said, "but it got beyond us for several hours this morning."

The girl at the Capitol Taxi telephone said she stayed on the job until 1.30 o'clock this morning, and incidentally she was back before 10 o'clock, and her comment was to the effect that it was "pretty hard last night" trying to keep people satisfied. For a couple of hours this morning, everything was out and we would have needed twice as many cars and then could hardly have handled all the calls."

Agnes Neill Accompanies Queen On Inspection Tour Of Hospital

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press War Correspondent.)

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, March 18.—(CP Cable.)—Wearing a sparkling maple leaf on her coat, the Queen was cheered by hundreds of patients of No. 15 Canadian General Hospital during a two-hour visit Monday.

It was the first time the Queen had visited a Canadian unit since last June.

Practically everyone in the hospital had seen the Queen during the royal tour of Canada and half a dozen patients said "it gives you the same feeling as meeting a good friend again."

Accompanied by Matron Agnes Neill of Peterborough, Ont., and senior medical officers, Her Majesty walked through a dozen wards speaking with practically every patient.

The Countess of Bessborough, Lady Moyra Ponsonby, were present as well as Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, and Mrs. Massey, and Mrs. A. G. L. McNaughton, wife of the commander of the Canadian corps.

A guard of honor commanded by Maj. Stan Campbell of Toronto, was inspected by the Queen when she arrived. She was dressed in a three-quarter length periwinkle blue coat similar to those worn on the royal tour. The coat sleeves were trimmed with fox fur. The Queen wore a blue off-face hat with matching shoes. A three-strand pearl necklace and the maple leaf were her only jewelry.

Loudly Cheered.

Spontaneous outbursts of cheering greeted the Queen as she drove up to the hospital through crowds of soldiers and civilians.

Her Majesty was met by Col. Perch Flynn of Quebec City and Col. M. F. Gregg of Halifax who are recovering from illnesses.

The Queen wanted to know the news from the Pacific coast when she stopped by the bed of Pte. D. H. Estabrooke of Vancouver. She wished a quick recovery to Pte. C. R. Inesil of London, Ont.

Gunner J. Rochon and Capt. Jacques Lupien of Montreal, enjoyed several minutes' conversation with the royal visitor.

As the Queen walked along the corridor she met Pte. Phil Metcalfe of Ottawa and Pte. Earl Hann of Oshawa, Ont., trying to focus cameras on her. The Queen smiled, then stopped, and said, "the light is much better by the window."

After the tour of the hospital the Queen drove to the nursing sisters' mess, where the nurses were presented.

Is Re-elected

Fire Chief George Gimblett, who has been re-elected by acclamation for a fourth term as president of the Canadian Legion. With Chief Gimblett at its head the Legion has made remarkable progress in the past three years.

285 Coppers Are Found In Pickle Jar

Many novel and interesting means of raising money have been evolved since the British War Victims' Fund was started last December and today a new one a brought to the attention of the Examiner. A subscriber who wishes to remain anonymous set up a pickle jar in her home, and labelled it "There'll always be an England." Everyone who came to the house and all members of the family contributed every copper that came their way to this jar. Today the jar was filled and when the money was counted the fund was 285 coppers richer.

Local citizens are dropping the spare change into the British War Victims' boxes in the different stores throughout the city, and each time these boxes are emptied the fund grows. Another church organization was added to the list today when the Gleaners' Class of Park Street Baptist Church sent in $5.00.

Previously acknowledged	$10,528.39
Box at McLeod's Drug Store	2.69

Gleaners' Class, Park Street Baptist Church	5.00

LONDON — (CP). — Reginald Kemp, J.P., West Middlesex Coroner, who retired after conducting 10,000 inquests, claims he has been late for only a dozen of them.

Richard Smith Last Veteran Of Fenian Raids

LAKEFIELD, March 18—(ENS)—Richard Smith, 95-year-old resident of Lakefield, who died suddenly at his home in the village recently, was a veteran of the Fenian Raids in 1866, and is believed to be the last member of that gallant band of Canadians who took up arms to protect Canada more than half a century ago.

Max Smith of Apsley, a son of the late Richard Smith, is the only member of the family now living, and he remarked that his father prized the service medal that indicated his service in the Fenian Raids.

The late Mr. Smith was born in the State of Kentucky and came to Ontario when a boy of 12. His first job was as a farm hand in Douro township and later like all husky young men of those days he gravitated to the lumber camps in the northern part of Peterborough County. For ten years he was a lumberjack and helped in taking the virgin pine from Burleigh township. Unlike many of his colleagues in the shanties, Mr. Smith was a great believer in the code of moderate living. He never drank nor smoked and his life was practically devoid of illness.

Following his bush life, he obtained employment with the C.G.E. Company and stayed at the plant for 15 years. He was a life member of the Canadian Order of Foresters. In recent years he had been living at Lakefield, and his rugged constitution and active life is indicated by the fact that he had cut and split a supply of hardwood sufficient for his needs this winter.

After 58 years of happy wedded life, his wife, who was formerly Anna Liza Jory, passed on, and since then he has lived alone. His sudden death came as a shock to a wide circle of friends who had grown to love this quiet, kindly old man who had such a fine philosophy of life.

Two Drunks Appear Before Court Twice

Arrested yesterday after he had cut his hand in breaking a window in the Montreal House, a young man pleaded guilty in police court this morning to being drunk. "I made a fool of myself," he told Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. Chief Newhall stated that the accused would make good the broken window and he was allowed to go with a fine of $10 and 75 cents costs. He really made two appearances in court this morning. On the first occasion he entered a plea of not guilty and secured a week's adjournment. Later he returned, and asked that the case be disposed of at once, changing his plea to guilty.

Incidentally another man, also charged with being drunk was before the court twice. He at first pleaded not guilty and was remanded until tomorrow. Later he asked to be brought back before the magistrate, changed his plea and was fined $10 and 75 cents costs.

Two Couples Observe Their Golden Weddings

J. W. Collison Recalls Thames River Tragedy

Memories of the greatest disaster in the history of Ontario's inland waters are recalled today by James W. Collinson, who missed death in this tragedy sixty years ago, because his parents refused him permission to go on a picnic.

It happened on the 24th of May, 1881, on the River Thames, near London, Ontario, when the excursion steamer Victoria was returning from Springbank Park, loaded with picnickers. Another steamer, the Forest City was passing the Victoria going downstream when the passengers, most of them children, rushed to the side of the boat to watch the steamer pass, and the Victoria heeled over and sank in the river. Almost three hundred were drowned, and it was several days before all the bodies were recovered.

Today Mr. Collinson with his wife are observing their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home, 564 Sherbrook street, and when talking with a reporter of his boyhood days in London, Mr. Collinson told the story of the disaster. He was 16 years of age at the time, and his parents warned him not to go on the picnic that day.

That evening he was down at the wharf waiting for the boat to return when he heard of the disaster, so he hurried down the north bank of the Thames, hoping to see the wreck. He stood with a group watching another boat head upstream at Cove Bridge with many of the dead and came back so that he could see the boat unload.

Has Father's Medal

His father was a locomotive engineer in the Old Country and was brought to Canada by the Great West Railway to drive an engine on the Detroit to Niagara Falls run, passing through London. For many years the elder Collinson worked as a locomotive driver and today, one of William Collinson's most prized possessions is a beautiful gold medal, presented at the annual railroad picnic at Port Stanley to his father for "long service." The presentation was made in August 1869, by Charles Hunt, local director of London, Ontario, for the Great West Railway. The inscription reads as follows: "As an appreciation to James Collinson for longest service with the best record of good conduct as an engine driver on the G. W. Rwy." The father died of injuries received when his train crashed through an open switch and was derailed near London about seventy years ago.

Remembers Big Flood

Mr. Collinson cannot recall the exact date of the big flood at London, but he believes it was about 58 years ago, which would make it in the Spring of 1883. He said today that he was serving his time as a machinist apprentice for $3 a week at the foundry owned by John Elliott, who made farm machinery. One evening, during a torrential rain he and other boys walked through the downpour to watch a big fire at an oil refinery, and the next day the flood came. The north branch of the Thames River was the offender, and when it reached flood height, houses, barns and dead cattle came floating down through London. The entire west side of London was inundated.

While Mr. Collinson was serving his apprenticeship, the first wire binder was invented and went into manufacture. This binder employed haywire to bind sheaves of grain, but its life was short. Within a year the twine binder came into use and it was such an improvement over the wire binder that the latter was forgotten about. The binders built at that time were so high that workmen needed a step ladder to climb to the top of them.

The London of sixty years ago was an entirely different place to what it is now. Mr. Collinson can remember picking beechnuts where McCormick's biscuit factory now stands, and he says the Exhibition Grounds occupies a spot known as Salter's Grove. It was in this grove that the workmen from the car shops would go shooting crows after work and every time a shell was fired, the crows would rise in a swarm and their clamor could be heard for blocks.

Engines Burned Wood

The engines of that day were all wood burners, and the shipping and cutting of wood for fuel gave work to many hundreds. Mr. Collinson remembers when the roundhouse was located on the north side of Bathurst street between Waterloo and Wellington streets. The siding ran near Bathurst street, and 15 to 20 flat cars loaded with wood from Wingham would be shunted on to the siding. Negroes would be employed to unload the cars, then they would cut the wood into large Blocks. He recalls when the piles of blocks would tower eighty feet in the air, and would contain hundreds of cords.

Mr. and Mrs. Collinson were married in All Saints' Church at Hamilton, fifty years ago today. Mrs. Collinson is 73 and her husband will be 76 next May. After their marriage they lived for a short time at Norwood, then moved to this city.

Mr. Collinson's first job in Peterborough was at the Peterborough Hamilton Foundry in this city, where Hood and Cumming Motors now stand. Then he went to the C.G.E. and was the first man hired by the late Robert Sheppard, who had the job taken over by the late Bob Dobie. That was more than 35 years ago. Later still, he quit the C.G.E. and went to the William Hamilton foundry. After working there for five years he turned to the C.G.E. and worked there off and on for 12 years. He quit work in 1930, and in recent years has been living retired except for some work at lawn mower sharpening and similar machine work in his own little workshop.

Mrs. Collinson was born in Milton, Ontario, and has enjoyed good health until the last few years, when her nerves have given her trouble. They have three children living and two are dead. Mrs. Martin Orme of Ottawa, and Mrs. Mason Wilson of Toronto are their two daughters, and their only son is Berwood Collinson also of Ottawa. They have 11 grandchildren.

At their celebration today they will share jubilee honors with Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Emery, Lock street, who will be their guests and who are also observing their 50th wedding anniversary.

Girls Are Advised To Not Smoke, Drink

Girls today would have more thought of them if they didn't smoke or drink, and in later years they will wish they had never acquired either habit. This was the comment made by Mrs. L. E. Emery, 179 Lock street this morning as a reporter visited Mr. and Mrs. Emery to felicitate the happy couple on their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

"It's only natural that every woman wishes to retain her beauty as long as she can, but if she drinks and smokes she will soon find to her dismay that her schoolgirl complexion and her sparkle have disappeared and she will be an old woman before her time," said Mrs. Emery.

She added that if there was to be a choice, the open bar of another generation was preferable to the beverage rooms of today, because women were ashamed to go in and stand at a bar to drink with the men, but now they patronize the beer parlors by the hundreds.

Worked on C.P.R.

Mr. Emery was born in Ganonoque and when the C.P.R. was being built east of Peterborough he obtained employment there, and met his wife whose maiden name was Emma Hubel. Mrs. Emery was born on a farm near Round Lake, north of Havelock. After their marriage which took place in the Norwood Baptist church and was solemnized by the Rev. Peer, they made their home in the village for many years.

Mr. Emery was engaged as a wheel maker at Finlay's Manufacturing plant in Norwood, and he grew hops for several years. When a large manufacturer gathered in almost all of the wheelmaking business, the work at Nowood slackened off, and the Emery's moved to Peterborough.

Mr. Emery's first job in the C.G.E. plant was in the insulation department under the supervision of the late John Perry, then in later years the department was supervised by J. G. M. Wilson. Mr. Emery worked continuously at the C.G.E. until 1934 when he reached retirement age and was pensioned off.

Recalls Early Havelock

Mrs. Emery said her earliest recollection of Havelock village was the time that workmen were building the hotel near the station. She was in the buggy driving past with her father when a workman slipped and fell from the scaffold to the ground, receiving serious injuries. The building was being put up for Clayton Glenn. This was shortly after the C.P.R. had been built through what is now Havelock, and location of the roundhouse there had brought a building boom.

a few scattered farm houses in the vicinity and from in front of McCutcheon's garage west towards Norwood was all swamp.

There were several disastrous fires in Norwood village while the Emery's were living there. The first conflagration wiped out the entire business section starting at the southwest corner of Highway 7 and the Hastings Road, and running south to the creek. Brennan's hotel, Waller's harness shop, Bob Stewart's drugstore and several other buildings all were razed.

Wiped Out by Fire

A few years later the opposite side of the street south of where the townhall now stands was wiped out in a business section fire. These two fires resulted in the business section moving a little to the north, although stores stand today where the buildings were burned down. Since Mr. and Mrs. Emery came to Peterborough there have been two other bad fires in the village.

Mr. Emery is 72 and his wife 70 but they both look many years younger and both are enjoying splendid health. Today they will have dinner with Mr. and Mrs. William Collinson, on Sherbrooke who are also observing their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Last year the Collinsons visited the Emerys and for almost twenty years now the two couples have been exchanging visits on anniversaries.

By RUTH AYERS

YESTERDAY: April avoids meeting Kent, and Ann is happy in her plans for the wedding. The idea is unbearable to April. She plans to go to the Burnett cabin, remain there. As she leaves, Winkie Appleman and the constable are waiting at the door for her.

CHAPTER XIX

"That's her," Winkie said.

"Sorry," the constable cut in, "have to serve a warrant on you." With that, he pressed a folded document into April's hands.

April had presence of mind enough to shut the front door behind her. She had on her fur jacket in readiness for Hal's arrival but even in it, she began to shake with cold and fright.

"What's wrong?" she managed to stutter.

"I'm a-suing you for personal injuries," Winkie drew out the phrase pleasurably. "Yes," he went on, "guess you ain't forgotten the night you knocked me down when you was taking Mister Kent Carter to the Pattonsville railroad station."

April leaned against the door. She'd never told anyone that she had taken Kent to the train that night. She'd never mentioned the run-in with Winkie. Now with this document in her hand, she felt as if her doom had been handed to her, signed, sealed and delivered.

If Ann knew, she would start being suspicious all over again about her, April, and Kent. When Dad found out, he would be shocked. It was going to hurt him in his professional standing—going to hurt everyone.

"You can't do this, Winkie Appleman," she whispered. "You know I settled with you."

"Settled!" Winkie snorted. "Think you can injure a man, maybe permanently, and settle it on the spot for a few dollars?"

The constable's eyes shifted around, came back to her. "That's not all," he said. "Got to charge you with failure to report an accident. Pretty strong laws about that in this state."

Winkie said, "I was hurt so bad that night, I didn't know what I was doing. I wanted to call an officer but you wouldn't let me."

April turned around, saw that the front door was shut securely. Inside, the living room lamps were lighted but out her on the porch there was only the dim bulb overhead. No one in the family had seen her yet, but she didn't dare chance it further.

She motioned Winkie and the constable down the steps. At any minute Hal would be here and know how to help her.

She stopped in front of the constable's car, her spirits lifting in a quick spurt of defiance.

"You can't prove anything, Winkie Appleman," she said. "This is no better than a hold-up and you can't prove a thing!"

"Oh, can't I?" Winkie sneered and twisted the shapeless brim of his hat. "I guess mebbe the check would speak for itself."

The check! What had been a blur of pain and horror to her that night in the Pattonsville railroad station, started to clarify. She had opened her purse and handed a few bills and some change at Winkie. He'd whined for more. She had remembered her check book and how with a numb, shaky hand had written a check.

"Make it $10," Winkie had said "and I won't say nothing."

April saw it all. Winkie, unscrupulous no-account that he might be, was legally within his rights.

"Very well," she said finally, "what am I supposed to do."

She heard the constable speak of posting bond, of appearing for a preliminary hearing. "What you waiting for?" the constable asked. "Why don't you come along with me now and get booked at the station without any fuss."

An upstairs window in the Burnett house opened. Through it into the crystal air, came a strain of song from Ann. At this minute, Ann was dressing for her date with Kent. Ann's wedding day would be soon.

"Yes, I'll go with you just as soon as a friend of mine arrives," she said. "I'll go without any fuss." There's only one thing I ask. Does anyone have to know of this? Does my father? You see," and she spoke very humbly, "we're going to have a wedding in our house and the fuss, the notoriety would spoil everything."

Again, through the window, she heard Ann's lovely voice, lifting in silver notes of happiness. April closed her eyes briefly.

Winkie was speaking from the corner of his mouth. "Trying to keep it on the sly a little longer."

April shuddered and then opened her eyes quickly. A clear, masculine voice was saying—"Keep what on the sly?"

Only one voice was like that. Not Dad, not Hal—Kent Carter!

"I asked—'keep what on the sly?'" Kent was repeating and in someway had come to stand by April, one hand steadying her.

The constable was ruffled. "Served a warrant on Miss Ethel Burnett here," he said. "Failed to report an accident—damage suit."

Kent took the papers from April's hand. "We'll see about it," he said. "I happened to have been a witness to this so-called accident."

Winkie was whining. "You're the fella that punched me in the face. Yep, knocked an old man down when he'd already been run over. I know you Kent Carter. Miss Ann's fella."

April felt Kent's fist double under her hand. "Please," she whispered and her face was close to his.

This was the first time she had seen him since he had returned, his sight restored. This was the first time she had been near him. She felt a headiness, a surge of joy sweeping her. For one absurd minute it seemed as if the hateful warrant, the shaming encounter with Winkie Appleman had been predestined for only one purpose— to bring her back to Kent.

Then she remembered Ann. Ann was in the Burnett house, safe, unsuspecting.

April pushed Kent aside. "Wait a minute," she began breathlessly, "I've got something to tell you all. I'll take the blame for this. It was my fault. I can see it through alone."

For the first time, she faced Kent squarely. She saw the beloved face, the eyes, clear now without the shadow of the dark glasses. "You, Kent," and she managed to make her voice hard and brittle, "you stay out of it."

She hadn't heard the door open or any sound on the steps. But something made her turn.

Ann was standing there, pale, fragile as a moonbeam. She looked first at April and then at Kent. "Whatever is the matter?" she asked.

Florida Squad Starts On Rugby

GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 18—(AP).—If the University of Florida turns up with dizzy doings on the gridiron next fall—charge it off to rugby.

Coach Tom Lieb—who learned a few football shenanigans from the late Knute Rockne—disclosed today he has prescribed the British game for his players, using it in spring practice to promote open-style play.

Rugby, says the Florida coach, is a game with good qualities appreciated by few Americans. And, he adds, if it is used properly in football training, "we can adopt a lot of plays from it.

"I may be all wet in the use of rugby," he says, "but the game of football is coming to it fast, and the people who pay to get in to see a game are entitled to action. The open style of play is becoming more and more popular, and if we develop ball-handlers instead of brutes we can utilize this style of play."

Oil Wells Slowed

CALGARY, March 18 (CP)—By authority of the Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board, the March schedule of allowable production of Turner Valley Oil Wells has been changed. An earlier order set total authorized production of the field at 806,000 barrels for the month. This figure has been lowered to 779,274.

back to ten feet or farther.

"The closer you are to the cup, naturally, the less is the margin for error. When you putt from three feet it is usually your accuracy that sends the ball into the cup. Farther away, other factors may enter in—such as the roll or the grain of the green.

"But you can't expect to sink a long one unless you stroke the ball properly, and practice on short putts gives you that solid foundation."

"If you aren't putting well it is likely to undermine your confidence in the rest of the game," he said. "That's why I would rather putt well consistently than brilliantly some of the time and poorly on other occasions."

They All Got Them

ELKHART, Ind., March 18 (AP) —A week ago Jim Warrick, coach of a swimming team, postponed for a week a meet with another team because 'half the members" of his team had the measles. Yesterday he postponed the meet again—indefinitely. "The other half of the squad," he said, "has the measles."

Now's the Time to Plan a Summer Rose Garden

Thrives With Little Care

Your doorway wreathed in roses —how charmingly it welcomes you!

Plant Dorothy Perkins to grow in a riot of pink blooms over a trellis each side of your entrance.

Then flank your steps with bush roses. Polyanthus are beautiful and hardy and bloom for you all summer long — in orange-scarlet, pink or white.

Though you can grow many roses from cuttings, those propagated by budding do better, particularly the "two-year field grown."

Plant firmly, so the "shoulder," where the grafted bud meets the main stem will be about two inches below the ground surface — as in our diagram.

Then, against the blushing glory of the roses, you can contrast the cool blue and white of cornflowers and candytuft — planted as a border for your walk. Lemon-scented thyme in the crevices will smell divinely when walked on.

A veritable little Eden so easily created! Our 32-page booklet tells how to prepare soil, fertilize, for a thriving garden. Gives directions for making a rich green lawn, for growing trees, shrubs, bulbs, annuals, perennials, vines, herbs.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO PLANT AND CARE FOR YOUR GARDEN to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO WAYS TO MAKE IT

SOMETIMES a contract can be made in either of two entirely different ways, one of them emphasizing foresight to prepare for an approaching situation and the other resourcefulness to cope with a problem which might have been prevented. But the player who lacks both of these qualities is likely to find how to beat himself, instead of one of the ways to win.

That was the bidding at one table of a duplicate. South was pretty lucky his partner kept it open with that weak hand. At other tables South opened with 2-Spades, but all reached game. In every case West started with three heart honor leads. All of the declarers saw they could make the contract if they lost one trump trick, but could get into the dummy and finesse diamonds successfully.

One declarer, to help make the spade 10 an entry to dummy, used keen foresight in ruffing the third heart with the J, so as to leave himself two trumps smaller than the 10. He then played the spade A, club A and spade 9. West took this with his Q and led his last heart, the 10 being ruffed by the spade 7 and over-ruffed by the K. The spade 8 to the 10 now enabled the declarer to finesse the diamond 9 and make his contract.

The other two Souths impetuously ruffed the third heart with the spade 8. One of these then laid down the spade A and club A, then led the spade 9 to the Q. West returned his spade 6, and South was locked in his hand, unable to under-play the spade 10, so had to lose the setting diamond at the end.

The third South also carelessly ruffed the third heart low, then laid down the club A and the spade A and K. When he led the spade 9, West had to win with the Q and then lead. If he chose a heart or club, declarer would be in the dummy, so he picked a diamond, and that was just as good as if declarer were leading diamonds himself. So he too made his contract, by an entirely different route from the first one.

Horses Save The Day

TACOMA, Wash., March 18 (AP. — Automobile horns tooted and drivers growled when Frank Ayers' truck broke down in the middle of a busy South Tacoma street. In the midst of the bedlam, Ayers calmly walked to the rear of his truck, let down the end gates and led out two magnificent Percheron horses. He then hooked the doubletree to the truck bumper, took the reins in one hand, the steering wheel in the other and unsnarled the traffic at a sedate Percheron trot.

Shipping Attack Britain's Worst Menace

By SAM ROBERTSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

OTTAWA, March 18 (CP) — A German attempt at economic strangulation applied through submarine and bombing warfare on a totalitarian scale, is the gravest menace Britain faces today.

This has displaced the prospect of armed invasion as the darkest threat when I left England and her bravely battling people recently. "Zero hour" is expected with the Spring.

Even under winter's unfavorable conditions Nazi marauders of the sea and sky have taken a disconcerting toll of merchantmen.

While we were at sea Canada bound the radio told us Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, had stated two-thirds of the appalling shipping losses had been made up. A magnificent accomplishment but not so comforting as it might seem to be on first consideration. Here are some of the reasons:

The Commonwealth's total tonnage at the outbreak of war was far from sufficient to meet wartime needs. In spite of great purchases and seizure of enemy craft we are worse off now. And at the moment it is so vitally necessary that we be a good deal better off if we are to gain the full benefit from America's accelerating production of planes, guns, tanks and other war material.

Even as things are the situation as regards food stocks for instance, is unsatisfactory and there are indications Hitler can make good his threat to tighten the blockade of the United Kingdom

Kaiser Wilhelm started the first Great War with only 28 submarines. The Fuehrer had an estimated 70.

Wilhelm was able to construct an average of 100 a year from 1916 onward. When the armistice came the rate was rising. But Wilhem had only the yards of Germany and Austria-Hungary. Hitler has all of those—and in addition the yards of France, Italy., Holland, Belgium, Norway, Denmark and Sweden. Rumania and Bulgaria may help. So, too, may Japan and Russia.

French Subs Not in the Clear.

The French submarine fleet can not yet be considered out of his hungry grasp. There are sound reasons for believing that if Wilhelm could produce 100 undersea raiders annually, Hitler can turn out five or six times that many.

The gallant men who sail under the Red Ensign, the food and other supplies they transport, already face the threat of multi-engined bombers while they are anywhere within 1,000 miles of Britain.

Beyond that danger belt there are surface raiders. It may be a fast, heavily-gunned pocket battleship. It can be an innocent enough looking merchantman that drops secret doors, raises secret gun platforms, and suddenly becomes a merchant cruiser bristling with fire power.

An answer to the grave problem which threatens to become more grave is being fashioned by the United Kingdom, the Dominions, and the United States.

Canadian yards have produced many of the light, fast corvettes. Some of them now serving in British home waters as a part of the Royal Navy are manned by Canadian tars. Upwards of another two score of the little sea terriers are expected to sail from Canada to Britain this spring.

Their nom-de-guerre is apt. A corvette crewman explained: "They hunt out those undersea rats just like a terrier would."

Their speed and manoeuvreability —"You can wheel them on a dime," the same sailor said—make them especially suited to anti-sub work.

But the real solution to the dour problem can be furnished only by more merchantmen. Britain is doing her part, but she needs every bit of help American yards can give her.

A public series of lectures in the relations of the United States and Brazil are being given in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

13th Hydro Bill Is Rebate $3,654 To City

As it is "thirteenth bill" from the Hydro-Electric Commission, the Utilities Commission receives a rebate of $3,654.75 on its 1940 operations.

For 1939 the thirteenth bill was a debit of $3,321.76, an extra charge against the Utilities Commission, as reported at its meeting on Monday afternoon. The comparative result for the two years amounted to an improvement of $6,976.51.

R. L. Dobbin, manager, presented the following report for February:

Electrical Department.

The peak for February, 1941, was 10,675 horse-power, as compared with 9,475 horse-power in February, 1940.

This show a pea kincrease of 1,200 horse-power over last year. There has been a general increase by all consumers, and the kilowatt hours at the sub-station have increased about 6 per cent. over the corresponding month of last year.

Fifteen flat rate water heaters were installed during the month. There are now 1,854 electric flat rate heaters connected to the system, with a total capacity of 919.65 kilowatts, or 1,232.33 horse-power.

Six range services were installed. Since May, 1936, we have installed 661.

Waterworks Department.

The pumpage for February, 1941, was 74,686,000 gallons as compared with 72,593,000 gallons in February, 1940.

During the month it was necessary to use a fairly high amount of alum because the color of the raw water was high. The use of this alum necessitated the use of soda ash to ensure an alkaline water.

We are not equipped to feed soda ash regularly, and have set up temporary apparatus to feed it.

Gas Sales Up.

Footage of gas sold in January showed a gain over the same month a year ago. The total number of cubic feet in January this year was 3,140,900 as compared with 3,007,200 in the first month of 1940. Increases were in commercial and industrial consumption.

In the sale of electric power increases were registered in all classifications, domestic up 7.8 per cent, commercial lighting up 8.9 per cent, and commercial power up 6.7 per cent.

The number of kilowatt hours sold by meter in January were as follows: Domestic lighting 891,802, commercial lighting 506,003, commercial power 1,107,734; and the corresponding totals for January, 1940, were: Domestic lighting 827,091, commercial lighting 464,643, commercial power 1,038,293.

Two Weeks Pay Given All Men Who Join Army

Every employee of the Western Clock Company who has enlisted in the Active Service Forces or who has been called up for military service under the Compulsory Military Training Act is entitled to two weeks' pay under a new scheme introduced at the Westclox Plant today. The plan is retroactive to the outbreak of war.

When the war broke out J. H. Vernor, general manager, announced the company policy with regards to enlistments, but as time went on, he felt that the policy was not generous enough, consequently it is being changed to embrace all branches of military service, both reserve and active.

Been Paying Difference

Under the first scheme the Company had been paying the trainees, the difference between their army pay of $1.20 a day and their regular factory wages, but the new scheme gives them two weeks full pay and they have the army pay as well.

Cheques will go to all employees who have completed their training periods in military training centre either today or early next week.

Thus, too, under the new plan all soldiers, sailors and airmen from the Westclox now on active service have a cheque for two weeks' pay coming to them, and this will be delivered as soon as addresses and other information is properly checked.

The March edition of the shop organ, "Tick Talk" carries the complete text of the new War Service Policy and the details are as folows:

The War Service policy announced in September, 1939, assured Westcloxers entering His Majesty's forces that they would receive preference in filling suitable vacancies with the Company and upon re-entering the employ of the Company would be granted continuous service. That statement of policy is now being superseded by a new war service policy announced herewith which has the effect of renewing and extending the former policy for those entering such service after today. Under the new policy Westcloxers entering His Majesty's forces or called for training will receive preference in filling suitable vacancies with the Company, will receive half pay at hourly rates for four weeks from the Company and will be granted continuous service, in accordance with details outlined below:

1. Any Westcloxer, other than temporary, enlisting in His Majesty's forces or called for training under the National War Service Regulation will be carried while absent from work on account of such service or training, in the Unassigned Department and will have his name placed on a "Military Service" list during such service or training up to a maximum of the duration of the war.

2. Any person on the "Military Service" list, who, being physically fit, makes application for reinstatement after an honorable discharge from His Majesty's forces or training under the National War Service Regulations, will receive preference in filling suitable vacancies with the Company. Westclox will, of course, fulfill all Government requirements in regard to re-instatement.

3. Westclox will pay each person on the "Military Service" list half pay at his hourly rate for the first four weeks of such service or training. This payment will be made on regular pay days. Any Westcloxer who has already received a payment will not, of course, receive it again.

4. Westcloxers who are so reinstated will be treated on the records as though they had been in the Company's continuous service throughout. Employee benefits are, of course, on a year to year basis and insofar as they may be renewed will apply to men on the "Military Service" list and to those so re-instated as follows:

Group Insurance will be carried in full for men on the "Military Service" list providing arrangements are made to have their contributions deducted from their four weeks payment referred to above.

Sickness Benefits will, of course, not be applicable to men on the "Military Service" list but upon re-instatement will apply to members, without a waiting period.

Vacation with Pay will also not be applicable to men on the "Military Service" list, but will apply commencing with the calendar year of return if reinstated between January 1 and June 30, and commencing with the following calendar year if re-instated between July 1 and December 31.

5. For those Westcloxers who have already entered His Majesty's forces or have entered training under the National War Service Regulation since September 1, 1939, and are now absent from work on that account, it is the intention that they should not be less favorably treated than those entering after the date of this announcement; accordingly the same general principles as above will apply retroactively insofar as practical, as outlined below. These Westcloxers will have their names immediately placed on the "Military Service" list and the above provisions will apply as if they had entered such service or training at the time of this announcement. In addition, upon being re-instated, as referred to above, these Westcloxers will be treated on the records as having been in the Company's continuous service since they entered such service or training. Furthermore, upon returning to the Company's employ, they will be given an opportunity to enter the Income and Pension Plan in accordance with the terms thereof.

6. This policy is non-contractual and in the event any changes are made, such changes will apply to only those entering His Majesty's forces or called for training under the National War Service Regulation after the announcement of such changes.

Shape Up Credit Union League

TORONTO, March 18 (CP) — George Scott, secretary of an organizing committee which has as its object the formation of an Ontario Credit Union League announced yesterday a draft constitution has been prepared for mailing to the individual credit unions in the province. The league will be similar to those in existence in Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan.

The draft was prepared at t meeting here Saturday between members of the committee and representatives of the provincial agriculture department which has supervision over the unions.

A committee of three was appointed to set a time and place for a meeting of all the unions to inaugurate the league. Mr. Scott, W. B. Mowle, Toronto, and Gordon Smith, Hamilton, form the committee. It is understood the gathering will be held near the end of May.

The meeting adopted two resolutions. One protested that the present basis of taxing credit unions under the Corporation Tax Act was "inequitable" and reconsideration of the law was urged. The other motion advocated an inspection of all credit unions books as at present provided under the provisions of the Credit Unions Act.

There are approximately 60 chartered unions in the province. Services of Prof. A. B. Macdonald of St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, N.S., will be sought in getting the league in operation.

Girls' Club Discusses Proper Posture

CAMPBELLFORD, March 18. — (ENS).— Demonstrations on posture by two members of the Seymour West Girls' Club formed an interesting contribution to the weekly meeting held on Saturday at the home of Mrs. Chas. Fraser, Victoria street. It was the second meeting of the re-organized group which has taken as its motto "The Canadian Girls Stand on Guard."

Misses Jerine Hendy and Mary Rutherford gave the demonstrations on posture which were supplemented by the use of charts and pictures which clearly showed the correct position of standing and sitting.

Preparatory to the next meeting the leader, Mrs. Chas. Fraser asked each member to bring a sample of the well water from their home which would be subsequently sent to the Department of Health for analysis. A discussion on the topic, "Safe Water" will be in charge of Misses Mary Hoard and Evelena Hendy next week and under the heading of First Aid, Misses Ruth Kellogg and Ruby Lewis will lead a discussion, while Misses Dolly MacDowall and Jean Lewis will talk on "Open Cuts and Wounds."

Four new members were welcomed to the meeting this week.

Canada Initials Seaway Deal; New Agreement Up Friday Before Parliament, Congress

U.S. Expects To Swing Project Through By Not Handling It As Treaty; May Confine Start To Power Dam

OTTAWA, March 19—(CP).—The St. Lawrence River power-seaway agreement between Canada and the United States was signed today in the name of the two countries.

Actual signing of the agreement took place at about 2.40 p.m., E.D.T., some 20 minutes before the House of Commons was scheduled to begin its afternoon sitting.

The signing ceremonies took place in the office of Prime Minister Mackenzie King in the east block of the Parliament Buildings.

Mr. King signed for Canada. J. P. Moffat, United States Minister to Canada, signed for the United States along with A. A. Berle, assistant Secretary of State, and John Hickerson of the United States State Department.

The agreement itself is not expected to be made public until later when release will be simultaneous in Washington and Ottawa.

Finishing touches on the documents were made during the last two days. A. A. Berle, United States assistant Secretary of State, arrived in Ottawa yesterday in this connection.

It was learned the agreement was to be signed in the east block office of the Prime Minister.

Mr. King will sign for Canada and J. P. Moffat, United States Minister to the Dominion, will initial the agreement for the United States.

President Roosevelt said in Washington yesterday the pact would take the form of an agreement rather than a treaty. The 1932 treaty for the St. Lawrence development failed to obtain the required two-thirds in the United States Senate.

By submitting to Congress an executive agreement instead of a treaty it is stated bare majorities in both Houses would enable the agreement to be brought into effect. The terms of the agreement will be announced in simultaneous releases in Ottawa and Washington, it was learned.

Raider Victims

New York, March 19 (CP)

DOMEI (Japanese news agency) broadcast today a press claim that the Netherlands East Indies steamship Rantaupandjang, 2,542 tons, had been sunk by the German Pacific Ocean raider Tokyo Maru.

The Tokyo newspaper Nichi Nichi received the report from Batavia. The dispatch said no passengers were aboard.

The Tokyo Maru is one of three raiders credited in Axis circles with sinking at least six ships in the South Pacific between Dec. 6 and 8.

Nichi Nichi's dispatch said the Rantaupandjang had been overdue for a week.

Hull Suffers Heavily In Long Raid

Bombers Run Barrage In Waves For High Death Toll

LONDON, March 19 — (CP). — Royal Air Force bombers concentrated upon Northern German seaports last night and early today, while Nazi raiders heavily attacked Hull on England's northeast coast and gave London its longest alarm since last December.

A communique today said the Germans' "main effort during the night was concentrated on a town on the northeast coast," and added, "The attack was on a heavy scale." It later identified the town.

Numerous fires were started and incendiary bombs and explosives showered down, but all were reported "extinguished by daybreak."

The attack was continuous for hours, the raiders roaring over in waves, except for one short lull.

Incendiaries fell on a hospital. A theatre and a dance hall were hit. Two persons were killed when a row of small houses was destroyed.

Rescuers, sometimes tearing aside bricks and debris with their bare hands, struggled to reach many victims feared trapped.

Homes were demolished and some persons trapped, too, in the early morning bombing of London, mostly by planes attacking singly through an intense anti-aircraft barrage.

An all-clear came at dawn, ending an alarm started shortly after 11 p.m.—London's longest this year, though hours shorter than some of last Fall's dusk-to-dawn attacks.

Raiders also were reported over South and Southeast coast towns, but the communique said "damage was not heavy at any of these points, nor were casualties numerous."

One German bomber was shot down off the Norfolk coast after daybreak by an R.A.F. fighter plane which watchers saw race out to sea for an air fight in which cannon and

Bar Them Hunting

Toronto, March 19 (CP)

THE Essex County Sportsmen's Association today asked the fish and game committee of the Ontario Legislature to refuse conscientious objectors the right to hunt in the province.

H. V. Sutton, Windsor, representing the association, said it was felt that conscientious objectors "who refuse to carry arms to help or protect Canada in time of war should be refused the privilege of carrying guns at any time for any purpose."

He said there was a strong feeling in Windsor that the foreign-born, who were not interested in fighting to protect their homes or the homes of their neighbors, should not be permitted to take life even from a sporting viewpoint.

Call For Homers

New York, March 19 (CP)

THE Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies appealed Tuesday for 3,000 young homing pigeons to reinforce British military communications. Two hundred birds are required for shipment Friday.

Thomas E. Black, president of the New York and New Jersey centre of the American Racing Union, co-operating with the committee in the appeal, said he has been informed that every Royal Air Force plane carried a homing pigeon. If the plane is forced down in water, the pigeon is released with a message enabling planes or ships to be sent to the rescue.

All West Ontario Shovelling As Storm Abates

TORONTO, March 19 (CP) — Weather forecasts promised relief today to snowbound Western Ontario villages and towns as the storm which burst over the country during the week-end began to abate. Many communities dug themselves out of drifts.

Late last night a path was broken along Highway 90, the road to Camp Borden, one of the Dominion's largest training centres, which was almost isolated for several hours.

Dufferin county was the hardest hit in the province. Several communities were cut off except to train service. The villages of Horning's Mills, Reddickville and Honeywood were isolated, but residents said they were well supplied with food supplies.

Weather bureau officials said they expected the wind to drop during the day after blowing with gale force since Sunday. Many districts had no snow yesterday but high winds drifted highways and blew the snow back into the paths of plows.

In the Shelburne district it was the worst March blizzard in history. Many motorists caught in the storm sought shelter in the town but yesterday the excess population fell away to a mere handful as trains running behind plows got through. Yesterday morning the temperature at Shelburne dropped to five below zero.

Bog Down Again

A group of travellers from Owen Sound followed a plow towards Shelbourne but when they were a mile and a half north of the town early yesterday it bogged down and they took shelter in a farmhouse.

U.S. Planes Pour Into Greece; Turk Chief Leaves For Egypt To Consult Eden

Istanbul Press Sees Only Balkan Hope Is Quick Strong British Action; Belgrade Says Anti-Nazi Stand Stiffened

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 19—(AP).—The Balkans edged nearer a showdown in the British-Axis diplomatic struggle today with a German report that Yugoslavia would cast her lot with the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo lineup March 26.

German circles here circulated this report following a 90-minute meeting between German Minister Viktor von Heeren and Yugoslav Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovic.

These quarters said the signing would be witnessed by Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, now en route to Rome and Berlin for Axis conferences.

The German-Yugoslav negotiations were matched at the other end of the Balkans by reliable reports that Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu of Turkey had left aboard a British plane for Palestine. He was believed to be en route to Egypt to confer with the British Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden.

British Must Act.

With the British command reported pouring some 300,000 troops into Greece, the Istanbul newspaper Yeni Sabah declared that a strong British stand "is the only thing that can prevent a German victory" in the Balkans.

Diplomatic messages reaching Belgrade said the Royal Air Force began landing United States-made planes to-day in Greece for the anticipated Battle of the Balkans.

R.A.F. pilots were said to have flown the planes from Cairo. Details as to the number and types were not disclosed.

Despite the German reports here, high Yugoslav quarters declared the Belgrade Government had stiffened its attitude toward the Nazis, especially since British troops have landed in Greece.

There was an unconfirmed report here that a special Russian envoy had arrived from Moscow to discuss foreign policy with Yugoslav leaders, but official quarters said no Russian had been received recently and the Soviet Legation denied the story.

A despatch passed by military censor at Athens said the Governors of Turkish and Grecian Thrace met at Karagatch, a railway station near Adrianople at the eastern end of the Bulgarian-Greek frontier.

Not more than 100 miles separates massed Nazi forces poised north of that frontier from recently landed British troops who are reported moving north through Greece.

At the same time, Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu was reported at Ankara to have gone to Palestine or Egypt for new talks

Judge Acquits John Kemp Of Manslaughter

COBOURG, March 19.—(Special to The Examiner).—John Kemp of Morganston, charged with manslaughter as a result of a motor accident in which William Greenley of Percy Township was killed on October 26 last, was found not guilty last night in assize court here when Mr. Justice Kelly took the case from the jury on the grounds that there was not sufficient evidence to permit the jury to test the degree of negligence. Proceeding today is the charge against Kemp of not remaining at the scene of the accident.

At the conclusion of the Crown's case, Charles Payne, K.C., of Belleville, defence counsel, moved that the case be taken from the jury in connection with the manslaughter charge.

"How can the jury determine the degree of negligence from the evidence. Where is there a disregard of care or where is there criminal negligence," Mr. Payne submitted in support of his motion.

Gestapo Use Bait On Dutch

Trap Patriots By Luring Them Out 'To Join British Legion'

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, March 19—(CP).—The German Gestapo in Holland, trouble over its failure to round up organizers of street fights, strikes, sabotage and campaigns of organized insults to Nazi troops, is said to have resorted to traps with a "help Britain" bait to catch the culprits.

Radio Orance, the Netherlands Government broadcasting station in Britain, has issued a warning to loyal Netherlanders not to be caught by the Gestapo trick, and Vrij Nederland, the free Dutch newspaper published here, has received from its own sources information concerning the sort of trap the Gestapo is believed to have laid successfully.

"Agents of the Gesttapo deliberately spread a story that all those young men who wished to join the Netherlands Legion in Britain should report at a certain country district where there is a large and isolated lake nearby," the paper says. "They were told that a large British flying boat had been landing on the lake and taking off with volunteers thought suitable for the Legion. No baggage was to be taken but it was suggested if firearms were available they should be carried.

"This ruse was operated effectively by the Gestapo who were waiting at the scene when the would-be volunteers arrived. Most of of them had fallen for the carry-a-firearm request. All those trapped by the Gestapo are said to be in the Schevening prison which people living in the neighborhood say is so crammed with loyalist prisoners that it is now called "The Orange Residential Hotel'."

LONDON, March 19 (CP).—Home Secretary Herbert Morrison warned Britain's civilian population in a broadcast last night to "stand firm" in the event of an invasion attempt so that there would be no flight of terror-stricken refugees such as helped the Nazis on the continent in 1940.

He said that the "military chiefs have made plans for the defence of Britain on the basis of complete confidence that you won't let them down."

Millions who had withstood air bombardment, the Home Secretary pointed out, should know what to do under the strain of invasion battle.

He advised civilians that what-

British Offensive Looming?

See Haste In African Campaign Sign Big Things Brewing

LONDON, March 19—(CP).—British strategists appear to be planning something in the nature of a European offensive this spring, judging from the haste with which they are seeking to end the war in Africa and free troops for service elsewhere.

The British forces, reported to be the largest army ever assembled in Africa, are supported by numerous Allied troops. Polish, Free French, Ethiopian loyalists, Belgians and many others.

The military explanation for haste, heard in Cairo, was that a race must be won against the long rainy season in Ethiopia, during which it is virtually impossible to move mechanized equipment.

Other sources suggested, however, that one of the reasons for speed was a desire to finish the African campaign, get troops to Greece and be ready for a German offensive southward or to launch one northward.

The likelihood of such a German offensive developing is doubted in many quarters and the massing of German troops along the Bulgarian-Greek border and in Rumania is regarded as possibly defensive.

Color was lent to this argument by the increasing stiffness of the Yugoslavian Government toward German demands for free passage of troops through Yugoslavia. The Yugoslavs were Serbs and Croats in the last war, fought on the Allies' side and were noted for their courage and stubborn independence of spirit.

London Cleans Up In Hurry

Takes Practised Eye To Tell Bomb Spots Of 1940

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Mar. 19 — (CP). — London is battered and scarred after more than six months' aerial bombardment, but it often takes a practised eye to detect where a bomb fell some time back. Demolition workers and repair squads have cleaned up many of the worst spots.

Some weeks ago a large bomb dropped on a busy road junction. A huge crater was formed, filled with tangled steel girders and tons of masonry. After the grim task of digging out the dead and injured was completed, cranes, steam shovels, "bull-dozers" and trucks were assembled. In a few days the debris

Ottawa Hinting Provinces Repay Loans

OTTAWA, March 19 (CP)—Evidence the Dominion Government, in its search for money to carry on the war, looks to the provincial governments to repay part of the sums advanced to them in recent years is before the House of Commons.

Correspondence with the governments of Alberta and British Columbia tabled in the House of Commons yesterday disclosed the approach to the coast province led to a sharp exchange between Premier T. D. Pattullo on the one hand and Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Finance Minister Ilsley on the other.

At the same time the House, discussing the war appropriations bill in committee of the whole, heard Navy Minister Macdonald say Canadian shipbuilders would succeed in completing a four-year-program in 2½ years and Munitions Minister Howe declare shipbuilding capacity was being used 100 per cent and expanded as rapidly as possible.

Early in the afternoon session, War Services Minister Gardiner tabled the revised and consolidated regulations for the new four-month compulsory military training program. The amended regulations retain the general principles laid down for the original 30-day train-

Among them was Lac. J. A. Wain of Toronto who said they had stayed in their cars at night with the engines running to keep warm.

There were fears that one person had been lost in the storm. Residents of Wingham said that Joseph Valad, 49-year-old Cargill resident, had been missing since Monday. Anxiety over the safety of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zilliax of Durham, who had been missing since Sunday, abated when provincial police reported that they were staying at a farmhouse in Arthur.

In many places the blizzard filled in provincial and side-roads, forced closing of rural schools and disrupted milk deliveries. Mail couriers have been unable to make their rounds in several parts.

Communities such as Belgrave Londesboro reported that they feared a bread shortage by tomorrow unless supplies were able to get through. The London, Huron and Bruce noon train in that area was cancelled because crews reported that the snow was filling in almost as quickly as the train got through.

In some parts of Wellington and Grey counties doctors were unable to move over the blocked roads and gave medical advice to their patients by telephone.

Gas Company officials in half a dozen Western Ontario communities were looking for a rise in temperature to ease the demands for natural gas which are exceeding the rate of flow from the wells.

Guelph Shaking Drifts

With the let-up in the three-day storm reports began to come in of renewed efforts to clear blocked roads. Guelph reported that highways leading to Toronto and Hamilton had been opened to traffic and communications were being restored to normal.

From the northern section of Wellington county came reports that highway crews were working to break the road between Guelph and Owen Sound. They expected to have the road clear late today.

Between Fergus and Arthur plow crews had little hope of breaking a road before nightfall. In some places they reported 10 and 12-foot drifts with dozens of stalled cars blocking the highway.

Few farms on the road between Durham and Fergus have not given shelter to stranded motorists. "There have been people coming and going ever since last Sunday," said R. Snowe, Arthur township farmer. "I have no idea how many we've had but they've all been welcome. They all seemed to enjoy themselves."

Many plow crews in the Fergus district have worked stretches of as much as 60 hours with time out only for meals. Snow ceased falling in the area early this morning and plowmen were working in bright sunshine.

Dublin, March 19 (CP).

PRIME MINISTER De Valera in a broadcast to the United Statse reaffirmed Tuesday Eire's determination to oppose use of this land by any belligerent as a base of attack. He appealed to America to sell Irishmen wheat and guns.

"We are in grave danger of being short in our bread supply, which will work a grievous hardship to children and the poor unless we can import wheat to fill the gap," he said.

He added that Frank Aiken, the minister for co-ordination of defensive measures, had gone to the United States to get wheat and other essential raw materials and arms, explaining that Eire's soldiers are "not unarmed, but we want to arm them with the best weapons available."

P. C. Silvester Transferred To Bowmanville

Provincial Constable David Silvester who has been on duty in Peterborough county, with headquarters here, for over ten years is to be transferred to Durham county, with headquarters at Bowmanville, he has been advised from district headquarters.

The change is to take effect by April 15, the announcement states.

Constable Silvester will be succeeded here by Provincial Constable Prime Morris who has been on duty at Bowmanville for seven years.

The two officers are thus changing posts, in line with the general policy of the provincial force in not leaving its constables too long in one territory.

Constable Silvester came to Peterborough in October of 1930, succeeding Sergt. Harry Thompson who was transferred to Belleville headquarters. A veteran officer of the provincial force, with previous experience in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, he has had an excellent record in Peterborough county and has made a lot of friends in the city and district who will be sorry to learn that he is leaving Peterborough but who will unite in wishing him all success in his new duties in Durham county.

"Nazi broadcasters from Bremen say that the Jews invited the troubles, but the official Nazi spokesmen have not attempted to keep up this pretence. They say that trade union chiefs are behind the strikes and that they have set the workmen against Nazi authority."

Copies of the two papers for March 1 last, contained an editorial purporting to explain the first editorial, were filed by Defence Counsel J. D. Watt.

Words in the January 11 editorial "particularly objected to," said Mr. Mercier, were:

"When the lads come home from overseas after some years of service at the real business end of a Bren gun they will know better where to shoot than Canadian veterans did in the years of debt and privation after the last war."

Meant Ballots.

As the March 1 editorial explained, said Mr. Watt, this meant simply to shoot "with ballots."

He said Mr. Lapointe's statement in the House indicated that the Minister of Justice had "prejudged" the case. Besides being Minister of Justice and Attorney-General for Canada, Mr. Lapointe was "a dominant figure in a political party."

As soon as the Citizen got the full text of Mr. Lapointe's statement ....it was quick to explain the full meaning and intent of the editorial which is the subject of this case," he said.

"....Freedom of the press is regarded as one of the natural rights of mankind. If the newspapers of this country are to be summoned before the bar of justice for commenting upon matters of national concern which involve criticism of the administration, it must be submitted that one of the bulwarks of democracy has in the heat of combat been entirely swept aside.

"If the Government is to be given the right to stifle their criticisms then one of the great freedoms for which we now are fighting has indeed disappeared."

Mr. Mercier said the Citizen was "one of the best newspapers in Canada," and while it may not have been the writer's intention the January 11 editorial nevertheless might prejudice recruiting "to a very great extent. Regardless of subsequent explanations, the editorial must be considered as it appeared first.

"The law is hard, but it is the law," he said.

Dolan Charges U.S. Flag Use 'Cheap Appeal'

TORONTO, March 19. — Stating that 12 per cent of all imports from United States were paid for by money realized through the Canadian tourist industry, Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Tourist Bureau, Ottawa, yesterday pleaded with all Canadians to do their share to bring this wealth to the country. Mr. Dolan was speaking at the annual luncheon meeting of the Canadian National Live Stock Records Bureau at the Royal York Hotel.

United States citizens do not come to Canada to view the mountains, lake and streams, because they have these things in the United States, said Mr. Dolan. "They come because this country has a charm of its own, because it is foreign to them, because it is Canadian, because it is British."

He said he was "sick, sore and tired" of seeing the Stars and Stripes displayed over hot-dog stands as a 'cheap appeal to United States tourists." If Canadians must fly a flag, they "do not need to be told which flag to display during the present march and crash of world events."

He pleaded with citizens of this country to create a "purely Canadian flavor—even on hotel and restaurant menus, where American phrases such as 'Omaha potatoes,' 'Cape Cod oysters' and 'Oregon apples' are frequently used to catch the eye of United States visitors."

The speaker told the livestock breeders that his department had received scores of letters from United States visitors complaining of the cheap manner in which "Old Glory" was being displayed for commercial purposes. One of these letters said that the writer had seen more American flags in a few minutes' drive from Windsor than he had seen across the entire State of Michigan.

Speaking of the necessity for the Provinces to maintain good roads, Mr. Dolan declared that no investment had shown better or quicker returns than had the expenditures on roads. About 85 per cent of United States tourists, he said, came to Canada by motor car.

In a brief address to the livestock men, Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, foresaw an improved situation for agriculture, particularly in the livestock branches. Better conditions, he said, were indicated already by increased beef prices, increased prices for wool, hogs, increased demand for milk and in the rlease of millions of pounds of meat recently from storage plants for shipment overseas.

Cairo and Nairobi, Kenya colony and the Middle East command said "our general advance is continuing."

Particularly heavy pressure by Ethiopian natives was said to be developing against Debra Markos, in northwestern Ethiopia above Addis Ababa.

Heavy Italian forces have held up the British advance at Cheren.

Jijiga fell Monday before the advance of British troops who penetrated Ethiopia from Italian Somaliland about two weeks ago and advanced over the Mogadiscio-Harar road.

These troops swept up over the vast arid Ogaden plateu 160 miles in three days, then slowed their advance. Pilots of bombers and fighting planes who preceded them reported the Italians were on the run.

At Jijiga the road turns west to Harar, 50 miles distant. Jijiga itself lies 70 miles southeast of Diredawa, on the railroad to Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital.

A military spokesman said the troops which began the advance from Mogadiscio would attempt to cut the railway, thus isolating Addis Ababa, as other British forces advanced from the west and south.

London Cleans Up

was shifted, in a few weeks the crater was bridged and traffic was flowing again.

A big department store on a busy shopping street was hit last fall. Its gaunt skeleton was one of London't grimmest spectacles. Since then it has been cleared up until little remains but part of the ground floor framework and the foundations.

One of the hardest-hit spots is the Isle of Dogs—a narrow neck of land in the middle of the Thames dock zone, surrounded on three sides by the river. Here wharves, docks, warehouses, factories, and small houses are jumbled together.

A bus ride around the Isle of Dogs shows plenty of bomb damage —demolished buildings, craters in street. Let's take Stebondale Road —it's only a quarter-mile long—as an illustration of what can be done with lavish use of high explosives.

On one side of Stebondale Road I counted 49 houses or stores and a church wrecked or damaged so badly they were unoccupied. There was a big open space where a dozen or more houses once stood. Only a few brick remain now. The debris has been removed.

The other side wasn't quite so bad. Only 34 houses and stores were empty due to enemy action. A mission hall with its roof punctured, its windows agape, also testified to the fury of the assault.

Few of the remaining houses were intact. Some had top storeys gutted, others had windows out. But people were living in them.

Children roller-skated in the street, joked with the passers-by. Cats and dogs roamed around. At the end of the street a pub was still open undamaged except for a few boarded-up windows.

Most forlorn spectacle was a row of damaged houses. Roofs had fallen in, upper floors sagged at crazy leaned perilously atop the debris. Wallpaper flapped in the breeze.

Ruins All Levelled

In another district of badly-battered Popular Borough I saw gaping scars where heavy calibre bombs had burst. A block of Council flats was wrecked. A brick and concrete surface shelter had caved in. One street had an ugly bare space where houses formerly stood. What was left of them had been torn down.

The outer wall of the end demolished house stood against a row of houses that were intact. Its fireplaces were there, the wallpaper clung to the walls, you could see the partitions between the rooms.

On the other side of the capital, a busy shopping centre where important street converge has been pounded with high explosives. Hardly a building in a quarter-mile stretch has escaped. Some are demolished, some without top storeys, others suffered relatively slight blast damage. Yet on a mile-long residential street nearby I saw only a few broken windows, except for one bad spot where a heavy calibre bomb had knocked down several houses.

In another area I walked through what was left of a house which got the direct blast of a bomb falling in a playing field about 50 yards away. This was a bomb with exceptionally thin casing, designed to explode on contact and do considerable damage over a wide area.

People in the house when the projectile exploded ducked under a table and escaped injury. But the house was a shambles. The roof was almost ripped off. Window frames were smashed in, windows blown out even at the back of the building. Plaster had dropped off the ceilings. Of the 40 odd doors all but three were twisted so they couldn't be opened.

Surrounding houses up to a distance of 150 yards from where the bomb fell suffered damage in varying degree.

Yugoslav officials declared anew they would resist German demands to permit Nazi troops through their country—best avenue for blows at Salonika or the Greek flank in Albania.

One Belgrade official characterized as "premature if not completely incorrect" reports circulated abroad that Yugoslavia might give military support to the British or Greeks, or might hold defence conversations with Turkey.

Other reports reaching Belgrade indicated Mussolini has asked Hitler for one more chance to score a decisive military victory in Albania before ordering the German military machine to roll in.

From the Greek front, where last week's Italian offensive was smothered, there were no indications that the Fascist forces are ready or preparing for another big try.

A German source in Belgrade suggested several reasons why the Nazi army in Bulgaria has not struck already—or might not soon do so.

They included this:—

Three months were necessary to consolidate the German position in Rumania, so it might be expected several more weeks would be required to prepare for a major move south from Bulgaria.

James Y. Nicol, well-known Canadian newspaperman, has been commissioned as a pilot officer in the R.C.A.F. and is now at Trenton taking an administration course.

Stiffened Tests To Face Coming Officers

OTTAWA, March 19 (CP)—More taxing tests than ever laid out for them before lie ahead of prospective officers in the Canadian Army under the reorganized training plan touched on in the House of Commons recently by Defense Minister Ralston and outlined more fully last night by the defense Department.

"Whatever his determination and ambition may be he (the recruit) cannot escape the four months of preliminary training," the department said in a statement under the heading: "To Commissioned Rank."

"His career after that becomes more or less government by his own actions. Normally the way for one who wishes to gain advancement and preferment will lead through the non-commissioned ranks to the officer cadet course—and there is no other way now by which he can become an officer except to be possessed of special professional qualifications suitable for the technical branches of the army.

"He will be selected for this cadet course and will spend twelve weeks under instruction."

On British Standard

By satisfactory work in the course the recruit may earn his second lieutenant's commission and then must take further instruction at an advanced training centre for the rank of lieutenant. The length of his stay at such a centre will depend largely on the service in which he is engaged, but training in any branch will be of the same standard as that given in the United Kingdom.

Passing out of this centre the recruit's promotion to captain's rank will be "based both on seniority and efficiency, but promotion from captain to major can come only after a course which for the infantry officer will be at the Royal Military College, lasting for three months."

Officers other than infantrymen will attend appropriate courses at some advanced training centre and similarly before promotion to lieutenant-colonel from major can be obtained, attendance at the senior officers' course at the Royal Military College for three months will be required.

All who aspire to become officers of reserve units also will have more taxing tests before them than in past years," said the department.

The standard now required of them will fit them under specified conditions for appointment to the active force. In the first of two courses open to recruits, the prospective officer must serve in the ranks and undergo at least thirty days' training as such, the only exceptions being where a candidate is especially qualified for a technical corps,

...en he must pass through examination and go through an officers' cadet course for six weeks to qualify for appointment as a second lieutenant. The rank of full lieutenant entails two further weeks of training, after which time he is qualified as a reserve lieutenant or an active second lieutenant.

In the reserve, promotions to captain is by selection and subsequent promotions entail further training at the military college or advanced training centres. The course for a major's qualification is four weeks and a further four weeks for lieutenant-colonel.

Alternative Course Open

The other course open to the candidate, after serving in the ranks, is to spend two weeks at an officers' training centre. Then he must become a second lieutenant and serve in that rank for two years before being considered qualified for promotion to lieutenant. The next step entails further examinations and two weeks' training at an advanced training centre. Two further weeks will be required subsequently before he can be promoted to major and the next step involves four weeks' training at the military college.

These changes necessitate alteration in existing facilities for training. Under this system, and in conjunction with the decision to change the compulsory military training plan from thirty days to four months, twenty-nine of the thirty-nine reserve training centres now become basic training centres.

The department termed them the 'public school" of military training from which recruits will go to the "high schools" or advanced centres. These latter centres are constituted mainly from formerly existing active service force establishment with the addition of some former reserve training centres.

6 U.S. Fliers Killed

177 R.C.A.F. Dead

OTTAWA, Mar. 19 — (CP). — Death of 13 men of the Royal Canadian Air Force—11 in flying accidents and two in an automobile accident—was reported by the Royal Canadian Air Force yesterday in its 355th casualty list issued since the start of the war. Yesterday's list brought to 177 the total number of dead and missing reported by the R.C.A.F. since war began. will be presented to Congress and the Canadian parliament simultaneously Friday, the White House announced today.

Stephen Early, White House press secretary, made the announcement after talking by telephone with A. A. Berle, Assistant Secretary of State, now in Canada completing final phases of the agreement.

Early said the State Department would announce at 3 p.m. EDT today the report of the joint Canadian-American committee which negotiated the agreement.

The President's message to Congress, Early said, would be brief and would be accompanied by the text of the agreement.

Early said he did not know whether the President would recommend starting the entire project, including both power development and improvement of the St. Lawrence to permit ocean going traffic from the Great Lakes to the Sea, or just a power dam at Messina, N.Y., where preliminary borings have been made.

Marmora Lady Mrs. W. Pinner Passes 81 Mark

MARMORA, March 19—(ENS)—In her neat and cosy home directly across the street from St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora of which she is the oldest member, Mrs. Urena Pinner quietly observed on Tuesday the eighty-seventh anniversary of her birth.

"I don't think people should mind telling others their true age as they get older", she remarked in course of a conversation", for I have been told and believe that old age is honorable".

Mrs. Pinner comes of a family long identified with Marmora's history—namely the McWilliams family. She was, however, born in Springbrook but her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Wellington McWilliams moved to Marmora when she was a young girl so that practically her life as she remembers it, is wrapped up in Marmora. She is well preserved for one of her years and continues her kindly interest in the welfare of her friends as though there had been little advancement in years.

She had words of appreciation on Tuesday for the birthday congratulations received and for the visits of friends. In addition to having been a member of St. Paul's since the erection of that edifice, she also was for many years an active member of the Ladies' Guild, and is a charter member of the Marmora Women's Institute. Once again it has pleased her many friends to wish her an extended life with good health and happy associations.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Young of Peterborough visited Mr. and Mrs. James Jones on Sunday.

Private Harry McWilliams of Ottawa was home for the week-end.

The lantern lecture "In the Yukon Diocese" was given at Deloro on Monday evening and in the Parish Hall on Tuesday evening under auspices of St. Paul's Sunday School.

Quebec Budget Surplus Runs $362,000

QUEBEC, March 19 — (CP). — Quebec province will have a surplus on ordinary account of $13,306,000 and an over-all surplus of $362,000 for the year starting April 1 Provincial Treasurer Arthur Mathewson predicted Tuesday as he presented his second provincial budget.

For the nine-month period ending March 31, the provincial treasurer said the province would show a surplus of $3,576,000 on ordinary account alone, but a deficit of $14,154,000 with capital expenditures and sinking fund payments taken into consideraton. The province changed the start of its fiscal year from July 1 to April 1 last year.

No new taxes appeared in the new budget, nor was there any indicated change in the present scale of taxes.

The surplus of $3,576,000 on ordinary account compared with a surplus of $258,000 which Mr. Mathewson estimated in bringing down his budget last May, and a deficit of $2,543,000 in the preceding fiscal year.

To Live Within Means

"This balancing of the budget on an over-all basis means that the province will meet all its ordinary expenditures also out of revenue. In other words, for the first time in many years the province will live within its means and will meet its obligations for the year 1941-42 without having recourse to borrowing, except of course for purposes of refunding maturing bond issues and the funding of farm credit bureau advances.

"For the operations attributable to the year 1941-42, not only will there be no increase in debt but inasmuch as the sinking fund requirements are included in the estimates, there will be an actual reduction in the debt of the province for that year.

"The amount so payable in reduction of the debt of the province for the coming year, as provided in the estimates, is $4,897,770."

Of the new taxes which went into effect in the last budget, the personal income tax, estimated to yield $3,000,000, brought in $2 481,000 in the nine-month period. The tax on tobacco accounted for $1,515 500 as against an estimated $1,500,000; while the two per cent. sales tax, expected to produce $4,500,000, brought $6,312,800.

Increase in the tax on corporations gave the province $5 482,900 in taxes on the capital of corporations, and $4,871,000 on their profits.

For next year, the income tax is estimated to yield $2,700,000, the sales tax $8 500,000, the tobacco tax $2,200,000, while taxes on the capital of corporations is budgeted to produce $7,200,000 for the province, with an additional $6,700 000 on the profits of corporations.

Gas Tax Pays Well

Other leading contributors to the province's revenue will be the Motor Vehicle Law, expected to yield $7,000,000; the Gasoline Tax with an estimated yield of $11,500,000, and Succession Duties, $12,000,000.

The Quebec Liquor Commission is expected to bring in $4,500,000 after a grant of $1,000,000 to the Public Charities Fund, while natural resources are budgetted to yield more than $1,000,000 all told.

The Treasury Department will take the largest slice of the revenue, with estimated expenditure of $18,166,975, while agriculture will get $6,466,500. Health and Public Welfare, $5,959,000 and the Provincial Secretary's Department $4,445,900 on ordinary account and $1,600,000 on capital expenditure.

The expenditure includes $14,600,000 on roads, with $7,100,000 coming under ordinary account and $7,500,000 as capital expenditure.

Macaulay Claims People Taxed Beyond Limits

TORONTO, March 19 — (CP). — The Ontario Legislature after a sitting which brought the opening of the budget debate will proceed to the consideration of bills. An adjournment of one hour was called out of respect for the memory of the late Joseph Thompson, a former Speaker, who died here Sunday. The adjournment will permit members to attend the funeral.

In the debate yesterday Leopold Macaulay (Con., York South) declared that the Government through increased taxation had taxed the people "beyond the proper provincial limits."

He said that in the "upward rush" of taxes, tax figures had risen from $50,000,000 in 1934 to $114,000,000 in 1941. Despite this, he continued, the net debt of the Province had risen from $358,000,000 to $507,000,000.

This net debt "is the true measure of the dead weight of debt pressing on the back of Old Man Ontario."

Instead of reducing the debt, taxation and cost of administration as Premier Hepburn promised in 1933, the Premier "did a Corrigan" and increased the taxes 50 per cent.

Referring to the surplus of $12,600,364 announced by the Premier in his budget address Friday, Mr. Macaulay said that greatly increased tax receipts, and not economies, was responsible.

These tax receipts exceeded the estimate figure by $14,800,000. Cost of direct relief had dropped $1,600,000 and tax prepayments, which by proper accounting, belonged to next year's revenues, brought an approximate total of $1,800,000.

If the government had not imposed new taxes such as those pertaining to gasoline, corporations, and liquor, the ordinary revenue would be down $32,100,000 and instead of a surplus there would have been a deficit of $19,500,000.

The government, he continued, by increase provincial taxation was reducing the amount of the wealth and revenue available for war taxes and war loans and this was particularly serious in view of the $2,283,000,000 required by the Dominion Government this year.

"How are we going to do this if the provinces get into the taxation trough up to their ears?" he asked.

"If there was to be a "back-breaking" taxation to carry on the war, it should be levied by the Federal Government and no other jurisdiction, declared Mr. Macaulay.

Col. F. Fraser Hunter (Lib. Toronto St. Patrick) said he wondered whether in these days an all-time high surplus "was a correct measure of the war effort expected from the banner province of Canada."

Jailed By Nazis

Charging him with suspicion of espionage for an enemy power, German secret police in Berlin arrested Richard C. Hottelet, of New York, member of the United Press Berlin staff. It was asserted officially that the arrest was concerned solely with Hottelet's private activities and has nothing to d with his professional work. President Roosevelt has instructed the State Department to investigate the case.

Ontario To Free $600,000 Estate

TORONTO, March 19 (CP)—The private bills committee of the Ontario Legislature acted quickly yesterday to assure the payment of a portion of the Peter Birtwistle estate to the poor of his native town, Colne, England. Birtwistle died at London, Ont., in 1927 and by the provisions of his will the estate was to be paid out at the end of 21 years. Since the death of the testator, the estate has grown to $600,000.

Due to recent bombings, town officials applied for payment of $360,000 of the estate immediately. The courts rejected the appeal, claiming lack of power to change the provisions of the will.

Because of the urgency of the appeal, Ian Strachan (Lib. Toronto St. George) submitted a bill which would authorize the legislature to grant the request. A bill to this effect was approved by the committee today in little more than a minute.

Executors of the estate are the Trusts and Guaranty Company.

Dwellings completed in the old Reich in the first six months of 1940 are officially estimated by Germany at 57,000.

Woman Rescues Sick Boy, 10 From Fiery Room

TRENTON, Mar. 19. — Dashing into her neighbor's flaming house, Mrs. M. Romain saved the life of Joseph Riga, aged 10, who was lying ill in bed with a fractured skull and pneumonia, late yesterday afternoon.

The fire completely destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Riga, of 149 Marmora Street. Mr. and Mrs. Riga, who were both in the house at the time, managed to escape from the building with their son Ernest, age 6.

The injured boy had been left behind as the family made a mad dash to escape the burning house. Without hesitation, Mrs. Romain, who heard the cries for help of Mrs. Riga, dashed from her own home and into the flaming house to carry out the young boy to safety while the parents stood outside.

Mrs. Romain, who was very modest about her deed, stated that the flames had not yet reached the room in which the boy was sleeping. "He was a bit heavy, but I managed to carry him from the house," she said. Joseph weighs about 70 pounds.

The fire, that started in the kitchen, completely gutted the small frame dwelling before the firemen reached the scene. The Riga family lost everything in the blaze.

Trenton's volunteer fire brigade made a record run, and soon had the fire under control, in spite of the sub-zero weather that froze the water almost as soon as it touched the ground.

Damage was estimated at $1,000, which was partially covered by insurance.

Rationing Cheese

LONDON, March 19—(CP).—The Food Ministry announced Tuesday cheese would be rationed soon.

The amount to be allowed was not disclosed, but a statement said farm workers and miners would receive larger allotments than other groups.

This will be Britain's first allocation of special amounts of food to different classes of workers.

RADIONICS

Radionics has at last come to Peterborough. This method of examination has been very successfully used throughout the cities and towns of Ontario for some years, and now it is being introduced to this community.

THE RADIOCLAST is a scientific instrument developed and operated on h radio principle. Every organ or tissue of the body has its own vibration rate or wave length. By tuning in with the Radioclast on any individual at the proper wave length, the presence of any kind of disease with which that person may be afflicted can readily be detected, located, its area or extent determined, and its intensity measured. The various forms of toxines and infections can be determined, and the treatment given to eliminate the cause. The Radionic examination fees are very moderate, and we invite you to come to our office and learn more about this wonderful instrument without obligation.

How Far From War?

How far is United States removed from being actually at war with the Axis powers? To be true there has been no declaration of war; the representatives of Germany, Italy and also of Japan continue their ambassadorial functions at Washington, and U.S. ministers remain in the capitals of these countries. On the surface United States is not at war, but how far is the distance in between the present situation and war?

We believe the actual distance is very small.

Forget Britain for the moment, because Britain has been a large customer in the United States market almost since the outbreak of war. Consider the promise made to Greece by President Roosevelt:

"The British people and their Grecian Allies need ships. From America they will get ships...From America they will get tanks and guns and ammunition and supplies of all kinds."

And why this promise to the Greeks? Simply because they are fighting the Axis powers and the Axis is recognized as the aggressor.

The present policy in United States is well removed from that which followed the changes in their Neutrality Law to permit the sale of war material on the cash and carry basis. There is no question at the moment of Greece being asked to put up money in United States so it may be strengthened to fight against Italy or Germany. Aid is going to be furnished because United States says plain as words can state a case that its determination is to see the downfall of Hitler.

So United States, while not actively engaged in the war as a combatant, is solidly and permanently behind and on the side of any nation which fights Hitler. Hitler is actually fighting the money and the machine shops and the productive capacity of United States from this time forward because that very powerful section of the States has definitely taken the field against him. Perhaps that is not being in a state of war, but the line in between is extremely narrow and it would require little to force the crossing of it.

Those Remarkable English

Hitler announced in the early part of 1940 that he would be in London on the 15th day of August, and later on he made another statement naming the 15th of September as the time of his arrival. It is known definitely that he had selected all the officials who were to be placed in charge of affairs in the conquered island.

One might surmise that such plans would knock the bottom out of the value of holdings in Britain; it would affect the price of real estate. Following that line of reasoning it should show that property and land values in England, under bombs for months, would be decreasing.

But it has not worked out that way at all. The London Express says that England's pasture land is worth up to $25 per acre more than it was at the beginning of the war, and Hitler's threat of invasion has failed to halt the biggest land boom since the last war.

We learn too that for the first time in 20 years agents find themselves with more buyers than sellers, and they are touring the country trying to dicover if owners will sell land which once they could hardly give away.

Interesting, but even more so is this statement: Some of the biggest buyers are bursars of the colleges of Cambridge and Oxford anxious to find safe investment for endowed funds. They consider that real estate in England is the safest thing they can buy.

And that is exactly what they are doing. They are buying what is called real estate—ground, soil, hedges and lanes—the very thing over which the feet of German invaders were due to pass months ago. Also they are paying more for it than they would have in the days of peace!

An astounding lot of people must live in that place called England. Almost stripped of armament when the expeditionary force fought its way out at Dunkirk, open to invasion then if it ever was going to be invaded, yet today they look over their acres and suggest and receive more for them than for the past 20 years. And agents are actually out looking for people who want to sell their property as buyers are numerous. Small wonder that people keep on singing something about "There'll Always be an England."

Is He The Last?

Richard Smith died at his home in Lakefield, having reached his 95th year, and it is said of him that he is the last of those who went to the defence of their country in the Fenian Raids of 1866. That was 75 years ago, and Mr. Smith would have been a young man of 20 years at the time. We do not know for certain that others who were in service at that time have all departed, but if any remain their number must be small indeed.

In the Fenian Raids of '66 it is likely that the instigators of the movement in United States counted on receiving support from the government there.

In other times and places we recall having written interviews with a number of those who were out on duty at border points in Western Ontario, and it does seem that preparations for war in those days were primitive enough when compared with the custom of today. The barracks where they stayed were poorly heated in winter; many of them drove in sleighs or walked miles to the point from which they were sent toward the border. Many of them admitted they had seen no action whatever, but they had the satisfaction of knowing that they were ready to do their part when called upon, and that memory they cherished.

It may be the truth to say that Richard Smith of Lakefield was the last of the veterans of '66.

Before We Complain

In Peterborough and surrounding district we were not more than somewhat inconvenienced by the stormy weather of March 18. In the morning it was 6 below zero, but there was a stiff wind from the north and west. We may have been inclined to refer to it as a blizzard, but after reading accounts of the storms elsewhere around the same date, one comes to the conclusion that we were not more than slightly disturbed.

North Dakota and Minnesota after its storm of March 16 counted more than 65 deaths in a short time, and in that open country they have blizzards where the air is choked with snow and where temperatures drop rapidly, and where the wind mounts to 85 miles an hour.

The weather had been spring-like, but in two or three hours it was sub-zero and the storm was on. Thousands spent the night in theatres because the police would not allow them to venture out. Many of those who died were farmers returning from doing their week-end shopping in town.

Albert Jacobson, 73, a farmer, and his son, Albert, Jr., 14, were found dead a short distance from their home. They were holding on to a wire fence and trying to make their way toward the house, as the wire fence was on the Jacobson farm.

James Weckworth, 20, a farm youth, started out on horseback to search for his brother. James was found dead in a ditch, but his brother and the horse returned in safety.

Elmer Green and his young wife were going toward a neighbor's home when the storm struck. He left her standing in the shelter of a large tree while he ran back for help. When he returned his wife was dead.

People stalled in cars got out and tried to make their way on foot, looking for a farm house, but they died in their tracks.

The fury of such storms we do not know because we have never experienced them. As a rule our district is remarkably well served when it comes to weather. We are moved at times to complain, but before doing so it would be well to look about elsewhere.

He's An Old Friend

Senator Claude Pepper from Florida was given the honor of speaking in the Ontario Legislature, and before that he had spoken to a packed house at the meeting of the Canadian Club in Toronto. We have not the least doubt there are Canadians in every section of our country who would have liked nothing better than to have seen and heard this same Senator Pepper of Florida.

Possibly the blizzard which had been sweeping the country during the time of Senator Pepper's visit to Ontario might have given him adequate idea of the reason for people from our country seeking to spend a few weeks in his state during the winter. On the day of his visit Winnipeg registered 20 below zero, while the temperature at St. Petersburg, Florida, on the same day was a comfortable 76.

Senator Pepper would feel at home in this country regardless of the weather. For long months he has been saying that there is but one thing to do in the interests of world peace, and that is to lick the pants off Hitler. He was saying that when there was a feeling in United States that this was just another European war of no particular concern to Americans. He was out in front speaking fearlessly before millions of his citizens had begun to see or understand what this war was actually about. In his own clean-cut way he told the issue as he saw it in his Toronto address:

"This thing is no European war, no boundary dispute, no struggle for trade. It is a world-shaking revolution, led by the most sinister genius who has appeared to degrade the name of man. It aims to shake from their foundation every institution we have built in our world, to strangle every dream which has burst from our hearts, to tear asunder the pattern of these lives we have woven from the sacrifice of our honorable ancestors."

That we believe is about as accurate a piece of analysis as has yet been done. It tells something which is not often enough kept to the front. This is not a war for territory on the part of Britain and her Allies. It is not a war which was started for the sake of taking away from Italy her territory in Africa. That came about because Italy sent Marshal Graziani with a huge expedition to try and wrest control of the Suez from Britain.

Back of everything stands Hitler and all that Hitlerism means, and that is the vile force which has to be destroyed. It is not acres or square miles for which this war is being waged; it is against that dream of world domination by the Germans; it is against that hand which would choke and throttle the free people of the world.

Senator Pepper said something else:

"We can pledge we are of the same stuff as you. When we have put our teeth into something we do not quit. We have resolved that we shall not quit until the weapons are torn from Hitler's vicious hands and the world can live without the voice of hate and destruction."

That phrase is not mere boasting: "When we have put our teeth into something we do not quit." When one looks at the jaw of Churchill that same impression is given; Britain living and growing stronger under bombs is evidence of the same thing. It is well that Senator Pepper took time out to come into our land. He is not a disciple recently converted, but rather one who months ago saw the light and has been busy ever since seeking to keep it from being hid under a bushel.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Two men wound up in court at London because they engaged in a fight over a pinball game. We do not know how big the fight was but are satisfied the matter over which they were fighting was extremely small.

Fritz Thyssen, the German who at one time financed Hitler and then fled the country, is now reported to be a prisoner in the hands of the Germans. One report says he is in a concentration camp, and those places have only one door—for going in.

Senator Wheeler thinks of starting a speaking campaign to oppose U.S. foreign policy, and Wendell Willkie is prepared to follow him "from Boston to California" if necessary. What Willkie would do to Wheeler would be sufficient to cancel the proposed spouting excursion.

A "Spitfire" fund has grown to the $6,000 mark in Sault Ste. Marie, and contributions listed in the Sault Star include such names as: J. Zurawinski, M. Bumbaco, N. Ballstadt, M. Dumanski, D. Lackowicz, R. Kosloskey. With such backers that plane should be able to tackle anything.

¶ John Thomas used a little oil, 'twould save him quite a lot of toil, to light the kitchen fire; for he had slept in late that day, had many chores to put away, and help he couldn't hire.

¶ He had no kindling wood around, he searched but nothing could be found, a shiftless sort of man; he raised his voice nigh to a shout, the green sticks sputtered like going out, he got the coal oil can.

¶ John Thomas knew that it was wrong, but on this day he hummed no song, for he was bent on haste; so many ways he had to turn, he could not wait for fire to burn, he had no time to waste.

¶ He'd dump a little right in here, 'twas really not a thing to fear, and then he'd cook his chow; it was a simple little trick, if one just acted smooth and quick, and knew exactly how.

¶ He lived alone and he kept bach, he didn't have to strike a match, of fire he soon had proof; it was as though some bandit gang, had opened on him with a bang, and he went through the roof.

¶ I asked about his health today, there wasn't much that they could say, there's much that they don't know; they told me I might call some day, about the early part of May—in some six weeks or so.

Sees Mussolini Remaining As A Puppet of Hitler

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Washington's diplomatic colonists are beginning to surmise that they were mistaken

Chas. P. Stewart

—that Herr Hitler isn't going to liquidate Signor Mussolini, after all. I don't mean to say that all the diplomats in the U.S. capital say anything out loud on the subject. Germany's and Italy's naturally don't. Some of the others, trying to stay on the fence, are pretty reticent also. There's a sizeable contingent, however, who aren't so discreet. Likewise, there are the representatives of exiled governments, like Poland's and Holland's, who have no reason for being a bit discreet. They're good guessers, too. And our state department is fairly talkative.

Well, as the luck of Il Duce Mussolini's forces in Africa and along the Greek frontier turned worse and worse, this coterie began generally to forecast that the Fuehrer wouldn't tolerate Benito as his Italian manager much longer—that he'd speedily fire the latter as a rank incompetent.

The theory was that Hitler wouldn't overrun the peninsula in the same military fashion that he has part of Scandinavia, the Low Countries and occupied France, because that would antagonize the Italians themselves, and he needs them to fight for him—if he can ginger 'em up.

The idea was that he probably would inspire them to overthrow Benito's regime and set up some other more efficient dictator, nominally of their own selection, but really his Italian puppet, just as he had Monsieur Laval picked to run France, under his Naz-istic thumb.

GOOD A PUPPET AS ANY

NOW it's agreed that he seems to have decided he can make Benito as satisfactory a puppet as anybody else he could choose. Maybe he discovered that he couldn't find any other Italian who'd exactly fill the bill. And Benito presumably has accepted the role of unqualified puppetry, instead of continuing to stand pat as a self-determining dictator in his own right.

On this basis, of course, he'll have one of Adolf's agents directly and constantly at his elbow, vetoing his bungling and giving him Berlin's orders as to precisely what to do.

It's an arrangement which will save Adolf the bother of an Italian revolution, a thing that would involve Axis delay and look badly to outsiders, they'd be liable to think (as the genuine article and indicative of internal Axis friction.

Count Ciano's reported to have been one of the Fuehrer's worries. He's Il Duce's son-in-law. All accounts are that he's anti-German, as most Italians traditionally are. The peninsula's censorship is too strict for much reliable news to leak out, but the story is that the count has aimed at being dictator himself if an Italian revolution did develop and his pa-in-law went down the chute. If so, it wouldn't have been very son-in-lawish. Nevertheless, assuming the truth of the rumors, Adolf undoubtedly knew the facts of the case.

PREFERS BENITO

AND, from his standpoint, had he engineered the incompetent but pro-German Benito's overthrow, it would have been a heck of a note to have had Benito's tolerably competent but decidedly anti-German son-in-law gravitate into the Italian dictatorial job.

So, in its last analysis, it's understandable why Adolf's preference should have been for Mussolini in the situation.

It doesn't look like a very pleasant state of affairs in the Mussolini family, though. What must be the Countess Ciano's frame of mind? And Mrs. Mussolini's?

That isn't Herr Hitler's funeral, however.

Anti-Axis diplomats in Washington remark:

"Gosh! How much Benito feel!"

A photograph of him recently was received here, teaching a company of Italian soldiers the goose-step.

The beauty of it is that he was a full-fledged first-class dictator, giving his recalcitrant, anti-Fascist countrymen castor oil before Adolf was even invented as a Fuehrer. The first time they met he patronized Adolf as a mere beginner at the game. But how Adolf tells him where "to get off at" today!

To The Editor

NO NEW LIGHT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Mr. Jos. S. Bell's letter of March 12 to "remove" my "misunderstanding" of the British-Israel position has failed in its object. In fact, may I state that there is no real misunderstanding of the teaching; what I do not understand is how these theories can be reconciled to the plain truths of the word of God.

Mr. Bell has made no attempt whatever to answer my three objections to British-Israelism. May I courteously refer him to my first letter again.

TAKING A RISK

"Frankly I think the life belt is a needless precaution!"

That British War Debt

Letter in Montreal Star

SIR,—A recent issue of "The Jamaica Gleaner" contained a report of a broadcast of U.S. Representative Hamilton Fish, the gist of which is that Great Britain should hand over to the United States all the British West Indies in lieu of the so-called war debt. Other Senators, etc., aired their opinions in like strain recently as mentioned in your last week's issue. Senator Lundeen (Wis.) went further a short time ago by shouting out in the U.S. Senate: "Now is the time for us to seize those West Indies! Now let us show there is some red blood in us." President Roosevelt, on the other hand, in a public speech, referring to Italy's war on France, accused Italy of stabbing France in the back. It looks as though there are a few would-be knifers in high places in the U.S. Fortunately, although they make a good deal of commotion, they are treated as small fry by most real Americans.

My reason for taking this matter up is to quote a few facts from prominent Americans regarding the so-called British war debt to the United States. General Pershing (speaking to a packed audience of thousands at Denver, in 1924, i.e. after hostilities) said: "What was the situation in 1914? We had no plan, no preparation, no artillery, no transportation, no ships, in fact nothing. The Allies held the line for us without cost for fifteen months. We gave the money knowing that it would be used to hold the Boche until we could prepare. Fifteen months. Think of it! We, the U.S. were at war with Germany for 584 days; yet we spent just 119 days fighting. So or 465 days the Allies were not fighting for themselves, but for the U.S. Therefore, they saved us the lives of 196,230 killed and 805,000 wounded which would have cost us more than ten times the so-called war debt."

Senator Carter Glass: "I protest that we were playing a Shylock game. Those people paid in blood; we paid in money. They lost 16 million lives; we lost less than a fifth of a million." Representative Farney (when the loan was being discussed): "The object of our loan to them is to help them fight our battles." Senator Smoot: "This loan is money spent for the United States." Representative Madden: "We cannot supply the men, but someone else is ready to supply the men if we put up the money. If we can find someone to fight in our place, we ought not to hesitate." Senator Kenyon: "I hope that this loan will never be repaid and that we shall never ask for payment." Senator Cummings: "I would give this money as liberally as if I were voting it for equipment for our own Army and Navy."

Mr. F. W. Peabody (after the war): In a petition to President Coolidge: 'England loaned the Allies ten billion dollars, which, not recoverable, they constitute a gift. As a substitution for U.S. fighting forces we advanced Great Britain four billion dollars for our own safetly and defence, and while they were supplying men to die by the hundreds of thousands in the trenches, fighting our fight, the war was not costing us a single man. England asks nothing for her dead, but we, the Croesus nation, demand not only the four billion, but an additional seven billion as interest. O shame, where is thy blush? We ourselves are a scandalous defaulted nation. We refused to pay our loans to England and France borrowed as investments during the war of Independence. We refused to pay our debts to England, incurred ninety years ago, obtained for the exploitation of national resources. We refused to pay our debts to England contracted only sixty years ago for reconstruction after the termination of the Civil War. Our latest repudiation to England took place as recently as 1880. An international court on debts would shame the U.S. as a defaulting nation.

REMOVING THE DOORS

TWO INCIDENTS, not altogether uncommon, happened in Windsor and Harrow this week. Tenants were in arrears with their rent and the landlords removed the doors as a means of expediting their departure. In the Windsor case the mother and children were given shelter by the Children's Aid Society and the landlord was ordered to return the gas stove and some furniture which he had removed. The father is unemployed. At the time of writing, the Harrow tenants, man, wife and two children, were still living in the house, and the Crown Attorney opined that it was a case for the medical officer of health to deal with.

Under the law, when an order for eyiction is served on a tenant for unpaid rent, he is a trespasser on someone else's rpoperty if he stays there, and the owner of the property has a legal right to remove the doors and windows if he likes. He, of course, may still be paying for that house and he may be pressed for the taxes. It may also be that the owner largely depends on renting the house for his living. The circumstances are unfortunate for both parties. At the same time there is a humane side to this question. A landlord has to be pretty "tough" to take off the doors and let the cold winds of March blow through the house which is the only shelter for a father, mother and children. The miserable tenants will get sympathy and the landlord will get criticism. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

FIRE-FIGHTING TRAINS

ONE of the three fire - fighting trains put into service by the G.W.R. was inspected at Paddington by Mr. Mabane, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Home Security.

The trains are available night and day, and an engine awaits with steam up ready to take them to any part of the system.

Painted scarlet, the trains comprise a passenger coach for eight firemen, and a covered truck containing two trailer pumps and other equipment.

Mr. Mabane complimented the crew of one train on the speed with which they unloaded a pump by means of a pulley.

The trains will be stationed at three strategic points, and arrangements have been made to ensure that in an emergency they will have an uninterrupted run.

BEING CAUTIOUS

IN VIEW of a recent decision in a libel case I hasten to record that any criticism I have made in these columns of Herr Hitler related to him solely in his capacity as politician and in no wise reflected upon his ability as an author. I thought his early work Mein Kampf showed skill, force and a certain promise, and was not too heavy to hold as a bedbook. I have always regretted that his absorption in political affairs prevented him from devoting all his time to literature. It is possible that in the near future Herr Hitler may lay down his burden of office and find leisure to take up his pen again. Not, I again hasten to add, that there is any danger that his already published work will pass into oblivion.—London New Statesman.

Rations for the firemen and heating apparatus are provided.—London Star.

★ MODERN

There is nothing new about the position or office of executor; it dates back to ancient times. Its standards of conduct and its duties have been gradually hammered out by experience down the centuries and embodied in the law. A trust company is simply a new type of executor that has been evolved during the last hundred years to meet the new and more complicated conditions of our industrial age—the problems of modern taxation and modern investment. For the one-man capacity of the individual executor it substitutes the advantages of a permanent organization: the systematic records, the multiple business contacts, the group judgment of trained officers. British Massing To Clean Out All Of Africa

CAIRO, Egypt, March 19 (AP)— The British campaign in East Africa has entered its final phase, after weeks of preparation, with a drive on all fronts aimed at smashing the Italians before the rainy season starts, military circles indicated today.

An army described as the greatest ever assembled in this area has been gathered by Britain for the effort—touched off by the launching of a new offensive two days ago in the Cheren sector of Eritrea, where 35,000 Italian troops entrenched on strategic heights have been blocking the path to the colonial capital of Asmara and the Red Sea coast.

International in character, this army includes troops from Australia, New Zealand, India and other British lands, augmented by "Free French," Belgian, Polish and Czech units.

An imposing mass of equipment, including several hundred American planes, has been asembled for the "big push."

Advices from the front indicated the Cheren offensive was timed to coincide with an accelerated drive into Ethiopia, which has been virtually encircled by British successes in the past few weeks.

On To Addis Ababa

Two British columns, pushing deeper into Ethiopia from the south, were reported approaching Negelli, from where a passable road offers an approach to the capital at Addis Ababa.

To the east, British troops who recaptured Berbera, capital of British Somaliland, from the Italians last Sunday were said to be fanning out and threatening Ethiopia with attack from a new direction. Other forces are driving into western and northwestern Ethiopia.

Although most observers expected the spring rains to begin within the next two weeks, they said roads built by the Italians in their conquest of Ethiopia probably would permit the British to continue their drive, despite the weather.

The Italian position at Cheren was regarded in military circles as the most difficult with which the British have had to cope in East Africa.

The British high command has been preparing for the assault for six weeks, however, and the first two days of fighting were said to have resulted in capture at bayonet point of "Brigadier's Peak," highest in the range.

The second highest peak, "Sanchil," which commands the road to Cheren from the west, was said to be under attack today, with the Royal Air Force helping to soften resistance.

The Italians were said to have reinforced their troops with the crack Savoy Grenadiers rushed from Addis Ababa.

TAMBLYN RECOMMENDS EXTRA CARE

We are getting along to the time of year when we have more lovely warm, sunny days, and most of us are inclined to think Summer is just in the offing, and so we to a certain extent disregard the necessity of care and the need of Health-Giving Vitamins. As a matter of fact that is a mistake in more ways than one. It is true most of us are able to get extra Life-Giving Sunshine, but against that we are at the time when our resistance is low—the result of long hours of confinement—lack of sunshine—extra work, etc., and, of course, into the period of drastic climatic changes, and for those reasons it behooves us to be even more careful lest we jeopardize our health. No question, Vitamins are necessary, and it is our thought that they are doubly essential at this time of the year; and so we still feature Vitamins along with the other necessities recommended in our list of

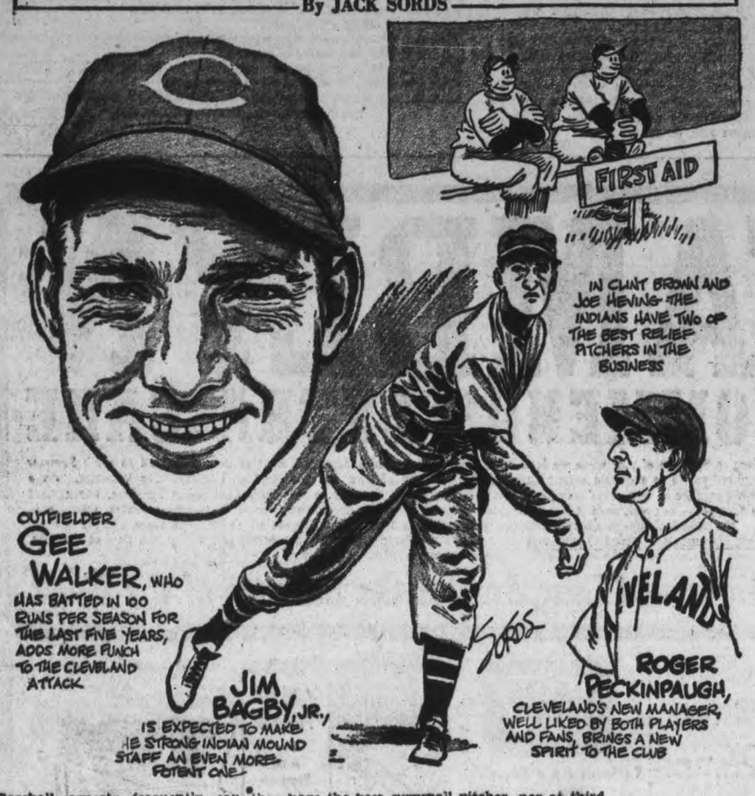
MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Cleveland Indians: Team to Beat

By JACK SORDS



Baseball experts frequently say that "pitching wins pennants." The Cleveland Indians had the best slab staff in the major league last year, but didn't win the pennant.

Perhaps that's because of two things. One, no power at the plate. Two, a chaotic condition between manager and players touched off by a mid-year "revolt."

This season, Cleveland's pitching staff is the best in either loop. Help was even added during the winter trades.

Offensively the Tribe is potentially powerful, especially with the addition to the outfield of Gerald Walker, acquired from Washington. And above all, there is a new spirit on the club, helped along by a new manager, Roger Peckinpaugh, a veteran baseball man and well liked by both Cleveland players and fans.

In Bobby Feller, young hurling star, the Indians have a 20-win-plus pitcher. In Al Smith and Al Milnar, the Tribe has two ace left-handers who won 38 games between them last year. In Mel Harder, they have the best curveball pitcher in the league and an established star.

Add to this quartet Jim Bagby, from the Red Sox; Joe Krakauskas, from the Nats; Joe Heving, from the Red Sox, and Clint Brown, from the White Sox, and you have a sensational staff. Dewey Atkins, from Oklahoma City; Millard Howell, from Wilkes-Barre, and Vernon Kahler, from Flint, are the rookie hopefuls given the best chance to stick.

The infield will rate high with the 1940 quartet of Hal Trosky at first, Ray Mack at second, Lou Boudreau at short, and Ken Keltner at third.

Catching situation is cleared up with the departure of Frankie Pytlak and the acquisition of Gene Desautels from Boston. Rollie Hemsley will be the regular receiver.

In the outfield, Jeff Heath in left, Roy Weatherly in centre, and Gerald Walker in right will be regular gardeners. Heath, who had a poor year last season, is a hard hitter who is expected to really return to form this season. Weatherly batted .303 last season.

Most notable rookie outfielder in camp is Murray Howell, a 32-year-old 215-pound slugger, who batted a mighty .362 last year for Baltimore.

Peterborough's juvenile hockey team, the only team left in the running and incidentally the only Peterborough outfit that hasn't played a game at home all season will have their big test in the O.J.H.A. race tomorrow, Thursday night when they meet the fast Regipolis juveniles of Kingston in Lakefield in the first of home and home games. The Kingston youngsters evidently have lots of power for they defeated Belleville handily on the Quinte team's own ice but the Peterborough kids have been playing fine hockey, showing nice teamwork and passing and they are confident that they make things decidedly warm for the Easterners when they go into action at Lakefield tomorrow night. The young Petes have not lost an O.J.H.A. game this season, going through their group and the group playoffs and then cleaning up on Haliburton without a loss.

* * * * * *

The juveniles incidentally are up against quite a problem in financing the long return trip to Kingston. The burden so far as finances are concerned has been on the shoulders of the fathers of two of the members of the team, Joe Murphy and Dave Leether who have furnished transportation all season for the squad and helped to carry the load. It has been quite a task at that and now that the young Petes have got this far and have earned the right to go far afield for games the financial side of the venture is becoming more difficult all the time. There is a fine chance here for genuine friends of hockey to come to the rescue. These juveniles are the juniors and the seniors of the next few years. If they are given a fair chance now to develop they should provide plenty of hockey for Peterborough fans in the years that lie ahead and a few donations now to help the team along might prove a decidedly worthwhile investment from a hockey viewpoint.

* * * * * *

The Kingston Junior B team has been granted the right to replace a soldier member of the team who has transferred to another centre. That is merely another bit of evidence supporting the claim that the replacement regulation adopted this year by the C.A.H.A. should be tossed into the waste paper basket. If military centres like Kingston are going to be able to work the soldier rule both ways as they have been doing they are being given a most decided advantage over other teams. A good hockey player from out-of-town joins a unit that is training at one of these centres or is sent there to take a course and the hockey team representing the centre immediately trots him out and uses him. That in itself is not so bad. It is a good break for the team so favored but if it stopped at that there would be no particular objection. But later on the soldier player is moved and then the hockey club calmly replaces him with some star from another club. In other words they take advantage of one military clause to get the player in the first place and then of another to replace him. The rule should be cancelled at the next annual meeting. There never was any real justification for it and it has been abused.

The stage is all set for the playoffs in the Ladies' Basketball League which will get under way Friday night. St. John's girls cleared the path for the final rounds last night when they defeated the Y Gym 18 to 17 in a lively battle. The loss spilled the Y team out of the contention for the senior championship. Had they won last night they would have been tied for second place with Westclox and a sudden-death game would have been necessary. The Saints however settled the argument by toppling the Y lasses and now the setup calls for Westclox and Quaker Aces to meet in the final series for the senior title and the Y Gym and St. John's teams to meet for the junior honors. The final series in both cases will be best two-of-three games, with St. John's and Y clashing in the 8 o'clock game Friday night and Aces and Westclox battling in the 9 o'clock fixture. Both series should be close and exciting as the teams are very evenly matched.

Twenty years ago tonight was a big night for basketball in Peterborough for a crowd that packed every corner of the Y gallery and jammed along the sides of the gym floor saw the Peterborough intermediate O.A.B.A. squad win a thrilling game from the Toronto Central Y quintette 39 to 20. It was the second game of a home-and-home series and the Peterborough team started with a three point deficit as a result of losing the first game in Toronto 27 to 24. However, there was no stopping the Petes in the return game. Led by Tom Pogue with nine baskets they had the upper hand all the way. Seely, the College player from the Maritimes had nine points and big "Spot" Stuart playing centre cashed in with three baskets. The other two members of the team were Russ Pogue and Orley DeGraw, the latter having learned his basketball south of the border. The team which went on to defeat Woodstock in the finals and give Peterborough its only O.A.B.A. title played without subs and was certainly a fast and clever aggregation of cage stars. Incidentally the referee of that important clash was none other than Ross Dobbin.

Turk Broda has become the first Toronto goalie to ever win the Vezina trophy. Bill Cowley, ace scorer of the National Hockey League shot the Turk into first place among the twin guardians last night when he fired two drives past Johnny Mowers of Detroit. It was a close enough finish at that. When Detroit and Boston went into action last night Mowers had a one-goal edge over Broda, which meant that he required a shutout over the Bruins to give him the coveted Vezina mug. Cowley only took 54 seconds to kill that hope, blasting the puck past Mowers inside the first minute of play. There was still a chance for a tie for the honors and Mowers made a great try, blanking the Bruins for the rest of the period and all through the second session. With five minutes of the final stanza gone however up came Cowley again with another goal and it was all over. Bruins got two more before the end but they did not mean a thing.

By winning last night in their final game of the regular schedule the Boston Bruins completed a record that for consistency surpasses anything in the annals of the National Hockey League. In their last 32 games, exactly two-thirds of the long schedule the Boston club lost only one game, a 2 to 0 shutout at the hands of the New York Rangers. That is a most impressive performance. Hockey teams like every other kind of sporting organization usually have their slumps from time to time during a season but since before Christmas the Bruins have been going along as steadily as a machine. They have been tied a number of times but no club except the Rangers on that one occasion have outscored them in any game in three months of hockey.

Frankie Boucher, coach for the New York Rangers says his club has never been in better condition mentally or physically for any championship playoffs. That confirms the impression of this column that it will be the Rangers who will meet Boston in the Stanley Cup finals and that if any club is to stop the Bruins it will be Lester Patrick's machine that will do it. Rangers have won eight games out of nine starts in the last month and they seem to have got into the stride that won them the Stanley Cup last season just at the proper time. They have no injured players but sail into the big series with a full squad of confident players. Yes, neighbors, those Rangers are a club to be watched in the next couple of weeks.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Leafs will both start the playoffs with a heavy hospital list. Hawks will be shy Bill Carse and Bill Thoms and the Leafs will not have Apps, Goldup and Kampman tomorrow night....Race for goal position is the closest in the All-Star selection....Broda has 13 and Brimsek 12 out of the first 27 ballots....Leafs have only defeated Boston twice in eight starts this season, the two wins coming at the beginning of the campaign....Bill Cowley's 62 points is the highest scoring record since the Cooney Weiland high mark of 13 years ago....Kingston Combines and Hamilton Nats will meet in Kingston tonight in an effort to settle their second round argument after playing two ties. Peterborough fans are pulling for Honey Tompkins to decide the battle tonight.

St. John's Girls Meet 'Y' Gym In Junior Final

St. John's team eliminated Y Gym from the running for the senior Ladies' Basketball League championship last night by nosing out the Y girls 18 to 17 in a closely-fought and exciting battle in the Y.W.C.A. gym.

The win gives Westclox girls undisputed possession of second place and the right to play off with Quaker Aces for the senior title while Y Gym and St. John's will meet in the finals for the junior honors.

Last night's game was close all the way. There was little to choose between the two outfits in the first half, the Y leading by 8 to 6 at the rest period. Two quick baskets by Edna Foster early in the second half changed the complexion of the game, however. They put St. John's in front and from then on the church team was always in front although the losers made it close enough, especially in the last couple of minutes when after trailing three points for some time they came through with a basket that cut St. John's lead down to a single point.

However the Saints might quite easily have won by a larger margin for they had quite an edge on the play in the final half and outshot the losers. However they had tough luck on a number of occasions and the Y cashed in to better advantage on the fewer openings they had to keep the score close.

Edna Foster sparked the St. John's offensive by tossing in four baskets for a total of eight points and Theresa Laws was next highest on the score sheet with two baskets from the field and a successful free throw. Bernadette Flynn with five points and Isobel Young and Ruth Sullivan with four each were top scorers for the losers. The teams:

St. John's (18): Edna Foster (8), Theresa Laws (5), E. Harte-Maxwell, Agnes Bowler (2), Eva Clark, F. Gynane, D. Groombridge, E. Gynane, U. Chivas (3).

Y Gym (17): B. Flynn (5), I. Young (4), R. Sullivan (4), R. Ellis (2), D. Ackford, S. Zacks (2).

Referee, Whitty Thirnbeck; umpire, Howie Macdonald.

Skitch Rink Wins Flavelle Memorial

LINDSAY, March 19 (Special)— Skipper Cy Skitch's rink yesterday won the championship of the Lindsay Curling Club by annexing the Flavelle Memorial Cup and medals. Skip H. E. McMullen was runner-up. Both tied the season with 17 wins and 5 losses, with Skitch's rink taking the playoff. The rinks:

Rev. H. Wolfraim, James Woods, D. S. McLennan, P. H. Skitch.

Neil Deyell, C. Richmond, J. Beal, H. E. McMullen.

Quakers Enter Cup Playdowns

WINNIPEG, Mar. 19 — (CP). — Saskatoon Quakers brought back the Saskatchewan junior hockey championship to the northern city to-day for the sixth time in seven years and are all set for their inter-provincial Memorial Cup playdown series against Edmonton Athletic Club opening in Edmonton on Saturday.

Quakers, one of the favorites to win the Western Canada crown this year, can cause their opposition a few worries by just posting their playoff record at one end of the rink before each game. It is—33 goals for 14 against in four games. They breezed past Prince Albert Black Hawks 6-1 last night, taking the best-of-three series in two games. The score of the first was 10-3 for Quakers.

The winner of the Alberta-Saskatchewan series may meet any one of five sextets still in the battle for Manitoba-Thunder Bay honors, but Winnipeggers are giving odds that it will be Baldy Northcott's Rangers.

The benefit bonspiel for the Red Cross got away to a good start last night when all ices were going at 7 and 9 o'clock. Another crowd is expected to be on hand this evening and when the final games are played on Thursday night, it is hoped our club will have a nice little sum to hand over to this worthy cause.

We understand that there are seven mixed rinks from our club going to the Granite Club, Toronto, next week to play in the annual Brereton-Raw competition. This bonspiel has grown so great within the last few years that it is now the largest of its kind within the association. Some rinks are going Monday, some Wednesday and some Thursday. If any are fortunate enough to survive the day's play, they will go back again on Friday for the finals.

Secretary Harry Foote is mailing notices today for our annual meeting, to be held in our club rooms on Monday, March 24, at 8 p.m. All curlers are asked to keep this date open.

OAC Puts $9,308 In Equipment For Troop Camps

The Ontario Athletic Commission announced Tuesday that it had spent $9,308 on soldier camps since it began its plan seventeen months ago of devoting as much of its income as possible to supplying sports equipment to soldiers in training. Of the total, $6,374 was spent in the fiscal year ending March 31.

The equipment suplied to the camps covered every sport, the announcement said, "from hockey and football to checkers, from boxing to badminton and horseshoes." Income in the period in which $6,374 was spent on the camps was $16,339.

"It is strange, but true, that despite the fact that the Federal Governments recognize the absolute necessity of sport as a part of the training of soldiers, absolutely no provision is made in the King's Regulations to supply the ways and means of playing games," the announcement said.

Financial assistance to amateur sport outside the army in the current fiscal year amounted to $2,005.

TURK BRODA WINS VEZINA TROPHY, FIRST FOR TORONTO GOALIE

Has Had Greatest Season In Hockey's History

Walter (Turk) Broda, netminder for the Toronto Maple Leafs, who has captured the 1940-'41 Vezina trophy which goes to the goaler who has the fewest goals scored against him. Broda was one up on Mowers of Detroit until Tuesday night when Boston defeated the Red Wings 4-1.

Bruins Sink Mowers By 4 to 1 As Cowley Sets The Pace In Last Game Of N.H.L. Schedule

BOSTON, March 19 (CP)—From the evidence at hand, Boston Bruins seem to have built up an almost unassailable case for the Stanley Cup.

The Bruins wound up the National Hockey League schedule last night by defeating Detroit Red Wings, 4-1, and the victory tied another knot in their imposing string of evidence. They go into the cup battling Thursday as a team that has tasted only one defeat since Dec. 21.

First team ever to win the league championship three straight times, Boston was the highest-scoring club by 20-odd goals in the 48-game schedule and had only three more goals against them than the lowest scored on team. They have the individual scoring leader in centre Bill Cowley and the shutout king in goalie Frankie Brimsek.

With not an injury to mar their three fleet lines or their able defence captained by capable Dit Clapper, the Bruins lack only their one important item. They have no guarantee that the second-place club will not get hot—as New York Rangers did last year—or that a mystery team will not come from nowhere—as Chicago Black Hawks did in 1938.

Apps Out for Third Game

Injured beyond recognition in the latter half of the schedule, Toronto Maple Leafs get a chance to repeat the Rangers cup-winning feat of last season when they meet the Bruins in a best-of-seven series starting in Boston Thursday. Despite their injuries, the Leafs were only five points worse than the Bruins in 48 games annd now are rounding into full strength.

Centre Syl Apps, whose injury spoiled the Leafs chances of staying even with the Bruins in the last three weeks of the season will miss the first two games in Boston but likely will be ready for Thursday. The last two injured Leafs, winger Hank Goldup and Bingo Kampman, will be back soon after the series opener.

The best-of-three rounds between the lower clubs also start Thursday with Montreal Canadiens at Chicago and the Rangers at Detroit. Any one of these may suddenly become a destiny team; with the Rangers' strong schedule finish stamping them as strong bets to be around at the finish in defence of their cup.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Boston Bruins nosed New York Rangers out of a Stanley Cup playoff spot five years ago tonight. Tied with Rangers in third place of the Americans section, Boston forged in front by holding Toronto Maple Leafs to a 2-2 tie in the last game. It was the first time Rangers missed a playoff berth since entering the National Hockey League in 1925.

Providence Reds Trounce Barons

PROVIDENCE, March 19—(CP)—Honors were even today in the first round of American Hockey League playoffs, with Providence Reds starting off on the right foot for the Eastern Section and Hershey Bears countering by turning in an initial victory for the Western Division.

Defending champions, the Reds started their title defence by defeating Cleveland Barons, 4-1, last night in the first of a best-of-five series between the top clubs in each section. The Bears meanwhile gained a one-game lead in the best-of-three series between the second-place clubs by beating New Haven Eagles, 2-1.

Start of the other series—between the third-place clubs in each section—was set back one night meanwhile due to a mixup following Pittsburg Hornets' tight squeeze into third position in the western section. Springfield Indians will start the round at Pittsburg tonight.

A crowd of about 5,000 at Hershey watched the Bears forced into overtime by New Haven before Bobby Kirk's goal settled the issue.

The Reds also were forced into overtime for their victory at home over Cleveland but came through with three goals in the extra 10 minutes, Hub Wilson got the first after 31 seconds of extra play and George Johnston and Normie Mann clinched the verdict on breakaways.

Royals Cup Hope Set Back By St. Jerome

TORONTO, March 19 — (CP). — Counted as one of the teams to beat among the six clubs still in the hunt for the Eastern Canada Hockey championship ,Montreal Royals were faced today with an unexpected problem of putting their own house in order before eyeing the Allan Cup trail.

Following their playoff triumph over Ottawa Senators for the Quebec Senior title, Royals were favored to breeze through the Intermediate champions for the provincial crown. The formula was followed faithfully in their first meeting, but something went out of kilter in the next.

Used to smaller surfaces, the Intermediate champions, St. Jerome Papermakers bowed 7-2 Sunday in the first game of a best-of-five series on the Forum ice in Montreal. More accustomed to their surroundings, however, they rebounded for a 5-3 triumph last night that tied the series at 1-1 in games, with the next match Thursday.

Only Senior game last night, it left the final result as much in doubt as it is in Ontario, where Toronto Marlboros start a best-of-three series tonight for the title with South Porcupine Bisons. The winner meets the Quebec winner in an Eastern semi-final starting at Montreal Monday.

Volants Go East

Semi-finalists have been declared in the other bracket, with Hull Volants travelling to Sydney, N.S., to stack their Ontario championships against Sydney Millionaires' Maritime title in a best-of-five round starting next Tuesday. The second game also will be in Sydney, with the clubs returning to Ottawa to finish out the series.

While still favored for the Quebec crown, Royals found themselves with a fight on their hands after St. Jerome's smart comeback. The Papermakers showed a fleet of fast forwards coupled with the experience of former reinstated National Hockey League performers—Blackcat Johnny Gagnon, George Brown, Rod Lorrain and Armand Raymond.

Spotting Royals the opening goal by little Pete Morin, St. Jerome came from behind in the second period for their well-earned victory. Gagnon and Armand accounted for two of the goals, with the others being scored by Coco Blanchard, Jean Huguet and Marcel St. Pierre.

One game was played meanwhile among the East's Memorial Cup aspirants, with Ottawa Canadiens defeating Pembroke Little Lumber Kings, 11-5, at Ottawa to force a deciding game Saturday in their series for the Ottawa and District title. The winner will meet the Maritime champions, Charlottetown Royals.

Montreal Junior Royals, Quebec champions, are waiting to meet the Maritime-Ottawa winners in an Eastern semi-final. In the other bracket, Oshawa Generals take a one-game lead into their best-of-seven series at Oshawa tonight with Toronto Junior Marlboros for the Ontario championship and entry in the Eastern final.

Hockey's Big Seven

Bill Cowley of Boston, scoring twice in the Bruins' 4-1 victory over Detroit Red Wings last night, ended the season with the second highest total turned in by a National Hockey League scoring champion. The Bruin centre's mark of 17 goals and 45 assists was nine less than the 73 points piled up by Cooney Weiland with Boston in the wide-open rules of the 1929-30 season. Cowley finished 18 points ahead of second place, where Syd Howe of Detroit forced a five-way tie when he assisted on the Wings' lone goal last night. The others tied for second are Syl Apps and Gord Drillon of Toronto and Bryan Hextall and Lynn Patrick of New York Rangers.

Bonus Of $1,000 Rumored As Club Reward

BOSTON, Mar. 19—(CP).—One of Brandon's most noted fat men was happy to-day. The broad, square face of Turk Broda was beaming like a harvest moon.

Five years ago, when Turk Broda stepped into professional hockey with Detroit Olympics in the old International-American League, he was a cocky athlete. He wouldn't have been impressed if he'd been called back into Canada on a vital errand of state. He was a good goalkeeper and no one was as certain as Broda that he would reach the top.

The years between have erased the easy confidence that had marked Turk 'almost' as his hockey ability from when he first began kicking out shots in pick-up games on corner rinks in his home city in Western Manitoba. And last night when Johnny Mowers of the Detroit Red Wings let in the goal that gave Broda the Georges Vezina Trophy as a reward for his outstanding work in goal for Toronto Maple Leafs this year—99 goals-against—Turk was impressed.

Where five years ago he would have taken any such honor as his just due, last night Turk had the happiness of a man who had made good after a long and arduous struggle.

Some Extra Cold Cash.

The import of winning the Vezina Trophy was heavy. A $1,000 bonus from the Toronto club was rumored, and would transform some of the honor and glory into cold cash. Also it was the first time a Toronto goalkeeper ever had won the Vezina.

Broda succeeded Davie Kerr of New York Rangers as holder of the trophy. The chunky Toronto netminder and Mowers were in a close race all season for low goals against, with Brimsek never far away from them.

Previous winners of the trophy were:

1938-39—F. Brimsek, Boston.
1937-38—C. Thompson, Boston.
1936-37—N. Smith, Detroit.
1935-36—C. Thompson, Boston.
1934-35—L. Chabot, Chicago.
1933-34—C. Gardiner, Chicago.
1932-33—C. Thompson, Boston.
1931-32—C. Gardiner, Chicago.
1930-31—R. Worters, Americans.
1929-30—C. Thompson, Boston.
1928-29—G. Hainsworth, Canadiens.

Roslin Imps Beat Bees 5-3

TWEED, March 19 (ENS)—Playing heads up hockey in the fourth game of the East Hastings finals, Roslin Imperials edged Farnsworth Bees 5-3 at the local arena on Tuesday night to tie the series at two wins each.

Farnsworth opened the scoring in the first period when Marsh drifted a long shot from centre ice to sink the first counter. Wager then took a pass from D. Meraw to put the Bees two up. In the closing minutes of play Empson tallied for the Imperials on a pass from Collins.

Play was fast in the second period with the only counter tallied by Porritt on a hard drive from centre ice.

In the last period, Roslin had the Bees outplayed at every stage, and ran up four goals in this frame without a reply. Garrell barged in a pass from Clare and Green, and then Collins took a pass from Clare to tie the count. With Porritt in the box for tripping, Roslin salted the game away by rapping in two counters, Empson tallying from Green, and then Empson from Clare. Clare, Porritt, and Empson went to the box in this period, with the penalty to Porritt proving to be the turning point in the game.

The fifth and deciding game will be played on Thursday night.

succeed. He knew the condition of the curve as to visibility and the other existing circumstances," stated Mr. Deyman.

Bad Driving But Not Criminal

"Yes, but was that criminal? He sees these men and tries to avoid them. He thinks that he has but doesn't miss them. There is bad driving no doubt, but where is it criminal?" observed His Lordship. "I think that the Crown Attorney did his duty in bringing this case before the grand jury, but the Crown must prove guilt beyond any possible doubt. There is evidence of negligence from a civil standpoint but not criminal negligence and I don't see where the jury could test the degree of negligence. I am suspicious of what actually happened but I must take the first from the jury. However, there is certainly enough evidence to proceed on the charge of leaving the scene of an accident."

Evidence of Drinking

Testimony that John Kemp had been drinking on the night that he is alleged to have struck William Greenley of Warkworth with his car, was given by witnesses during the trial. Kemp was also charged with not returning to the scene of an accident. Arraigned before Mr. Justice Green he pleaded not guilty. William Turner, Hope Township market gardener, who is charged with attempted murder in connection with the shooting of Fred C. Richardson of Cobourg on January 25, was also arraigned before the court.

"I don't say that I am not guilty but I did not intend to murder him," replied Turner when asked to plead guilty or not guilty.

"Then you plead not guilty," declared Mr. Justice Kelly.

"I didn't intend to murder Mr. Richardson," declared Turner. "I got splendid support from Mr. Richardson.

"Do you wish a lawyer?" asked His Lordship. "Remember you are entitled to one."

"I don't think that a lawyer could handle my case as well as I," replied Turner.

"You have a perfect right to defend yourself if you so desire but I don't like to see you without counsel," commented His Lordship.

"I would rather conduct my own case as I don't think it would get proper airing with a lawyer," was Turner's reply.

"Very well." assented His Lordship.

Brother Is Called.

Charles Greenely, of Warkworth, brother of William Greenley, was the first witness called and testified that the last he saw his brother alive was at twenty minutes to twelve on the night he was killed. He was dressed in work clothes he recalled. To Mr. Payne witness said that his brother's clothes were brown in colour

David Greenley, Percy Township, son of William Greenley, related that on the night of October 26th, last year, he and his brothers, Lorne and Robert, went to Warkworth in the family car. At 11.15 he saw his father in the pool room. Witness said that he left for home at 1.30 with is brother Lorne in the car.

"A mile from home we saw Robert walking along the road and took him home in the car. We called Dr. Armstrong. Then Lorne and I went to search for father I got Frank Jones to help hunt and later we found father lying in the ditch on the south side of the road about four to four-and-one-half feet from the travelled portion of the road. He was lying on his back. That would be between three and four in the morning.

We put him in the rear seat of the car and put him to bed. At eight a.m. that morning he died at his home" testified David Greenley. Both William and Robert Greenley were wearing dark suits. Witness identified clothing produced in court as that worn by his father and brother. His brother Robert had been wearing a grey summer cap when he went to the village that night but when found after the accident he was wearing his father's blue felt hat. Later when he visited the scene with Provincial Constable Carruthers, he found a grey cap there which belonged to Robert, witness said. To defense counsel witness stated that the body of William Greenley was lying on a slope when found and was about 40 feet south of the centre line of the curve. At the top of the hill a clear view could not be seen of where the body was found and the body could not be seen from a car coming south until within 75 feet of where it was found. William Greenley had been walking north, the witness said.

J. Birmingham, Campbellford surveyor, produced a plan of the road. To Mr. Payne he said that on rounding the curve at one point, the light of a car going south would be directed off the road

Dangerous Hill.

"Would you say that it was a very dangerous hill," Mr. Payne asked him.

"Yes, it would be at night," replied Birmingham.

Lorne Greenley, son of the late William Greenley, testified that on the night of the accident he saw his father at Warkworth. At about three o'clock on the following morning, his father was found lying on the road.

Dr. L. Armstrong of Warkworth said that he was called to the Greenley home after the accident. Greenley had suffered a concussion of the brain, fracture of both jaws, and a fracture of the left leg. Cause of his death was concusion of the brain, he thought. Later in the day he saw a car in a garage in Warkworth, and looked to see if the bumper would strike a man where Greenley's leg had been broken. The distance about coincided, he said.

Evidence as to photographs was given by Murray Smith of Cobourg and S. Linton of Campbellford. Frank Lockhart of Percy Township testified that at the home of Frank Jones on the night of October 26, he consumed some beer, and while there he saw Kemp, Gordon Beggs, and Stewart McCubbin come in. Kemp drank two quarts of beer, he estimated. Similar evidence was given by Bruce Hope.

"Would you say that Kemp was intoxicated?" asked Mr. Payne.

"No. I would not," replied Hope.

Gordon Beggs, who was with Kemp on the night of the fatality, testified that he met Kemp in Morganston that night.

"I went to Warkworth with Kemp where we met McCubbin and went to Frank Jones' house in my car. We arrived there around nine or nine-thirty. Each had two quarts of beer. McCubbin had a glass of beer. McCubbin had a glass out of mine, but I don't know if he had any out of Kemp's. After we left Jones' house, Kemp drove. I sat in front with Kemp; McCubbin was in the rear. On the way home I heard something and asked Kemp what it was. He replied that his elbow had gone through the window. I believe that I may have dozed off. I saw nobody on the road. The car didn't stop until we arrived in Warkworth," related Beggs. Witness said that on Sunday, October 27, he looked around the car and on the left hand side found that the light on the front left fender was gone. There was also a dent in the left rear fender.

To Mr. Payne, witness said that Kemp had not been driving fast.

Provincial Constable Don Carruthers of Campbellford told of the statement which Kemp gave after his arrest. He also told of finding a bracket from a fender light and of the discovery of the light near the scene of the fatality. Kemp's statement was admitted as evidence and read as follows:

"....I had two drinks at Jones' house with McCubbin and Beggs. Going back I saw two people on the road. I swung hard to one side to avoid them, and my elbow went through the window. I thought that I had missed them. The next day, Beggs told me that William Greenley had been killed on the road the night before, and that Robert Greenley was seriously hurt. I replied that I was certainly sorry to hear that. That night I was arrested and was taken to Cobourg."

Constable Carruthers testified further that he and Constable Adair tested the lights on Begg's car after the accident.

"Constable Adair drove Beggs' car and I stood on the road approximately three feet out on the road from where Greenley had been found. Constable Adair drove towards me and applied the brakes when he first saw me. It was about 120 feet from here he stopped to me. That was on the high beam, but on low beam the car stopped 90 feet from me. His evidence was corroborated by Provincial Constable Adair. The latter stated that examination of Begg's car revealed that the left fender light was missing, there were marks on the hood and on the left front door of the car there was evidence that the door had been cleaned.

Albert Prentice, Cobourg mechanic, in testifying at the night session of court, said that he had tested the car and found the lights, brakes and steering in fair condition. The left rear fender showed signs of having been recently hammered and repainted with cheap black paint. There was also a small dent in the front left fender, he said. The handle of the left front door was bent and the drip rail at the top had received a heavy blow.

Stewart McCubbin told of drinking at Jones' house on the night of the fatality. On his way back in the car he heard a crash of glass and on asking Kemp what happened, was told by the latter that his elbow had gone through the glass. Kemp was driving at a moderate rate of speed and at the time was in normal condition, he said.

This concluded the Crown's case.

ing plan, but provide extension of the grounds on which postponement or advancement of training may be granted to men called up.

The correspondence with Alberta and British Columbia arose from applications by the governments of those provinces for extension of treasury bills deposited with the Dominion as security for advances made in past years to enable them to provide unemployment relief and other services.

Money For War Funds.

Mr. Ilsley wrote Hon. John Hart, British Columbia Finance Minister, to the effect that he should apply a prospective surplus to repay part of British Columbia's debt and so make funds available for war purposes.

In a subsequent telegram Premier Pattullo described this as "an inordinate demand" and said the province did not recognize responsibility for advances made for unemployment relief which accounted for $24,800,000 of British Columbia's $34,630,000 indebtedness.

Earlier in a letter to the Prime Minister on the matter, Mr. Pattullo said: "I am afraid this unusual request of Mr. Ilsley's will in the light of conditions be interpreted as putting the screws on us."

In reply Mr. King recalled Mr. Pattullo's assurance of co-operation in prosecuting the war at the recent Dominion - Provincial conference when he joined with Premier Aberhart of Alberta and Premier Hepburn of Ontario in opposing action on the plan to re-adjust Dominion-Provincial relations embodied in the report of the Sirois Commission.

"We had therefore anticipated the eminently reasonable request contained in Mr. Ilsley's letter would meet with a ready response," wrote Mr. King.

A Friendly Action

The Alberta correspondence was friendly in tone. A bill for $4,678,000 due February 1 was renewed, but Mr. Ilsley notified Hon. Solon Low, Provincial Treasurer, that he would expect a statement showing Alberta's exact cash position before another bill for $4,439,000 due in April was renewed.

Mr. MacDonald said Canada's naval service and shipbuilding trade had been allowed to drop below the danger level in peacetime and hoped this would never happen again. He told the House that despite difficulties progress was being made in training men to man the ships acquired by the navy since war started.

The wartime shipbuilding program drawn up in 1939 would be completed in 2½ years instead of four, he said. That program involved building corvettes and minesweepers. Construction of destroyers and cargo ships was not contemplated at that time.

"Every ship we planned to build up to the end of 1943 will be completed in 1942," he said.

Mr. Howe said the most urgent need as far as shipping was concerned was the provision of repair and overhaul facilities, so that ships crossing the Atlantic could be sent back with the least possible delay. Orders had been placed for 20 cargo ships of 10,000 tons, and work on a destroyer-building program was proceeding.

"We believe that with the fleet of destroyers we have to-day it is necessary to develop destroyer-building technique in this country and sources of supply here for every piece of equipment that goes into a destroyer," he said.

"That work is proceeding and will be carried on as rapidly as possible without interfering with the more urgent requirements of our program."

Mr. Howe clashed with Ralph Maybank (Lib. Winnipeg South-Centre) over the type of coal to be used in the explosive plant being erected near Winnipeg and was advised by Walter Tucker (Lib. Rosthern) not to construe every suggestion from a member that a mistake had been made by servants of the Government as an attack on the Government.

The Winnipeg member"s complaint was that Allied War Supplies Limited, the Government-owned corporation erecting the plant, was installing equipment to burn bituminous coal which would have to come from Alberta instead of less costly lignite coal from Saskatchewan.

When Conservative House Leader Hanson questioned the wisdom of placing the plant in Winnipeg at all, Mr. Howe said it was the Department's policy to distribute war industries in various parts of the country wherever this was feasible.

Most of the raw materials entering into the making of cordite came from west of Winnipeg and the finished cordite would be used in shell-filling plants in Ontario and Quebec. Thus the plant was on the route between the source of raw materials and the seaboard and uneconomical transportation costs would not result from its location.

HULL, England, March 19.—(CP)—German bombers showered incendiaries and high explosives on Hull last night and early today in a fierce continuation of blows at Britain's provincial cities.

This shipping and factory city of 300,000 counted great numbers of dead in the wake of the assault, the worst of many directed against it.

The raiders roared over Hull in steady waves, using the same tactics that cost 1,000 lives in the Liverpool and the Glasgow regions last week.

Many residents were caught in their homes. Residential damage was severe. Rescues parties were busy digging out dead and injured when the all-clear sounded shortly before dawns.

One high explosive wrecked a shelter in which the only survivor was a baby 12 months old.

Ambulance jolted through narrow streets strewn with wreckage. Municipal authorities opened six community centres to feed and shelter the homeless.

The raid began with dropping of a few bombs in the early evening. Then came a lull of three hours. The attack's full fury struck shortly after midnight, when bombs rained down with such intensity it seemed the entire city would be blasted apart. This continued several hours without a letup.

Rescuers used all the tools they had and when there were no more for volunteers who swarmed to the blasted sections, many fell to digging into the debris with their bare hands.

In a nearby town hundreds of fire bombs were dropped, but damage there was not extensive.

Nuns put out incendaries sprinkled on a convent. One cluster of fire bombs seared through a theatre roof to the stage a few moments after the audience had left.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

CARRYING FULL KIT

Engineers and members of other active service units now on leave in this city were seen walking from the train to their homes wearing full battle kit, except for rifles. The third contingent of Engineers arrived in the city last night, and other soldiers noticed belonged to the Highlands Light Infantry, Forestry Corps, and Glengarrians.

GOES TO BOWMANVILLE

A thirteen-year-old Peterborough was sentenced by Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning to a year in the Bowmanville Boys' School on a charge of stealing silk stockings from the Kresge store. The youngster was out on suspended sentence as the result of a previous conviction.

HELD OVER.

The part two examinations for the junior officers of the Prince of Wales Rangers will be held on Sunday afternoon in the officers' mess at the Armoury. The part one examination scheduled for Sunday morning has been changed to Saturday night, so that it would not interfere with the religious activities of troops on the National Day of Prayer.

A NON-SUPPORT CHARGE

The suggestion was made by Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning when a non-support charge was being heard that the husband should turn over most of his pay check to his wife for a month and see how that worked out. The case was disposed of in accordance with the court's suggestion. There are four children under sixteen in the family.

LIFT LOCK TOOTS

W. J. Welch, local barber has made a further contribution to the British War Victims Fund. This time he has donated a wire haired terrier, C.K.C. Registered No. 156956 a pedigreed dog named Lift Lock Toots. The dog is 18 months old, properly trained and is a prize well worth winning. Tickets are being sold by employees of the Canadian General Electric Company at 25 cents each.

TRAINEES ARRIVING.

The first batch of trainees in the year-old class will report for four months' military training at Militraining Centre No. 32 on Thursday. So far as can be learned the first contingent of reserve soldiers will number only 175, but it was rumored to-day that certain active service units may take up residence in the local camp for further training. Captain E. M. Jones, former adjutant of the camp, has been transferred to Brockville.

RADIO INTERFERENCE.

The high wind of the last few nights has given radio listeners more troubles. A few small street lights have been loose and the continual pounding of the wind made a short circuit that made radio reception bad. The interference stopped as soon as the street lamps burned out. Every house on Carlisle and Munro Avenues had trouble, but last night the first lamp-post on the street was in darkness, probably explaining where the trouble had been.

GRAIN PRICES FAIR

PICTON MILK UP

The price of milk in Picton has been increased one cent a quart by a decision of the Ontario Milk Control Board. Applications of Belleville and Trenton producers have also been considered by the Board but no announcement has yet been made.

A DOLLAR DONATION

By way of contrast it may be mentioned that, while yesterday saw $1,612 come into the Canadian Police Spitfire Fund, the mails today brought Inspector J. F. Reid, Dominion treasurer of the fund only a dollar donation. It came from Iroquois Falls.

FRACTURES HIP

Mrs. Elizabeth Cleary, an elderly woman living at 425 Rogers street, suffered a fractured hip this morning and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. She was walking across the road in front of her home to make a telephone call when she slipped on the ice. Mrs. Clearly lived for years on a farm near Hastings and came to this city following the death of her husband, Michael Cleary.

M. M. ROBINSON COMING

M. M. Robinson of Burlington, formerly of Peterborough, will be the guest speaker at a dinner in the Empress Hotel, Monday, April 7, which is being arranged by the local Vegetable Growers' Association. A son of the late W. S. Robinson, one time foreman in the C.G.E. works in Peterborough, Mr. Robinson was for some years engaged in newspaper work in Toronto and Hamilton, but is now a prominent fruit farmer in the Hamilton district. Because of the fact that Mr. Robinson is a former Peterborough boy, the Vegetable men have decided to issue a general invitation to those who wish to hear him.

All Egg Grading Stations Must Be Registered

The establishment of registered egg grading stations throughout Canada is essentially a forthcoming change in marketing which affects the entire industry.

In future only registered egg grading stations will be permitted by Dominion authority to grade eggs. The only exception may be those producers who grade their own eggs for wholesale or retail sale. The Federal Department of Agriculture contends that while most of the grading has been properly done, there were many instances where eggs were graded by inexperienced persons, and in places without proper equipment for grading. As a consequence producers sometimes did not proper grading returns, and also improperly graded eggs reached the market.

Requirements under the new regulations of the Dominion Department of Agriculture are briefly: All persons employed as graders must pass a Departmental test; grading equipment must be satisfactory; egg rooms must be so arranged as to permit proper handling, and must be separated from any other business which might be harmful to eggs; the egg rooms must be kept cool during warm weather. The maximum temperature permitted is 67 degrees Fahrenheit, because it is one degree below the point at which eggs will begin to incubate.

Detail Of Expense.

The system of new stations will demand that eggs be graded only by qualified persons, and in places where the proper grading equipment is provided.

Expense will depend chiefly on what is necessary to ensure proper temperature control. In some instances suitable basement premises will be adequate, but, in others, mechanical refrigeration or ice will be necessary.

Some objection has been heard that the change will tend to place control of the egg business in the hands of large dealers. The reply of the Department is definitely contrary to that opinion. It is expected that the great majority of registered egg stations at country points will be operated by small private or co-operative interests. It is said that the amount of money required to set up premises suitable for registration is comparatively so small that any person of moderate means can undertake it. Besides the very nature of the egg business requires a large number of small assembly units at country points. It is said the business is not adaptable to large centralized control. No effort is made to control the number of registered stations.

Country Merchants.

Country merchants may establish registered egg grading stations. In towns where these stations are set up under other auspices many merchants will, of their own volition, stop receiving eggs. There is also provision for country merchants to receive eggs as "first receivers," passing the producers' eggs on to registered stations for grading.

To Improve Trade.

The regulations are expected to eliminate "fly by night" dealers who came into the market when it was good and stayed out when it was poor. If they disappear it will be because they do not see fit to take on the responsibility of equipping premises to handle the product properly.

Any slightly higher prices which a few individual producers might have received from such dealers, made possible by the fact that they had virtually no overhead, was more than offset by the adverse influence which their operations had on the market as a whole. To sell eggs, they have to undercut the regular trade, and they usually sell an ungraded or improperly graded product.

If there is no nearby registered grading station, some merchant or other will likely act as "first receivers" who will identify each farmers' eggs to the registered station. Grading returns will be sent back to the first receiver who in turn will make settlement with the producer.

If it is desired, the first receiver may make an advance payment to the producer not to exceed 80 per cent. of the price of Grade B.

The new system provides that producers may grade their own eggs for sale to retailers or consumers. When he sells to retailers he is required to put his name and address on the grade tag of the container, a protection for his business against the peddlers who pose as producers selling without any identification and thereby becoming a law to themselves.

A main effect of the new regulations is expected to be improvement in quality of eggs handled and delivered during the hot weather. By being kept cool in the registered stations they will retain their grade better than in the past. It has often been noted also that producers have been advised to keep eggs cool but grading stations failed to set that example. By the new system producers will be more encouraged to handle eggs properly themselves.

Warm Clothing Is Needed For Children

English children need clothes, and they need warm ones for their trips into air raid shelters on damp cold nights, according to Mary Hepworth who will be remembered by many children in Peterborough as the teacher who came over on an exchange from England, and taught in the kindergarten at Queen Mary School last year.

A Peterborough lady who wishes to remain anonymous has received a letter from Miss Hepworth, in which the teacher points to ski suits worn by Canadian children as being ideal for wear in dugouts. With the thought in mind that winter is nearly on its last step in Canada, the recipient of the letter has phoned the Examiner than an appeal may be made in the direction of winter clothes being sent to the suffering youngsters in England.

"The snow season is almost over," she said, "and many mothers will be putting heavy play clothes away. It would be grand if there could be secured some of these garments, perhaps some will be a little worn, or will have been 'outgrown,' and we could send them to England."

Those having such articles, and who would like to contribute to the relief of cold and frightened children, are asked to phone 3859 and the clothing will be called for and promptly sent to the British Isles.

Peterborough Boats Shown In Toronto

Pleasure stood shivering in the yard north of the Peterborough Canoe Company this morning as a gay green and white cruiser, securely tied to trailer was about to take off to Toronto and the T. Eaton Company's display of Peterborough boats this week.

This compact cruiser is an experiment in light craft undertaken by the Eaton Company. It is built of waterproof plywood, is 22 feet long by 7½ feet beam, has sleeping accommodation for four persons, all conveniences, and is an attractive boat. The plywood construction eliminates considerable weight, and because its reaction to wind and weather has not yet been determined in actual use the cruiser is regarded as an experiment down at the canoe factory.

Most of the materials were prefabricated and were sent to Peterborough to be put together, and the completed job looks to the layman like a bright symbol of summer. The engine was supplied by the local company, and the boat will be shown at the Eaton display of Peterborough watercraft in Toronto this week.

700 More Prisoners

LONDON, March 19—(CP)—British troops have captured 700 to 800 Italian prisoners in the last few days in operations around the Eritrean stronghold of Cheren, military circles reported Tuesday.

These sources said the Fascist force at Cheren, which has been blocking the British advance toward the colonial capital of Asmara and the Red Sea for weeks, is putting up stiff resistance.

Heavy rains destroyed much coffee on the trees in Salvador last season.

ORPHAN OF THE STORM.

Frank Buller, delivery boy for Payne's drug store, did his good deed to-day. He was walking along Simcoe Street when a starling fluttered to the street, battered and bleeding from the beak. Frank took the bird into the drug store, swabbed the blood off, applied a splint to its leg, and then set the injured bird in cardboard box on top of the furnace grill. The starling had been caught apparently in the high wind and hurled against one of the buildings, then zoomed to the ground in a forced landing. Three hours later the starling had sprucked up, and had eaten some food. The rescuer took the starling to the door, and when it was released it soared away, with one leg still in the splint.

421 Persons In Peterborough Receiving Old Age Pension

Mrs. Joseph Mills was re-elected president of the Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowance Board of the city on Tuesday. The other officers are Mrs. George Benton, vice-chairman; E. A. Outram, secretary, and the Board members are Mrs. Mary O'Grady; Major D. A. Loomis, M.C.; and James C. Ellis.

The annual statement by Mr. Outram reported 421 old age pensioners in Peterborough, December 31, 1940.

Total amount of old age pensions paid in the city each month is approximately $8,209.50. The number of new applications for pension considered by the Board last year was 76.

The decision of the Board in these cases was as follows: approved for pension, 64; further investigation recommended, 4; not approved. 5; no recommendation, 3.

Increases recommended for those receiving pension were 5.

The Board also deals with pensions for the blind. Five applications were considered during the year; three were approved, and two were recommended for more invstigation.

Mothers' Allowances

The number of Mothers' Allowances paid in the city at December 31, 1940, was 129.

Total monthly allowances paid in Peterborough, $5,805. The number of new applications for Mothers' Allowances considered by the Board in 1940, was 21.

Thirteen applications were approved, four were not approved and in four cases no recommendation was made.

$168,175 a Year

The combined amount of old age pensions and mothers' allowances paid in Peterborough each month last year was $14,014, on the basis of the statement as at the end of December, and the total for the year would be $168,174.

Children's Aid Family Care Is Increasing

A comparison statistically of the work of the Children's Aid Society during February, 1940, as compared with February, 1941, reveals that the greatest increase of the work is with families. In this work the organization ended with an interest in February, 1940, of 120 as compared with 165 in February, 1941; there were 108 children under the care of the society in 1940, and 116 in 1941, of which 8 were British war guests. Under the U.P.A. there were 62 in 1940 and 68 in 1941.

Twenty-four families were referred to the Children's Aid Society during February, Miss Rachael Young, superintendent, announced in her monthly report. Four were investigations for the Soldiers' Dependents' Allowance; two for families left stranded because the S.D. A. had not arrived, juvenile delinquency accounted for one, and other problems presented included incompatability, imprisonment, desertion by parents, drunkenness, medical neglect, sex problems, children left alone, and 5 cases under the Unmarried Parents Act.

The question most often heard in the C.A.S. office, Miss Young stated, is the problem of soldiers' wives. That problem may mean anything from a delayed allowance, for which the mother is in no way responsible, to definite neglect of children. A new-found freedom, financially and otherwise, offers its own problems in some situations. In two families where allowance was not coming through, it was found there were no resources. One family had to be assisted through organizations, but the other was able to get food on credit.

Only 11 On Relief

Of the 165 families under the care of the society, only 11 are on relief. It is recognized that relief is a factor only and not a cause of neglect of children unless it is very inadequate, otherwise how could we account for some families who, while on relief, do an excellent job in the care and training of their children? Miss Young asked.

Appreciation of the assistance of the Red Cross, which helped the society to meet an emergency in a soldier's home by supplying a housekeeper, was expressed. Had a housekeeper not been supplied the alternative would have been for the organization to look after seven children for a period of eight days. Further applications for immediate adoption of children in soldiers' families homes are being received.

Of interest was the announcement that five children, four of whom are residents of the city, are being maintained by some one other than the municipality. A sixth child with the C.A.S. for only a few weeks has been maintained by his parent. One adoption was completed during the month.

Nominating Committee

Alderman James Dutton was in the chair for the meeting, held Tuesday afternoon in the City Hall. A nominating committee appointed to bring in nominations of the New Board of Directors included Mrs. J. Fanning, Mrs. Oke, Mr. Ross Dobbin, Mr. R. H. Parsons. Letters of appreciation for fine services rendered during their connection with the C.A.S. Board of Directors are to be sent to Mr. C. A. Salmonsen and Rev. Dr. F. J Kelly A communication from the Board of Education announced that the use of the Collegiate Auditorium would be granted without charge for the annual meeting of the Board, to be held during April with Miss Charlotte Whitton, executive head of the Canadian Welfare Council, as guest speaker Miss Whitton will come to Peterborough from Chicago, where she has been delivering addresses in connection with welfare work.

91.52 Per Cent Of 1940 Taxes Paid Last Year

The people of Peterborough paid last year 91.52 per cent. of their current 1940 taxes, a fractional increase over their 1939 payments.

The total amount of tax monies that flowed through the office of A. S Couper, tax collector, last year was $828,560.18, comprising taxes due and payable last year and also payments of taxes in arrears from other years.

The 1940 taxes paid by ratepayers was $747,703.73 which was 91.52 per cent of the amount of the tax roll.

In 1939 the ratepayers of Peterborough paid 91.4 per cent. of the taxes due in that year, and that percentage was exceeded only by Woodstock of Ontario municipalities.

The percentage improvement in current payments was 12 per cent. only a fractional gain, but a gain.

City Treasurer Shaver remarked to-day that the taxpayers have only a narrow margin left in which to show gains in their payments to the city, and any gain within those top brackets from 90 to 100 per cent. is a substantial accomplishment.

Night Lodgers Crowd Station

"These men have been taking up all the accommodation and the odor has been so bad that our officers on night duty have to have the windows open and sit in the cold," declared Chief Constable Sam Newhall in Police Court this morning when four local men who have been sleeping ino the Police station every night were charged before Magistrate E. A. Gee with vagrancy.

"Sometimes there are as many as eighteen of them in for the night," said Chief Newhall. "The result is there is no room for regular prisoners and the air is poisonous. Nothing has been done to improve the conditions, and they will not even provide a ventilator for the place."

"Why do you take them in?" asked Magistrate Gee.

"I wouldn't turn a dog out in weather like we have been having," returned Chief Newhall. "These men have no place to go and they come to the station asking for shelter. We have to take them in."

"Some of them should be in homes," commented the Magistrate.

"They don't want to go to such places because of the rules," replied Chief Newhall. "They won't work. They would rather hang around the wine store and the liquor vendors in the daytime and then sleep in the station at night."

Three of the men pleaded guilty to the vagrancy charge and were sentenced to a month in the County Jail.

"That may bring things to a head if the county authorities start kicking about the expense," said the Chief Constable.

A fourth man who said he had a job to go to with a market gardener was given his freedom and advised to get going.

Gust Of Wind Blows Away Woman's Hat In Scramble $120 In Bills Are Scattered

Downtown Peterborough was the scene of an unique treasure hunt at noon today, thanks to a woman's hat and a capricious March wind.

A woman member of the staff of the Beatly Washer store was on her way to the bank with $120 in bills in a bankbook. As she was passing Jopling's meat market a sudden gust of wind blew off her hat. She grabbed for the headgear, dropped the bank book and in a flash the strong breeze took hold of the bills and they were scattered all over George street. A wild chase ensued in which civilians and the police joined.

Eventually all but $15 of the money was recovered. Some of the bills had blown around the corner of Charlotte street. and one man picked up $40 at the side of Anthony's store.

A woman was seen to pick up what bystanders though was money and so far she has not reported.

Suspect U-Boat Tip-Off Is Nazi Trick

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.)

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) —Sporadic U-boat raiding in the Western Atlantic is not only possible but probable, yet it is on Britain's vulnerable sea bottlenecks at home that Germany must concentrate if she has any hope of achieving the 1941 victory Hitler has repeatedly promised his people.

Whatever the source of accuracy of reported orders to long-range Nazi submarines to prowl off American coasts and ports in search of victims, the obvious fact is that Berlin cannot well spare important units of the undersea fleet for that purpose. They could probably achieve greater results per ship in waters off the coasts of Ireland.

Prime Minister Churchill's disclosure that both German submarines and heavy cruisers have already struck "on the American side of the Atlantic" does not change the situation. He located the westermost sea incident as on the 42nd meridian of longitude. That is 1,500 miles or so east of New York. It is 1,200 miles outside the 300-mile-wide so-called Pan-American neutrality belt fringing the Western Hemisphere from the Bay of Fundy to Cape Horn.

For Home Consumption.

German raiders penetrating that belt are subject to spotting by American air and sea patrols. Word of their location would be almost certain to reach British ears and set British sea-hunters on their trail. Yet if they stay outside the patrol area and far at sea, their chances of intercepting more than an occasional cargo craft would be small.

Had Berlin strategists deemed it possible to sway United States action on the aid-for-Britain program, the time for sending U-boats to lurk off New York or other United States ports would have been while the aid bill was before Congress, not after it had been enacted. If sea attack on British shipping does come, as it may, in American waters, its main purpose would be for German consumption. It would be intended to back up Hitler's assertion that United States help could not save Britain.

It is not impossible that the reported Nazi order to a big U-boat to head westward for that purpose was "planted" in Berlin. The order is supposed to have been sent by radio and to have been intercepted, presumably by the British authorities. To what extent Britain has succeeded in this war, as in the last, in intercepting and decoding radio orders has never before been even hinted.

Loss of "Fertility"

Dissemination of seemingly authentic reports of expansion of the German sea offensive into the Western Atlantic might serve Berlin's purposes in another way. In the same speech in London Mr. Churchill again noted that the shipping problem for Britain is not alone tonnage losses, heavy as they are, but loss of "fertility" of importing power."

By that he meant shipping delays due to roundabout courses and the time lost at sea in assembling convoys. Anything that tended further to increase such ship movement relays and the turn-around of cargo craft shuttling the Atlantic would step up that strain on British tonnage.

Even the report of impending U-boat operations in the Western Atlantic might have such an effect. The actual appearance of a Nazi submarine would increase it. It would compel Britain-bound ships from both Canada and the United States to increase their sea mileage to designated convoy assembly points on the other side.

Mr. Churchill's announcement that a trio of Nazi U-boats had been sunk in a single day was a more cheering note. This, coupled with a drop in admitted shipping losses for the preceding week, suggests that British counter-measures against the Nazi sea attack are proving reasonably effective.

Havelock Stag Adds $42.50 For War Victims

Down at Havelock they held a stag party a few nights ago and the boys must have been in a generous mood for today Rae Williams brought in the fine sum of $42.50 for the Peterborough War Victims Fund. This is only one of the many splendid efforts on the part of the Havelock people, and now comes word from Miss Minnie Williams, the representative at Havelock that the Dorcas Rebekah Lodge No. 98 will hold a card party in Havelock on Thursday, March 20. All prizes have been donated and all proceeds will go to the Fund.

Herb Jamison, manager of the C.D.S. put his 17th of March dance over in fine style and today the fund is richer by $32.10. Employees at the big store and members of the Lions Club all helped to make the dance a great success. The thanks of the dance committee is extended to Ian F. McRae, works manager of the C.G.E., for his cooperation in allowing them the use of the Kawartha Club without charge.

F. G. Mann announced this morning that only $450.00 is needed to put the fund over the fifth £500 mark and with contributions coming in regularly this total should be reached within the next week.

Mail Men Report Roads Very Heavy

The whooping wind of Wednesday made country traffic difficult for rural mail couriers, bread delivery men and others whose daily rounds take them into the townships.

Mail men reported that the wind blew up every last loose particle of snow and whirled drifts across side lines and even on the highways. The air was full of snow at times, cutting down visibility and aggravating the trouble of buffeting the high winds. Here and there some mail was not delivered.

Alderman Dutton told the Examiner that the bread delivery men completed their rounds, but most of them were late getting home. The road to Warsaw was heavy, and the blasts of wind across Chemong Lake forced the Ennismore truck around by the head of the lake.

It was said that most of the drifts were packed to a consistency that would support a man walking across them.

Australian scientists have just reported that Australian lizards never drink.

Parents' Auxiliary Busy With War Work

A letter from Mrs. J. Peacock of Red Shield Auxiliary headquarters at Toronto, expressing appreciation of knitted garments received for overseas shipment, was read on Tuesday evening at a meeting of the Parents' Auxiliary to the 5th Troop Boy Scouts, held in All Saints' Parish Hall. It is hoped that Mrs. Peacock will be free to come to Peterborough on or about April 24, and plans for a social evening during her anacipated visit, to which all Scout Auxiliary members will be invited, were made at last night's meeting.

Work now completed by the Auxiliary and ready for shipment includes 12 pairs of socks, two pairs wristlets, four pairs gloves, one pair open mitts, one sweater, also 24 grey Scout neckerchiefs for Cub leaders.

Thimble teas held for the purpose of providing wool for war knitting were given during the past month by Mrs. O. Kidd, Mrs. A. Hurrie, Mrs. W. Magee, Mrs. H. Elcombe, Mrs. A. Watkins, Mrs. R. J. Kearns, Mrs. H. Graham, Mrs. R J. Miller, Mrs. S. Allbrook, Mrs. A. Hope. It was decided that each group be responsible for the raising of talent money for further wool purchase, and a quilt is to be made to be sent overseas.

Mrs. R. J. Kearns, president, will attend the 9th annual presidents' conference of Parents' Auxiliaries, to be held in Toronto on March 26. Two interesting accounts of Scouting, one on the life of the present Chief Scout, Lord Sommers, and the other on the work of the Rover Scouts during raids on Coventry on November 19, were read by the president.

Following the business period, a brief program included the reading of the 91st Psalm by Mrs. A. Wilford, two Irish songs by Mrs. H. Kearns, accompanied by Mrs. G. Nicholls, and community singing. Tea was served by Mrs. O. Kidd and her committee.

Shows Pictures Of Western Mission Work

Pictures of a trip from Toronto to the West Coast, dealing chiefly with his work as a missionary in the Western Provinces, where he spent his last two summers, were shown by Mr. Leonard Sels, a student at Knox College, Toronto, at a Thank-offering meeting of the Young Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Church, held in the Sunday School Rooms, with a large attendance; Miss Margaret Morgan, president, in the chair. A resume of events connected with the pictures was given by Mr. Sels, who spoke earnestly of the great need for home missions. A trombone solo, with Mrs. V. Read at the piano, was also contributed by the guest speaker, who was introduced by Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr.

A vote of thanks on behalf of the Auxiliary was tendered by Miss Marjory Nesbitt. Miss Mary Greer conducted the devotional part of the meeting, and a sacred solo, "The Lord is My Shepherd," was sung by Miss Jean Cameron.

Mrs. E. Armstrong and her committee served refreshments after the meeting, with Mrs. E. H. Howson and Mrs. Fred Rowan pouring tea. The table was laid with a lace cloth sprinkled with shamrocks, and in the centre were two quaint china figures of a shy Irish colleen and her sweetheart.

FASHIONS

Here is a jacket dress that you can wear right now as well as all through the Spring months. Its boxy jacket is figure flattering, especially for the more mature woman. Flat pleats in the skirt make it slim, but give you plenty of room for walking. Choose your fabric wisely for complete all around wearability. Sheer wool make a smart suit dress and heavy crepe is lovely too. A striped blouse is pictured, but you may prefer a solid pastel or a flower print, both of which are smart and suitable.

Style No. 2773 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39-inch fabric for jacket and skirt; 1⅝ yards for waist.

26 Layettes To Be Made By H. and S. Clubs

A paper on the mother and adolescent child, stressing the importance of a proper understanding of the boy or girl of this age, was given by Mrs. V. R. Henry, Home Education convener, at the monthly meeting of the Home and School Council, held in the Y.W.C.A. with Mrs. R. Parnell presiding and forty-four members present. Information on the eyes and their care was given by the health convener, Mrs. I. R. Rattenbury.

Mrs. E. Chambers was appointed nominations convener, with Mrs. L. M. Richardson and Mrs. L. Raper acting on the committee. Announcement was made of the annual convention to be held in Toronto during Easter week at the Royal York Hotel.

A display of eight baby layettes, beautifully made by members of Home and School Associations and their friends for British babies was a special feature of the meeting. Twenty-six layettes will be ready for shipment by the first of April, and in nearly all Associations the articles have been donated. The King Edward Association, with a membership of fifty, are to be commended on having completed six layettes, all articles having been donated with the exception of six nighties, for which material was purchased and the garments made by senior girls of the school under the supervision of Miss Jamieson. The Queen Mary School girls, under Miss Deyell's direction, have knitted three afghans to be used as blankets or shawls.

Each layette consisted of 1 large baby blanket, knitted or otherwise, 3 nighties, 2 shirts, 2 binders, 2 knitted jackets, 2 pairs long booties, 1 bonnet, 2 knitted soakers, 1 dozen diapers, and hot water bottle, soap, powder, face cloths and safety pins.

The number of layettes made by each Association is as follows: King Edward, six; Prince of Wales, three; Central School, three; King George School, two; May's School, one; Confederation School, two; Queen Mary School, three; Queen Alexandra, three; Queen Elizabeth, three.

To Preserve Flowers

Home isn't home without a few flowers, so here is some advice for saving money and making them last longer. Make it a habit to cut the tips off the stalks every day. Bang the ends of hard stalks with a hammer for four inches of their length and bang them again when that four inches has been cut off. Add either a spoonful of powdered charcoal or a little camphor or soda to the water in the vase every time you change it to increase the life of all flowers. Revive wilted specimens by putting them in boiling water for five minutes and then transferring to cold. A penny or an aspirin in the water has bucked up drooping blooms before now.

British Women In The News

Work for skilled needlewomen hit by war: London Women's Needlework Service started "valeting" agency for business. Service women too busy to look after own clothes.

Staying on the land for duration: Nearly 100 London shopgirls doing auxiliary land work in Worcestershire lost their jobs when stores were bombed; most joined regular Land Army to help grow food, settled in hostels, started Spitfire fund to defeat Hitler.

First woman warworker to drive horse and dray for L.M.S.: Miss Vera Proctor, 21, of Hayway Farm, Broadway, Worcs. Has worked on parents' farm from girlhood; went to Gloucester and became vandriver when she heard women were wanted for men's jobs; carts packages weighing over 1 cwt., likes it.

Girl Guides are doing their bit running camps for farm workers, helping with the cooking, finding clothing for bombed families, scope for Good Deeds everywhere.

On with the show! Old favorites Zena, Phyllis Dare, playing in northern theatre when bombs began to fall finished last act in bar before small audience which stayed. "Everybody was so gay," said Zena, "we forgot about bombs."

In making muffins, don't overmix the batter. It should be lumpy. If overmixed the muffins will be tough and slow to brown.

Wilted vegetables may be freshened by soaking them for a short time in cold water containing a little salt.

A good cleanser for brass, copper and pewter is a mixture of salt with an equal quantity of flour and vinegar. Apply a paste made up of these ingredients and allow to remain on for an hour, then rub off. Wash with water; then polish.

To saute means to brown in a small amount of fat. This term is often used interchangeably with pan fry.

The easiest way to peel turnips is to cut them in slices and pare the edges of the slices. Adding a teaspoon of sugar to the water in which turnips are cooking lessens the odor and improves the taste.

Ten Points To Follow In Garbing Women Over 40

By AMY PORTER
(Associated Press Fashion Writer.)

What is the perfect Easter costume for a woman past 40?

Specialists in clothes for the older woman say it may be a suit, a coat or a jacket dress, but it must score high on the following 10 points:

Silhouette: The older woman, thin or not so thin, should insist on easy fit. A clinging silhouette accentuates figure faults.

Necklines: A woman is as young as her throat, so look for necklines that flatter. The deep V is becoming to most women, but its severity should be relieved with a collar that stands up slightly. If the skin is less than perfect the V should be filled in with a lingerie dickie. High young collars look well on any woman with a good throat line.

Sleeves: Three-quarter length, loose-hanging sleeves are best. They conceal lumpness or thinness, move gracefully with the motion of the arm. But if you have a fine arm, show it off with an above-the-elbow sleeve. In evening dress, little cap sleeves or a filmy shoulder cape go well.

Coats: A dressmaker coat with a print dress is the best day-in and day-out costume for the older woman. Avoid severity of cut and finish. Hand-details contribute to the great lady look.

Colors: Don't cling to color inhibitions. A woman with clear skin and white hair may look best in flaming red. Women with greying hair should avoid unrelieved black, for it makes them look sallow. Navy blue is better. Sharp colors are less flattering, generally, than muted pastels.

Accessories: Many older women suffer a bad case of conservatism when it comes to selecting bag, gloves and shoes. They are apt to buy non-committal black "because it goes with everything." Why won't dark red "go with everything" just as well? And older women's shoes need not look old. Young styles are made on comfortable lasts.

Hats: Needn't be heavy and matronly. Wear your basic costume into a store and at least try on the dizziest hats in the place.

Jewelry: Costume or real—is a must for the older woman. A fine clip, a graceful lapel spray, a long strand of beads add fillip.

Quality: The experienced shopper will concede that one fine costume is worth three cheap ones. For older women particularly, good material and fine finish are important for a neat appearance.

Maudsley-Pilling Vows Are Pledged

A quiet marriage ceremony took place Tuesday evening at eight o'clock at the home of Mrs. Gordon Wainwright, 318 Elias Avenue, when Miss Audrey Velma Pilling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pilling, King George Street, became the bride of Lance-Corporal Thomas Maudsley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Maudsley, Lafayette Avenue. Rev. T. S. Galt of Campbellford was the officiating clergyman.

A grey tailored suit with straw hat and accessories in a soft rose shade was worn by the bride, and her corsage was of Talisman roses. Mrs. Gordon Wainwright, wearing mauve sheer and corsage of roses, and Mr. Wainwright, were the attendants.

Fashion Flashes

Prints in large size and well spaced are attractive for afternoon dresses especially in black and white, and combination colors worked in stripes, are effective.

Front fullness is a highlight of coats as well as dresses, and there are numerous examples of pleats for fullness, sometimes all-around, sometimes in clusters.

For afternoon weddings, and for the mother of the bride, dresses in pastels, with yokes and sleeves in lace and tucked chiffon. Lingerie accents are important, noted on many dresses with convertible necklines.

Jacket ensembles are accented for spring, with bolero and over the hip lengths in the majority, although the longer, wristlength jacket is also represented. For evening, the brief jacket is also approved, sometimes tieing on at the waistline.

Bridge Nets $24.20 For I.O.D.E. Work

CAMPBELLFORD, March 19 — (ENS).—Announcing to members the proceeds of the bridge and euchre party held under auspices of their Branch of the I.O.D.E. on March 12, Regent Clara Luck revealed they would clear approximately $24.20 which she felt was most satisfactory in view of the fact it was the first undertaking of the newly formed Trent Valley Chapter. During the business period a vote of thanks was extended to Messrs. A. E. Burgiss, A. D. Bennett, C. Sloggett and Charles Palliser for the prizes they had donated for the affair. Next meeting will be held in the Chapter's rooms on March 27.

Chic Costs More Time Than Money

Time and the ability to stick to a plan are more important than money to the woman who wants to be smartly turned out but who has no intention of trying to claim a place on so-called "best dressed" lists.

She prizes the extra amount of free time which allows here to examine several remnant counters to find just the right bit of material for a blouse that will lift her suit out of the so-so category. She realizes that a unique buckle, shoes which are chic as well as comfortable, a hat that is at once flattering and smart, or suit material that looks soft and yet will hold its creases often cost more in time than in money.

As a result, she never makes plans for a wardrobe hurriedly. She doesn't expect to get everything within a few days. Right now, she knows pretty well what she wants for spring. Long before the stores are crowded with Easter shoppers she will have spent a great deal of time tracking down the best clothes available at what she can afford to spend.

Meanwhile she will not have forgotten that the better her figure, the more becoming the new clothes will be. She thinks that it makes more sense for a woman to devote a lot of time for six months to getting rid of bulges than to go on, year after year, constantly searching for clothes to conceal or minimize the bulges.

There Are Twelve Reasons Why Husbands Flee Wives. Average Man Marries With Idea of "Staying Put," and if He Doesn't, You Don't Have to Look Far for the Cause.

According to statistics, 17,500 husbands deserted their wives in 1940. Commenting on this, the dean of Temple University Law School says that it is the women's fault and that if they would try as hard to please their husbands as the husbands do to please their clients and patients and customers the husbands would never run away. Common observation does not bear out this theory of why husbands leave home, for all of us know men who, like Roark Bradford's "John Henry," were born with an itching foot and a wandering around in their weary minds that no marriage bond—no matter how gilded—could make stay hitched. We know other men, with changeable tastes in ladies, who could not stay faithful to any one woman, even though she were as beautiful as a movie star, as amiable as Patient Griselda and as good a cook as a French chef. And we know plenty of other men who swell the migratory-husband list just because they want to dodge responsibility, spend their money for hard liquor instead of milk for the baby, and who just don't like being tied down to a wife and kids anyway However, these flitting now-you-see-'em-and - now - you-don't husbands are in the minority. When the average man marries he means to stand by his bargain. And it is a marvel how much punishment he can take without throwing up his hands and quitting cold. Makes you realize that all the saints and martyrs are not dead when you see the men who are married to female Hitlers, curtain lecturers and human porcupines, who stick on at their jobs instead of hopping a plane or taking a fast train for parts unknown.

Why Wives Lose Husbands

Certainly we are bound to admit in all honesty that there are plenty of wives who are accessory before the fact of their husbands deserting them and, according to the learned jurist above quoted, it is a safe bet that when a man does the domestic fadeaway it is because his wife does one, or more, or all of the following things:

First: Complains too much about her health and her poor nerves and makes her symptoms the chief topic of conversation.

Second. Comes down to breakfast in a none-too-clean negligee, without combing her hair and with cold cream still on her face.

Third. Saves up and retells all of the children's misdeeds and every unpleasant incident that has happened during the day.

Fourth. Runs him in debt by trying to keep up with the Joneses, and complains because she can't have everything that rich women have.

Fifth. Criticizes everything he does and doesn't do.

Sixth. Shows no sense of humor. Makes tragedies of things she should laugh off.

To these six recipes for canning a husband I should like to add six other guesses at why Friend Husband flees his own fireside.

He gets tired of nagging. His frayed nerves will stand only so much being told over a million times what to do, and think, and wear, and eat, and he feels that if he has to listen one more time to his master's voice he will choke it in her throat.

Bad cooking and sloppy housekeeping. He goes in search of a decent meal and a clean and uncluttered place in which to read his newspaper of an evening.

Wife's family always under foot. Too much mother-in-law. Ditto too much sisters and brothers.

Wife corrects him in public. Stages fights before company. Muffs his pet stories by saying everybody has heard those old ones. Makes him feel small and stupid.

Boredom. Wife never reads anything. Never keeps up with what's going on in the world. Has a conversational range that only goes from the kitchen to the nursery. So dull any one would want to get away from her.

Home is such a place of bad food, discomfort, squalling children, peevish fretfulness, and quarrels that a man hates to go to it at night, when his hard day's work is over. And sometimes he doesn't.

Perhaps these things explain the wife-deserter. And why.

Rain No Hindrance

IF YOU'RE OUT AFTER BARGAINS

Buy sauce for it's flavouring power

BECAUSE women are using sauce more and more to improve food flavour, the question of cost is important. Many women have come to the conclusion, after trying several sauces, that the thick, fruity H. P. Sauce is a real bargain. It goes farther and you get more flavouring power for your money. Being a rich, concentrated sauce, very little H. P. is required to impart a lot of flavour. Then H. P. is such a useful, all-round sauce. It's the only sauce you need. Your roasts, meat pies, soups and stews can all be enriched with H. P. Try it in macaroni dishes, gravies, meat croquettes and salmon loaf. Serve it with all fried meats and fish; H. P. Sauce adds hearty, appetizing favour to dozens of favourite foods.

Ministers Bid Farewell To Two Members

A luncheon meeting of the Peterborough Ministerial Association was held at Hooper's Palm Room Tuesday at 12:30. After dinner the president, Rev. C. C. Boyter, introduced the business which was to say farewell to Dr. A. T. Barr, who is leaving for St. John's, Newfoundland, and Rev. R. D. Wright of Gilmour Church who is going to Renfrew, and to welcome Rev. W. A. Filer, who is the new rector of All Saints' Church.

Present were Canon W. P. Robertson, Revs. T. J. Floyd, W. A. Filer, C. C. Boyter, J. H. Sutcliffe, R. D. Wright, Dr. A. T. Barr, Adjutant Norman Buckley, H. L. Roberts, F. W. Craik, J. R. Trumpour, V. E. R. Zufelt, W. McArthur and Dr. E. W. Young.

Canon Robertson expressed the welcome of the meeting to Rev. W. A. Filer. He felt, he said, the veteran of the Association, next to Mr. Sutcliffe, Canon Paterson had had a pastorate of 17 years, Mr. Sutcliffe of fourteen, Dr. Barr ten, and Mr. Wright over ten years. This was highly creditable to these men. Mr. Filer is no stranger to him. He had presented him for the sacred office of deacon and priest. His first parish was Palermo, after which he was curate at several parishes in Toronto. He came to Peterborough with a good record and would find a fine sphere of work in All Saints' parish.

Mr. Filer thanked the Association for its gracious welcome. He had known Dr. Barr and Mr. Roberts in Brantford.

Rev. H. L. Roberts expressed appreciation for Dr. Barr, and wished him well in his new field. Dr. Barr came to Brantford in his time, and organized his own people in that city in which he will be long remembered with gratitude. His church had elected him to some of the most important positions. He is a scholar, a preacher and a Scotsman. He has been here for 10 years in a very important church. Mr. Roberts said that Dr. Barr and he have been close friends for many years.

Enjoyed The Fellowship

Dr. Barr said that he had greatly enjoyed the fellowship of the Ministerial Association. The Moderator of the church had asked him to help with educational organization in Newfoundland. His predecessor had been chairman of an interdenominational committee in that area and he had been asked to assist in that work which meant much for the failure of Protestantism. There is a new naval base in St. John's, that and other new developments that will make considerable demands on a minister's strength.

Dr. E. W. Young expressed the regret of the ministers at the departure of Rev. R. D. Wright. Mr. Wright had been secretary to the Baptist convention of this area, and had won the confidence and affection of not only his own denomination but of other churches as well. He had been at one time president of the Ministerial Association. The pupils of Queen Elizabeth School will miss him. He took up that work at considerable sacrifice to himself.

Mr. Wright thanked Dr. Young and the Association for their kind words. He will miss some of the advantages of a country congregation. He was always cordially welcomed to the homes of his people even at meal times. He had been over 10 years pastor of Gilmour Church.

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe announced the meeting of the Religious Education Council and the workers of the Vacation Bible School on next Thursday at the Y.W.C.A. at 7 o'clock. Also a meeting of Sunday School workers in Murray St. Church on Friday, April 4, with Rev. E. R. MacLean of Toronto as special speaker.

Lenten Services

Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt announced that a series of Lenten services would be held in the city during the week ending with Good Friday, April 7 to 11. Rev. Robert Moynan of Hamilton will give the addresses Mr. Moynan is one of the secretaries of the Lord's Day Alliance and has a splendid record as minister of one of the largest churches in Hamilton.

The schedule of services is as follows with the name of the minister assisting the local pastor:

Tuesday, April 8, Murray Street, Dr. E. W. Young.

Wednesday, April 9, St. Paul's, Rev. H. L. Roberts

Thursday, April 10, Knox Church, Adjutant Norman Buckley.

Good Friday, St. Andrew's Church Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe.

Rev. W. A. Filer will take up religious education duty at Prince of Wales School on Wednesday, March 26 Mr. Filer was an active member of the Association at St. John's, N.B., from which he has come, and promises to be a most valuable member of the Peterborough group.

Victims Of Air Crash Buried With Military Honors

Seven young British airmen killed in an airplane crash near Bradford, Ont., last week were buried with full military honors at the Barrie Union Cemetery. New Four Months' Training Course Is Extended To Cover Ages To 45

OTTAWA, March 18.—(CP).—Every unmarried man in Canada or widower without children, between the ages of 21 and 45 years, will be subject to call-up if the need arises under the revised regulations governing the new four-months compulsory military training plan, tabled in the House of Commons yesterday by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of National War Services

In general principle the amended and consolidated regulations are the same as those drawn up for the original 30-day training period introduced last October. Certain clauses, however, have been eliminated or modified, others inserted to fit in with the longer course.

It has already been announced that the extended training period will be confined for the present to men in the 21-year-old age group with the first class of recruits under orders to report on March 20 at selected camps throughout the Dominion.

Under this arrangement it is estimated that approximately 72,000 men will be given training during the 12 months from that date.

Regarding the age groups subject to call-up the regulations have this to say:: "..Every male British subject who is or who has been at any time subsequent to the 1st of September, 1929, ordinarily resident in Canada, while he is of the ages of 21 years to 45 years inclusive and who was on the 15th day of July, 1940, unmarried or a widower without child or children, shall be liable during the continuation of the state of war now existing to undergo and perform military training for such period or periods as may from time to time be fixed or determined by proclamation and pursuant to these regulations."

A sub-section forbids any man to leave Canada for any reason whatsoever after his age class has been called up, without written authority from the chairman of the board under whose jurisdiction he comes.

Clauses for Students.

Salient clauses affecting university and college students stipulate that:

1. Students taking a course leading to a degree or diploma will not be called up for training until the end of the 1940-41 scholastic term.

2. Students qualified to be commissioned officers in any branch of the services will be considered to have satisfied the training requirements.

3. Those who have completed their 30-day training course or credited with its equivalent will not be called out for the longer training period until after other men of the same age class and training qualifications, under the September, 1940, call-up, have been summoned.

4. Those training with Canadian Officers' Training Corps or university or college compulsory training units, will be given credit on the four-months course to be determined by the Department of National Defence.

The revised regulations make provision for the granting of postponement of training in cases where a call-up would entail extreme hardship to those dependent on prospective recruits.

The field of seasonal occupations has been enlarged to include farming, fishing, lumbering, trapping, mining, placer mining, gold prospecting, seafaring, railroad transportation, and other unspecified occupations.

Boards of National War Services are empowered to make postponement or advancement orders in the case of men engaged in such work, as may seem in the best public interest.

Provision is also made for the review of applications for postponement of training of key men or others employed in war industries, while the status of students and those claiming special consideration on grounds of conscience or religious beliefs, has been clarified.

Prospective recruits whose applications for postponement hearing is granted will be required to appear before their regional board at their own expense. It is also emphasized that such applications must be made in writing and within eight days of the date appearing on the call-up notice. All hearings will be in camera and no person will be entitled to be represented by counsel, advocate or solicitor.

DRAFTED FOR LOVE

By RUTH AYERS

YESTERDAY: Winkie Appleman has brought suit against April for damages. Her failure to report the accident adds to the seriousness of the charge. Trapped by a cheque, April pleads for secrecy—and Kent Carter arrives. He admits to being a witness to the affair. Then Ann comes out to the door. "What's the matter?"

ANN SETS THE DAY

CHAPTER XX

IT was Hal Parks who took things in hand when he arrived. With one arm protectingly around April, he talked to the constable, drove to the police station and arranged for bond. The date of the hearing in lower court was set for the following Friday.

That night, April came home early, managed to carry the hidden brown suitcase into the house unseen. Not that it mattered, she thought with a wry smile twisting her mouth, if all the family, all the town watched her. It was too late now to spare Ann from the gossip that would be sure to follow Winkie's suit; too late to keep Dad from knowing she was accused of trying to "fix" a case.

Lying awake in bed that night, she was sure she heard sounds of sobs from the adjoining room where Ann slept.

But there was no sign of tears in Ann's eyes the next morning. Except for her pallor, she was seemingly as happy as she had been since Kent had returned.

"Kent and I have set our wedding day," she announced at the breakfast table. "It will be on Saturday afternoon, Mother, and because—well, because of everything, we've decided it will be a very quiet ceremony here at home."

Mother brightened instantly at this news, although she showed the marks of worry from the experience last night when Winkie had brought the warrant. She put down her coffee cup with a clatter. "Saturday? We can never do it. Today is Tuesday, so that means only four days to get ready."

"Oh, I think we can manage it nicely," Ann said.

"You going to the altar on Saturday and me to jail on Friday," April tried to joke.

"Please, April," Mother pleaded, and then almost at once forgot her distress in the hasty making of plans.

APRIL tried to avoid Ann that morning, but her sister caught up with her in the hallway.

"Was there some reason," she asked, "why you didn't want to tell me that you took Kent to the train that night"

April shrugged. "Really, it didn't seem important."

"You didn't think it important when you tried to pay off Winkie Appleman?"

When April made no answer, Ann went on, "I can't help wondering now if you saw Kent at any other time while I was away."

"For goodness sakes," April blustered, "why, should I have wanted to see Kent Carter when Hal Parks and the rest of my erstwhile cavaliers were rushing me around at the Casa Blanca and gay places."

Mother joined them then, ready for a shopping trip downtown. She was so busy fussing with samples of white silks and satins that she didn't notice anything wrong. But April knew that Ann's suspicions were growing by leaps and bounds.

All that Tuesday, April stayed in her room, Nip's wiry head cocked knowingly at her. Nip knew. Winkie Appleman knew. The man at the garage where she had had the chains put on that awful night had openly taunted her about going up to the Carter place. Even Octavia was putting two and two together. Yes, it seemed as if all Pattonsville was going to know that April Burnett had masqueraded as her sister, and fallen in love with Ann's sweetheart.

She pleaded an excuse when Hal called. She sidestepped the family. Best, and most important, she didn't see Kent again.

ON Wednesday, Dad came into her room and settled himself for a talk.

"I'm awfully sorry about this mess," April blurted.

But Dad wasn't angry. "You're not to worry," he said. "The hearing on Friday will be a preliminary one, likely held over until later. I'll defend you, of course, see you through it. It would have been better if you'd told me about it at the time, but you were so sick afterwards and then probably all you wanted to do was forget it."

"Yes, that was what I wanted. To forget it.

Dad questioned her, made notes. "I can't believe you hurt Winkie Appleman," he finally said. "Winkie's a pretty hardy old specimen. But he's nursed a grievance against me since I sent him to the workhouse a few years ago. Maybe this is the way he's getting back at us."

"Dad, I'll tell the truth on the stand. I'll take a chance that everything will come out all right. But I don't want to bring anyone else into this. Not Kent Carter, Dad. Please, he won't have to be at the trial, will he?"

"Kent?" Dad smiled in a secretive way. "But Kent insists. Nothing I could say would keep him away. He wants a chance to testify."

He came over and patted her shoulder. "I've an idea you've been through more than we realize, Daffy," he said. "When I get you cleared in this case and the excitement of the wedding is over, I'm going to make it up to you."

"I'm all right," April stammered. "There's nothing you have to make up to me."

"I think we've lost sight of you in the excitement of Ann's romance. Seems strange, doesn't it, our little Ann a bride?"

"It's wonderful," April said. "I'm very happy for Ann."

Dad pursed his lips. "Yes," he began, "it is wonderful, and yet I have a feeling that underneath, something troubles Ann."

Did Ann know? Had Ann guessed the whole truth about April and Kent?

"What do you mean, Dad"

"More than anything, our Ann hoped to make a success of her voice. In don't think she'll ever quite get over the disappointment of the audition with Vivano."

"All the more reason," April spoke up, "why nothing must spoil her happiness with Kent."

ON Thursday, Miss Evans, the seamstress, kept the sewing machine whirring. Octavia closed the kitchen door on the rich aroma of baking cakes and roasting meats. Florists surveyed the house for decorations for the wedding.

Wedding! Ann's and Kent's wedding on Saturday.

Ann hereself came and went, humming softly; patient at fittings of the bridal gown; hurrying on innumerable errands.

April decided she couldn't stand the strain and suspense any longer. She herself had an errand to do—an errand that couldn't be put off any longer.

She picked a time in the afternoon when she could leave the house unnoticed. Her ankle had completely healed, although she was still wabbly, weak from the long inactivity her illness had brought. She took a short cut across town, began walking up a familiar road.

Her yellow hair blew around her face; her cheeks stung in the January air, but she kept climbing, sometimes slowly, sometimes in a desperate sort of jog.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, March 20.

Although a very active state of affairs is noted in this day's astral operations, yet there are many loopholes for defeat and frustration unless unusual caution and sagacity are employed. There may be sudden upsets, the cropping up of unexpected outlays or extravagances, with the definite want of co-operation or approval from elders, superiors or any sort of higher-ups.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a fairly lively and progressive year in spite of the development of some surprising factors which may upset plans and demand unforeseen expenditure or financial hazards. Also there is little hope of the support of superiors, employers or others whose endorsement is vital.

A child born on this day should be versatile, talented and enterprising, but may have some minor defects of integrity and normality that may withhold from it the support of its superiors. Early discipline and direction might uproot this.

Young People Hold Annual Week-End

The Salvation Army throughout Canada held on last week-end what is known in Salvation Army circles as Young People's Annual Week-end.

The meetings in the Citadel on Simcoe street were conducted by Mrs. Brig. Mundy, who is the Divisional Corps Cadet Guardian for the Toronto division, in which Peterborough is. Mrs. Mundy's husband is in charge of the Salvation Army's war work among the Canadian troops in England.

A very gifted speaker, Mrs. Mundy spoke to her large audiences on Saturday night and twice on Sunday.

In the afternoon meeting, presided over by Adjutant Norman Buckley, the four musical groups of the corps united to present a very enjoyable program. The four musical groups consist of: The Temple Band (Bandmaster Routly in charge), The Temple Songster Brigade (Leader Ben Smith), The Young Peoples' Band (Bandmaster A. Mills), and the Young Peoples' Singing Company, composed of young girls under the direction of Leader Ruth Smith.

During this meeting a number of young people known as Corps Cadets received certificates showing they had successfully passed examinations on the Bible and Salvation Army teaching.

On Monday night Young Peoples' Sergeant Major R. C. Braund presided over a well attended meeting, when over two hundred and seventy-nine awards were received by the children for attending Sunday School, held in the afternoon, and directory class in the morning.

The Young Peoples' Band and Young Peoples' Singing Company presented several very pleasing numbers.

At the close of the meeting everyone received a gift from Sergeant-Major R. C. Braund.

Brazil's Ministry of Labor, Industry and Commerce recently celebrated the tenth anniversary of its founding.

Fine Diamond Runner

TORONTO, March 19 — (CP) — Mrs. Paula Straus, wife of a Parisian diamond merchant, was fined $1,500 in police court today after conviction on a charge of attempting to smuggle $6,000 worth of gems from the country in violation of the regulations of the foreign exchange control board.

The charge was laid against her last January when she was taken off a train at Niagara Falls, Ont., by Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Joseph Sedgewick, her counsel, said in court that she had previously taken four diamonds to New York and sold them. He said his client was unaware of the regulations.

Letter-Writing Problems Can Be Solved So Easily

Family Conference Over a Note!

Stuck again! Every time she writes a letter, the whole family has to puzzle over it. "Is this right?" she asks pathetically.

Well—is it? "I got your invitation. Thanks for asking me. I can come." Sounds awfully flat, but no one's sure how to fix it!

How different when you have pointers on letter-writing, samples to guide you. No choppy, crude sentences, no pen-chewing then!

To a very informal invitation you reply chattily, "You were a dear to invite me." Or to a more formal one: "It is delightful of you to ask me to dinner on the fifteenth at half-past seven. I will be happy to come."

Or what to say to the young man who has sent flowers? Be warm in your thanks: "They're the loveliest ever!"

Such pleasing letters attract the kind of people you like to cultivate and they certainly influence your business standing.

An employer is impressed when you know the up-to-date business phrases—"enclosed is" rather than "enclosed please find," "received" instead of "to hand."

Our 32-page booklet has 24 sample letters, including letters of sympathy, congratulation, friendship, application. Gives letter etiquette, errors to avoid; how to make letters interesting.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of GOOD LETTER-WRITING MADE EASY to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

UNDERLEAD A TENACE?

WHO EVER heard of a defensive player deliberately leading away from a major tenace, an ace-queen, to a king which he sees in the dummy? That would offhand seem to be an absurd play, but there are various situations in which it can be brilliant. In fact, there are some spots in which it is the only defense which will defeat a contract.

	♠ A Q 10 9 7 6 4 ♥ 6 ♦ 9 6 3 ♣ K 7
♠ K 5 2 ♥ J 7 5 4 ♦ 8 4 ♣ A Q 5 2	N. W. E. S.	♠ J 8 ♥ Q 3 ♦ K Q J 10 2 ♣ J 10 8 6
	♠ 3 ♥ A K 10 9 8 2 ♦ A 7 5 ♣ 9 4 3

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♦	2 ♥	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♥

West refrained from doubling because he didn't want to scare the opposition out of a contract he thought he could beat. He preferred to pass and lead the 8 of his partner's diamonds. The declarer took this with the A and then figured out a way which would have made his contract for him against any ordinary defense. He finessed the spade Q, laid down the spade A for a diamond discard, led the spade 4, on which East discarded a diamond, and ruffed with the heart 2. He then sent the diamond 5 to East's J.

The defenders could not afford to lead trumps now, with the spades set up and the club K for an entry to dummy, so East led back his diamond K. South ruffed with the 8 and West over-ruffed with the J.

Here is where West did some beautiful thinking. He reckoned that, if he cashed his club A and led another to the dummy's K, South could enter his hand with a spade ruff, then ruff his last club with the dummy's heart 6 and have winning trumps to make his contract. But he also saw an alternative. He led his club 2 to the dummy's K. The declarer, to set up a spot for a club ruff, now led a small club from the dummy, which West won. Now he could safely lead his heart 7, preventing a ruff of the last club, since the declarer no longer had an entry to dummy for the spades and the trumps were not yet out. By so doing, he compelled South to lose the setting club trick at the end.

Fighting Speeds Of War Aircraft Are Miles Apart

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Mar. 19 — (CP). — Recreation, comfortable living quarters and good food are three factors that help members of a Royal Canadian Air Force Army Co-operation Squadron in England forget they are among the hardest-worked and least-heralded men in the service.

Army Co-op life is arduous, but it is not all work. The former peace-time air station where the Canadians are billeted is one of the finest in the country and the mess officers share with R.A.F., Free French, and Belgian fliers has all the accoutrements of a well-equipped club.

Officers live in a rambling red brick building set away from the airdrome, while rankers and N.C.O.'s have taken over two-storey duplex houses, quarters formerly used by married men in the R.A.F.

The officers' mess is equipped with billiards, ping-pong, squash courts, and a lounge and bar that would do justice to a first-class hotel. Meals are as good, if not better, than you can get in a London restaurant. Sleeping quarters are airy and modern, with two men sharing a room. The squadron has its own band, a club for debates, and to organize banquets and parties, and a bi-monthly magazine. On rainy days the hangar buzzes with the sound of scores of Canadians, playing badminton, deck tennis, baseball, shuffleboard or volleyball.

Lizzies and Others.

There's a cameraderie about the mess that speaks well for the spirit of the squadron. The cross-chatter sometimes touches a peak that leaves a visitor wondering whether the war isn't being fought right at the station, but it's always in good fun. Pilots, especially those who have joined the Army Co-ops from fighter squadrons, constantly josh about their Lysanders, call them "lizzies" and "rattle traps," but admit they have shown up well in service.

'If you've air superiority, the Lysander is the best plane there is for Army Co-op work," said Flying Officer D. F. Manders of Vancouver. His room-mate, Flying Officer Bob Norris of Saskatoon, a former fighter pilot, scoffed back that "you don't fly a Lysander, you just let it run," but granted they are great planes for the job. Having once shoved a Hurricane's speedometer "over the top," he thinks Lysanders "crawl."

"I was in a dive, trying to shake a Jerry, and must have hit close to 500 miles an hour," Norris said of that experience with the Hurricane. "Small wonder I think the Lysander's 160 m.p.h. is slow."

Put a fighter pilot in an Army Co-operation plane and his roars are likely to drown out those of his machine. Flying a Lysander after a Hurricane, say the pilots, is like driving a farm truck after an eight-cylinder stream-lined automobile.

"Those lizzies just about rattle your teeth out," said Flying Officer Percy Price of Quebec after his first day off operational flying in a Lysander. 'Give me a Hurricane any day of the week."

"Glamor" Fighters.

Price's criticism is echoed by other former fighter pilots in a Royal Canadian Air Force Army Co-op squadron but only slightly supported by long-time Co-op pilots. Army Co-op pilots lead a busy life, but their work is more or less routine and lacks the glamor found at a fighter station. There is no crisp order sending them off into the clouds to test their nerve and skill against German men and machines. There are no stories of stirring combats at 25,000 feet when they return. Just a photograph to turn in, an empty bomb-rack to refill or a report to make on the disposition of troops.

On the rare occasions an Army Co-op pilot sees a German, he gets out of the way, although a Lysander is said to be a good match for a single German fighter.

"You don't take time out to go after them," Flying Officer Manders explained. 'In times of warfare you may be directing a division and an armored corps as well. The 10 minutes you might take out to shoot down a German could make all the difference in the world in success or failure of your mission."

Work and Play Hard.

The Canadians play as hard as they work and sometimes combine both. It's not unusual for them to practice "gas attack" during games and then the masks come out and for the next half-hour or more men, looking a little as though they came from Mars, play in muted silence at games they learned in Canada.

Their's is a busy station, the work is not easy, sometimes not interesting, but the men go about it eagerly. It's because of this that the commanding officer, Wing Commander Bib McKay of Winnipeg, can say, "We'll be ready for whatever comes.'"

The Canadians don't think they'll have to wait much longer for the day they can show the Germans what they've learned. It should be a good demonstration.

Deer Poachers Active In North

TORONTO, March 19. — Charges that illegal killing of deer is being carried on in many sections of Northern Ontario were made Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Ontario Tourist Trade Association in the Royal York Hotel. It was claimed at the meeting that poachers, the majority of whom are Indians, sell the venison to cottagers, especially those located in the regions around the French River and the towns of North Bay and Sturgeon Falls.

One of the causes contributing to the continuance of the practice was said to be the failure of magistrates to prosecute poachers who are apprehended by local game wardens.

"If we try to spot the poachers too much, our camps will be in ashes one day," Archie Rogerson, Loring, near Parry Sound, declared.

The delegates to the meeting are all operators of tourist, fishing and hunting camps in the area from Parry Sound to the Manitoba border. A motion was passed urging the Department of Game and Fisheries to check the sale of venison in the area around the French River, and that an increase in the number of game wardens would be advisable.

Other recommendations passed at the meeting were that all coarse fish taken from Lake Nipissing by commercial fishermen be destroyed; that neither resident nor non-resident fishermen be allowed to take home more than one day's legal limit of fish and that a one dollar license fee be introduced for resident anglers over 18 years of age, the proceeds to go to the further propagation of the fish stocks in the northern lakes. The association meets again today.

Suspect Hitler Is Blocked On East Front

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 19— (AP). —Germany's failure to answer immediately the British challenge in Greece suggests that it is in the West, not the East, that Hitler will move when he attempts to fulfil his promise to take some of the war "load" off his Italian Axis mate.

It is improbable, if not impossible, that 100,000 British troops could have been set ashore in Greece without Germany having quick knowledge of the fact. Yet, with tremendous Nazi air forces available in Bulgaria, within easy bombing distance of the demarkation ports, Berlin made no attack. That, too, in the face of Hitler's reiterated boasts that his armies and air fleet stand ready to do battle with the British forces anywhere they appear on the Continent.

Obviously Nazi inaction must be traceable to German unwillingness to risk a two-front war. Permitting any substantial British army to get ashore in Greece unopposed is understandable only if Berlin now knows that Turkey will fight if Greece is attacked; and that Yugoslavia and possibly Russia might also take a hand in the conflict.

Nazis at Disadvantage.

There are broad hints of that in the Balkan news. First word of the British landings in Greece came from Belgrade. It has greatly stiffened Yugoslav resistance to Nazi diplomatic pressure. To supplement that, Yugoslavia and Turkey now have direct and personal word from President Roosevelt of all-out United States material aid to nations which resist the Axis aggressors.

In a fully equipped British army of 100,000 men is ashore in Greece, unquestionably the odds of battle have been increased in favor of prolonged Greek-British resistance to any German attack. Available reports indicate that the Greek-British forces, even with that first increment of a British army of 300,000 included, are heavily outnumbered by the Germans in Bulgaria. That is not the key to the military situation, however.

What does matter is what distribution must be made of the Nazi Balkan armies to cover all danger points. With Turkey and Yugoslavia as potential anti-Nazi belligerents, the size of the German force avvailable to march against Greece would necessarily be limited. And to outflank the Greeks facing the Italians in Albania or to seize Salonika, the Germans would have to cross terrain well adapted to defence, even by inferior numbers.

Surprise Element Gone

It is rugged country ill-suited to Nazi "blitzkrieg" technique and equipment. Furthermore, the element of surprise is lost to the Germans. Both Greece and Britain are now well versed in blitzkrieg methods.

It is also a fact that Germany could not win the war merely by crushing the British-Greek armies in the Balkans. That would not break the British grip on the Eastern Mediterranean and Italian Africa. It is to the west, to sea, air and even land attack on the United Kingdom that Hitler must look for victory, not to the Balkans.

There is another good reason why the Germans should sit tight in Bulgaria. A war of major proportions in the Balkans would imperial sources of food and oil that are vital to Germany. Unquestionably, a massive British air fleet is mustered at Greek bases within easy flight of Rumanian oil fields and would go into action if Nazi bombers attacked British debarkation ports in Greece.

The risks are great for Hitler in the Balkans; the possible gains, except for keeping a deflated Italy in the war, not commensurate. It adds up to the probability that the Germans are planning to attack Britain, not Greece, in order to achieve the promised victory in 1941.

Mr. Harriman said he would "work closely with the American military and naval attaches" in London and planned to shuttle between the United States and Britain frequently to expedite deliveries.

2-Day Stopover In Moscow For Matsuoka

TOKYO, March 19—(AP).—Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, en route to Berlin and Rome, will pause in Moscow two days, it was announced today, for talks which observers believed would vitally affect Japan's role in Axis plans for a "new world order."

Attaching the highest significance to the announcement, these sources expressed the opinion Japan is seeking guarantees from Russia to safeguard her interests bordering Siberia before committing herself to any concrete action in partnership with Germany and Italy.

It also was understood the Foreign Minister would pause in Moscow on his return from Rome and Berlin, and observers said his discussions in the west would be made conditional upon what occurred in Moscow during both of his stopovers there.

Neutral circles suggested cementing of relations with the Soviet was no less important fro mthe Japanese point of view than the solution of the conflict with China, which now is taking so much of Japan's energy and resources.

Japanese newspapers have hinted that Germany might be asked to take a hand in mediating the war in China, and some quarters inclined to the belief Matsuoka also might seek Berlin's aid in ironing out the Russian problem.

Consider Quota On Production Of All New Cars

OTTAWA, March 19 — (CP). — Plans are being considered to prevent a rush of Canadians to buy new motor cars now that the war effort has made money more plentiful, Munitions Minister Howe told The Canadian Press Tuesday.

"We are working on a plan to keep motor car production for sale to the public in check in order to conserve labor and materials for our war production," Mr. Howe said.

The plan is to place a quota on firms producing motor cars, so that at most they will not exceed last year's production. The exact quota has yet to be decided and will be worked out with J. H. Berry, controller of motor vehicles.

The Government's desire is to discourage a person from rushing out and making a first payment on a new motor car as soon as he or she has a few hundred dollars.

In 1940 Canadian firms produced 110,126 passenger cars, and in 1939 the total was 108,368, it was stated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The manufacturers have already cut production this year, the first two months producing 22,000 cars, as compared with 25,400 for the corresponding months last year.

With importation of foreign cars strictly limited by exchange restrictions, Canadian firms had been going pretty well full out in meeting the market requirements during the past year, it was stated.

The need for conserving not only labor and materials in producing new cars but also foreign exchange in bringing in crude oil for gasoline to run these cars has made it necessary to ensure that the trade this year is held within bounds, it was said.

CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES

THOUSANDS of Canadians are getting regular pay envelopes again. And out of those envelopes are coming the workers' homes of the future. Homes which will provide their families with future security, present-day comfort.

Now is the time to build. Under the National Housing Act, interest rates are low — only a small investment is needed. Materials cost less than they will later on. And you can pay for your home just as you pay rent now — in small regular monthly payments.

But — unlike rent — every dollar you invest is buying a home for your family, helping to assure you of after-war financial safety.

Your Government will provide you with plans of homes which are low in cost but soundly constructed. Homes you will be proud to live in. Homes which cost little to heat and maintain.

Ten/Test insulation is built right into many of these homes. The same Ten/Test lifetime insulation which is used in so many of the most expensive homes in Canada.

That means low upkeep, low heating costs. For Ten/Test shuts out cold, cuts heating costs as much as 30%. Provides durable, permanent insulation as long as the house endures.

Ten/Test does THREE jobs at one low cost.

1. Ten/Test insulates.
2. Ten/Test stops cold-air seepage.
3. Ten/Test adds structural strength.

Only RIGID fibre board insulation does all three of these essential jobs.

Don't say you can't afford to build. Find out. Phone any Ten/Test dealer. Or clip and mail this coupon today.

British Pour Troops To Salonika

Berlin Claims Greek Issue Settled; Hellenes In Tepelini

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 20.—(AP)—Britain was reported today to have landed "great numbers" of tpops at Salonika, Greek port on the Aegean Sea and a back door to the Balkans which likely would be the first objective of any German thrust from Bulgaria.

This was understood to be the first appearance of British forces at Salonika, although "landing of a force expected to total 300,000 men has been under way for several days at five ports in Southern Greece.

Accounts of the landing of the troops at the Aegean port, along with vast supplies of gasoline, came from the Greek frontier town of Gevgelia, Yugoslavia, as Berlin dispatches reaching Belgrade claimed that "the Greek question already has been settled."

These dispatches failed to say what the settlement consisted of, but they asserted that "only a short time must elapse before this conflagration which threatened to engulf other Balkan states will be extinguished."

Greeks In Tepeleni

An unconfirmed report from the Albanian frontier said that Greek forces hammering at Tepeleni since mid-December finally had entered the central Albanian city, taking many Fascist prisoners and quantities of war material.

The Gevgelia account said the Salonika population accorded a "wild celebration" to the British troops.

Confirmation of this dispatch was lacking at the British and Greek legations here. British officials said a recent order was issued forbidding the movement of British troops north of a line running through

Farmer Is Given 7 Years

Asked To Get Penitentiary Term Of Life

Turner Found Guilty Of Attempting To Murder Lawyer

COBOURG, Ont. March 20.—(CP and Special).—Sentence of seven years in Kingston Penitentiary was imposed today on William John Turner, Port Hope township farmer convicted yesterday on a charge of attempted murder.

John Kemp of Morganstown, youth, also appeared for sentence on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident, and was sentenced to three months in jail.

The 63-year-old farmer had asked Mr. Justice J. G. Kelly yesterday to send him to penitentiary for life, after declaring "the jury can't do anything else but find me guilty." The charge arose from the wounding of Fred C. Richardson, a lawyer, in his Port Hope office on Jan. 25.

Richardson testified that Turner entered his office with a rifle, and without saying anything Turner levelled the rifle and fired, the bullet striking the lawyer in the jaw. Richardson said Turner then remarked: "Did that get you? If not I have another one for you." The gun then was wrested from the intruder by Richardson and a client.

Turner, who conducted his own defence, told the court that some years ago the lawyer had accepted a settlement in a case Turner laid again the Ontario Hydro Commission, without getting Turner's consent to the settlement.

Three Prowling British Subs Play Havoc With Convoys As R.A.F. Blasts U-Boat Base

One Packed Italian Transport Blows Up; British Army Closes On Cheren After Terrific Blasting From The Air

LONDON, March 20—(CP).—Three British submarines attacking Italian convoys sank two heavily-laden supply vessels, "almost certainly" destroyed another, and scored hits on two crowded troop transports, one of which "it is considered certain was completely destroyed," the Admiralty announced today.

The sinking of the two supply ships, of about 2,500 tons each, was credited to the 1,090-ton Triumph. In the third supply ship, of 3,000 tons, was hit by the Unique.

The attack on the convoyed transports was carried out by the submarine Utmost and its torpedo hits were followed by "a very violent explosion and it is considered certain that at least one of the transports was completely destroyed."

"Janes fighting ships, world authority on war vessels, does not list an Utmost or Unique in its latest edition, indicating these are new additions to Britain's submarine fleet).

"The Triumph is a sister ship of the submarine Thetis, which sank in June, 1939, in the Irish Sea with the loss of 9 8men, and which has been raised and recommissioned as the Thunderbolt.

Another submarine completed in recent months, the Unique, "almost certainly" sank a fully laden supply ship of about 3,000 tons.

Lorient Gets It

LONDON, March 20 (CP)— The German submarine base at Lorient, France, was attacked by British aircraft last night, the air ministry announced today.

Many heavy bombs were seen to burst among the docks at Lorient and one large fire was started, the air ministry said

The Lorient attack was carried out by aircraft of the coastal command while other aircraft raided Cologne, in the Rhineland, hitting several factories.

CAIRO, Egypt, March 20 (AP)— With the Royal Air Force divebombing and machine-gunning Italian hill positions, British land forces are driving forward in their siege of Cheren, Eritrean key city, "in spite of heavy enemy counter-attacks," it was announced today.

"During yesterday's fighting the Italian casualties were particularly heavy," a war bulletin said.

The high command said that in Southern Ethiopia "our forward movement is continuing satisfactorily."

It added that at recaptured Berbera, capital of British Somaliland, six guns and more than 200 prisoners, including 13 officers, had been taken

$110,000 Blaze Hits Toronto Bank Building

TORONTO, Mar. 20 — (CP). — The Imperial Bank building at Wellington Street and Leader Lane in downtown Toronto, formerly the bank's head office, suffered damage estimated at $110,000 to $225,000 from a fire early to-day in which eight firemen had a narrow escape from being crushed beneath a falling wall.

The eight firemen were ordered to move by Chief George Sinclair just a few minutes before one of the three explosions during the fire blew out a section of the wall. One of the explosions was believed to have been caused by film stored in an office in the building.

Six firefighters were trapped on the second floor of the burning building, but managed to escape when they found a blocked unused exit that they broke down. Chief Sinclair suffered a wrenched back when he fell on the icy roadway while running to escape falling bricks and mortar.

6-Hour Bombing Starts Trek Out Of London

LONDON, March 20 (CP)—Shops were demolished, homes badly damaged and casualties caused by Nazi raiders on the south-east coast today as a trek of homeless began from an area of London scarred in the Capital's worst night pounding this year.

The German bombers dived from the clouds in a hit-and-run attack on a southeast coast town just after four Messerschmitts had plummeted out of a hazy sky and raked a number of small fishing boats with their machine guns.

From the London area worst hit in last night's six-hour raid flowed a stream of perambulators and small carts loaded with salvaged belongings of the homeless

The refugees were comforted and aided by begrimed firemen who had spent the night in battling fires in the workers' district.

Whole blocks of residences were blown to bits, five hospitals were hit, a large hotel was partly destroyed and public services were thrown out of gear.

Many fires, big and small, were started by thousands of incendiary bombs, and the blazes were used as targets for demolition bombs dropped later

Seven persons were killed in one building.

Searchlights were used more extensively than in recent months in an attempt to spot the raiders, and at times the anti-aircraft gunners held their fire, indicating British night fighters were aloft.

New Invasion Plot

London, March 20 (CP)

A DISPATCH to the London Daily Telegraph from its Lisbon correspondent suggests the Germans have discarded the idea of using a huge fleet of small flat-bottomed barges if they attempt an invasion of Britain.

The dispatch said information from Holland indicated the Nazis were planning new invasion tactics. They were reported adopting medium-sized coastal vessels of about 200 tons for this purpose.

All craft in this category are being commandeered, the story said. It added the Royal Air Force had bombed concentrations of these ships constantly and effectively.

100,000 Jap Army For Thailand, And Burma Next?

SAIGON, French Indo-China, Mar. 20 — (AP). — Widespread reports which the Associated Press has been unable to trace to their source said to-day the Japanese were planning within the next two weeks to send 100,000 troops from Hainan Island across Central French Indo-China into Thailand.

After traversing Indo-China, the reports said, the Japanese either would proceed to Bangkok, go toward the northern border of Malaya, or turn north-east toward Burma in an attempt to isolate Chunkging, capital of the Central Chinese Government, and prevent the movement of military supplies over the Burma Road.

PITTSBURG.— (AP)— Pennsylvania railroad officials told an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing today 44 Russian engineers and 18 enlisted United States army men were aboard the Manhattan Limited which sped along the railroad tracks near Baden, Pa., 18 minutes before another train was wrecked Sunday. Five persons were killed and 114 injured.

WASHINGTON.— (AP)— Chairman Martin Dies said today the House of Representatives Committee on Unamerican Activities had information that Italy is attempting to draw its nationals in the United States together into what he termed a "superstate."

Ice Hard Drifts Still Clog Georgian Bay

TORONTO, March 20 — (CP). — The weather forecast of "Fair and Cold" with moderate winds gave little promise of aid today to the small communitities of the Georgian Bay district in Ontario, hampered by huge snowdrifts since the blizzard of last week-end.

Residents of this area were still digging out from under one of the worst highway tie-ups in years. A few more arteries were opened yesterday and this morning, but a sharp rise in temperature and a cessation of the high winds were needed.

The Lower Lake region, where the drifts were not as bad, was promised more snowflurries Friday with little change in temperature.

Saves Her Husband.

When her husband became ill in their snowbound farmhouse near Collingwood late last night, 65-year-old Mrs. William McMullen crawled half a mile over heavily drifted fields to reach the nearest neighbors, where she telephoned for a doctor.

The high wind soon extinguished her lantern and she groped her way along fences which in some parts were completely snowed under. "The drifts were straight up," she said. "It was impossible to walk over them, so I had to go on my hands and knees."

After instructions had been received from Dr. T. J. Simpson at Collingwood, Mrs. McMullen returned to her farm with her neighbors and her husband soon responded favorably to the emergency treatment.

Seaway To Pay Ontario Costs

TORONTO, Mar. 20 — (CP). — Ontario will provide nearly $90,000,000 of the cost of the St. Lawrence power project in connection with the seaway agreement signed with the United States, it was understood here to-day. Ontario's share is understood to include $25,000,000 for works primarily for power, $40,000,000 for common works and $23,000,000 for power machinery and equipment.

The agreements which are to be tabled in Parliament to-morrow include an agreement between the Canadian Government and the Province of Ontario, which is said to provide for Ontario paying the Dominion for the Canadian power works.

It was reported here that Ontario may have arranged to pay its share to the Dominion Government in instalments, with the Dominion providing the required amount until such time as the power is actually being developed or until the common works have been completed. The first instalment under this plan would be about $25,000,000 with the balance spread over a term of years. Because the Ontario Hydro would receive annual revenue from sale of the new power it is believed no increase in Ontario taxation would be

10-Mile Echo

Kenvil, N.J., March 20 (AP)

AN EXPLOSION of the "burning grounds" of the Hercules Powder Company plant at noon today jarred the country for miles around and created a near-panic in the area where a blast which took 52 lives last fall is fresh in everyone's memory.

There were no injuries. Damage was said to be negligible.

The shock was felt in Morristown, 10 miles away. Almost immediately, highways were jammed with traffic as motorists converged on the scene, fearful that another tragedy had struck.

Last Year to Run Long Sault?

Start On Waterway In 1941 To Doom Famed Rapids, Villages

OTTAWA, March 20—(CP).—Engineers who have been in close touch with the proposals for power and navigation developments of the St. Lawrence international rapids estimate that if United States Congress and Canadian Parliament endorse the agreements to undertake the work by early in May it should be possible to award contracts and begin construction work around August 1.

These sources estimated today that regardless of when the work begins steamboats will be able to run the Galop and Long Sault Rapids this summer as in the past. These two rapids which lie between Prescott Ont., and Cornwall, Ont., will be rubbed out when the big Long Sault dam is finished at the head of Barnhart Island near Cornwall.

Engineers expect, however, that if a start is made late this summer sufficient progress will have been made that steamboats will not be able to run this rapids in 1942.

Under the draft agreement which formed the basis for the present negotiations which culminated in signing the agreement between Canada and United States yesterday, it was provided that once the agreement is ratified a commission of 10 persons, five from each country, would be set up to supervise the work. It is understood a similar provision is incorporated in the new agreement.

While the work by 1942 will prevent boats running the rapids, navigation through the existing 14-foot canals will at no time be interrupted during any navigation season. The new development will provide a navigation channel of 27 feet in depth.

It will be four years before the dams are closed and the great areas, particularly on the Canadian side are flooded. An engineer estimated it would be not more than two weeks before the project had been completed four years hence

U.S. Rallies Her Sub Chasers

Prepares Speedy Craft For British Sea Aid

WASHINGTON, March 20—(AP)—The United States navy was assembling a large flotilla of patrol boat reinforcements for Britain today, and at the same time studying an Admiralty request for the use of United States yards to keep the present fleet in fighting trim.

The patrol ships—mosquito boats, submarine chasers, trawlers and converted yachts—would represent the first installment of naval lease-lend assistance. One unofficial estimate was that at least 150 light craft were on the list that would be transferred shortly.

Navy Secretary Frank Knox, in announcing yesterday that the ships would be made available, said there

Only 2 Tanks, 4 Cars Escaped

British Set World Record Folding Up Graziani's Army

LONDON, Mar. 20 — (CP). — The Ministry of Information said to-day the British Army of the Nile had established a "world record for speed in action" and had killed or captured the "whole army of 150,000 men" which the Italian commander, Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, had assembled in North Africa for the invasion of Egypt.

"It is believed that two tanks and four armored cars escaped" from Graziani's force, the Ministry said.

It added that the British Army had suffered less than 2,000 casualties.

The Ministry used the Libyan campaign and the long marches in Somaliland and Southern Ethiopia to point up a declaration that the German army never had been called up to meet "such an opponent as the British Army to-day."

The swift advance in Somaliland and Ethiopia, it said, was a "far more remarkable performance than that of the Germans in France," as a feat of endurance by men and machines.

Italian defences in Africa were "really strong" and the Italian soldiers "courageous," the Ministry said, but 'the fact is that the British were too good for them; Britain has learned by its reverses."

The losses at Dunkirk were serious at the time, the Ministry said, "but to-day a new Army is armed with weapons infinitely more various and more powerful" which involve new methods and new tactics.

2nd Registration

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—Advance preparations are being made for a second United States selective service registration day, although only a small percentage of the 16,404,000 men who enrolled last October have been put in uniform The second registration would be for men who have reached their 21st birthday since last October 16.

Britain Makes Things She Can't Import

LONDON, March 20 — (CP). — Blitz bitz.

Britain is finding substitutes at home for many articles and products that used to come from the Continent. Powder puffs, formerly imported from Poland and France, are being made from English goose-skins, while seaweed is replacing potash fertilizer from Germany and Alsace-Lorraine in the production of iodine.

Seven Mass Italian Charges Mowed Down By Greeks; Dead Litter Tepeleni Region

Whole Company Wiped Out In Crossfire; Turk Chief Back From Cyprus Sees "Common Victory With Greece"

ATHENS, March 20—(AP).—Withering Greek fire blasted seven separate attacks by close-ranked Italian troops yesterday in Albania and left ravines south of the Viosa River in the Tepeleni area littered with dead, a Greek spokesman said today.

The Greek High Command reported an entire Italian company was destroyed when it was caught in a crossfire of automatic arms and artillery.

The spokesman, in his report on th fighting around long-besieged Tepeleni, said that as the Italians faltered after their first great rush "fresh troops were thrown in in closely packed waves. The results showed terrific losses...They were mowed down by our fire and the ravines were littered with dead."

The Italians were said to be attempting to regain ground lost to the Greeks in the recent seven-day Fascist offensive that failed.

(Reports to Gevgelia, Yugoslavia, from the Albanian front said a big battle was under way yesterday in the mountains north of Legorani, and that Greek counter-attacks in the Tepeleni area ended in the capture of the village of Mezgovo.)

Gain One Mile.

The spokesman reported that at one point the Greeks repulsed an Italian night thrust, advanced about a mile and seized 165 prisoners.

(The British Broadcasting Corporation reported from London that Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu, returning to Ankara from a conference in Cyprus with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, declared Turkey and Greece would "have a common victory" and was quoted as telling a Greek newspaperman:

("We are rejoicing in your victories as if they were our own."

(In Cairo, the Eden-Saracoglu meeting was said to have "re-emphasized the complete identity of views which exists between their two governments.")

100,000 Jap Army

(Japan could not attack from Thailand without crossing Burma. Thailand has no Chinese frontier.)

The reports were given credence here by persons regarded as competent to judge. These sources said such a land expedition would avoid the risks which a move farther south by sea would involve and also would ensure a safe and dependable supply route..

Some observers suggested this might be Thailand's way of paying off Japan for territorial gains from Japanese mediation of the border warfare between Thailand and Indo-China.

It was also remarked that the reported undertaking might be a Japanese retaliatory move against British forces now on Thailand's southern border, in Malaya, guarding the land approach to Singapore.

It is believed here it would be impossible for the Japanese to capture Singapore through naval action and, therefore, an overland attack would be more logical.

It is also believed that the Japanese have facilities and forces on Hainan Island and also on Tonkin, Northern Indo-China, sufficient to undertake such a project.

The reports indicated the Japanese would sail in transports 175 miles south-west to the fairly-modern port of Tourane, and then proceed by railway and trucks north and west of Savannakhket.

Last Year To Run

that the waters would be raised and the rapids disappear.

Accordingly the persons whose homes and business places will be flooded will have four years to find other locations. No. 2 Highway between Montreal and Toronto must be shifted at several points along the International Rapids. and there will be four years in which to accomplish this.

Completion of the project will mean that thousands of people living along the Canadian side of the St. Lawrence for the 35 miles stretching from Cornwall to Iroquois, must move and resettle else. where. Their land, at least 20,000 acres, will be flooded by the development of the proposed 2,100,000 horespower of electrical energy.

Iroquois To Go

Iroquois, according to engineers' plans, will be completely wiped out by the flooding which will follow completion of a huge dam at Barnhart Island. At least half of the town of Morrisburg, including the main business section, will suffer a similar fate.

The settlements of Aultsville and Farran's Point and Dickinson's Landing, within two miles of the water's present edge, will be under something like 38 feet of water.

Nineteen parishes are in the area to be inundated, including St. John's Lutheran Church, a short distance east of Morrisburg. This church celebrated its 150th anniversary in 1934.

Also under water will be the Pliny Whitney Memorial Church location, a few miles east of Morrisburg. There, in the churchyard, is buried Sir James Whitney, a former Premier of Ontario.

From time to time, as the project has been discussed, various proposals have been put forward regarding disposition of population forced to shift location. One of these proposals was that Iroquois be united with what remains of Morrisburg, present residents establishing themselves on land north of Morrisburg.

Aultsville, with a population of 300, is seven miles east of Morrisburg on Ontario's No. 2 Highway. The nearby villages of Farran's Point and Dickinson's Landing have a population of about 300 each.

Flooding will cover 13 old cemeteries in the area between Iroquois and Cornwall, and other historic sites in addition to that which commemorates the Battle of Chrysler's Farm.

No. 2 Highway between Iroquois and Maple Grove, three miles west of Cornwall, will have to be relocated. Canadian National Railways tracks between Cornwall and Morrisburg also must be moved. Cornwall will be protected by dykes.

50-Destroyer Patrol Urged At Sea

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—Shipping sources reported yesterday that some United States experts had advised Britain to abandon the convoy system and establish a lane of destroyers across the Atlantic in an effort to thwart the increasing German threat to vital war supplies from America.

The new plan would call for a constant patrol of some 50 destroyers along the 2,000 miles of Great Circle route from Labrador to the British Isles. They would be rotated in duty so that 40 always would be on watch while 10 either would be in port refueling or en route to their posts for a two weeks tour.

Each of these 40 destroyers would patrol a 50-mile sector of the Atlantic 10 times a day, establishing a lane across the Atlantic every inch of which would be policed by a warship every two to three hours.

At no time, shipping experts points out, would a destroyer be more than an hour's distance from any merchantman in the lane.

several years. The three-storey building, destroyed for further use, was located in the heart of the city's downtown warehouse section and only a short distance from the King Edward Hotel.

The fire was halted before it spread far along Leader Lane, but oil paintings of every King's Plate winner since 1904 were destroyed in the nearby offices of the Ontario Jockey Club. Fireproof walls at the rear and west side of the building helped keep the blaze confined to a comparatively narrow area.

It was discovered by J. Crosbie, night engineer at the building, who said he heard a noise like an explosion from the second floor and found the showrooms and warehouse of the Oakley, Farley & Jackson China Importers' offices filled with flames and smoke.

The building superintendent, who lives nearby, said he was awakened by a "terrific explosion."

required to finance the province's share.

Premier Mitchell Hepburn is expected to table in the Legislature here the full details of the Federal-Provincial agreement as soon as possible after Ottawa and Washington have released the international agreement. Implementary legislation then will be introduced in the Legislature.

The province will save an estimated $28,000,000 under the one-stage development that has been agreed upon. From the power house to be built at Barnhart Island the province will obtain an estimated 1,100,000 horse-power at full capacity. Full production, however, is not regarded as an immediate necessity and it was thought here that the Ontario Hydro would install power units as they are needed.

The War Today

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The end of Italy as a combatant in the second Great War appears to be drawing rapidly closer as British forces in Africa and Greek troops in Albania administer defeat after defeat to the Fascists.

British forces which captured Jijiga Monday were reported today to be fighting northeast of that town, a possible indication that they would head straight for the Addis-Ababa-Jibuti railway, cut it and paralyze the rest of Italy's forces in the country by depriving them of supplies.

Just as the British High Command halted the North African offensive after advancing into the Bengasi district and capturing that city, thereby isolating Tripolitania, so it appeared it might well afford to halt after cutting the Ethiopian railway, a single track lines and the only one over which supplies can be hauled from French Somaliland, sole ocean and rail inlet into the inhospitable country.

There was, of course, the question of where and how well the Italians had constructed highways through Ethiopia during and after their conquest of the land, but it was generally assumed that if they had constructed good ones British forces could use them to advance motorized forces rapidly, and thus help shorten the campaign. The British High Command is known to wish fighting to be over before the spring rain starts, in a few weeks.

In Albania Mussolini's demands for a victory, apparently any kind of a victory, had one apparent effect, an increase in the number of Italian casualties as officers forced tired troops to throw themselves en masse and hopelessly against strongly held Greek positions which were not endangered by a week's Italian offensive spurred personally by Mussolini.

In that offensive the Italians were reported to have lost between 40,000 and 50,000 men without gaining a single objective. Today, in fact, there were reports reaching Belgrade from the Albanian frontier the Greeks have entered Tepeleni, key Albanian base which has been under siege for many weeks.

Bandsmen Wanted For Army Units

Major D. A. Loomis, M.C., informed The Examiner today that the district recruiting office has quite a number of openings for bandsmen who will be enlisted to complete bands of holding units in England. Players of the following instruments are wanted at once: clarinet, flute, saxaphone, French horn, cornet, trumpet, trombone, euphonium, basses and drums, and in the percussion group men with tympani experience. A good standard of musical ability is required, and medical catgory must not be lower than "C". Special consideration given to extension of age for men in good physical condition. Bandsmen interested in this call to service are requested to leave their names at the Prince of Wales Rangers orderly room at the Armouries.

War Service Policy Is Fully Explained

In a story this week explaining the new war service policy announced by the Western Clock Company, there was a part of one paragraph left out, and this deletion changed the meaning of two paragraphs.

To clarify the matter both paragraphs are printed below:

"Group insurance will be carried in full for men on the military service list for the first year of such service or training, and upon reinstatement they will be eligible without any waiting period.

Pension annuities will be awarded to members for the year in which they are first placed on the Military Service list, providing arrangements are made to have their contributions deducted from their four weeks payment referred to above."

Invoked Ju-Ju Spirit-Chaser

CAIRO, March 20 (CP)—British tars think the admiralty should consider supplying warship commanders who have to spend any time in an African desert with a JU-JU—an evil spirit-chaser. They are pretty handy things to have around.

The commander of an aircraft carrier attached to a flotilla established ashore was having trouble keeping a wind-sock hoisted on the flying field. It kept disappearing from the tall pole.

Finally he obtained a JU-JU for four shillings and two empty lemonade bottles. There was no more trouble with the wind-sock. He even thought the result worth an official communication to his commander-in-chief.

"The attached correspondence, concerning the purchase of a JU-JU from a native witch doctor, is submitted for information," he wrote. "This claim has been met out of the medical comforts fund as the JU-JU was supplied by a member of the medical profession.

"It is not, however, considered that the qualifications of any of the R.N. or R.A.M.C. doctors serving in the district would have enabled them to produce the desired effect.

"The JU-JU consisted of a bunch of chicken feathers well soaked in chicken blood and held together by strips of snake skin. The witch doctor buried the JU-JU in the earth at the foot of the wind-sock and covered it with cement to enable the curse of the JU-JU—a black snake—to emerge and attack any prospective thief...After its installation the wind-sock was untouched."

Surrender First

London, March 20 (CP)

BRITAIN will refuse to permit Italian non-combatants to leave East Africa unless Italy surrenders her African territories, it was reported today.

Italy, it was said, had not shown the "slightest interest" in non-combatant Italians in Ethiopia and Britain, it was added, will not now stop military operations in Africa while the Italians take out their non-combatants.

A reputable source said Britain is aware of the danger of native reprisals against Italian non-combatants in Ethiopia and asked Emperor Haile Selassie to try to prevent such reprisals.

Science Experts Of Canada In Big Demand

LONDON, March 20 (CP Cable). —Britain is "leaning more and more on Canadian scientists in developing new methods of outsmarting the Nazis and countering German moves.

This was revealed by a qualified sources in commenting on the hint in Ottawa of Hon. C. G. Power, air minister, that Canadian scientists are helping Britain find ways of combating night bombers.

No amplification is available as to the Canadian aid in this sphere but it is learned that this is only part of the Dominion's scientific contribution.

Canada's men of science are "scattered all over the country." They are helping the Admiralty, the war office, and the ministry of supply.

One source explained that many experiments are carried out in Canada after experts come here to study British problems and the manner in which United Kingdom scientists are approaching them.

Propose Titles For Outfitters

TORONTO, March 20 (CP) — A resolution was submitted to the Fish and Game Committee of the Ontario Legislature today asking that the Department of Lands and Forests grant titles of ownership to licensed outfitters now holding leases or licences of occupation on crown lands.

Len Hughes, representing the Northern Ontario Tourist Trade Association, said that under the present system the outfitters have "absolutely no security."

"These people have erected buildings valued at $10,000 to $250,000 and can be thrown off their land at the end of the year," he said.

Titles would be granted to those having been established on the land for three years and with sufficient investment there on. The government would put a stated sale value per acre on the ground already surveyed; titles would be issued whether the land be upon timber reserves and other restricted lands and they be issued to private cottage or camp owners having buildings already erected.

The Association asked that the open season for deer hunting in the Parry Sound district be advanced to November 1. The season now opens the first Monday in November.

Mr. Hughes also represented the Sault Ste. Marie Board of Trade and the Algoma Travel bureau.

Want More Wardens

The Association also asked that the Department of Game and Fisheries appoint more permanent salaried game wardens to overcome the poaching problem which Mr. Hughes said was "serious."

Other resolutions asked for a second game warden be appointed to cover the east end of Manitoulin Island; the department check on the sale of venison in the French River area and in North Bay and Sturgeon Falls; that any responsible member of the Association be allowed to issue licenses for fishing and hunting; that no new tourist outfitters licenses be issued in the French River and Jachammighesig Lake areas as these districts are now adequately served with camps.

See Early Spring Avoiding Butter Shortage

OTTAWA, March 20 — (CP). — With storms of mid-winter severity sweeping over much of Canada, Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials yesterday said a reasonably early spring might result in Canada avoiding any butter shortage before "grass butter" started to boost the surplus. Sometimes a cold March preages an early spring.

The Board will stand by its present maximum price for butter of 35 cents a pound wholesale until there is a better idea of what kind of spring the dairy sections will have, an official said. Then it will decide when the maximum will be lifted.

Reports on the butter situation issued the 10th of each month by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics have shown a steady betterment since the new year. Last reports showed butter reserves approximately 5 000,000 pounds below March 10 in 1940.

NORWOOD

"Book Club Learns Of Doukhobors"

NORWOOD, Mar. 20 — (ENS).—Mrs. E. C. Squire entertained the Norwood Book Club at her home on Thursday evening. Mrs. H. G. Carleton gave a review of the book entitled "Slava Boker," meaning "Praise God," by J. E. C. Wright. This story is a history of the Doukhobors dating from about the 16th century up to the present time. The name Doukhobor was the name given by the Orthodox Russian clergy to a community of nonconformist Russian peasants. The word means "Spirit fighters," being originally intended by the priesthood to convey that they fight against the Spirit of God, but the Doukhobors themselves accepted the term signifying that they fight not against, but for and with the Spirit. Of late, however, they call themselves Christians of the Universal Brotherhood. They believe that all men are equal in the sight of God, in the sharing of wealth, in economic freedom.

However, they do not believe in any recognized government, nor in any orthodox religion, church or priesthood. Neither do they believe in war, and consequently refuse to fight. They also do not believe in the education of children in schools.

Owing to their outspoken standards of life, and their disobedience to laws of Russia, they were persecuted, flogged, tortured, and finally banished to Southern Russia, on the Sea of Azov.

Their first leader was Rasputin, then his widow, and later Peter Veregin the First. Peter, however, along with some of his most ardent followers, was banished to Archangel. From this distant land he directed his followers. Persecutions followed them wherever they went, and more than 1,000 of them died of starvation and exhaustion.

Count Leo Tolstoy wrote about these people, and in this way aroused the sympathy of the Society of Quakers in England. Meanwhile the Doukhobors themselves asked permission to leave Russia, and this request, coupled with a petition from the Quakers to the Emperor, was granted. The Quakers raised funds to help them, and the were first sent to Cyprus, but later arrangements were made with the Canadian Government and the Canadian Pacific Railway and they were brought to Canada in 1899.

They first settled near Yorkton and Thunder Hill, Saskatchewan, shortly after their arrival they sent for Peter Veregin, who again became their leader. After Veregin's arrival he bought up thousands of acres of land at Brilliant, near Nelson, B.C., and there he established a large community.

After Veregin's death his followers sent for his son, also Peter Veregin, to lead them.

While these people are good agriculturists, and exceedingly clean in their habits, and for the most part live moral lives, they are opposed to education, to war, no matter under what provocation, and to obeying the laws of the land, so that they became a problem to our Dominion of Canada. They have burned down schools, and certain sections of them have gone on nude parades causing much trouble and disorder. However, the Government is endeavoring to make readjustments, and the hope of the future lies in the education of the younger generation.

Following the book review a discussion took place and refreshments were served by the hostess.

War In The Balkans

In the ordinary course of events not much attention would be paid to what Yugoslavia did in the war or did not do, but at the moment the attitude of that country is important on account of its location. Berlin has circulated the report that Yugoslavia is about to sign on with the Axis powers, and names March 26 as the date when the signature will be attached.

The feature difficult to understand is why Germany has been in the Balkans for so long a time and has not made a direct attack when the British were known to be landing troops in Greece. The Germans have plenty of aircraft in Bulgaria, and yet the British made their landing without opposition.

Trained observers report that the people of Yugoslavia do not want to enter any pact with the Germans. They have seen what German occupation means to the other countries and they want none of it.

Whether Germany is actually anxious for a great battle in that corner is not clear. There was a time when German policy would have desired nothing better than to have the Balkans remain quiet. They did not desire to have two battle fronts as that is against the military rules of Berlin, and it is also against a quiet and busy time in the oil fields of Rumania on the output of which Germany depends so much for the movement of her mechanized forces and her air arm.

The terrain in that part of Europe does not lend itself to the blitzkrieg form of war which Germany employed in running over much of Europe last year. There are too many mountains, too many narrow and crooked roads, and at the moment and for some weeks to come the weather will be against this form of warfare. And yet the stage is set and there will be war in the Balkans. Britain is forcing the issue there.

Let's Be Canadians

Leo Dolan, Director of the Canadian Tourist Bureau, Ottawa, does not like the American flag flying over hotels or hot dog stands in Canada. The flags are so placed to catch the eye of the tourist from United States. The reasoning is that the visitor will see the flag of his own land, and will thereupon stop, enter, be fed or remain.

Our belief is that he will do nothing of the sort. He will have sufficient keenness of perception to see through the thing at once. We have a splendid flag to fly in our country, one which has in recent months gained the admiration of the people in United States and in the free nations of the world.

Mr. Dolan is correct when he says people coming as tourists from United States look with expectancy to entering a foreign country. They expect to see things different to what they see every day at home. They do not come here to look at mountains and lakes and such because they have plenty in their own country. But they do like to find something that is different; they prefer to see a different flag; they will admire the people who are proud enough of their own national emblem to display it. They will be delighted to find something distinctively "Canadian" in the places where meals are served.

It is not hard to prove all that. We know that American tourists coming to our country have high regard for our woollen goods, for blankets and men's socks and so on. They know they are better than goods offered for sale in their own land.

We recall one party in which there were young people and they were satisfied their trip had been an actual success because they had seen a uniformed Mounted Police.

So if we want to give the American tourists some pleasure when they arrive let us be Canadian. If we have anything distinctively Canadian let us place it toward the front, and if we haven't anything like that then there's something wrong with us and we should set in motion the process of correction.

One Cause Of Delay

Air Minister C. G. Power discussed a question in the House of Commons, one which has probably never occurred to a good many people who are somewhat fond of criticizing what they term delays or the breaking down of a set schedule of performance.

It had to do with the securing of parts for planes sent over here from Britain. Some of these planes were grounded simply because there were no spare parts with which to make even minor repairs, and it was being found faster to have these parts made by hand in this country than to wait for them to be shipped from Britain. Of course that causes delay.

It would be something the same as an individual buying a car which had no agency or service department in this country, and where parts made for other cars would not fit. In such a situation it would not take much of a break-down to stop the car, and it would stay stopped until the spare part could be secured from the maker. Mr. Power's explanation on that point was easy to understand.

We Try Once More

Admittedly this paper grows weary of trying to tell its readers that letters addressed to this paper, and intended for publication in its columns, must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer.

We have previously published notices to this effect; many of them. And yet the letters with no names attached continue to arrive. The name of the writer does not necessarily appear in print, but the newspaper must know with whom it is dealing.

We take no pleasure whatever in setting these letters to one side . We know quite well it has taken the writers some time to prepare the material, and we have the feeling that each day they look at the page where letters appear and wonder why the paper will not print the one they sent in.

We are not entirely hopeful that one more appeal will change the situation when previous appeals have failed, but it is suggested by that increasing pile of unused—and unsigned—letters on the corner of the desk.

Nothing Confidential In It

The city of Kingston has a case which at the moment is of interest to that city alone, but it is one which might come to the surface any place. A representative of the Kingston fire department had inspected hotel premises and a report was sent to Queen's Park. Following that the Provincial Fire Marshal and the Liquor Control Board undertook to have their inspectors look over the properties.

Kingston City Council desired to know what was in these reports, and after waiting some time addressed a letter to the Control Board seeking a copy of the report and recommendations. The answer came from an official designated as the "assistant director of hotels" and the information was that such a report was regarded as being confidential and could not be forwarded without the consent of the Control Board. Meanwhile the hotel-keepers in Kingston had been notified of deficiencies found by the inspectors and had been requested to see that they were remedied.

The Kingston Whig-Standard contains, and rightly we think, that there is nothing confidential in the whole situation, but that it is straight public business being carried on by servants of the people and paid for out of the public purse. It is the general public who patronize the hotels where the fire hazards are said to exist, and it is the general public of Kingston who elected the City Council which in turn asked for a copy of the reports of the inspectors of the Control Board. If the City Council of Kingston or any other community where a similar condition existed is not justified in asking for a copy of such report then we do not understand the functions or rights of a City Council.

There Was Sufficient Reason

A correspondent who says he is writing not for publication, "but for keeping the record straight," suggests that United States which today is ready to go to the aid of Britain "might have made Britain so strong today that she could not be challenged had the young colony of 1776 not been so hot-headed about securing independence."

We doubt whether that entirely keeps "the record straight," as it does not actually state the case according to historical truth. The circumstances which culminated in the Declaration of Independence had their start in the Seven Years' War which ended in 1763, leaving Britain with a load of debt. The land-owners dominated Parliament and they were uneasy because of the heavy tax on land. They insisted that the colonies should come to the assistance of the treasury, and the first scheme was by the sale of stamps necessary to validate certain business transactions. It met with opposition on the ground that it was not the function of the British Parliament to tell the colonies what taxes they should pay. So the Stamp Act was repealed before it had time to come into actual operation.

The land-owners were not satisfied and in 1767 there was a duty imposed on glass, lead, painters' colors, papers and tea. That was no better and the decision of the colony was that they would use no English goods. When Lord North came into office in 1770 he wiped out these duties and retained only one, that on tea. The matter came to a head when the East India Company, in order to get rid of surplus stocks, shipped many cargoes of tea to America. The belief was there would be no trouble and the colonists would pay the tax of three pence a pound while the people at home were paying a tax of one shilling per pound. That guess was wrong. It went along in a troubled way until in 1773 a party disguised as Indians threw 340 chests of tea from a British vessel in the harbor at Boston. The whole business centred in the claim that the colonists had no representation in the British Parliament and therefore that Parliament had no right to tax them for debts contracted by Britain.

Admittedly there was hot-headed action on both sides, but the ministers of George III. showed lack of tact and an absence of understanding, and the general feeling of historians is that there was sufficient ground for the American colonists seeking their independence in 1776.

A Wiser Man Now

I. E. Davey, a school teacher of Toronto, made an address before a temperance gathering in London and said he knew teachers who were in the habit of getting drunk, and of one school inspector whom he had seen who was so drunk he could not walk.

There were questions asked afterward. School officials wanted to know the names of the teachers; provincial authorities desired to learn the identity of the drunken school inspector, but Mr. Davey was not telling. In fact he appears to have been ready enough to withdraw his London statement.

When a man goes away from home to make an address or take part in discussions he generally wants to say something outstanding, but if he lacks the courage to go the whole distance and use names he leaves a blanket charge across the names of a great many decent and innocent people. Mr. Davey, teacher though he is, has probably learned a lesson which was not previously on the curriculum.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Wendell Willkie, defeated candidate for U.S. presidency, gives full support to the Roosevelt program for aid to Britain, and we take it that is the one way to explain what is meant by national unity.

Eire has a representative in United States seeking arms and munitions. Trouble is United States at the moment is extending aid to those who are out front fighting Hitler.

Return tabled at Ottawa shows that Canadian armed forces have required 2,694 sets of false teeth. Otherwise there's nothing else artificial about these chaps.

We noticed an article in the Stratford Beacon-Herald headed "Let's Put Ourselves in the Other Man's Shoes." Provided the things fit and are better than our own it looks like a good idea.

The famous Lease-Lend bill recently approved by Washington bears the number H.R. 1776, the "H.R." standing for House of Representatives. Perhaps it is more than a coincidence that Congress in 1776 passed a Declaration of Independence, because that bill "H.R. 1776" of 1941 is a declaration for the independence of the free people of the world.

TOO LATE

(By A.R.K.)

¶ I read of vitamins each day, it seems they've really come to stay, their numbers still increase; they're half-way through the alphabet, nor have they quit their finding yet, perhaps 'twill never cease.

¶ Some scientific man will rise, with joy fair bulging from his eyes, to tell what he had done; he's found a vitamin that's new, will grow four hairs where there were two, a victory by gum.

¶ And vitamins to children fed, will grow large brains within the head, no staying after four; the problems that they couldn't do, will vanish like the morning dew, much smarter than before.

¶ I wish these vitamins had come, when I was still quite fresh and young, it almost makes me grieve; I might have owned the village store, known business methods to the core — or been elected reeve.

CAP and BELLS . . .

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

LAST WEEK I devoted three of these articles to an extended commentary on Lars Moen's book "Under the Iron Heel" as I consider that it is the most informative and authoritative work yet written on conditions in the occupied zones of Europe. In this and in the Saturday article I want to discuss another important book about the war; this time the subject is conditions in Great Britain. It is called "They Never Quit," and the author is Harvey Klemmer. He is an American and his career is in the best tradition of that country. He began life as a newsboy in Michigan and later became a sailor in the American Merchant Marine, in which he served during the last war. He has worked as a laborer, lumberjack, painter, store clerk and railway man. He earned money for his own education and at last became principal of a High School near Detroit. In 1935 he again became a part of the Merchant Marine, this time as an economic advisor, and it was in this capacity that he attracted the attention of Joseph Kennedy who was at the head of the Maritime Commission. When Mr. Kennedy was appointed American Ambassador to London he asked Mr. Klemmer to accompany him as an attache. But when Mr. Kennedy made his dismal return to his native land Mr. Klemmer remained behind; he returned early this year and wrote his book, which was published last month.

C & B

Mr. Klemmer is not so good an observer as Mr. Moen. He is emotional and, if the word may be used without offense, flighty; he says many things which do greater credit to his heart than to his head. But he has seen Britain go through the worst that she has yet been called upon to face and his judgment is summed up in his title—"They'll Never Quit."

C & B

The book discusses several aspects of the Battle of Britain and was written by Mr. Klemmer in America in order that it might not be subject to British censorship before publication. Personally I cannot imagine that a British censor would have cut more than a few words here and there out of the manuscript; the book is a wonderful justification of the ways of Britain to the United States, offered to our American friends exactly as they like it. The writing is racy and factual, though, as I have already indicated, inclined to sensationalism and sentimentality at times. There can be no doubt in the reader's mind as to where Mr. Klemmer stands: he is in favor of every possible aid to Britain, and he pointedly does not qualify his opinion with the phrase "short of war." Britain, he feels, is fighting America's battle, and intelligent self-interest dictates that America should see that she wins it.

C & B

BECAUSE of his privileged position Mr. Klemmer was able to see and to report for us many things that ordinarily we might not have heard for some time, perhaps not until long after the war was over. Readers may recollect that Mr. Moen firmly believed that the Germans made an attempt to invade England and were beaten off by oil fires spread over the Channel. Mr. Klemmer offers a partial corroboration of this story. The Germans, he says, made a number of practice invasions on the French coast. They did this at night so that when the R.A.F. came over to look for the invasion barges they would not find them, and would perhaps waste their time in bombing empty harbors. But the British caught on to this dodge, and one night they found a group of barges and smashed them to atoms. Much of the wreckage washed up on the English coast. That is Mr. Klemmer's story, but it does not explain the thousands of badly burned German soldiers whom Mr. Moen claims were in hospitals in Belgium.

C & B

This book does shed some light on a rumor which many of us have heard—that is, that the British have made numerous raids on occupied France. Mr. Klemmer says that these raids are carried out by a small body of men who are particularly resourceful and daring. Some are Canadians, some are Australians, but the majority are Irishmen from Glasgow, men who love a fight and who are particularly handy with the knife. They have done excellent work in blowing up barges, ammunition dumps, and gun emplacements. These marauders have also taken prisoners who were very surprised to find themselves in England.

C & B

Surprise seems to be the uppermost emotion in captured Germans. Fliers have a quaint legend that the R.A.F. never brings down any planes, and one Nazi pilot, upon being offered a drink when he was captured, had the amazing effrontery to say "I drink to you, the first man to bring down a German pilot over England." His surprise when he arrived at a prison camp must have been beautiful to see. Another Nazi pilot, brought down in England, demanded to be taken to the German authorities at Reading; nothing would convince him that the Germans were not already in possession of a part of England! Let us hope that he is convinced now....I shall continue this discussion of Harvey Klemmer's book on Saturday.

WARMING UP

"He thought he'd try it first without skis just to get used to the slide."

• No-Verdict Trial Cost $4000

A REPORT from Toronto tells where $4,000 has gone.

The task of prosecuting 27-year-old Aircraftsman Bill Newell on a charge of murdering his wife has already cost taxpayers nearly $4,000 and may cost them that much again if his second trial takes as long as his first.

No date has been set for the retrial, made necessary by a jury disagreement last Saturday. Defense Counsel G. C. Elgie said he was still considering an application for transfer of the case to another county, to permit Newell to be retried at the current Assizes instead of waiting for the spring sittings.

The twelve jurors who spent twenty days on the case, only to disagree as to Newell's guilt or innocence, were each paid $4 a day. This item of expense alone totals $960. Their hotel bill comes to another $1,000.

Twelve sheriff's officers were also paid $4 a day each for their services at the trial, amounting to another $960. On top of this, four of the officers got double pay for guarding the jurors at their hotel each night. This extra expense totals $320.

The Crown called 29 witnesses. These were paid $1 a day if resident in Toronto, $1.50 a day if from outside the city, plus travelling expenses. Some of them were present throughout the trial. At a rough estimate, witness fees probably totalled about $250.

Shorthand reporters were paid $8 a day. They worked in weekly shifts. This cost totalled $144 for 18 trial days. Although the exact cost could not be learned, the expense of making transcriptions of the evidence at Newell's preliminary hearing for use at the trial probably came to $200.

These seven items total $3,834. And this figure doesn't take into account the fees of expert witnesses who have not submitted their bills yet, or the cost of feeding Newell at the jail for five and a half months.

Nor does it include the expense and inconvenience of keeping police officers away from their work to attend the trial, of forcing Crown Attorney J. W. McFadden to skip three of the weekly lectures he delivers on criminal procedure to Osgoode Hall law students, and of preventing Defense Counsel Elgie from representing his constituents in the Ontario Legislature throughout the trial.

• Germany Owes Something

SPEAKING for the Vichy Government a few days ago, Admiral Darlan noted with satisfaction that Germany had released some requisitioned wheat for France and said that "the Germans in this instance have been more generous and humanitarian than the British."

Spurred on by this tribute to their generosity and humanitarianism, the Germans have now made public a record of other good deeds in recent months. Counting Admiral Darlan's wheat, France has now had from Germany:

220,000 tons of wheat
25,000 tons of steel and iron
30,000 tons of fuel oil
25,000 tons of cellulose
500,000 tons of newsprint
150,000 tons of coal
100,000 tons of potatoes

And what has France paid Germany?

80,000 dead French soldiers
100,000 wounded men
2,000,000 prisoners of war
The entire equipment of the French Army
All the food that Germany has wished to take
100,000,000,000 francs for occupation costs
The pride and freedom of the French people

It still seems as if Hitler owes France a little wheat and a few more bushels of potatoes. — New York Times.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And it came to pass at end of forty days, that Noah opened the window of the ark which he had made; and he sent forth a raven, which went forth to and fro, until the waters were dried up from off the earth. Also he sent forth a dove from him, to see if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground; but the dove found no rest for the sole of her foot, and she returned unto him into the ark, for the waters were on the face of the whole earth: then he put forth his hand, and took her, and pulled her in unto him into the ark.

And he stayed yet other seven days; and again he sent forth the dove out of the ark; and the dove came in to him in the evening; and, lo, in her mouth was an olive leaf plucked off; so Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth.—Gen. 8: 1, 6-11.

WRONGLY INFORMED

THE people of Canada will feel easier in their minds regarding the quality of the men in the R.C.M.P. now that the very dangerous language attributed to one of them by Mrs. Dorise Nielsen, member of parliament for North Battleford, has been refuted. Mrs. Nielsen read from a letter in the House of Commons, which she afterwards tabled. The letter was from one of her supporters in her constituency. The man's name was J. L. Hatton. In a letter to Mrs. Nielsen, Hatton stated that he had been told by a member of the R.C.M.P. that if Mrs. Nielsen continued her present activities, she would be interned. It now turns out that Hatton attributed to a member of the R.C.M.P. words that he never uttered. He says he did it to try to change her attitude towards Canada's war effort.

Mrs. Nielsen came down from the west with a mission. She seems to be fulfilling it the wrong way. — Kingston Whig-Standard.

OFFER REFUSED

THERE is a known case in this city where a man 57 years old physically prime and examined every month by his own initiative, has offered his services to the Government for the duration of the war, without charge, and adds the use of his motor car with those services, in any capacity required.

This man had 18 years Imperial Army experience, six and a half of which were combatant, that is, in real war. He invented a quicker method of firing nine-inch guns and is still receiving his royalties from the British War Office. In other words, here is a good man who seemingly cannot get a job whatever in this country, even at no cost to the country—St. Catharines Standard.

GraceChurch WA Sponsors Supper

MILLBROOK, March 20—(ENS).—The basement of Grace Presbyterian Church presented a most attractive appearance on Monday evening, when the Ladies' Aid Society sponsored its annual St. Patrick's Day supper, the incoming guests being warmly welcomed by the minister and his wife, Rev. A. R. and Mrs. Gibson, and other officers of the hostess organization.

The inclement weather out of doors was in sharp contrast to the warmth and brightness in the large hall, and the two long tea tables, which were filled more than once, had seasonable decorations of pots of shamrock on the green, fluted runners, while a patriotic touch was added by the crystal vases holding triple Union Jacks.

Table conveners were Mrs. J. R. Thompson and Mrs. Mervan Kinsman; others who asssited being Mrs. S. E. Eakins, Mrs. W. C. Thorndyke, Misses Muriel Ball, Mary Eakins, Ethel Belch, Jean Cameron, Mina Gibson, Gladys Coyte, Mrs. H. Blair, Mrs. P. Whyte, and Mrs. H. W. Ball. Mrs. A. Miller was cashier, and the finances of the society benefitted by a neat sum through the undertaking.

4,690 Single Men For 29 Camps

OTTAWA, March 20.—(CP). — At 29 camps across the Dominion young Canadians to-morrow will listen to the blare of military bugles and try to interpret the calls which in four months time will be as clear to them as shouted commands.

The 4,690 single men and childless widowers—all 21 years old—will be reporting for the fourth compulsory military training period under the National Resources Mobilization Act But, unlike other men called up for the first three camp periods, they will spend four months in training instead of 30 days.

Under the revised plan, the men entering camp to-morrow will train side by side with recruits of the Canadian (Active) Army. Reserve and active army camps were combined at the same time as the compulsory training period was lengthened.

The training program for men called up for training is two months at one of the 29 basic training centres. In that period the recruit will be instructed how to march correctly perform drill movements and something of the use of arms.

At the end of two months, the recruit given a choice. If he wishes he may volunteer for active service with the Royal Canadian Navy or the Royal Canadian Air Force and, if accepted, will go to naval or air force schools.

Otherwise he will go to an advanced army training school for special instruction in the particular arm of the service to which he is posted.

When the recruit says farewell to camp at the close of four months, he will be posted to the reserve and will re-enter civilian life with the knowledge he is liable to recall if required for service in Canada or for additional training

Fluorescent Lighting Displaces Old System

Hindu Rope Trick Never Existed Dante Finds After Long Research

The fire of public interest in magic was kindled into a high flame during the past two weeks, when dozens of Peterborough residents travelled nearly one hundred miles to Toronto to be fooled by Dante, the magician, on the stage of the Royal Alexandra Theatre. Perhaps one of the most enlightening features of the visit of the "master" was his data on the truth about the Hindu rope trick. Parts of his explanation appear in an interesting pamphlet which was distributed amongst the audience at intermission.

More than thirty years ago, Dante became interested in that most colorfully described illusion, the Hindu rope trick, and he resolved to find the truth concerning it. Most people are familiar with the routine of the descriptions, but as it is described by Dante, memory brightens. A Hindu fakir appears with a coil of rope above which he makes magic "passes." Soon the rope is seen to rear on its end and begin to stretch skyward until the end of is out of sight. A young boy then appears, and climbs the rope until he too fades from sight.

No Such Trick

As early as 1911 Dante had been assured by the great Howard Thurston that there was no such trick, and that despite much searching on Thurston's part not a living soul had been found who claimed to have seen the trick after being questioned. Dante was undaunted and began a search of his own which carried him into remote corners of the world, but to no avail. Each time he found a new fakir he would realize that the tricks belonging to that class were clumsy when compared with those in the program of the American or European magician, and each time he heard of someone who claimed to have at some time witnessed the trick he hunted them down. The answer was always the same; the person who had made boasts of having been at the side of a performing fakir when the trick was done always confessed that it was not he, but a cousin or uncle who had seen the spectacle and had described it to him.

Finally the answer came to Dante the searcher, and it was one attended by disappointment. He met an Australian who was almost 100 years old, and who had, by virtue of his association with showmen and his profound knowledge of and experience in India, become to be known as an authority on the ways of the magii, his name was Lyons, and because of his advanced years was called "Daddy."

Asked About Trick

Upon meeting Dante, and being told that he had come from India recently, "Daddy" Lyons asked if he had seen the Hindu rope trick, and then indulged in an almost frank sneer. Dante realized that the behavior was that of one who knew more than most of the trick and began a series of questions which ultimately satisfied his long-standing curiosity regarding it. At this juncture Dante claims that it never has been performed. In lining himself up in belief with other master magicians of the past, Dante offers the version of the beginning of the story as it is accepted throughout the world today.

One day two spiritualists, magicians and mind readers, arrived in Australia and began preparing a tour of the country and engaged Mr. Lyons as guide and advisor. To build up prestige they told the old gentleman, who was then considerably younger, of a sight they had seen in India. A fakir had made a boy pass right through a hollow log, they said, and emerge from the other end while being surrounded by spectators, among which were the two spiritualists, their names, the "Davenport Brothers." Not to be outdone, and in a mood of disgust at a known exaggeration, Lyons originated the story of the Hindu rope trick, never dreaming it would have such an echo.

Because of his story, Mr. Lyons has caused magicians to spend thousands of dollars and countless hours in the search for that which did not exist, and has been the rout of perjury on the part of many more thousands of tourists who claim to have seen the trick on the banks of the Ganges annually.

Dante has left Canada now, but his performance has brought the populace of at least one section of Ontario up to date in the realm of the unreal, for his is the type of show which made the word magician famous through the past 50 years. Thurston, Kellar, Houdini and Hermann acquired knowledge which would seem to have been inherited by Dante, and his wit is such that his audiences are delighted ones. He was born in Denmark, but is what may truly be called a citizen of the world.

Hornets Battle Long To Whip Indians

PITTSBURGH, March 20 (CP)—It wasn't until the very last minute of the regular season that the final standings of one of the tightest American League hockey campaigns in history was settled—and now the clubs are showing the same doggedness in deciding the playoff games.

All three contests played so far have gone into overtime, but in every case the home team has been victorious following the established custom for these post season games.

Providence and Hershey each needed an extra session Tuesday night to gain victories over Cleveland and New Haven respectively, but that was nothing compared to last night's marathon in which the Pittsburgh Hornets defeated the Springfield Indians 2-1.

The Hornets and Indians battled for 116 minutes and 15 seconds before a rifle shot goal by Johnny Sherf in the third 20-minute overtime period decided the issue.

The end came like a flash with Eddie Convey lining the puck to Peanuts O'Flaherty, who in turn flipped it to Sherf for the winning marker. It was one of the longest games ever staged at Pittsburgh, taking almost four hours overall time.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Canadian Press All-Star National Hockey League teams are out and the choice will occasion little surprise. The first team almost picked itself. It is composed of Broda, Leafs, goal; Clapper, Boston and Stanowski, Leafs, defence; Cowley, Boston, centre; Bryan Hextall, Rangers, right wing and Sweeney Schriner, Leafs, left. There was a battle for the goal position between Broda and Brimsek but Broda as the Vezina Cup winner was the logical choice. Clapper has been the best defence man in the loop all season. Hextall scored more goals than any other player and with his reputation as the best checking forward in the game was a cinch for right wing. Cowley has just set a new modern scoring record and Schriner has been close behind Hextall in firing home goals, so they were naturals for centre and right wing. Only Hextall and Clapper are repeaters. Broda ousted Kerr, Stanowski replaces Ebbie Goodfellow. Cowley has chased Schmidt out of the centre ice berth and Schriner is Toe Blake's successor. The only criticism of the team is that apparently Stanowski's rushing rather than his qualities as a defence player has given him a berth. There are probably half a dozen better rearguards in the loop including his own teammate Bingo Kampman than Whirling Wally.

* * * * * *

The alternate team picked by the sport writers this year much more closely followed last year's selection than did the first team. In fact there are only two changes. Brimsek remains as the goalie, Seibert of the Black Hawks is still on the defence and Bobby Bauer at right wing and Porky Dumart at left just as in the 1939-40 alternate team. The only changes made by the selectors this year are to put Syl Apps at centre instead of Neil Colville of the Rangers and to have Art Coulter of the Rangers succeeded by his teammate Ott Heller as the other defence player.

* * * * * *

These are two good teams and yet the selectors have passed over a lot of fine players in making their choices. Out of what they missed here is a lineup that has class and power to the nth degree: Goal, Davie Kerr, Rangers; defence, Art Coulter, Rangers, and Ebbie Goodfellow, Detroit; centre, Milt Schmidt, Bruins; right wing, Gordon Drillon, Leafs; left wing, Syd Howe, Detroit. Suppose that sextette was stacked up against the all-star lineups, would you care to bet anything but even money on the chances of either of them to outscore the team of leftovers we have named? And with Mowers, Kampman, Neil Colville, Shibicky, Roy Conacher, Eddie Wiseman and others you could pick a fourth choice that would extend the other three.

Should Be Lively Evening

Tomorrow night's playoff games in the Ladies' Basketball League at the Y.W.C.A. which sees Quaker Aces and Westclox clashing in the first game of the series to decide the senior championship and St. John's and Y Gym the opponents in a similar series for the junior title should provide plenty of action. Both games will be full of thrills. Quaker Aces finished alone on top of the heap with a margin of two games over the Westclox but the Clockmakers have been playing their best ball of the season in recent starts and the series looks like a tossup with the breaks likely to decide the winner. The same is true of the other battle on the program. St. John's just managed to eke out a one-point lead over Y Gym Tuesday night, the final count being 18 to 17 and the score gives a true picture of how evenly the two teams are matched. The junior game is billed for 8 o'clock and the Aces-Westclox tilt for 9 o'clock.

* * * * * *

Westclox girls made a trip to Belleville the other night for an exhibition game and here is what the Belleville sheet says of the battle: "The Belleville "Y" lassies gained revenge over the Peterborough Westclox girls in an exhibition basketball game played at the local Y.M.C.A. last evening when the homesters won by a 30 to 18 score. In the previous game played in Peterborough the Belleville girls lost by ten points. Battling at even terms for the first half when the Belleville quintette led by a scant 11 to 9 score, the local lassies unleashed a torrid second-half attack that netted them 19 points, while the Peterborough girls were checked well and scored only nine points. Jean Sherry with eight points paced the Belleville "Y" lassies, while the visitors' scoring was evenly divided. The lineups: Peterborough Westclox—B. Saunders, 3; M. McFadden 1; J. Crowe; A. Flynn 4; D. Gibbs; H. Highe 2; F. Bestard 2; E. Craig 4; E. Bestard and A. Bowler 2. Belleville "Y": M. MacLean 4; O. Mansfield 2; M. Miller 4; D. Stead; J. Sherry 8; R. McClelland 2; M. Rowbotham 5; I. Corby and H. Garrow 4."

* * * * * *

Peterborough's juveniles will have a tough battle on their hands tonight when they meet the Regiopolis team of Kingston in the first game of a home-and-home O.J.H.A. series at Lakefield. The young Petes finished their training for this most important game last night and are in good shape for the crucial test with the Easterners. The team is undefeated this season has a lot of speed, teamwork and fight and the players are hopeful of making a real showing against what will undoubtedly prove their toughest opposition of the current campaign. The lineup tonight for the Petes will be: Goal, Leether; defence, Gillespie, McGregor; centre, Garvey; wings Huard, Smith; subs, Lawson, Jones, Murphy Hudson and Close. Incidentally the Peterborough juveniles have a genuine right under the military rule to ask for a replacement as Hallihan, one of their stars for most of the season has enlisted with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The Combines Come Through

The Kingston Combines after being held to two ties by the Hamilton Nationals really found their scoring strokes last night when they defeated the Ambitious City club 8 goals to 2 in a game played at Belleville. The one-sided nature of the score in view of the closeness of the first two games is unusual but the Combines have been that way all season. When they're hot they really sizzle and when they let down they look very ordinary. Last night was evidently one of their bright moments and Hamilton were the victims. The Kingston team may go into the Senior B finals as a result of their victory over the Nationals although nothing official has been given out yet.

Toronto Marlboros got the jump in their series with South Porcupine Bisons last night but it was a decidedly close fit. The Toronto Dukes won 2 to 1 but did not score the winning goal until the last four seconds of play. They were outskated by the Northerners all night but the Bisons game came apart at the seams once they got across the Marlboro blue-line and Bastien in the Dukes' net was too smart for them. Those Marlboros are a fighting crowd. They have snatched a lot of games out of the fire this season and a team like that usually goes a long way on the championship trail.

* * * * * *

A number of Peterborough fans drove to Oshawa last night and saw the Generals go down in defeat before Marlboros who outscored the Oshawa kids 6 to 2 after losing the first game of the series at home. The Generals were twice in front, the last time early in the second half but after the Marlboros had scored two goals with Conacher serving a penalty and thus taken the lead there was no stopping the Toronto youngsters. They scored the only two markers of the last period and finished looking like the better team. One report says the Generals played all their hockey in the first half hour.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The Stanley Cup series gets under way in Boston, Chicago and Detroit tonight....Canadiens start the playoffs with still another casualty, Ken Reardon having developed a charley-horse in practice....Hank Goldup is a possible starter with the Leafs tonight but the odds are against his appearance....Oshawa Bees defeated Kingston 5 to 3 to take the series from the Limestone City kids. The third game was played at Belleville....Port Arthur Bearcats won last night 15 to 5 over Winnipeg. They should save some of those goals for the later stages of the Allen Cup race....Tompkins got another goal for Combines last night as Kingston smothered Hamilton 8 to 2.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

The season's final statistics were published 12 years ago today and officially made right-winger Irving (Ace) Bailey of Toronto Maple Leafs the National Hockey League's scoring champion with 22 goals and 10 assists. His playing days were terminated four years later when he suffered head injuries in a collision with Eddie Shore of Boston Bruins.

Last Second Goal Sees Dukes Edge Bisons 2-1

TORONTO, March 20 (CP)—A team that almost didn't get into the Eastern Canada Hockey championship race was regarded with new respect today by the five other clubs remaining in the hunt.

South Porcupine Bisons, Northern Ontario champions, dropped the first game of their best-of-three series with Toronto Marlboros for the Ontario Senior championship last night, but Marlboros found it tough going all the way, and eked out their 2-1 victory on the basis of a goal scored in the last five seconds of play

The Bisons were at first ruled out of the provincial title series when it was thought the games with the Southern Ontario champions could not be finished by the time the province had to declare a champion. Lateness on playoffs in other sections led to a delay in the date for the inter-provincial playdowns, however, and gave Bisons their chance.

Despite the closeness of last night's battle, Marlboros are favored to take the series, although Bisons should improve even more as they get accustomed to the larger ice surface at Toronto.

Similarly, Montreal Royals are still favorites to take the Quebec crown and meet Marlboros or Bisons, despite the Tuesday night win of St. Jerome Papermakers that evened the best-of-five series at one game each. The two teams renew their battle tonight.

Some Tough Going

Royals made their play-off schedule harder by dropping that Tuesday night game. With the third game scheduled for tonight, the fourth will be played tomorrow night, and should a fifth game be necessary, it will be played Sunday. That would mean that the winner would have to meet the Ontario winner the night after.

Royals will be without hard-hitting Defenceman Eric Fleet for the remainder of the season, leaving the club with only three defencemen. Fleet is in hospital with a concussion following a melee in the Tuesday night game.

In the other semi-final bracket, Hull Volants open their best-of-five series with Sydney Millionaires in Sydney Saturday night.

While the Senior Marlboros were getting their close win over Bisons, their Junior counterparts came back into the Memorial Cup race with a bang by racing through Oshawa Generals for a 6-2 victory. The win tied up the best-of-seven series at one game apiece.

That was the only Memorial Cup game of the evening. Ottawa Canadiens and Pembroke Little Lumber Kings will play the deciding game of their Ottawa and District title series Saturday, and then meet Charlottetown Royals, Maritime champions.

Warkworth Boys Win 7-6 In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, March 20—(ENS) — Campbellford Bantams were bested 7 to 6 in their second exhibition tilt with Warkworth Midgets played in the local arena on a fast sheet of ice here last night

The visiting sextette stepped out with a four goal lead at the end of the first period but the locals succeeded in tying the score briefly In the second until L. Dunk was sent to the hoosegow for tripping, and once more the Warkworth players registered when G. Greenly punched one home to make the score 6-5.

The game opened fast with both sides giving a fine exhibition of stick handling but the homesters who have already been named Eastern Ontario group leaders held the edge with their combination tactics, and though McComb was fooled on a couple of soft ones in the initial stanza he redeemed himself in the final round by turning aside the lightning thrusts of the Greenly Nelson line.

Nelson was chief marksman for the winners registering three in the first frame while J. McVetie and S. Churchley each counted once. Free gave the locals their only tally in the frame on a neat solo effort.

During the second the homesters rallied with Free and Dunk each counting twice as they pressed their attack into the Warkworth area. Free got his fourth goal of the evening in the third

BRUIN AND LEAF ACES DOMINATE THE C.P. ALL-STAR N.H.L. TEAM

Leafs Gunning For Even Split In Boston Tilts

BOSTON, March 20.—(CP).—The Boston Garden, scene in its story history of games in five bitterly-contested Stanley Cup play-off series between Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins, opens its big doors to-night to the opening game of the sixth such meeting.

The renewal of one of the bitterest feuds in National Hockey League history comes as the first-place Bruins and second-place Leafs begin their series "A," four-of-seven meetings, for the right to enter the Stanley Cup final. They will play here again Saturday, then shift to Toronto for games next Tuesday and Thursday. The fifth, sixth and seventh games, if necessary, will be respectively at Boston March 20, Toronto April 2 and Boston April 3.

Boston fans have installed the well-balanced Bruins as favorites while the Leafs, who cannot use three good players in the opening games due to injuries, hope for nothing worse than an even split here and count upon winning the round in the later games when Syl Apps, first string centre, Hank Goldup, high-scoring right winger, and Bingo Kampman, defenceman, are back in action.

Last Finals Went 4-1.

The last time these clubs met in a playoff was in 1939, in the cup final, when Boston won four games to one. But before that Leafs took four series from the Bruins.

All reserved seats were sold long ago for the first two games and a packed house is certain for both contests.

Cooney Weiland Chosen As Top Coach

By SYDNEY GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, March 20.—(CP). — Loaded with the power and the main defensive strength of Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs, the 11th annual Canadian Press all-star National Hockey League teams were announced to-day, a few hours before the opening of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

These "dream" teams, consensus of selections by 30 sports writers in N.H.L. cities, have no less than nine of the 12 positions filled by Bruins and Leafs, testimony enough as to why they battle to-night in the first game of the Cup semi-finals. The first team is led by Boston's coach, little Cooney Weiland.

The schedule finished with Bruins in front and Leafs breathing fire right behind. They came out of the balloting for all-star honors in the same order in the number of men placed. There are five Bruins, four Leafs, two Rangers and a lone Chicago Black Hawk, with Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens as coach of the alternate team.

First Team.	Alternate Team
Goal
Broda (Tor.)	Brimsek (Bos.)
Right Defence
Clapper (Bos.)	Seibert (Chi.)
Left Defence
Stanowski (Tor.)	Heller (Rang.)
Centre
Cowley (Bos.)	Apps ((Tor.)
Right Wing
Hextall (Rang.)	Bauer (Bos.)
Left Wing
Schriner (Tor.)	Dumart (Bos.)
Coach
Weiland (Bos.)	Irvin (Can.)

Three men never before selected for all-star honors are on this season's club, packed with the color that goes naturally with the perfectionists in any sport. Walter (Turk) Broda, Wally Stanowski and Rangers' 10-year man, Ott Heller, have never made either team before.

Stanowski The Surprise.

If there are any surprises, it must be in the selection of Stanowski to share a berth on the first squad with the great Dit Clapper, acknowledged leader of all the big-league rearguards. Never before has a sophomore defenceman, as is Stanowski, crashed into the charmed society of C.P. all-stardom.

But Stanowski, who won't celebrate his 22nd birthday until April 28, did it on the strength of a great season in which he picked up the torch no one on the Toronto club has carried since the days of King Clancy. For his color, his spectacular breath-taking rushing and his capable, if not superlative, blocking, the selectors placed the young Winnipeg Pole in the company of the 34-year-old Clapper, in the 29-year-old Earl Seibert and the 30-year-old Heller.

Only Bryan Hextall at right wing and Clapper are holdovers from the 1939-40 first team, but no less than four members of the alternate squad — Frank Brimsek, Seibert, Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart—retained positions gained in last year's balloting. Weiland, whose Bruins set a record of 23 straight unbeaten games en route to the league championship, took over the coaching job from Paul Thompson.

The selectors found difficulty in deciding only the order in which they wanted Broda and Brimsek. And Broda, who brought the Vezina trophy as the League's No. 1 goalie to Toronto for the first time this year, won by a narrow margin.

Clapper Gets 29 of 30.

Clapper was selected for the first team by 29 of the 30 voters.

Stanowski, Heller and Seibert won their positions with comfortable margins over Ebbie Goodfellow of Detroit, who paired with Clapper on last year's team, and Bingo Kampman of Toronto. On the basis of three points for a first-team vote and one for a second-team vote, Stanowski received 36 points, Heller 32 and Seibert 28.

The selectors had no trouble deciding the centre berths. Two men, Apps and Cowley, stood out all season and 20 voters chose the great Bruin playmaker, leading point-getter for the first team. Hextall and Dave (Sweeney) Schriner were voted into the wing positions with commanding majorities over Bauer and Dumart.

Weiland won the No. 1 coaching job easily but Happy Day gave Irvin a hard chase before yielding to the man he replaced as Leaf coach this season. Irvin got 31 points and Day 24.

St. Louis Fliers Need One More

KANSAS CITY, March 20 (CP)— Another victory for St. Louis to-night and one of the teams in the American Hockey Association play-off final will be determined.

The Flyers, winners of the association title in five of the last six years, defeated St. Paul Saints twice on St. Louis ice and need only one more triumph to advance. The Saints won the playoff championship a year ago.

Action was started in the other semi-final here last night with Kansas City Americans defeating Minneapolis Millers 6-4.

Hawks To Battle Canadiens With But 13 Men

CHICAGO, March 20 — (CP). — Chicago Black Hawks, jinxed by injuries for several weeks in their regular National Hockey League season, will depend largely on 13 men tonight when they test their Stanley Cup hopes against Montreal Canadiens.

Hawks will be without the services of Defenceman Art Wiebe and Forward Bill Thoms in the first contest of the best-of-three preliminary round.

"We have only 13 men ready for play," Manager Paul Thompson said, 'but I'm sure they'll give a good account of themselves."

Canadiens were also hit by injuries, and the squad of 16 players reaching here was minus Kenny Reardon, rookie defenceman, and Winger Charlie Sands.

A crowd of 16,000 was expected to turn out for the game. The probable lineups:

Montreal.	Position	Chicago

Portland	defence	Cooper

Seek Victims In "Sabotaged" Train

Rescue workers are shown seeking victims in one of the overturned cars of the Pennsylvania Railroad train that was derailed at Baden, Pa., plunging three cars into the icy Ohio River. Removal of a 39-foot section of rail caused the wreck, according to railroad officials, who said that it was "very definitely" a case of sabotage. Four persons were officially reported dead and some 30 injured. The train, known as "The Buckeye," was carrying 100 passengers from Cleveland to Pittsburg.

All-Canadians Princes Among Air Fighters

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, March 20 (CP)—Veteran pilots of the Royal Air Force All-Canadian squadron hold the respect and admiration of all fliers posted to their station.

Air battles over Dunkirk last spring and over Britain and France last autumn and this winter took a heavy toll of "originals" from this great squadron but wherever possible men from the Dominion have been posted as replacements in an attempt to retain its Canadian identity.

Flying Officer Percy Price of Quebec and Flying Officer Don McKenna of Ottawa, two replacements who flew with the all-Canadians for several months before a recent transfer to a Royal Canadian Air Force Army Co-operation squadron, called it "a thrill and an honor" to have been with the squadron. "Those fellows are princes and certainly know their stuff," Price said.

Price couldn't speak highly enough of Squadron Leader Douglas Bader, the legless British commanding officer of the 'all-Canadians." He watches over his men like a hawk and has a bag full of tricks any fighter pilot would find handy," said Price.

He told of one flight in which Bader and another pilot came across a Messerschmitt. Bader got in a burst with his machine guns, saw the German was hit and then "stood by" to let the other pilot finish the job. "Somehow or other the Messerschmitt refused to go down and the other pilot ran out of ammunition," Price said. "When Bader saw this he stepped in again and finished the job."

There's great rivalry among the pilots for places among the raiders, but there's no favoritism shown and everyone gets a chance. When there are only two or three vacancies lots are drawn and the unsuccessful pilots are first in line for the next raid.

Price and McKenna were disappointed when they were transferred, for fighter pilot work, even if it's only convoying ships through the channel, is a thrilling experience. There's no knowing when you'll run across a Nazi.

They were pleased with one thing, however. Shortly before the transfer the all-Canadians were visited by the King and Queen. "That's something I wouldn't have missed for all the world," McKenna said. "Maybe the transfer means we'll see them again. If so, it will have been worth it."

Ionic Chapter Observes 42nd Birthday

CAMPBELLFORD, March 20. — (ENS)—J. Owen Herity, popular Belleville Clubman and Chamber of Commerce chairman, was guest speaker at the 32nd anniversary banquet of the Ionic Chapter, Royal Arch Masons No. 168 G.R.C. here on Monday. With his usual eloquence Mr. Herity poured forth a wealth of material appropriate to the 17th of March, saying among other things that "the Irish who inhabit Ireland today are a disappointment to us, but we must remember that since 1170 A.D. 25 million Irishmen have joined the ranks of those who are fighting the battle for freedom." Of particular interest to those attending the banquet was the production of the menu used on the occasion of the Chapter's second anniversary on March 17th, 1911, and in tribute the names of past First Principals from the year of its inception were read—Ex. Comp. William Smith, 1909-10; Rt. E. Comp. E. J. Free, 1911-12; Ex. Comp. O. C. Watson, 1913-14; Rt. Ex. Comp D. F. Robertson 1915-16; V. Ex. Comp. F. W. Wood, 1917-18; Rt. Ex. Comp. I. A. Also read was a list of the officers of the 1911 anniversary which disclosed that only one who attended the meeting thirty years ago was present this year, being Dr. O. C. Watson, who gave the toast to the visitors. The others whose names were read were Dr. E. J. Free, William Smith, T. A. Brown, W. H. Carnahan, C. W. Smith, G. F. Robinson, Dr. R. H. Bonnycastle, G. A. Benor, F. W. Wood, J. Simpson, C. H. Harris, William Hall, H. T. Morton, Charles Benor.

Toastmaster of the evening was P. M. Locke and A. J. Meyers introduced the guest speaker. Other items included community singing lead by Mr. Albert Hazel, and a vocal solo by G. W. Lucy.

Britain To Cut Use Of Milk

LONDON, March 20 (CP Cable)—Lord Woolton, minister of food, announced in the House of Lords yesterday that domestic consumption of milk will be slashed one seventh as from the middle of April. Nursing mothers and young children will not be affected.

The food minister said he must expect difficulty in maintaining production at the present level and said the shortage of imported feeding stuffs likely will become "more acute."

He was satisfied, however, that there will be more milk this summer than is required for domestic consumption. The surplus will be used for increasing production of cheese and condensed milk, "both of which we shall certainly require next winter."

Earlier the food ministry had announced that cheese will be rationed soon.

Moving Day For Radio Stations Is 29th Of March

By JAMES MONTAGNES
(Central Press Canadian Writer.)

In the early morning hours of March 29 most of the nearly 1,000 radio stations in Canada, United States, Newfoundland, Cuba, Mexico, Dominican Republic, and Haiti, will tune their transmitters to new positions on the radio dial. At 3 a.m. that day the Havana Radio Treaty of 1937 goes into effect for stations on the standard broadcast band, the final step in a diplomatic and technical problem which has taken nearly 10 years to solve.

When the stations are located on their new frequencies the interference caused by stations in the various countries using the same frequencies when too close geographically, will be eliminated. And stations, outlawed by one country will not be able to operate from another of the signatory powers.

Canadian listeners will have to learn to look for their favorite radio stations at new points on the dial. Those with push button automatic tuning devices will have to call in the service man if they want to continue using the push buttons, or if they are good at amateur mechanics will be able to do the job of shifting the tuning mechanism themselves. Service men, however, are expecting to pay bigger income taxes next year as a result of the change-over. Only the standard broadcast band from 550 to 1600 kilocycles is affected. Short wave users will still have to scramble along among the many stations located wherever a country could find a space on the dial.

Outcome of Arbitration.

The Havana Radio Treaty is the outcome of arbitration and technical skill. A decade ago not all the countries on this continent abided by the agreement of the International Radio Union, headquarters at Berne, Switzerland, insofar as broadcasting stations were concerned. More and more stations were started, irrespective of other stations on the same frequencies, causing endless interference for the listeners who were unable to hear a program clearly. Canada and the United States made agreements, but these were useless without similar agreements with countries to the south where stations could be built to use Canadian or American frequencies and often were. Stations for which no licence could be obtained in the United States, built across the border in Mexico. Finally all the North and Central American countries were persuaded to sit around a conference table and discuss regulation of the broadcasting band. Conference followed conference, and on December 1, 1937, the treaty was signed by representatives of the countries at Havana.

The treaty required that any four of the countries could ratify it to make it binding on the others, and that it would be put into force one year after such ratification. Technical sessions since treaty signing have ironed out all difficulties, and on March 29 there will be a new deal in the air.

The treaty provides that high powered stations must be geographically a continent apart before technical measures to eliminate any possible interference. Other stations, not as powerful, must use the most up-to-date means to stop interference with any station with which they share channels. There are 106 channels all of which each country may use, provided they cause no interference with stations in other countries. Broadly speaking Canada gets 14 of these channels, United States 63, Mexico 15, Cuba 9, Newfoundland 2. But Canada's 85 stations are not all crowded on the 14 bands, but share with those in the United States, Cuba and Mexico.

Four Station Classes

Other provisions of the treaty called for four classes of stations, for maximum power by each station in each class to hold the frequency to which it has been assigned. Accordingly a number of Canadian stations have been permitted to increase their power, and others, expect such power increases to allow Canada to hold the channels reserved for the high-powered Canadian stations. Better service for the listeners is planned through this increase in higher-powered stations.

All told about 70 Canadian stations will shift locations on March 29, most of them only a few channels up or down the radio dial, while about a third will find quarters at considerable distances from their present dial locations. Each and every station and its allocation was discussed by technicians at a conference at Washington early this year, and the moves have all been approved by technicians from nearby countries, as moves of their stations were approved by Canadian technicians. There will be peace on the North American radio front when the Havana Treaty moving day rolls 'round.

Celebrates 85th Birthday

Peter Lemoire, shown in Centre, ABOVE, is a veteran resident of Hastings village, and he can recall when the thriving little municipality was known as Crook's Rapids. He has lived in the village for 82 years, and this week observed his 85th birthday. For forty years he worked at Fowld's sawmills and is still active and in good health. Two of his sons are also shown in the picture, and both are residents of Hastings.

HASTINGS

Peter Lemoire Passes 85 Mark

HASTINGS, March 20—(ENS).—Peter Lemoire, one of Hastings' oldest residents, and one who has lived in Hastings for 82 years, celebrated on Monday his 85th birthday.

Mr. Lemoire, a French Canadian by birth, was born in Montreal, and came to Hastings at the age of three years.

Like many of the old settlers of his time, he can tell the younger generation many interesting stories of the pioneer life when Hastings was "Crook's Rapids," for he has a wonderful memory. He is very active and young-looking for his years and is a familiar figure on the village street.

He was first employed at casting needles in the Black Lock Woollen Mills and later worked for 40 years at the old Fowld's Sawmills.

Mr. Lemoire is the father of 16 children, 16 of whom are living, and is the pround grandfather of 39 grandchildren. One daughter, Lucy, passed away at the age of 17 years from serious burns she received in her home.

The fifteen remaining children are Harry, Ted, Agnes (Mrs. A. Sweener), Bert, Gertrude (Mrs. B. Chilman), James, Peter, Patrick, Alfred, Kathaleen (Mrs. A. Brake), Helen (Mrs. H. Fink), Madaline (Mrs. Burns), Loretta (Mrs. R. Newbury), Veronica (Mrs. F. Ronco) and Marie (Mrs. Desparlo). Mrs. Lemoire died a number of years ago.

Thirteen games were enjoyed and were won by the following: Ladies' first, Mrs. Chas Lynch; ladies' second, Mrs. Clarence Gillespie; gents' first, Mr. Albert Wellman; gents' second, Mr. Meyers of Port Hope. Lucky chair, Mr. Cecil Scriver.

Visit Hastings Y.P.U.

Over thirty members of the Young People's Society of the Campbellford United church, with their minister, Rev. G. N. Maxwell, motored to Hastings on St. Patrick's evening and were guests of Trinity United Y.P.U.

The basement of the church was artistically decorated in St Patrick's colors and the program given by the Camybellford members was in keeping with the day.

Grant Sine, president of the local society, extended a hearty welcome to the guests, then called on their president, Leonard Smith, to continue the meeting which opened with a worship period, including the scripture reading by Mrs. Don Holmes, a poem, and a reading and prayer by the president.

A varied program proved very interesting. Mrs. H. Twigg sang "I'll Take You Home Again Kathaleen," Mrs. E Bates recited "When I Was a Boy," and Mrs. E. Bates contributed a solo, "A Garden of Your Heart"; Mr. Leo Coveney gave a reading; Mrs. Don Holmes told in an interesting way "The Life of St. Patrick"; Mrs. A Watson sang "Little Irish Girl"; Mrs. Twigg a humorous reading, "Biddy's Welcome to Pat."

W. W. Knight, the Hastings member conducted a pleasant recreational period before the service of a dainty Irish lunch.

Mr. L. Smith moved a vote of thanks to the Hastings members for their hospitality, after which Mr. Sine expressed thanks.

Bounty Allowed Though Wolf Was Dog

BRAMPTON, March 20.—Archie McColl, 75-year-old Boer War veteran, still believes the animal he shot north of Inglewood more than a month ago was a wolf, but the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries says it was a dog.

Peel County Council has discovered that the money which they had received from the Province as bounty, and turned over to McColl, had no business being in McColl's possession. But Reeve A. D. McBride of Caledon Township declared that the township council would make good the money and the Boer War veteran won't be asked to return the bounty.

McColl took the "wolf" pelt to Queen's Park and was so earnest about his claim that the Department authorities did not bother to examine the pelt. Several weeks later the Deputy Minister, D. J. Taylor, looked it over and found that it was the pelt of a dog.

"The dog, whether of the domesticated or wild species, is a greater menace to poultry and sheep than the wolf which avoids domestic establishments," declared Mr. Taylor in his letter to council.

lakes to Montreal is to be laid before Congress at Washington and the House of Commons here tomorrow.

An exchange of letters between Mr. King and Jay Pierrepont Moffat, United States minister—together with the reports of the advisory committees of engineers which worked on the plan in recent months—was tabled by Mr. King. It gave a general indication of the plan of development and the reasons for action now.

Message From F. D. R.

Mr. Moffatt's letter included a personal message from Mr. Roosevelt which contained the following statement:

"The Government of the United States is engaged in a gigantic defence program. It is determined to supply such aid in material to Great Britain, the members of the commonwealth and their Allies as may be necessary to enable them to war to a successful termination."

Mr. King told the House the Government and people of Canada were gratified that Mr. Roosevelt had embodied this declaration in a formal state paper.

Signing of the agreement took place less than an hour before the House met and followed the signing of another agreement between the Dominion and the Ontario governments for necessary developments in Ontario consequential to the agreement with the United States. The announcements overshadowed debate on the war appropriation bill, which goes on again to-day.

That debate brought Defence Minister Ralston a statement that formation of a women's corps in connection with the Canadian army had been carefully considered but only limited positions had been found in which women could replace men.

Mr. King told the House the waterway arrangement took the form of an agreement rather than a treaty.

Thus it can be ratified by a simple majority of both Houses of Congress, whereas ratificaton of a treaty requires a two-thirds majority of the United States' Senate.

Answering queries fom Opposition Leader Hanson, Mr. King said Parliament would not be asked to ratify the agreement until ratification was accorded by Congress, but he expressed the hope this would come soon and that the agreement could be presented to the Canadian Parliament this session.

Waterway and Power.

The agreement, Mr. King said, provides for a deep waterway from Montreal to the head of the Lakes; power developments in the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence and throughout the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin, utilization of water turned into Lake Superior by the Ogoki and Long Lac diversions for power generation at the Sault, Niagara and ultimately in the international rapids section; and preservation of the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls.

The engineers' reports tabled with the announcement state that power can be delivered and navigation start at the international rapids within four years from the time work is begun. They estimate the cost of international rapids developments at $266,170,000, which includes construction, land purchase, relocation of highways and railways and the rehabilitation of the Ontario villages of Morrisburg and Iroquois, the sites of which will be flooded.

The plan for this area involves a giant dam more than 80 feet high at Barnhart Island, near Cornwall, Ont., a canal on the United States side of the river, and other incidental works.

Total cost of the whole project covered by the agreement is estimated at about $500,000,000. This includes expenditures already made, including Canada's $132,000,000 for the Welland Canal and works to be carried out in addition to the international rapids development.

Never Before Parliament

The exchange of letters which preceded the signing of the agreement followed months of negotiations and engineering studies since the project, which reached a treaty stage, in 1932 was revived. The last treaty was also made under the Roosevelt administration on the United States side but during the term of office of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett in Canada.

It was never submitted to parliament for ratification but was defeated in the Senate at Washington.

Financial arrangements for the work will be disclosed when the text of the agreement is made public tomorrow. As in the previous treaty it is expected Canada will be credited with part of the cost of two big canals already in operation, which will form part of the extended seaway, the Welland Canal across the Niagara peninsula and the Beauharnois Canal near Montreal.

On March 5 Mr. King wrote Mr. Moffatt asking an expression of opinion from the United States Government on the desirability of proceeding with the project, stressing the fact that Canada was engaged in the war.

Real Investment.

Mr. Moffatt's reply, dated March 10, consisted chiefly of the message from the President. In it Mr. Roosevelt declared money and man-power could not be put to better use at this time than on the project.

He linked it to defence in two respects—development of power for war industries and opening of a channel through which ships built on the Great Lakes could travel out to sea to meet the needs created by enemy submarine warfare.

The President said the United states now was appropriating money for building ships which would not be completed for five years and the waterway project should not be delayed because of the time it would take to complete it. Opening of the waterway would make it possible to construct many new deep sea ships in Great Lakes shipyards.

"The Government of the United States regards the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin project as directly associated with the accomplishment of the foremost national objectives of this Government," Mr. Roosevelt wrote.

"It believes that the project should be proceeded with and that construction should commence at the earliest possible moment. It regards the construction of this project as a matter of vital necessity."

Hoped To Get

slight, Turner took the verdict of the jury calmly as if he had expected it to be one of guilty.

Entitled to a Lawyer

When court opened in the morning for Turner's trial, he was again reminded by Mr. Justice Kelly that he was entitled to a lawyer, but the prisoner made no offer to accept. He was accordingly furnished with a list of the jurymen and informed that he had the right to challenge any number of them up to twelve. However, Turner acknowledged satisfaction with the twelve finally selected.

"Within reasonable limits everyone here is anxious to give you all assistance you need, so if there is anything you want, let the constable know and if possible it will be obtained," stated His Lordship.

Grace Brandwood, stenographer employed by Mr. Richardson in Port Hope, related the events which took place in connection with the shooting.

"A man came into the office. It was the man who is in the prisoner's box now," she said, indicating the accused. "It was Mr. Turner. Mr. Richardson was in the office with a client, Mr. Arthur Dunne, and when Mr. Turner asked for Mr. Richardson, I told him that he was busy with a client. However, Mr. Turner kept right on going towards the inner door. Just before he entered I saw him start to load a gun which he was carrying. Then he kicked the door open, stepped in a little distance, about a foot, and levelled the gun. I heard a report and then I heard Mr. Turner say, 'Did that get you If it didn't I have another one.' I heard a scuffle and Mr. Richardson and Mr. Dunne came out into the outside office holding Turner. Mr. Richardson told me to get the police and I ran next door to get someone to phone them," testified the stenographer. She identified a rifle exhibited in court as the one which Turner had.

Tells of Shooting

Mr. Richardson next took the stand.

"I was in my office that afternoon talking to Mr. Dunne when the door pushed open and a man came in. Without saying anything he levelled a rifle which he was carrying. I heard an explosion and felt the impact. Even then I hardly realized what had happened. Then he, it was Turner, said 'Did it get you—if not, I have another one here for you,' and he put his hand in his coat pocket. I realized then that things were serious, and I ran around the desk and called to Mr. Dunne, 'This man is not fooling.' I grabbed the barrel of the gun and Mr. Dunne grabbed Turner by the shoulder. He made no resistance and we took him into the outer office, and I told Miss Brandwood to get the police," related Mr. Richardson.

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman asked him if he knew of any reason why Turner should have shot him.

"I did some work for him some years ago, but had never seen him since," replied Richardson. "I can't imagine his reason for shooting me.

Turner then proceeded to cross-examine the witness.

"When I was in to see you in the Fall of 1939, why did you turn white?" asked Turner.

Mr. Richardson replied that he hadn't turned white as there was no reason for it.

"Were you surprised to see me?" was Turner's next question.

"I might have looked surprised as I had sent you a bill two years ago for $17, and you had never come in to pay it," replied Richardson.

"That day in the office, after I fired the gun, could I not have hit you over the head with the gun after the first shot failed to stop you, had I intended to murder you?", asked Turner.

"I imagine that you might have been able to hit me with the gun," replied Richardson.

Turner at this stage said that he had had some trouble with the H.E.P.C. over damage to his land from floods which he blamed on a faulty culvert owned by the Hydro.

"In 1936, you showed me a letter from the Hydro offering me $345 and for you to O.K. it," Turner said.

"The Hydro offered you $500 and you refused. Then they offered you $700," replied the witness.

"I didn't authorize you to accept their settlement," stated Turner.

"You signed it," Richardson said. "You may have objected to that amount, but you finally accepted it and signed it.'"

"But didn't I tell you not to accept it," persisted Turner.

"You signed the acceptance of the settlement," repeated Richardson.

"I can't do anything with this man," said Turner to His Lordship.

"Mr. Turner," replied His Lordship, "I have given you more leeway than I would a lawyer. The jury is trying you for attempted murder and is not interested with your dealings with the Hydro."

"You accepted the settlement, and two years later you asked me to act for you on two other matters. At that time you made no reference to the Hydro settlement," said Mr. Richardson.

Jaw Fractured

Dr. R. McDerment testified that the X-ray plates showed that Mr. Richardson's jaw had been fractured in two places. Turner asked the doctor if the wound were fatal. It did not turn out to have been, said the doctor.

"If I had wanted to kill him, I would have shot him in a more dangerous place, would I have not?" said Turner. "Is that not right?"

"I cannot say as to that," replied the doctor.

Chief of Police Thomas Murphy of Port Hope told of being called to the scene and of finding Turner under control. The gun had been taken away from him.

"I heard Turner say to Dr. Tucker, 'I just let him have it. He should have been murdered long ago'."

Turner got to his feet.—"I didn't say that. I said, 'Why didn't you murder my wife'."

Provincial Constable David Adair produced a box of .22 calibre shells which he said he found on Turner.

The Crown concluded its case at that point.

"If Richardson had done what I told him," said Turner standing in the prisoner's box, "this case would never have happened. By his accepting the settlement from the Hydro, my wife and I are homeless and destitute."

Turner's wife is in the Counties' home at Cobourg.

"Do you wish to give evidence;" His Lordship asked of Turner.

Take 1—Cobourg jury ... ...

The prisoner picked up a bundle of papers and went to the witness box and was sworn.

"My farm was floooded in 1934 by the Hydro culvert which had broken down. Their man came to my farm in October of 1934. I told him that the culvert needed repairs but nothing was done that year. It flooded again. My proceeds that year was $67. I had Richardson write the Hydro. Although the man they sent down said that he could see no damage, there were thousands of plants dying In 1936 I told the Farm Loan Board that I couldn't pay my loan. I had invested $8,000 in that land for a market garden and lost it all. That fooding in 1934 washed out all the fertilizer and ruined my land. It flooded three years in succession becase the Hydro never fixed the culvert. The top soil washed off: Yet the Hydro man couldn't see where it had been damaged. The trouble is that Richardson accepted the settlement from the Hydro without my authority," he testified.

"I was penniless. My wife and I had no home. We were sold out. We only got our relief voucher four months after we applied for it," continued Turner. "I consider that Richardson buttered his bread on both sides. I figured that if I caused an offense by shooting him that I would get into court and get a chance to bring the Hydro dealings into court. I put $6,000 into the property and all it finally sold for was $500."

Not Point At Issue.

Mr. Justice Kelly finally informed Turner that he could not refer to any more of the correspondence with the Hydro, pointing out that he had been given more liberties in the matter than he would have allowed a lawyer, for the reason that he was conducting his own defence. The point at issue was the attempted murder charge.

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman, produced the .22 rifle and asked Turner if he identified it.

"Certainly I know the gun. I used it and admit it, but I didn't intend to murder him. I wanted to get this case into court for the reason I told you. If it hadn't been for that thing (waving the correspondence) Richardson to-day would be without a hole in him."

Turner went back to the prisoner's box. Crown Attorney Deyman informed His Lordship that he would not address the jury.

"Do you want to address the jury," His Lordship said to Turner.

"I would ask you for my crimes to send me to Kingston for the balance of my days," he said calmly.

"The jury has to find you guilty first," replied His Lordship.

"They can't do anything else but find me guilty," said Turner.

"Do you want to address the jury. You have the right to if you wish," stated Justice Kelly.

"No, they know all about it. There is nothing more I can say. I am here because of the Hydro.

His Lordship addressed the jury briefly, advising them to consider only the facts.

During the afternoon's court session, the jury in the hit-and-run charge against John Kemp of Morganston brought in a verdict of guilty and Mr. Justice Kelly accordingly remanded Kemp for sentence to this morning at ten o'clock.

The maternity ward of one hospital, in use as a temporary first-aid station, was wrecked and the nurses' sleeping quarters damaged, but none of the patients was injured.

Five nurses were buried when the debris from floors above crashed into their room, but they were rescued with only minor injuries.

Fire spotters on the roof of another hospital had a narrow escape when a high explosive bomb plowed through the roof, wrecking one wing of the building.

In one section a printing plant and a weekly newspaper office, damaged in a previous raid, was hit again and two firewatchers were blown through the doorway of a nearby building.

Five persons were killed and others injured in another section when an apartment house was struck. It was the third time that one tenant had been bombed out.

In the German attack on the London area, a bomb which hit a suburban hospital where hundreds of wounded men have been receiving treatment wrecked 20 wards—but only five casualties were reported.

A qualified source in comparing the night's raid with attacks of the past said it was "by no means the worst London has had but the damage was very heavy."

Nazis Try New System

The Germans used a new pointer technique. Instead of sending over single planes at intervals of a minute or so, the attackers sent one raider loaded with incendiaries to light a target and then followed in a few minutes with a formation of 10 to 20 planes with heavy high explosive bombs.

Aviation circles asserted the technique failed to accomplish more than the old one because, though the interval between the pointer plane and the heavy bombers was only a few minutes, London's fire squads were able to extinguish most of the incendiary missiles before blazes started.

The change in technique was ascribed to the lesson of the great fire raid of Dec. 29.

PROF. SOWARD AUTHOR

Professor Frederick H. Soward of the University of British Columbia is a contributing author of a new book reviewing the background of the war undertaken by the Canadian Institute of International Affairs. He tells the story of Canada's emotional and official reaction to the confused events that finally forced the democracies to cry out "enough," and to take up the challenge of the dictatorships for an all-out struggle to the finish. He shows how few people and how few groups in Canada stood by any one policy whose implications they understood and whose final responsibility they were willing to accept. Professor Soward is a graduate of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

John Comstock Passes Away; Ill Only 2 Days

John Comstock, head of the old-established undertaking firm of A. Comstock and Sons, passed away in this city on Wednesday night, at his home, 356 Rubidge street. Death came to Mr. Comstock a little more than 48 hours after he was stricken on Monday afternoon. Mr. Comstock is the last member of the original business firm of A. Comstock and Sons, which was established in 1873.

Born in Peterborough 64 years ago, Mr. Comstock, who was known to his numerous friends as "Jack," received his education in this city. He was the son of the late Aaron Comstock and Mary Martin. His father became established in business in Peterborough in 1850, and the firm today is one of the oldest in the city.

Three sons of the senior Comstock were associated in business with him: William, Manson and John. The first site occupied by the firm was at the corner of Sherbrooke and George streets, and the business was moved in 1885 to the east side of George, between King and Charlotte streets, where it has been ever since.

Today, on the top of a nearby building, a flag flies at half mast, marking respect for Mr. Comstock. The building is that of the firm of J. J. Turner and Sons, which has stood since 1900 beside the Comstock establishment.

It was a policy on the part of Mr. Comstock to keep old friends in positions of warmth in spite of the formation of new ones, and it was a familiar occurrence to all who knew him to find themselves discussing conditions as they were in Peterborough fifty years ago with him. Old times were among his most treasured possessions, for he never lost them.

A most affable persons, Mr. Comstock had associated himself with many organizations in Peterborough, the chief of which, perhaps, was the Masonic Order. He was Past Master of Peterborough Lodge and also served for years as secretary and a Past District Deputy Grand Master for this district. His membership in the Peterborough Club and the Kiwanis Club was of recognized benefit to both organizations.

Mr. Comstock was a staunch member of St. John's Anglican Church. He was rector's warden at the time of his death, and before that had served as people's warden. It is said that he was among the most regular attendants, and never missed a Sunday service if circumstances permitted. A member of the Catchacoma Fish and Hunt Club, he was a lover of the out of doors; his sportsmanship was oftimes demonstrated, and his summer cottage on Lake Catchacoma presented opportunities for relaxation which were fully appreciated and utilized by him. Each Fall would see him on the cold sands near the clubhouse on that lake, in pursuit of the trout so plentiful there. As a keen student of his profession, Mr. Comstock took a keen pride in his membership in the National Selected Morticians, to which only twelve Canadians belong. He was also Past President of the Ontario Funeral Association.

Surviving are his sorrowing wife, the former Carrie Isobel Knox; one son, Jack, and one daughter, Leone, both of this city, and three sisters, Mrs. Hilliard Boyle, Miss Charlotte Comstock, and Mrs. John McIntyre of Peterborough. Two brothers, William and Manson, predeceased him several years ago.

The funeral will be from the family residence, 356 Rubidge street, on Friday at 2.30 p.m., Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's Church will officiate, and interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

Counties Join In Planning For Big Match

Looking a long and uncertain way ahead plowmen of the district advanced their plans for the provincial match here next October at a meeting Wednesday afternoon in the office of F. C. Paterson.

Peterborough, Victoria and Durham-Northumberland county Associations were all well represented, and their respective delegations were accompanied by their agricultural representatives, M. H. Winter from Lindsay and E. A. Summers from Bowmanville.

The feature of this meeting was the enthusiasm shown by the Victoria and Durham visitors. They entered into the discussion with as much agreement and willingness to lend support as if the match was to be within their own borders.

George A. Gillespie was a decidedly helpful chairman. The following prize-list committee were appointed to act together: Victoria county—Wesley Wilson, Charles Shier and M. J. Liddy; Durham — Vernon R. Hunter, Robert J. McCamus and L. H. Winslow; and Peterborough — Vernon Campbell, Howard Quinn and Erle Tully.

Prospective contributions from district plowmen's associations were listed as follows: Peterborough $300, Victoria $300, Durham-Northumberland $200, South Ontario $300, North Ontario $250, Deseronto $150 and Alderville $100. This is a total of $1,600. The committee proposed a prize-list for the first day's events amounting to $725, leaving $875 to go into the main financial pool.

A resolution by L. H. Winslow, seconded by Alex. Huston, recommended that prizes for the first day's events, known as local day, be paid in cash, except in the closed events which are confined to residents from each county, and prizes for these contests are left to the discretion of the county directors.

To Discuss Junior Departments Of "Ex"

The continuation of the junior farmers' department of the Peterborough Exhibition will be discussed at a meeting here Friday, March 28 at 10 a.m. standard time in the office of the Department of Agriculture.

County representatives of the Department from Prince Edward to Ontario are expected to be here with one or two junior farmers from each county and will meet a committee of the Peterborough Exhibition and some of the members of the city council, who are being invited especially for the interest in this event manifested by the council

This department was developed by the Peterborough Exhibition, and as there is a general desire that it be continued this year the question of location has arisen because of the fact that the Peterborough Exhibition has been indefinitely suspended.

Big Enough To Take It

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., March 20 (AP)—James Woodrow Porter, 223-pound, six-foot-four policeman in a hospital for a tonsilectomy, is getting more kidding than sympathy from his brother officers. Because of crowded conditions, the hospital quartered Porter in the maternity ward. Moreover, the bed is too short and its pillowslips bear the lettering "Nursery."

Accused Slayer Admits Wife Loved Victim

NAIROBI, March 20.—Major Sir Delves Broughton, holder of an ancient British title, admitted to police that his bride was in love with the Earl of Errol, for whose slaying he is held, a hearing brought out yesterday.

Broughton's statement to police after the body of the earl, twenty-first holder of the title and Baron of Kilmarnock, was found in his car on a lonely road last Jan. 24 were engrossed in the record. Among them were the assertions:

That Broughton's bride of a month, the former Diana Caldwell, told him she loved the earl, Lord High Constable of Scotland.

That he had received three anonymous letters suggesting the existence of a romantic liaison between Lady Broughton and the earl.

That Broughton himself dropped a farewell note from his wife into the earl's open grave during the funeral services.

Nevertheless, the 57 - year - old Broughton, twice married and member of the highest social circles in Kenya, denied that he knew anything at all of the killing of his admitted rival for his wife's affections.

The Earl was found slain a few hours after he, Broughton and Lady Broughton had attended a party at the fashionable Muthaiga Club. Two bullet wounds were in the head, and the first assumption was that he had killed himself.

Broughton testified at an inquest in February that Lord Errol drove Lady Broughton home after the party and left the house alone. Sir Delves said that meantime he was driving home another guest.

A Government expert testified that the Earl appeared to have been killed as he sat in the front seat of the automobile. The shots were fired at close range through an open window, he said as if to give the appearance of suicide.

Two days before the death of the Earl two revolvers disappeared mysteriously from the mantelpiece of Broughton's bedroom. Authorities made an intensive search for them, in vain.

Broughton's first wife was Vera Edyth Boscowan, who got a divorce last April. The Earl, formerly Josslyn Victor Hay, was divorced by the former Lady Indinia Sackville in 1929 on grounds of misconduct with a divorcee, purportedly in New York, in 1928.

The Earl settled in Kenya in 1923 and maintained a large farm at Oserian, near Lake Naivasha.

Request Is Turned Down

"We can't do that," declared Mayor Hamilton at Wednesday's meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners when a copy of a resolution passed by the legal committee of the City Council calling upon the commission to refuse taxi licenses to individuals who are behind in their taxes was read.

"Where did that come from," he asked, and was informed that it had been passed by the legal committee.

"That was at a meeting at which I was not present," said Mayor Hamilton.

It was intimated by City Clerk Outram, that the committee had been told that the commission could not act on the request because it would be guilty of discrimination.

"And they passed it anyway," commented the Mayor.

"I am going to move that no action be taken," said Judge Smoke. "And I am going to second that," added the Mayor.

NEW ORLEANS, March 20 (AP) —Howard Hunter, acting commissioner of the work projects administration, said today that next week in Washington he will start plans to create a huge reservoir of work projects for unemployment, when the defence program ends. At the end of the national emergency, Hunter said, the administration expects a period of "very sharp" readjustment.

Norwood Comes To Aid Of War Victims

Norwood village residents continued support of the Peterborough district British War Victims' Fund according to the report today and the four contributions were sent in by D. B. Cutcliffe, manager of the Royal Bank at Norwood.

Many people remarked this morning that the death toll in London last night was heavy and the fund needs every bit of money that is available if the suffering and hardship facing the air raid victims is to be alleviated. Every citizen in Peterborough and district who can afford a quarter or any amount is urged to send it along to the fund so that the fifth £500 may be made up with all speed and cabled to the Lord Mayor of London or to Winston Churchill.

The O'Dette boys certainly started something when they donated the cedar strip canoe fully equipped to the fund. Tickets are going so fast that two new lots have been printed and these are almost exhausted. Many people want this canoe and at the same time while taking a chance of winning the $100 bargain they are helping the distressed residents of the bombed cities in England.

The canoe will be moved into Grafton's store window today for everyone to have a look at it.

Pte. H. Winslow Invalided Home

Pte. Henry Winslow, Royal Canadian Corps Signals, has been invalided home from active service with the 2nd Canadian Division and had intended walking in on his mother without notifying her.

His mother, Mrs. Mabel Winslow, 318 Burnham Street, had no idea he was coming home, but at Toronto, the son met Lou Lebarr, and the latter sent a telegram advising of the son's return. Winslow enlisted on the last day of May, 1940, and sailed in August. He was trained as a dispatch rider but a crack-up wrecked his machine and injured his knee. Following this his general health became poor so he was shifted home. He has now completed arrangements to remain with his unit, serving in the Records Office and as an instructor at Toronto.

Prior to enlisting he was employed at Grant and Loucks, and earlier still he was with the C.P.R. telegraphs.

Woman Fined $25 For Dress Theft

Pleading guilty to stealing three dresses and other articles from Zeller's Limited, Mrs. Irene Pollock, Havelock, was fined $25 without costs in police court this morning. Her niece, Mrs. Vera Smith, also of Havelock, entered a plea of guilty to a similar offence and was allowed to go on suspended sentence on the payment of $16.90 costs and her nephew, Borden Cross, 19, of Tweed, who pleaded guilty to receiving stolen goods, also escaped on suspended sentence on payment of $3.85.

Miss M. Robinson, Zeller's, testified that she had seen Mrs. Pollock in the ladies' wear department of the store and noticed that she had a large empty shopping bag. Later she saw that the bag was full and some of the hangers were minus the dresses that should have been on them.

To D. F. Miller, Havelock, who defended the three accused, the witness stated that she had noticed the odor of liquor around Mrs. Pollock and that the woman had said that she had been in a beverage room or she would not have taken the goods.

Mr. Miller asked for suspended sentence, blaming drinking for the trouble but Magistrate Langley said that he would take advantage of the opportunity that was given him to impose a fine.

"If the pocketbook is touched that will be remembered much longer than a suspended sentence," His Worship said.

In the case against Mrs. Smith, Constable K. M. Lockwood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, told of following Mrs. Smith and Cross from the police station and of Cross eventually recovering a bag from a service station that was found to contain three new dresses.

War 25 Years Ago

(By The Canadian Press)

MARCH 20, 1916—Sixty British airplanes bombarded Zeebrugge, causing considerable damage and British destroyers chased three German destroyers into the Belgian port, severely damaging one. Germans attacked Avocourt Wood and Hill 304 at Verdun.

Ottawa Provides $9,250,000 For Destroyers

OTTAWA, Mar. 20 — (CP). — Navy Minister Macdonald has disclosed that $9,250,000 is provided in his Department's estimates for the next fiscal year "to complete destroyers and to commence construction of further destroyers."

The sum is about one-sixth of the $56,017,000 included in the estimates for acquisition and construction of vessels in the year ending March 31, 1942.

Mr. Macdonald on Tuesday said:

"When I spoke on the general question of naval services last November I think I said that the construction of destroyers was a very difficult undertaking, which would require the services of some men especially skilled in that work.

"We approached the British Admiralty with a view to getting these men, and we have every hope that they will be here shortly to undertake the supervision of the construction of our destroyers."

(A week ago, Munitions Minister Howe told the House a few experienced men "are on their way here now" from Britain.)

In answer to a question as to whether steel for destroyer plates would be made in Canada, Mr. Macdonald said: "I think the whole thing can be made in this country. I think we can make the destroyer and all its machinery."

In addition to the $9,250,000 earmarked for destroyer work, Mr. Macdonald gave the House this picture of how some of the 56,000,000 for acquisition and construction would be spent:

To complete corvettes, $8,750,000; to complete anti-submarine vessels, $3,300,000; part of construction of anti-submarine vessels, $4,875,000; fairmile boats, coastal motor launches, $1,500,000; another group of fairmile boats, $1,500,000; to complete 12 motor torpedo boats, $1,002,600; four other motor torpedo boats, $1,054,200.

To complete 28 minesweepers, $6,750,000; part construction of 10 minesweepers, $4,750,000; part construction of another lot of 10 minesweepers, $2,000,000; two wooden magnetic-minesweepers, $350,000.

Soldier Jailed For Assault

Fifteen days imprisonment was the sentence imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on Pte. Cyril Huard, member of a Highland Light Infantry unit at Debert, N.S., after the soldier had been convicted of assaulting Alfred W. Whittaker, Elm street.

Whittaker, a roomer at an Elm street house, swore that he was in his room last night listening to the radio when Huard came in, locked the door and put the key in his pocket."

"Then he accused me of telephoning the police and getting him into trouble" said the witness, "He threw me down on the bed, twisted my arms and my legs and then bashed me. And here it is" Whittaker pointed to a "shiner" in proof of his statement "Then he knocked a tooth out," whereupon he produced the tooth from his pocket.

Huard had been drinking, witness said.

Huard declined to give any evidence. He intimated that he had been drinking and could not remember anything about the assault.

"It is not the case for a fine" said Magistrate Langley, sentencing the accused to fifteen days in the county jail.

21-Year-Olds Report For Training

At eleven o'clock this morning only seventy of the 175 men in the first draft of 21-year-olds had reported for training at the Exhibition Grounds Training Camp, but all are expected before midnight Thursday.

Stiffening of the medical examinations brought rejection slips to ten of the first arrivals. Dr. C. D. Hewett and Dr. P. Earle, camp physicians were accepting only men who came in the categories, A, B-1, B-2, and therefore the physical standards are high.

District Changed

The district from which the men are drawn this time differs considerably from the 30-day set-up. This time there are no recruits from the lakeshore towns, but they come from an area extending from the Upper Ottawa Valley west to Lindsay in Victoria county. The men are from the following counties, Frontenac, Carleton, Renfrew, Lennox-Addington, Hastings, Peterborough, Victoria, Lanark and Haliburton. Eighteen arrived last night and a few from spots as far distant as Barrie's Bay, Arnprior, Pembroke, Perth, Smith Falls and other eastern towns will be in on the late trains today.

Posted To No. 1 Company

All of the 175 men will be posted to No. 1 company and the other 2 companies will be filled at a later date by men on active service who will be shifted to the local camp for training.

Major Lorne Johnson of Ottawa is commanding No. 1 Company, Captain W. A. Mark, Kinmount, heads No. 2 Company and Major G. Cumming is the company commander for No. 3.

The training syllabus for the four-month period has been changed considerably and it now includes a course in first aid. The training includes Bren gun, gas, pistol, anti-tank rifle, map reading and the usual fundamental training.

Now At Petawawa

Six officers of thePrince of Wales Rangers who were formerly on the training staff at the camp have been transferred to Petawawa, and four officers of the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards from the Ottawa district have gone on active service with their unit. These are Lieuts. F. E. Haley, C. S. K. Bingham, J. G Wiser, and 2nd Lieut. K. E. Richardson They are now with the 4th Reconnaisance Squadron P.L.D. Guards.

Major H. M. Jones, former adjutant at the local training centre has been transferred to the Brockville Camp where he has the same status, and Captain Herrington of Brockville camp is coming to Peterborough to take Major Jones' place.

Ladder Slips Workman Fatally Hurt

When a ladder slipped as he was coming down off the job on completing his day's work, William Dent, 49, an electrician employed by the Standard Electrical Company of Toronto, was thrown to the ground and fatally injured in one of the new buildings of the Canadian General Electric Company just before 6 o'clock on Wednesday evening.

Dent sustained a badly fractured skull and died in Nicholls Hospital at 8.45 o'clock last night.

The unfortunate man's home address was Annette Street, Toronto, but while working here he had been boarding at the home of Ted LeBarr, Westcott Street.

He had been working on a wiring job in the latest of the new buildings and he and his helper had been employed on a beam, using a ladder to get up to their work. Dent was coming down the ladder at about five minutes to 6 o'clock, and was 15 feet from the ground when the butt of the ladder slipped in some snow that had blown into the building. He was thrown off and fell into a four-foot hole, lighting on his head.

The injured man was taken to Nicholls Hospital, where his condition was recognized as critical. He had sustained a severe fracture of the skull, causing an intensive hemorrhage.

Coroner Dr. Eugene Snider has called an inquest into the fatality, which will be held Friday night in the police court.

Vice-President Named

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 20. — (ENS). — An election to fill the vice-presidency of St. Andrew's Young People's Society was held at their meeting on Monday of this week. The vacancy was created by the removal of Jack Lucas to Oshawa. Bruce Hay was named to fill the post for the balance of the 1941 term. An invitation to attend a social evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Hazel next Monday was accepted and it was also announced that in future all meetings of the Y.P.S. which took the form of a social would be held at one of the members' homes. The president, Mrs. Bruce Grills, presided.

Dr. Holdcroft Awarded $100

The long standing controversy between the Havelock Village Council and its Medical Officer of Health, Dr. D. J. Holdcroft, regarding the salary to be paid him for his services after his appointment by Order in Council of the Department of Health in September, 1939, passed another stage Wednesday when His Honor, Judge Sheldon L. Smoke, handed down his judgment on the application recently made by Dr. Holdcroft to have his remuneration settled.

The Council had set the salary at the rate of $120.00 per year and last year suggested that $60.00 might be paid as settlement for the services rendered in 1939. This was not considered satisfactory by Dr. Holdcroft and under the provisions of the Public Health Act he applied in January to have the matter settled by Judge Smoke. That application was dismissed on a technicality though the Judge stated that it was his opinion that it was his opinion that the amount claimed by Dr. Holdcroft, $100.00, was quite a reasonable charge for the work done.

Offered $40.00

Subsequently the Council tendered Dr. Holdcroft a cheque for $40.00 in full payment of his account. This was refused and a new application was made to Judge Smoke and the matter was gone into again.

The judgment is that the work done during the four months of 1939 covered practically all the duties of the Medical Officer of Health for the whole of the year and should be paid accordingly

Therefore the Order of the Court is that the Municipality pay Dr. Holdcroft $100.00 for his services together with the costs of the application.

W. J. Arthur Fair of Peterborough acted for Dr. Holdcroft and David F. Miller of Havelock appeared for the village of Havelock.

Pepper Sees US In Fight Until The End

OTTAWA, March 20 (CP)—The Empire at war can count upon it that the people of the United States are with those fighting the battle of Democracy until the end, Senator Claude Pepper of Florida yesterday told the Canadian Club in a luncheon address

The Senator, who played a large part in passage of the lease-lend bill in Washington, said:

"You know that we have resolved to spare no expense, to shirk no sacrifice, to make our country a Niagara of support to those heroic peoples who stand today with indescribable valor in the front lines."

Canada and the United States he said, were wedded together in the greatest effort of their history "to thrown back this monster who strikes back at us from beyond the seas."

It was to be hoped the military aspects of Canadian-American co-operation would be the least part of all. The hope of the people, as laymen and citizens, was that the economies and productive facilities of the two nations should be so united as to make a common front and an overflowing arsenal against which "this sinister enemy" could not stand.

"In this co-ordination which will be another great step in world pioneering, where the money comes from, where the machines are, on which side of a line of latitude they stand, by whom they are operated, is really immaterial," said Senator Pepper. "The important thing is that they are soldiers of democracy, who shall together bring victory to our honorable cause.

"It is not men with guns, I venture to say, but men and women who man these whirling machines, who shall eventually strangle into impotence these brigands who aim at nothing less than the loot of the world."

The war, he added, was no European war, no boundary dispute, no struggle for trade. It was a world shaking revolution, led by the most sinister genius who had yet appeared to degrade the name of man.

Fresh African Jolts Due For Duce's Army

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.)

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) —Italian morale may be in for another shock in Africa, whatever the Germans can do in the Balkans or the Atlantic to relieve pressure on their Axis mte.

British and Italian accounts of developments on the Cheren front, in Eritrea, East Africa, indicate that a decisive action is impending, with the British forces striking for quick victory. Rome admits "notable" British air and troop concentrations although claiming to have thrown back the foe.

Of itself the Cheren front represents merely a mopping-up operation. Against the still stalemated and uncertain situation in the Balkans, however, its strategic importance in British eyes is apparent.

The rains in East Africa are only weeks away. Behind them will come the heat season, almost as hampering to offensive military operations. It is clear from British reports that the Middle East Command is throwing its reserves into the Cheren attack, hoping to crash through before the weather takes a hand.

Will Release Troops

The fall of Cheren would release additional British air power for use in Greece or in Britain. It would also set free additional Empire troops for transfer to Greece. Neutral eyewitnesses have now confirmed reports that heavy British convoys travelled unapposed across the Mediterranean and far up the Aegean Sea to Greek ports within 100 miles of the Greek-Bulgarian border

The eyewitnesses, however, have not indicated the size of the British Army already landed in Greece. British failure to crack Italian resistance around Cheren well might restrict the Empire forces available to aid Greece There seems every reason for a British all-out effort at Cheren without delay.

Belgrade insists 100,000 Empire troops are already in Greece and headed toward the Greek-Bulgar border, behind which Nazi forces are massed still idle. Some 200,000 more Britons are coming, presumably from Africa, those reports say. The fall of Cheren may be counted on by the British Middle East Command to provide them.

Stalemate?

All of which makes it more difficult to fathom German reasons for withholding any effort to block the arrival of that British army in Greece. It raises anew the question whether Nazi strategy may not regard the German occupation of Bulgaria as a holding operation rather than as a preliminary to an attack on Greece—an attack which well might precipitate the two-front war the Germans have so carefully avoided up to now.

Press reports from Turkey indicate that the final role of that country and its "2,000,000 bayonets" in any Balkan flare-up touched off by German aggression against Greece might turn on the actual armed help Britain could furnish the Greeks. If that is true, some German effort to halt the British convoys on their way to Greece would have seemed in order.

It seems just possible, however, that the Germans felt reasonably assured that neither the British-Greek Allies alone nor any probable military combination Britain could organize in the Balkans could have an offensive assignment. A continued Balkan stalemate might satisfy Germany's immediate purposes. If it did nothing else, it would insure retention of powerful British naval and air strength in the East while the Battle of the Atlantic is fought out by air and sea.

Retiring Age, 70 For Any New Magistrates

TORONTO, March 20.—(CP)—A provision that magistrates, before appointment, must be lawyers was withdrawn when a Bill relating to magistrates was discussed by the legal bills committee of the Ontario Legislature yesterday. The bill was presented as a result of recommendations by a special committee which investigated court administration.

The Bill was changed so that magistrates now holding office shall retire at 75 but those appointed in the future shall retire at 70. The Act, if passed by the Legislature will be effective July 1 and six magistrates will be immediately retired. The Bill makes 55 the maximum age at which a man shall be appointed a magistrate.

The Act also gives security to tenure to magistrates after two years on the bench. It would provide that a magistrate can be dismissed only for misbehavior after inquiry by county judge.

House Robber Is Given Year

LINDSAY, Mar. 20 — (ENS). — George Nolan, aged 29, who gave his address as Nova Scotia, was sentenced yesterday by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., of Peterborough, to one year definite and six months indeterminate in Burwash Reformatory on the charge of breaking and entering. The accused pleaded guilty to the charge committed on March 7.

Nolan entered the home of J. J. McLaren in the afternoon of that date, and when Miss Teresa McLaren came home from school she discovered him in the washroom. He had the family mail in his possession, and had opened a couple of letters. He also had a raincoat and a pair of boots, the property of Mr. McLaren, in his possession. The accused told the court that he had been drinking and that his memory was very vague as to his movements on that particular date. County Crown Attorney Anderson read to the court a long list of convictions registered against Nolan during the past few years. He had been convicted at Peterborough, Belleville, Kingston and Guelph. One conviction carried a sentence of three years in Kingston Penitentiary.

The funeral of Mrs. J. L. Murphy, of town, whose suden death this week is deeply deplored by all classes, took place to St. Mary's Church on Tuesday, where requiem mass was chanted by Rev. Father Welsh, who also preached the sermon. Interment took place in the parish cemetery. The late Mrs. Murphy was born in Emily Township, and was a daughter of the late Joseph Meehan and Mrs. Meehan of Rochester. She was a graduate of Ross Memorial Hospital and followed her nursing profession in Lindsay and the United States. She was prominent in local parish activities as well as civic organizations, and is survived by her husband, one son, her mother, seven sisters and two brothers.

The members of the Police Department announced yesterday that as a result of the recent police hockey game held in Lindsay they were able to vote the sum of $100 to the Red Cross, $100 to the British War Victims Fund, and $25.00 to the Police Spitfire Fund.

Word has been received in town of the sudden death of Wilfrid O'Leary of Lindsay, aged 53 years. The deceased, who was governor of the Sudbury District Jail, dropped dead after attending a church service. He is survived by his wife, and two daughters, two brothers and three sisters.

Montreal Blast Kills 1, Hurts 62

MONTREAL, March 20—(CP). — Search of the tumbled ruins of what had been a large fur-dyeing plant continued today as police sought to establish the toll of an explosion Tuesday which took at least one life.

Sixty-two of more than 500 plant workers were injured when the blast of undetermined origin ripped through the four-storey building of A. Hollander and Sons, Limited, reducing the two upper storeys to shattered, flame-swept ruins.

It was believed at first that many other employees must have been trapped in the debris, but after the flames were brought under control b firemen from 25 stations, investigators could find no sign of any bodies.

John Hoza, 46, died in hospital almost 12 hours after the blast, of injuries and severe burns about the head and body. Three others remained in critical condition, all suffering burns, while the condition of 20 others was regarded as serious.

The blast was believed to have originated in a new drying room on the third floor. It blew out two sides of the plant and brought a section of the roof tumbling down into the rapidly-mounting flames. Shattered glass was found 150 feet away.

$200,000 In Damages.

Total damage was estimated at approximately $200,000, more than half of it from ruined fur stock.

Stories of strange escapes from almost certain death were told by survivors.

Alfred Krasnick was blown from his third-floor office through a gaping wall into the street. He landed feet first in a tumbled pile of debris and suffered only minor bruises and shock.

Romeo Grenier was seriously burned when the blast blew out the wall in the boiler room in which he was working. With his hair and clothing aflame, he ran into the next room through the shattered wall and fellow-employees turned a hose on him before rushing him through a smashed window to an ambulance.

Nick Mazymoych was another worker who survived being blown through the wall into the street. He was burned about the arms in flying transit from the building and his hair was singed.

He also complimented the members on their attendance during February, which was around 90 per cent, and expressed the wish that it would continue. A letter from the District Governor was read informing the Rotarians that a new club was being formed in Brighton. This will be the third new club in this district during the year.

PITY THE POOR CROW!

From Ottawa to Toronto is only 223 miles "as the crow flies."

But the crow, according to experts in Natural History, flies only thirty miles an hour. Even the swift carrier pigeon makes only forty miles an hour.

The telephone covers the distance — well, you might say, instantaneously. The sound of your voice, changed to electric waves, travels with the speed of light.

And it's the same between any two cities of the continent. Whether your message is to Halifax, to Vancouver, New York or San Francisco, the telephone makes possible an immense speeding up—distance is hardly a factor any more.

Whether for the great emergencies that war brings, or for every-day business, the telephone meets the need for quick completion of every detail.

Employment Up In Industries By 25 Per Cent

Employment figures in the large industrial plants of the city as compared with the total employed a year ago reveal that there is an increase of more than 25 per cent in the numbers employed. Added to this is the fact that more than 1,000 men from Peterborough City and District have joined the active Canadian army, and all the jobs vacated by these men and boys have been filled.

Demands of war are for the most part responsible for the stepping up of production in the factories, while manufacture of the peace time commodities has not been curtailed to any extent. In fact in some factories, such as the Westclox, production demands are much higher than they were a year ago, due to the fact that Central Europe which supplied a large percentage of the world's timepieces is now war-torn or blockaded and unable to export or import.

At the Canadian Raybestos Company, two large one-storey buildings were constructed in 1940, and the number of employees has been boosted from the 95 of a year ago to a total of 150, which is an increase of 36 per cent.

At the Western Clock Company, many of the skilled men have enlisted, but they have been replaced and factory records indicate the payroll here is now the highest in the company's history. A year ago there were 508 employed full time, and today this has been boosted to 575. It is possible, too, that this company may make a few changes in the building in 1941 which would involve the expenditure of about $15,000.

Add 800 in a Year

The most phenomenal increase has been at the Canadian General Electric Company plant, where the total has reached the 2,800 mark. One year ago this company employed 2,010 employees and the all time high up to this year was in December of 1937, when the payroll had 2,154 names. The total today is far from the peak which will eventually be reached, as some have forecasted that when production reaches the point that is now the objective there will be near the 3,000 mark.

Additional buildings will, when completed and equipped, give considerable more work, and at the present time in some departments they are on a 24-hour basis, running three eight-hour shifts.

At the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, there has also been a substantial increase. A year ago in February, the total number on the payroll was 178, and this month this had climbed to 227. Moreover, in this factory too, the officials have found it necessary to order an overtime shift, although the regular employees have been taking care of this by extra hours two or three nights a week. Construction of military camps across Ontario gave this company a nice order for locks and door hardware, but their greatest production increase was due to the general increase in the amount of home building and factory extensions in the province.

The Bonner-Worth branch of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds has shown a slight drop in the number on the payroll, but officials believe this is only temporary. In February of 1940 there were 260 employed and at present there are 239. The night shift was reduced in December, but it is confidently expected that from now on there will be a gradual increase.

Canada Packers has shown an increase in the number of employees which is consistent with the increased production of hogs across the province. There are 20 per cent more hogs being marketed and factory volume is up slightly more than 12 per cent. The payroll figures reflect this increased activity as the number of employees have been stepped up from 211 to 241. This does not take into consideration the canning department. Canning operations and freezing of fruits will start in June and continue into the Fall, and during those months employment figures will show an increase of at least fifty new employees.

Farm Boys Enlisting

The fact that many farm boys have enlisted or obtained employment in industry is causing a boom in the milking machine business. The whole story is that there is a growing demand for cheese and cheese products, and the cows must be milked. This work now falls on the older people, as the young men are either in uniform or in industry, and the work is so arduous that many are buying milking equipment.

There is also a good demand for creamery equipment, such as large power churns, pasteurizers and coolers, and this has given considerable work to the De Laval Separator Company in this city. W. R. Breyfogle, plant manager, reported today that there has been more than 25 per cent increase in the staff. A year ago there were 284 working and today this has moved up to 351 employees, most of them skilled men.

The Peterborough Canoe Company is running along normally with 90 employees. Production of skis and toboggans this year showed a slight increase, and now the workers have switched to the building of stock model boats, oars and paddles.

Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company is one of the plants where there has been a substantial increase in the number employed. Last year the peak was 170, and in March of 1940 the total working was 153. This month the number of workers is 234 or an increase of 81 over the same month a year ago. There are about forty employees at the plant taken over on George street, and known as the old Crayon building. This section is devoted to the manufacture of generators and chore horses. The company has also taken over the old Imperial Oil Company building at the corner of Park and Romaine streets as a warehouse, and a new building may be added to the parent plant on Monaghan road this year.

John F. Morrow Is Named To Police Force

John Frederic Morrow, Euclid Avenue, is the newest member of the Peterborough Police Department.

Morrow, 25 years old, 6 feet tall and weighing 225 pounds, was chosen by the Police Commission at its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon after he and another candidate, Frank W. Irwin, had been interviewed by the commissioners. One of the determining factors in the choice was the fact that Morrow is married and Irwin single.

The new constable, who will begin his duties on April 1, has been employed as an enamel burner at the Canadian General Electric plant. His education included four years in the Collegiate Institute.

When the appointment came before the commission yesterday, there was a suggestion from Chief Constable Sam. Newhall that one of the two officers now serving in a contemporary capacity in place of Constables W. R. Piercy and W. A. Clarke, who are on active service, should be given a permanent appointment, and the new constable selected should be regarded as temporary. However, the commission decided that such a course might be establishing a precedent that might cause trouble.

Morrow's appointment as a third class constable at an initial salary of $1,000 a year, on six months' probation, with the understanding that if his services in that period are satisfactory he will become a permanent member of the force, was moved by Judge Smoke and seconded by Mayor Hamilton.

Clothing Contracts.

Tenders for summer clothing for the Police Department were considered by the commission, and after prices and materials had been studied, it was moved by Magistrate E. A. Gee, seconded by Mayor Hamilton that the tender of Ed Riley to supply 16 uniforms at $26.75 each, and six raincoats at $18.50 each be accepted. The motion was declared carried.

Chief Constable Newhall was instructed to arrange for the purchase of 30 uniform shirts for the department at a price of $2.75 each.

Present at the meeting were Judge S. L. Smoke, chairman; Mayor James Hamilton, and Magistrate E. A. Gee.

2 Home Games Red Wing Trump

DETROIT, March 20—(CP)—Possession of home ice for possibly two games of their preliminary Stanley Cup series appeared today to be a trump card in the hands of Detroit Red Wings in their efforts to dislodge the champion New York Rangers.

The Rangers open defence of their Stanley Cup laurels here tonight and, after a game Sunday in New York, will return here next Tuesday if a third game is necessary to eliminate one of the National Hockey League rivals. In three seasons Lester Patrick's blueshirts have won only one game on Detroit ice.

Save for Eddie Wares, Detroit winger, the two clubs are reported to be prepared physically for the opener, which should draw upwards of 10,000 spectators. Wares, out with a shoulder injury, may be ready for the third game of the series.

Do You Suffer From Headaches?

It is hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time.

A headache need not be an illness in itself, but it may be a warning symptom that there is intestinal sluggishness within.

To help overcome the cause of headache it is necessary to eliminate the waste matter from the system. Burdock Blood Bitters helps to remove the cause of headaches by regulating the digestive and biliary organs, neutralizing acidity, regulating the constipated bowels and toning up the sluggish liver, and when this has been accomplished the headaches should disappear.

"Following Christ's Way in the Home," was the theme of the March meeting of the St. James' United Church W.M.S., with Mrs. H. F. Doig and her group in charge.

The Creed of Christian Living, read in unison, opened the worship period, when the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Bert Pitchford, and the solo, "Keep Thou My Heart," sung by Mrs. Searles, was an appropriate interlude.

Mrs. S. Hanlon led in prayer for our homes. As a reading by Mrs. Doig, the hymn "O Happy Home Where Thou Art Loved the Dearest," was accompanied by Mrs. Searles at the piano.

An interesting resume of the month's study was given by Mrs. F. McAdams, who told of the work of James Evans among our own North American Indians.

One of his greatest contributions was to give to the Indians a written language, and from this came the fitting title, "Birch Bark Talking," of today's study.

A hymn and Mizpah benediction closed this part of the meeting, when the president, Mrs. Wes. Rose, resumed the chair. The business session opened with prayer by Mrs. A. Cripps, and included the report from the secretary and treasurer. Stewardship was presented in an interesting talk by Miss M. Deyell.

Plans were made for the W.M.S. Sunday to be held at the morning service, March 30, with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Craik, as speaker. Preliminary arrangements were also made for a Mother and Daughter banquet, with the following ladies appointed to look after details: Mrs. Craik, Mrs. Rose, Miss Morton and Mrs. Wagar.

Trinity W.M.S. Hears Mrs. J. R. Trumpour

The Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church held its March meeting in the church parlor, with Mrs. J. W. Pierce, the president, in the chair.

The hymn, "Jesus Calls Us," opened the devotional service. Miss T. Mathers gave a thoughtful talk on "Prayer," and the members joined in silent prayer for our missionaries, for the Japanese Chrisians, for the British Empire, its navy, land and air forces, and for all those who are working for the establishment of peace, righteousness and brotherhood among all people. The Bible reading from the ninth chapter of St. Luke's Gospel was given by Mrs. A. J. Frisken, and the W.M.S. peace prayer was repeated in unison.

After the reception of the offering and birthday gifts, all joined in the hymn of consecration.

During the business session, Mrs. Pierce announced the Easter thankoffering service to be held on April 15, when Mr. J. I. MacKay, author of "The World in Canada," will be the guest speaker. Trinity ladies were asked to save used clothing for a W.M.S. bale which will be sent to a United Church mission in Labrador.

"Christian Stewardship" was the theme of an inspiring address given by Mrs. J. R. Trumpour of Bridgenorth. She based her remarks on the stewardship of personality, stewardship of prayer and stewardship of possessions. The speaker emphasized the importance of consecrating our whole lives to the Master, of devoting more time to prayer and meditation, of reading our Bibles regularly, systematically and of giving our presence, time, talents and money to the work of the Church. She left a challenge that we be better stewards of time, talents and possessions and so become a part of the great universal Church of God.

An interesting paper describing the work of Dr. D. Norman, missionary in Japan, was given by Mrs. Eric Whitely.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem and prayer by the president.

During the social hour several piano selections by Miss Lenore Skitch were enjoyed, and refreshments served by Miss T. Mathers and members of her group.

Fashion Shows Between Raids In Old London

(Written for the Canadian Press By ALISON SETTLE.)

LONDON, Mar. 20 — (CP). — Two spring fashion shows were held in London within a month. The first was for persons interested in the export trade and the second for private customers.

Molyneux, Creed, Paquin, Hartnell—all the big houses put on parades. There was no dearth of fabric and the color dyeing was better than usual, although the number of models was down. Worth, for instance, showed a collection of great elegance, but restricted the choice for private clientele to sixty models.

Suits predominated though, until the mannequin took off the jacket, it was difficult to distinguish between the suit proper with blouse and the dress-with-jacket. Slimness also was achieved, although more material was used than previously.

Main Types.

The main types of dresses shown were: Tweed suits, single-breasted but with longer jacket lines; elegant town suits, also single-breasted but cut shorter and with rather elaborately curved and cut jacket bases; dresses with nipped-in waists, often with encrustations instead of actual belts, and with young round necklines innocent of collars, accompanied by matching short straight-hanging jackets.

Soft chiffon, printed silk, or fine crepe dinner dresses which cling to the figure but often break out into soft flouncings from knees to the ground; bead jewels round the neckline continues from last year, but a new type is beadwork or jewelling which forms a high yoke across the front of a gown and merely curves round the arm hole at the back.

Stay-at-Home Trend.

Evening coats were scarce among the collections. It is expected that entertainment will be held in homes and not at restaurants. On the other hand, elegant though simple day time suits obviously were made for restaurant wear.

War usually tends to straighten all lines, but this does not hold true at present. The curve of the figure was noticeable in the new clothes for spring and summer. The same was true, in a quiet form, in suit lines as well as hour-glass shaped figures in day or evening dresses.

The jacket of suits, emphasized by single-breasted openings and by delicate revers, curve gently and unobtrusively into the waist and out over the hips, with pockets which are equally unobtrusive.

Do You Know?

To make yourself a silver-cleaning cloth, mix one teaspoon plate powder or jewellers' rouge, one tablespoon cloudy ammonia, and a small teacup of water together. Cut a yard of fluffy flannelette into six squares, dip each in the mixture, and hang dripping wet to dry. Use the cloth to rub up silver and cutlery and you'll save several cleaning days.

Cork table mats are wonderfully useful, but they do get dingy in time. Rub the soiled ones with fine sandpaper and they will come up like new.

Things you can make from an old mackintosh include tennis racket covers, sponge bags, undersheet for baby's cot or under-bib for his mealtimes, or an apron for you when you bath him.

FASHIONS

Jumpers are the favorite style of all young girls. This new version is so versatile that you can wear it for dress up with its soft, long sleeved blouse, or with sweaters that you have on hand. Navy blue looks new and will be smart all through the coming months. If you are making yours for parties and dates rayon faille, or taffeta, crisp and rustly, is lovely with a sheer blouse. Your jumper buttons down the back and makes a cute sun-back frock if you are going South for a visit.

Style No. 2831 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3½ or 39-inch fabric for jumper; 1¾ yards for short sleeved blouse; 2 yards for long sleeved style.

Making Your Own Buns For This Lenten Season

By MARY MOORE

Do you realize that wives of the next generation will hear of "Mother's baking," and you, my Lass, will be that mother?

Supposing you make Hot Cross Buns this year and next year you make them better—you've established a tradition.

When your youngsters are grown and are boasting of their mother's talents to their friends, can't you hear them saying, "She always did such NICE things. For Christmas she made shortbreads; on Good Friday we could depend on it—a pan of spicy, fruity Hot Cross Buns came piping hot from the oven at the right moment!"

Make a practice batch this week. They disappear fast enough, goodness knows, and hold promise of the treat in store on Good Friday morning.

English Hot Cross Buns

Two cups milk scalded, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ cup sugar, 1/3 cup shortening 1 cake compressed yeast, about 6 cups sifted flour, 3 eggs, ½ cup seeded raisins, ½ cup washed and dried currants, ¼ cup shredded citron speel, ¼ cup chopped orange peel, 2 tablespoons milk, about ½ cup icing sugar. Place milk, salt, sugar, shortening in large mixing bowl, and let cool to lukewarm, then add the crumbled yeast cake and mix well until yeast cake dissolves and add 3 cups flour and beat until smooth; add 2 of the eggs slightly beaten and all of the fruits, and stir in the remaining flour—enough to make a soft dough. Knead the mixture lightly and shape into large round biscuits; place in greased pan 1 inch apart, cover and let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk (rising temperature can be about 60 deg. Fahr. if to be left overnight and baked in morning—but if buns are to be made and baked during the daytime rising temperature should be about 75 deg. Fahr.)

Make a deep cross in centre with back of knife and brush over with remaining egg yolk mixed with milk; bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes. While still warm glaze slightly with remaining egg white beaten with confectioner's sugar. These amounts will give about three dozen buns.

The following Coffe Cake is one that is made every Saturday morning by a lovely lady I know living in Missouri. Her grandmother was a Pennsylvania Dutchwoman and this recipe has been handed down through at least four generations that she knows of.

Mrs. Young's Coffee Cake

Three-quarters cup scalded milk; ¾ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup compressed yeast, 3 cups sifted bread flour, 1/3 to ½ cup melted shortening 2 egg yolks well beaten, 1 egg white, 1 tablespoon water, — teaspoon nutmeg, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons sugar, 6 tablespoons flour, 2 teaspoons cinnamon. Place hot milk, salt and 2 tablespoons of the sugar in large mixing bowl, and when it cools to lukewarm add the crumbled ½ yeast cake, stir well, add 1½ cups flour, and beat until smooth. Cover and let rise. When sponge is light (about 1½ hours at 72 deg. Fahr.) add remaining sugar, shortening, and yolks, and remaining flour and knead until dough is soft and elastic, and place in greased bowl, cover, and let rise until double in bulk. Cut down, roll into square and fit into greased square pan and let rise in warm place until light. Just before baking dust top with the nutmeg and sprinkle with a mixture made of the butter, sugar, flour, and cinnamon. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes. Serve hot if possible.

A former neighbor of mine invited me to tea last week and served Sally Lunn toasted, Sunshine Strawberry preserves and China tea from the most delicate Aynsley china procurable. I felt very much the lady even though I did have to spend the evening doing a fast dint of typing.

Her Sally Lunn was homemade and so good it is worth taking time out when you are having a select little tea, to delight and impress your guests.

Sally Lunn Tea Cakes

Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup scalded milk, 1 yeast cake dissolved in ¼ cup lukewarm water, 3 eggs, well beaten, flour—about 4 cups. Put butter, sugar, and salt in bowl, pour over scalded milk and let cool to warm, then add yeast cake dissolved in the lukewarm water, and then stir in the well-beaten eggs and the flour. Beat very well, cover and let rise until light. Fill buttered muffin tins 2/3 full, let rise until pans are full in warm place, covered. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 30 minutes. Serve immediately—if they get cold, split them and toast them before serving again.

If there are yeast bread recipes that you would like, write me a letter naming the recipes you want.

Children Need to Show Appreciation of Parents. Taking Things for Granted in the Home Is One of Worst Sins That Prevail in Many Families.

The chief matrimonial grievance of millions of married couples is that their husbands and wives take them for granted. "John is a f-i-n-e man," sobs the wife. "He is moral and upright and a good provider, but he never k-i-s-s-e-s me except to give me a peck on the cheek that makes me want to swat him, or pays me a c-o-m-p-l-i-m-e-n-t, and it breaks my heart to be treated as if I were just some sort of useful household gadget."

"Mary is a splendid woman," says the husband. "She is a fine cook, a good housekeeper, and I would never be where I am today if it hadn't been for the way she pinched pennies and worked at my side when I was getting a start in business And she is pleasant and easy to get along with, but, honestly, I don't believe she has taken a look at me since the first baby was born. I am nothing but the cash register that she and the children punch when they want new cars, or clothes, or trips or things."

Well, now, no one can blame married people for getting pretty sour over husbands and wives who take all the devotion, all the sacrifices and hard work that their mates give them without even saying "thank you" or making the slightest sign of appreciation. For the thing that sugar-coats the domestic pill and makes it easy to swallow is having somebody take notice and make a fuss over how bravely you take it. There isn't a woman who won't cheerfully wear her last year's hat as long as her husband tells her she is more beautiful than any glamor girl in it. There isn't a man who won't gladly work himself to death for a wife who keeps burning incense before him and chants his praise in the market place.

The bitter, discontented, disgruntled husbands and wives, who feel that their marriages are failures, are those who spend their lives toiling and sacrificing for a woman or a man who never even throws them a word of affection or gratitude, as one might throw a bone to a hungry dog.

Children Also at Fault

Bad as it is for husbands and wives to take each other for granted, it is still worse when children take their parents for granted. Yet they almost universally do so, and it is what makes one of the great and pitiful and unnecessary tragedies of life.

For what fathers and mothers yearn for more than they do anything else on earth is for some indication that their children admire them and appreciate them and feel some gratitude for all they do for them.

But they seldom receive this reward. The children take everything their parents do for them for granted and never dream of thinking that a word of thanks is due Mom and Pop every now and then for the sacrifices they make for them.

Get Best of Everything

The parents virtually enslave themselves to their youngsters. Father and Mother toil and pinch and deny themselves not only luxuries they would enjoy, but the medical and dental attention that might save their lives, so that they may send their children to college and give them advantages they never had themselves.

Mother cooks and scrubs so that her daughters may play She sits up half the night making them pretty clothes She washes the dishes so that they may keep their hands soft and manicured.

Father stays at home and works through the hot Summer without a vacation so that the boys may go off to camps. He toils overtime so that John may have the bicycle he craves. He wears his old overcoat until it is white at the seams so that Tom may have a sweater like the other boys. And Mother and Father sit at home when the children want to use the car.

Apparently their parents' conduct does not register with the children. They think it is just the queer way of fathers and mothers, and that the reason they work so hard is just because they are made that way, and that they go shabby because they don't care for good clothes.

It never occurs to them that Mother longs for a fur coat as much as any girl does, and that Father walks two blocks out of his way to window shop for the rod and reels that he will never have for the fishing trip he will never take, because they do without the things they want so that the children may have what they want.

The only way that children can repay their parents for the sacrifices they make for them is by showing their appreciation. If only once they would say "Thank you": if only once they would say: "Gee, Mother and Father, the heroes and the martyrs had nothing on you," it would make all the work and worry worth while.

But they seldom do it until they whisper their appreciation into dead ears that do not hear. They just take Mother and Father for granted. What a pity!

Adopted Children Should Be Told

Dear Miss Dix—I have just had to tell my foster son that he was adopted and it is breaking my heart. We both cried. What will it mean to him when he is 14 or 15? Will he not love me then as he does now?

A FOSTER MOTHER.

ANSWER — If he is the right sort, he will be all the more devoted to you because he will feel that he is under a greater obligation to you than he would have been if you were his own mother.

"Atta" Pilots Do Men's Work Seek No Favors In Britain

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, March 20.—(CP)—It is grit, not glamor that counts with Britain's 25 "Atta" Girls.

Except that their hands are smaller and their voices softer these women pilots of the Air Transport Auxiliary might easily be men. Their uniform is the same, hours of duty just as long and ardous as those of the men and there are no privileges when it comes to quarters or meals. Women and men ferry pilots meet and work on terms of absolute equality.

A legend of wealth and glamor has obscured the daily work of the Atta Girls but theirs is a job in which an ounce of grit outweights a ton of glamor. Qualities that obtain their admission as ferry pilots are unusual flying skill, steadiness, patience and reliability in all circumstances, and the will to work hard and obey orders. Social distinction and colorful background mean nothing to the Selection Board if the applicants cannot produce the right sort of pilot's logbook.

Prominent Names

Lois Butler, wife of the chairman of the de Havilland Aircraft Company, has been flying since 1928. Hon. Mrs. Douglas Fairweather, Lord Runciman's daughter, was a professional instructor, training Civil Air Guard pupils at Renfrew, for a year before the war. Mona Friedlander, whose father is a banker, was one of the first women to qualify as a commercial pilot and second class air navigator. Miss Friedlander has worked for a commercial aviation company and flew as a practice target for units of the Observer Corps.

These three women, with their 22 companions, are daily sharing the rigors and dangers and discipline of active service in the A.T.A.

The woman who ferries, say, a twin-engined Airspeed Oxford from the factory to a Royal Air Force training school is as truly on active service as R.A.F. pupils who, in the same machine, will learn to pilot a twin-engined Wellington or Manchester bombers on night raids over Germany.

Nine of the ferry-women, all of whom are between the ages of 22 and 45, are married and four have husbands serving with the Forces. Captain Grace Brown has a son of 11. She is 43 and has been flying for seven years. In the First Great War she was attached to a Voluntary Aid Detachment in East Africa. In this war she was the first woman to pilot an airplane to the French war zone.

Another Mother Veteran

Captain Winifred Crossley has a son of 12. Her logbooks show 2,000 hours—much more than the required minimum of 250 hours. An aerobatic expert, she is the daughter of Dr. Ernest Harrisson who attended at the birth of the St. Neots quadruplets. Winifred flew their daily milk supplies.

Another doctor's daughter is Captain Gabrielle Patterson. She is 34 and has one son. Like many others in her section, she has competed in King's Cup air races. She founded the National Women's Air Reserve in Romford and was examiner on the panel of the British Guild of Pilots and Air Navigators. Captain Pouline Gower, A.T.A. Commandant, had Amy Johnson as her instructor in 1930. Since then she has flown 1,800 hours and carried 30,000 passengers. She was the first woman to hold the Air Ministry's first class navigator's certificate. Her father is Sir Robert Vaughan Gower, M.P.

Scotland's first woman flying instructor is also in the ferry team. She is Margaret Cunniston, 26, and her father is a lecturer at Glasgow University.

Rosemary Rees, another pre-war instructor with A.T.A. is 34. In 1938 she flew her own machine to Czechoslovakia with Christmas hampers to refugee camps.

Marion Wilberforce is 38 and married. In 11 years' pre-war flying she logged more than 1,000 hours. Sir George Arthur Ogilvie-Forbes, British Minister to Cuba, is her father.

Also flying with A.T.A. are Audrey Sale Barker, the British skiing ace, Mable Glass, who has been flying all over Europe and northern Africa since 1934, and Joan Hughes, who took over her "A" licence on her 17th birthday—not quite six years ago.

Many bombers used by Japanese in China are believed to be Italian-made.

DRAFTED FOR LOVE

By RUTH AYERS

YESTERDAY: Ann decides on a quiet wedding, to be held within the week, the day following April's appearance in court. Dad is to defend April, believes Winkie is paying off an old grudge. Kent insists upon testifying. April goes on an important errand.

KENT SPRINGS A SURPRISE
CHAPTER XXI

Yes, April Burnett had it straight and clear in her mind now. If she could see Kent alone, she could persuade him not to testify in court tomorrow. This would spare Ann; this would prevent a fresh flood of gossip in the town.

April drew a deep breath as she reached the top of the hill where the Carter mansion stood, big, gloomier than ever in the first fall of dusk. And then she stopped quickly. The roadster, hers and Ann's, was parked outside the Carter gate.

Scarcely aware of what she did, April pushed through the gate and came to a standstill almost directly in front of the parlor windows. In the semi-light, she could see Ann sitting there, Ann and Kent and Great Aunt Elizabeth Carter.

Quickly; she walked back, grateful for the shadows which concealed her.

She had reached the Carter home too late. Her chance to see Kent alone before the trial, was gone. Worse, perhaps she'd lost her last chance to spare Ann. Auntie Carter, imperious, Spartan person that she was, might at this very minute be telling Ann of April's visit there in the hailstorm.

Nothing to do now except wait—wait' until court opened tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Afterwards, whenever she thought of that Friday in court, April would remember one strange part of it. That morning, she wore a plain black dress and tri-cornered hat. Dad, eyeing her critically, remarked, "Why, you look almost judicial, Daffy."

She came into the crowded, high-ceilinged courtroom, not seeing anyone. But somehow, she and Kent stood up together to be sworn as witnesses.

Yes, on Friday, she and Kent promised to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

On Saturday, Kent and Ann would stand together, hands linked, to make a vow even more solemn.

Winkie Appleman took the stand first, hobbling as he went. He told a story that grew more damaging to April with every word.

His eyes watered, his back hunched. "Yes, I was coming out of the Pattonsville railroad station that night, where I spend considerable time not having much of a place I can call a home," he said. "And all of a sudden, this here April Burnett drives her car at roarin' speed right to the platform where I'm about to step down and knocks me over."

There was more to it. How he'd been shocked by pain, cut and bleeding. "Call an ambulance, I asks her," he said. "Get a officer of the law. But she won't listen to none of this. She says she has to keep it quiet."

"No cross-examination," Mr. Burnett snapped when Winkie had finished.

Then April was called. She walked to the stand erect, chin high. Yes, she admitted that in the flying snow she hadn't seen the complainant, Winkie Appleman. She admitted he had stumbled to his feet and accused her of knocking him down. Her testimony was brief under her father's questioning.

And then it was Kent's turn on the stand. So far, even when they had taken the witness' oath, he had not looked at her. He didn't look at her now. Instead, he made a few preliminary answers on the time and place of the accident.

Then he turned directly to the judge, "Your honor," he said, "I was in the roadster with Miss April Burnett that night in the storm. Something did strike against her car. At that time, I was temporarily blinded from an accident at camp and couldn't see what had happened. But I can tell you one thing—"

The judge nodded for him to go on. "Winkie Appleman was drunk!"

The state's lawyer was on his feet. "I object!"

The objection was overruled. Kent continued in the same forthright way. "Yes, your honor, the complainant was very intoxicated. He reeled with liquor. Even blind, I knew he was reeling. There's another witness here, one who had his eyes and saw it all. I think he can confirm what I say."

Then for the first time, April saw the big-handed, freckle-faced rookie whose life Kent had saved at near cost of his own.

Private Estes told bluntly how he had been at the station waiting for Capt. Kent Carter and had seen Winkie staggering from the platform and falling in the snow heap before April's car.

"She'd stopped her car even before he fell," Private Estes testified with magnificent contempt.

"Case dismissed," his honor ruled.

Winkie began to blubber. "It's a put-up job," he said. "I've got lots more I ain't told yet. This April Burnett—I got witnesses—"

An officer had him by the arm, silencing him.

April stood up, realizing now her knees were fluid, her hands shaking with a veritable palsy of shakes.

"Thank you, Dad" she whispered to her father.

He was wiping his horn-rimmed glasses, the ones that made him look so ferocious. His smile was as beaming as if he'd just won an appeal to the Supreme Court.

"That's all right, Daffy," he said. "You run home now and help get ready for the big doings tomorrow at our house."

After that, she pushed her way through the crowd, not looking at anyone—not even at Hal who had been watching intently from a seat in the rear. Outside the courthouse, safe and alone at last, she pulled off the perky tri-cornered hat, held a handkerchief pressed close against her mouth. In a minute, she would call Mother and Ann at home to tell them the case was over. In a minute, but not yet.

"April!"

She turned slowly, unwilling. It was Kent Carter.

"Thank you, thank you for helping me," she managed to say and held out her hand.

He took it, kept it imprisoned in his. "You've been trying to run away from me a long time," he said.

"Oh, no, Kent. It's just that I've been busy, on the sick list, too, with a game ankle."

"That night at the station, one of my bags fell on you. Young Estes told me later. You were very plucky about it, April. And I won't be put off any longer. You've got to talk to me—now."

WE . . . NOTICED

. . .That what Vogue describes as "that old friend and flatterer," the Dolman sleeve, is back. With its deep armhole, its subtle line, it appears on coats, suits and dresses. Obviously, says Vogue, it's not for every woman in the world, but if you have a good figure, an open mind and an open eye, do recruit Dolman sleeves into your spring wardrobe.

. . .That lovely new prints and fine wools appear in the flow of spring dresses which come to warm the heart and gladden the eye. Ensembles of delightful frocks and coats are being shown in wide variety, and the printed jacket costume is another outstanding number.

. . .That with their delightful lingerie trim some of the new dresses are as fresh as snowdrops. Bolero and jacket dresses come often in dark sheers, with lingerie and color contrast trims, and in all-over prints.

New transcontinental railway routes are being considered in South America.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, March 21

A DAY of exceptional good fortune, prosperity, progress and happiness is forecast from the very auspicious positions of major planets. There may be swift-moving events, culminating in surprising denouements, with gain, increase and expansion in worldly affairs and with stirring adventures in the emotional life based on sudden change and far-reaching and dramatic episodes in the romantic, intellectual and spiritual life. The thrills and excitement of such occurrences should not be nullified or complexioned by rash impulsive or ill-tempered moods or indulgences. Renew business contracts, compose litigation.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a year of outstanding adventure, with dramatic moments of keen enjoyment both in business and emotional life. Romance is at hand, with sudden change surprising and far-reaching effect on the future and its fortunes. This operates in the intellectual and spiritual life, while in material things there is increased property values, successful litigation. It is a most propitious time for renewing any form of contract. However, impetuosity, recklessness or turbulent conduct might negate these most favorable auguries.

A child born on this day should have outstanding ability in many lines of endeavor, business, professional and intellectual, with much creative ability in progressive forms. Romance and adventure loom large in this spectacular life

Telling Mystic Fortunes Lends You New Glamor

What Secrets in the "Crystal"?

What enthralling fortunes you can read for your beau, using for your "magic crystal" just an old fish bowl! Do you see real crystal-gazing symbols in it? Well . . . that's your secret!

Get yourself up in a gipsy scarf, move your hands mysteriously over the bowl. "I see something taking form," you murmur tensely. Then, in a relieved tone: "Ah, it's a document . . . a legacy!"

And, sure enough, he's going to be rich! Splendid! And he's going to marry, too! You "see" bells, almost seem to hear them ringing! But what does that mailbox mean? Good or bad news?

You can entertain so cleverly, on dates or at parties, telling fortunes this way. Cards are fun, too, especially when you read them by the "Cross of Fifteen."

The 15 cards are arranged as a cross; some tell the past, others the future. Can the fortune-seeker expect happiness? The Ten of Hearts says— "Yes." But if the Eight of Spades turns up, heartbreak!

You can find more about the "Cross of Fifteen" from our 32-page booklet. Explains 85 tea-leaf fortune symbols; gives meaning of every card in the deck. Has a horoscope for each month, tells how to read fascinating fortunes in dominoes, dice, the "crystal."

Send 10c in coins or stamps for your copy of FUN WITH FORTUNE TELLING to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

PLAY FOR ALL BREAKS

PROBABLY no kind of declarer play produces a more pleasing thrill than that in which you have to play the cards in some one exact way which will not work unless every important outstanding card is exactly where you want it. That striving for every possible break, and getting every one, gives you a feeling of having refused to "give up the ship."

That was bidding them high, wide and handsome, in the recent twenty-five rubber match in which Morrie Elis of New York, ranking player of the current season, and Charles H. Goren of Philadelphia, top man of two years ago, barely defeated Mrs. Ralph C. Young of Philadelphia, last season's leader, and Mrs. Albert M. Sobel, this year's leading woman.

Against Mr. Goren's contract in the South, Mrs. Young led the diamond 3. He saw he had to get rid of four losers in the red suits. There were not enough entries to set up the clubs and run them, so only one of the four losers could be parked on them. Three would have to be ruffed, which would leave dummy only one trump for a lead. A second lead through East's trumps would be necessary, even if they lay fortunately, and that could be done only by having the eleventh trick won in dummy. So he planned that way.

The lead was won by the diamond A and the spade 8 led. Mrs. Sobel ducked, so did Mr. Goren, and Mrs. Young won with the Q, only trick her side got. She returned the diamond 4 to the K. The diamond 2 was ruffed by the spade 3, heart 2 led to the K, heart A cashed, heart 7 ruffed with the spade 4, two club tops cashed for a diamond discard, club 7 ruffed with the spade 9, heart 10 ruffed with the spade 7, and there was the lead in dummy. A club was led, and Mrs. Sobel, with the spade K-10, had to play before the spade A-J, so could not take a trick.

As he played it, Mr. Goren had to find East with three trumps, including the 10 and the K or Q, exactly four hearts, exactly three diamonds and exactly three clubs, with West having the remaining cards also distributed exactly. He refused to "give up the ship"—one mark of a real champion.

County Gov't. Is Outlined To Rylstone W.I.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 20 — (ENS)—Municipal government and its functions formed the subject of an address delivered before members of the Rylstone Women's Institute at a social evening held at the home of Mrs. Ernest Irwin on Monday. Speaker of the evening was the ex-Warden of Hastings county, George Thompson, who outlined some of the work done by the County Council. Mr. Thompson explained the equitable basis on which money was raised for county purposes and later expended in the interests of the county as a whole. He told of the selection of officers and committees briefly outlining their duties and responsibilities.

Following Mr. Thompson's remarks chairman Wilfred Spencer called upon Mrs. Spencer, president of the Rawdon branch of the Red Cross Society, who spoke for a few minutes on the splendid work members of the society had been doing in the township. Also contributing to the program were Fred Barnum, who led in community singing, while four members of the Irwin family—Mr. and Mrs. Irwin, Isobel and Garland—provided music.

The chief item of business concerning the Institute was a communication from the Central War Fund to which it was announced a donation had already been sent.

Remainder of the meeting was spent in arranging plans for a Community Amateur Night to be held March 21 at the Orange Hall, Petherick's Corners. Ernest Irwin was named to head the committee which will be in charge of the program, and assisting him are W. Spencer, F. M. Rutherford, Fred Barnum, Victor Irwin.

A preliminary draft of talent indicated there would be old time fiddlers, step dancing, singing, instrumental numbers, story telling and even a quiz contest. To add further interest it was decided to donations of farm produce during the evening as well as have a door prize and lucky draw in connection with the entertainment which should reach an all time high in programs of this type for the Rylstone district.

The gun is set on railway mountings and can be transported to any point.

Bombs No Longer Ruffle Tough Londoner

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, March 20 — (CP). — Breathless and white-faced, an office boy raced upstairs to the officers of The Canadian Press one bright afternoon last August.

"They're bombing Croydon," he shouted excitedly.

We ran to the roof and looked southward toward Croydon with its busy airport, eight miles away. There was a faint smudge of smoke on the horizon. No planes were visible, no gunfire audible. London's sirens had not wailed.

But we knew those bombs raining down from the summer skies meant the capital had been moved up into the front line of air warfare.

From then on the bombs fell steadily closer. London had frequent daylight warnings and crowds stood in the streets or on rooftops to watch the sky battles. Raiders flew over the capital by night. High in the star-studded sky we heard the drone of the bombers, watched the searchlights finger the darkness.

Then came Saturday, Sept. 7, 1940. The sirens sounded a late day alarm. Gazing from the office windows we saw scores of German bombers, escorted by fighters, flying in formation. Exploding anti-aircraft shells from batteries along the Thames ringed them with white puffs. But they flew on, followed by others.

Columns of smoke over the docks area showed many fires had started. The "raiders past" sounded before nightfall. But at dusk the bombers returned. London's sky was lurid. Flaming warehouses along the Thames lighted the raiders to their targets. The glow turned darkness into an eerie pink twilight. It was the first time Londoners had witnessed such a scene. Since, it has happened a number of times.

They Stayed Down

Bombs were dropped all over the capital that night. People ran for shelter and stayed there. The attacked continued until near dawn.

That was the beginning of the heaviest prolonged air attack a city had ever endured.

London has had nearly eight months of air bombing since then and more than 500 raid warnings. Tons of high explosives and tens of thousands incendiaries have been unloaded on the world's biggest city.

Every part of the sprawling metropolis bears scars. You can't travel any distance without seeing an ugly gash in a once-unbroken row of buildings. Boarded-up windows are commonplace.

Repair gangs are at work quickly. When railway lines are smashed or a main traffic artery blocked it's a rush job. Street repairs don't take long either when detours means serious traffic jams. Debris is removed, the crater excavated, broken mains and gas lines mended. Then the cavity is refilled, the street resurfaced and opened again.

Large bombs made enormous craters on two important central London thoroughfares. They were too big to fill so engineers bridged them.

Some of the worst sites have been tidied up so they resemble the vacant spaces you can see in any Canadian city where a building has been torn down. Londoners who stood and gaped at the damage six months ago now walk past with scarcely a glance.

The world's largest city is bruised and scarred—but not broken. The Londoner has proved to the world he's tough. The enemy can smash his home but they've found they can't smash his spirit.

Elizabeth Way Lighting Costs $365,159

TORONTO, March 20 (CP).—The total cost of lighting equipment for the Queen Elizabeth Highway to date has been $365,159.67. This information was contained in a reply in legislature yesterday to a question presented by T. A. Murphy (Con., Toronto Beaches). Some 168 monogrammed light standards have been installed at a cost of $15,324.16 for equipment and installation.

Replying to a question from W. D. Black (Con. Addington), the government stated that $13,203.73 has been received in direct revenue from Fort Henry at Kingston, since the renovation was completed and up to the time the Dominion Government took over the fort.

The government also stated, in reply to a question by George S. Henry (Con. York East), that 1,854.-64 miles have been added to the provincial highway system in organized system in organized counties since July 10, 1934. Of these 272.37 miles have been paved since assumption into the provincial system.

Brigade Whips 2 Chimney Fires

MILLBROOK, March 20—(ENS).—The firemen have had two calls in recent days one at Maurice Finn's, at the week-end, and the second Monday morning at Chapman's auto supply building, both being chimney fires, and both checked before any particular damage had been done through prompt action with the chemical engine.

W. F. Fallis has been appointed chairman of the War Savings committee for St. Andrew's church, and G. E. Burnham secretary, following organization for the campaign seeking donation of war savings certificates and stamps to the United Church of Canada. Under this plan the church hopes to be in a stronger position to face the responsibilities the post war years will bring, and to reduce the debt unavoidably contracted during the depression years

Included in the membership of the local committee, organized at a meeting of the Session last Wednesday evening are Gordon Might, president of the Young People's Union, and Mrs. P. I. Bentley, president of the Women's Association.

Miss Della Mae Sisco, of the occasional teaching staff of Toronto, was home for the week-end with her parents, Rev. A. L. and Mrs Sisco.

Mrs. (Dr.) B. C. Whyte, of Battle Creek, Michigan, who has been visiting her sisters, Miss Margaret Wood, and Mrs. A. B. Lefroy, returned home at the week-end.

The W.A. of St. Andrew's church is holding a crokinole party in the basement of the church on Friday, March 21 at 8 p.m., Chinese checkers and other games being provided, and the general public cordially invited to attend.

Over fifty guests were in attendance at the pot luck supper held on Friday at 6.30 p.m., Mrs. J. McKnight being hostess and giving the use of her home for the party, Mrs. P I. Bentley and Miss Josie Sutton being associate hostesses. The proceeds amounted to over sixteen dollars, and the guests remained, after the dinner, for games of various kinds, the success of the undertaking being pronounced both socially and financially.

Forty-one churches were bombed in Rochester diocese of England in 1940.

LET'S GO!

With grim determination and stout heart this young and virile nation meets the challenge of the hour.

Lights burn late as Canada's war effort gains momentum. In factory and workshop, on the farm, in shipyard and along the assembly line, an Army in Overalls swings into action.

Likewise, in The Royal Bank of Canada a trained and disciplined staff bends its best efforts to meet the increasing demands of war conditions.

There is no short cut to victory. The road will be long and hard. With pride in our hearts we shall pursue it till peace is made secure for the nations of the world.

Answer From The Queen

At the regular March meeting of the Prosperity Chapter No. 63, O.E.S. a letter was read from Queen Elizabeth's private secretary in answer to a letter which had been sent from the O.E.S. offering their help in any way to the Queen and people of England. In it the Queen expressed her thanks for the offer and asked that they send knitted articles for women or men who serve in the Civilian War Service. In answer to the request the local chapter members were 100 per cent in their promises to furnish their own wool and knit a garment or donate a factory made article.

3 Quilts Finished

At the regular meeting of the Eastern Star Patriotic Association on Friday afternoon three quilts were completed for the British War Victims and two tops made ready for quilting. Donations of finished baby quilts were received from Mrs. D. Barrons of Cordova, the junior pupils of the Cordova school, teacher, Mrs. Rose, and from the Form III girls of the Havelock High School. A large quilt was received from the Cordova workers, the top being donated by Mrs. Charles Chard. A top lining, and batt for a quilt were received from Mrs. Rae Williams and a top for a quilt was donated by Mrs. Cecil Toms and Mrs. Garnet Emery of Peterborough, formerly of Havelock, who were workers in this Association before moving. Several parcels of good used clothing were also brought in and also a goodly number of knitted articles for our boys who are in service.

A pleasant part of the afternoon came when letters were read from the following soldiers: Merle Clark, Crother Wilson, Ernest Johnson, Vincent Fitzpatrick, Douglas Drew, R. E. McQuaid, Lorne Hornsby, Victor May, D. J. Johnson, Cecil Wilson and Howard Harnden.

Children Active Workers

Interest is still keeping up in the B.B.B. Fund sponsored by the Havelock School pupils as they bring in their weekly contributions of pennies saved during the week. Bobby Hill is still doing business selling wool dolls and turned in 60 cents this week, but Bobby has a rival now as Phyllis Hart, who is nine years old has started in a scheme to raise money for a layette and is selling home-made candy. This week she turned in 65 cents as a start on her project, and has her own ideas how she is going to continue making money.

The school children are sponsoring an afternoon tea and sale of home made cooking and candy on Saturday afternoon, March 29 for the B.B.B. Fund and extend to all an invitation with the following verse:

On Saturday afternoon, March twenty-nine
Come to the Masonic Hall and have a fine time.
School children's knitting and sewing on display you'll see,
Your patronage will fill the children with glee.
Cake, candy, pie and goodies made by their mothers
Will be sold by the children to help to aid others.
The teachers will welcome you and help pour tea
Which for 15 cents the pupils will serve to thee.
To Befriend British Babies the proceeds will go
You'll want to help in your mind for we hope you to see
On March twenty-nine—In Masonic Hall—Doors open at three.

W.M.S. Session

The March meeting of the Women's Missionary Society, was held at the home of Miss Etta Crawford, with Mrs. A. McLaughlin in charge. Mrs. A. McLauchlin gave a very helpful talk on this and concluded with a little poem and saying that the Kingdom had come into all the lives of the people present.

Plans were discussed in regard to the Easter service. After the singing of a hymn, the lesson study was taken over by Miss Mary Seeney on the missionary work of Miss Archibald in Trinidad. This young woman arrived in Trinidad in the year 1889 and was wonderfully successful as a missionary. She taught primary schools as one of the earliest teachers, mothered underprivileged children and was the first principal of the Naparima School for girls. She contributed advice and was responsible for organizing evangelistic work for women and girls.

Tired Of Lies

Ottawa, March 20 (CP)

AN Athens radio newscast heard here by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation quoted Italian prisoners in Greece as declaring discontent is steadily increasing in Italy.

The Athens announcer, broadcasting first in English and then in Greek, said last night the Italian prisoners admitted they were "fed on false rumors" and that the spirit among the Italian people at home was tending to become "depressed."

Among the "false rumors" the Italians were given as truth were reports that other of Mussolini's divisions were entering Yugoslavia and that Germany already had entered Greece, the announcer said.

Tells About Stomach Relief After Suffering Long Time

Dashwood Man Lost Weight; Was Nervous and Rundown Because of Indigestion and Restricted Diet. Is Overjoyed by Relief SYNTONA Gave Him. Skin Blemishes and Rheumatic Pains Due to Acid Also Overcome.

MR. IRA TETREAU

"When I say that Syntona has given me relief, it means something, for I was in misery for ten awful years with my stomach," said Mr. Ira Tetreau, well known farmer, Dashwood, Ontario, in a recent interview.

"Everything I ate just seemed to sour in my stomach and cause cramps, gas, and constipation. Awful dizzy spells and headaches were a daily occurrence and there were rheumatic pains in my back and legs. I went on a diet, but that didn't help me, and besides, you can't do farm work on a diet. I just became weakened and rundown and I was losing weight. My skin broke out in pimples and I felt nervous, worn out, and discouraged, for it didn't seem that I could get any help.

"I kept reading about Syntona, but I put off trying it, because all the other medicines I had used failed to do me any good, but when finally I did begin taking Syntona, I soon found out that it was different from anything else I ever used. Why, I can eat regular meals now, things I had been afraid to eat for YEARS. •I am rid of all that stomach misery and those sick headaches, the rheumatic pains have left me and my skin has cleared up. By actual weight, I have regained ten pounds and I am more healthy and energetic than I ever thought was possible."

Syntona contains no harmful drugs or opiates. It is made only from the pure extracts of selected herbs, roots and barks that have long been known for their medicinal value.

Seaway Bill Is Sent To Congress

F.D.R. Presents Project As Direct Link With Defence Program

WASHINGTON, Mar. 21—(AP)—President Roosevelt sent to Congress to-day the text of an agreement by which Canada and the United States propose to develop the St. Lawrence waterway-power project, estimated eventually to cost more than $500,000,000.

Deep sea navigation between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic and provision for 2,200,000 new Hydro-Electric horse-power for the countries are contemplated.

The agreement, closely resembling a treaty which the United States Senate failed to ratify by the necessar two-thirds vote in 1934, is subject to approval of Congress and the Canadian Parliament. Only a majority vote would be required this time in the United States Congress.

Mr. Roosevelt transmitted the agreement with a brief accompanying message "for the information of the Congress" and said he would "request introduction, in due course, of legislation designed to make this agreement effective."

The President explained that the agreement provides "for the construction of dams and power works in the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence River, and providing for completion of the essential links in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence deep waterway when the Governments of the United States and Canada agree that circumstances require it."

Direct Defence Link.

A State Department summary of the agreement said that a preceding exchange of notes between the two governments showed the project was "regarded as directly associated with both the power supply and shipbuilding phases of our national defence program, including the plan for defence of the western hemisphere and the determination to supply all possible aid to Great Britain, the members of the British Commonwealth, and their Allies."

The immediate project contemplated is in the international ra-

Scharnhorst and Gneisenau Prowling American Side Press Tip States

LONDON, March 21—(CP).—The Press Association said today that the German warships which Prime Minister Churchill said Tuesday had "crossed to the American side of the Atlantic" were the battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau.

The Press Association did not give the source of its information.

Mr. Churchill told the Pilgrims, a British-American society, that not only German "battle cruisers" but also Nazi U-boats had crossed the Atlantic and already had sunk unconvoyed British ships as far west as the 42nd Meredian, which runs 1,500 miles east of New York.

He did not specify the size of the Nazi raiding force, but the term he used for the surface raiders indicated that they were of the size of the Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau, sister ships of 26,000 tons each.

Rapids Section Of Seaway Be Ready By '45

OTTAWA, March 21 (CP)—Construction of power developments in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence River dominates the Canadian-United States agreement on the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin power and seaway project, details of which were tabled today in the House of Commons.

But the two governments undertake to complete the whole project, including a 27-foot seaway from Montreal to the head of the Great Lakes by Dec. 1, 1948.

The agreement now must receive sanction by the United States Congress and the Canadian Parliament.

It has been estimated by engineers that the International Rapids section power development, together with necessary provisions to make it a part of the seaway, can be completed by 1945.

The supplementary agreement between Canada and Ontario was also tabled, this revealing that over a period of time the Ontario Government will pay $64,125,000 as part of Canada's share in the joint undertaking.

Canada's Share To Ontario.

Ontario will get Canada's share, half of the 2,000,000 horsepower of additional power, estimated to result from development in the International Rapids, and will have exclusive right for power purposes to waters that province may divert into the Great Lakes system.

The agreements, signed last Wednesday after long negotiations, provide for the creation of a 10-man commission, five from Canada and five from the United States, to carry out generally and supervise the power developments.

This commission will have plans and specifications prepared for work in the International Rapids section, allocate the works to be performed by each country on the basis that each government will perform the

Picton, Ont., March 21 (CP)

MEMBERS of Prince Edward County Council are "lower than the sands of the sea," "fifth columnists" and "unpatriotic," according to writers of several letters following council's refusal to make a grant to Picton I.O.D.E. war work.

Several members have received such letters, according to Reeve Colliver.

Last year the order was given $1,200, which was used for comforts for soldiers of a local regiment overseas. When the request for this year's grant was made at the January session of the council it was voted down.

Welland Blast Injures Six

WELLAND, Ont., March 21 (CP)—Six men were sent to hospital and many others suffered minor cuts and bruises today as a blast ripped part of the plant of the United Steel Corporation here. The explosion was felt over a wide area.

The most seriously injured was Alex Simpson, time-keeper, who suffered a head injury and a possible fractured skull. Others hurt were Joseph Pupo, lacerations about the head and arm, Ernie Pupo, foot lacerations, Paul Wilson, back injuries, Stewart Lucas, knee abrasions, Frank White, arm injury.

Officials said they were investigating the blast but they released no official statement. It was believed that compressed air lines burst, ripping out windows and masonry and damaging electrical installations.

The plant is engaged in war work and although the machinery was practially undamaged it was believed that production would be interrupted for several days.

It is reported that the United Steel plant here will be closed for possibly a week. Several hundred

Greeks Crumple 2 Tank Drives On 3-Mile Front

ATHENS, March 21 — (AP). — Greek soldiers along a three-mile front in Albania beat off two furious Italian attacks supported by tanks yesterday and killed or wounded an entire Fascist company of 150 men, the official Government spokesman declared to-day.

It was the second time in two days that the Greeks reported a whole Fascist company destroyed in battle.

The spokesman said the Italians lost three tanks in the bitter fight at a point he did not disclose.

The Greeks did not claim the capture of the strongly-defended town of Tepelent, as reported twice yesterday in advices reaching Yugoslavia. The Greeks said the Tepeleni report had not been confirmed in Athens.

Among the officers captured in the recent Mussolini-directed offensive, the spokesman reported, was a cousin of Il Duce. He identified the officer as Lt.-Col .Tuveri Ciglio, Commander of the 3rd Battalion of the 26th Blackshirt Legion.

Narrow Trainee Categories To 3

OTTAWA March 21—(CP).—Men called up under the four-months' compulsory military training plan are selected from classes placed in medical categories, A, B-1 and B-2, it is disclosed in revised special reserve army regulations tabled in the House of Commons Wednesday by the Defence Minister, Hon. H. L. Ralston. The previous standard embraced men of C 1 classification.

The regulations were redrafted to fit in with the longer training period starting Thursday, superseding the original 30-day compulsory plan.

Men placed in medical categories above B-2 will be taken on the strength of an appropriate corps of the reserve army, or posted to a general list of the military district in which a basic training centre is located.

Thereafter recruits passed medically fit become liable to perform training, service or duty as the Minister of Defence may prescribe but only within Canada and her territori waters.

A further provision stipulated that once a man becom a member of the active militia he is liable without any consent on his part to be transferred to any other branch of

Business Area Suffers As Fires Rage

Bombers Dump Loads At 2-Min. Intervals, People Hug Shelters

LONDON, March 21 (CP)—The port of Plymouth, pounded repeatedly by the Germain air force since the start of the war, bore the brunt of attacks by the German air force again last night as the Royal Air Force stabbed for the 48th time at the Nazi submarine base at Lorient.

Daylight activity opened today with a raid on a southeast coast town by a Junkers 88 which stole in under cover of fog over the Strait of Dover, dropped a number of high explosive bombs and machine-gunned streets.

There was some slight damage to residential property but no casualties were reported.

London, heavily raided the previous night, escaped comparatively lightly, but fire bombs and high explosives scattered by the Nazis left a trail of smoking ruins in the business section of the southwest coast port.

Fire fighters worked until dawn to bring under control a series of blazes, some of which the government declared, were of serious proportions.

Though the attack was not long, it was sharp.

The first raiders dropped numerous "chandelier flares" which cast a bright glare over the scene, and they were followed by relays of bombers at two-minute intervals.

No Report of Huns Downed

Anti-aircraft fire was intense, but the government did not indicate that any of the raiders were shot down.

Most of the city's population took to underground shelters before the first bombs fell and it was not believed casualties would prove heavy.

A communique said last night's raids were on a much smaller scale than those of recent nights.

Little damage and few casualties

Airport Lands Cost $400,000

OTTAWA, March 21—(CP).—Details of expenditure of more than $400,000 for airport areas in Ontario were given R. H. McGregor (Con., York East) in a return tabled in the House by the Department of Transport.

At Mount Hope, 408 acres of land were bought from seven owners for $84,010; Jarvis, 597 acres, six owners, $54,100; Brantford, 530 acres, seven owners, $53,450; Dunnville, 410 acres, five owners, $33,650; Birch, 318 acres, six owners, $25,.75; Hagersville, 210 acres, five owners, $42,800; Kegal, 670 acres, seven owners, $62,-75 , and Kohler, 446 acres, five owners, $52,680.

One lot of 94 acres at Mount Hope cost $25,000 and a 0-acre section, $3,210. At Brantford, a 142-acre area cost $13,500, and 1 acres at Kohler, $25,000.

ARTEMUS KNUCKLES sued in justice of the peace court to get back a pig that had wandered onto a neighbor's farm and been confiscated. His lawyer was David Hogg. But Justice William Moberly didn't have to rule on the question, was the pig Knuckles. Knuckles and neighbor settled the case out of court. Knuckles paid $5 for the hog's keep and the neighbor gave him his hog back.

RAF Dump Loads On Lorient U-Boat Docks

LONDON, March 21.—(CP)—A large fire was started in the Nazi U-boat base at Lorient, occupied France, last night, in the second attack by Royal Air Force bombers in two nights.

An Air Ministry communique said bad weather over Germany made raids on that country impossible, but the attack on Lorient was described as successful. Many explosions were caused among the docks.

Describing yesterday's various operation, the Air Ministry said Nazi motor torpedo boats were attacked off the Netherlands coast while off the southern coast of Norway a German supply ship was machine-gunned.

One British plane was lost during the 24 hours.

Step Up Cheren Pressure

CAIRO, Egypt, March 21.—(AP)—British bombers have stepped up their effort to blast Italian forces out of lofty defence positions before Cheren, key city of Eritrea, the Royal Air Force announced today. "Many tons" were dropped in yesterday's assault, a communique said.

The major effort of the R.A.F. and the South African air force for the past two days has been a concentrated assault on the Cheren defences which British land forces must pass to carry on their conquest of Eritrea.

Cheren is on the Eritrean railway to Asmara, the capital, and Massau, Red Sea port.

Bus Strike Ends

NEW YORK, March 21—(AP) — New York City's greatest transit tieup in 15 years, ended by agreement of bus drivers and operators to arbitrate a wage scale, was merely "a curtain raiser" for the "fight next June for new subway contracts," says Harry Sacher, counsel for the Transport Workers' Union.

"The first round is ours," he told unionists last night after announcement of the agreement which will enable 900,000 persons to ride in 1,146 buses tomorrow for the first time in 13 days.

Serb Elements Talk Trouble As Council Leans To Axis; 4 Chief Generals Pensioned

Army Circles Bitter Against Surrender Allowing Huns To Use Nation Pictures Of Churchill, F.D.R. Displayed

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 21—(AP).—Regent Prince Paul refused today to accept the resignations of Ministers who opposed Yugoslavia's reported capitulation to the Axis.

Three Ministers who asked to be relieved of their posts and a fourth who was said to be considering a similar gesture were told that no one would be allowed to quit until the agreement is signed.

Although the Government's action was reported by responsible government sources, British circles insisted they had reason to believe Yugoslavia had reached no decision on what concessions she would make to the Axis.

While admitting that the solution might be found in time to permit the Premier and Foreign Minister to leave for Vienna for the signing soon, British officials said a Cabinet meeting this morning and an afternoon meeting at the palace were "sufficient indication no agreement has yet been reached."

The meeting at the palace with Prince Paul was attended by Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic, Vice-Premier Vladimir Macek, the Croat leader, and Djafer Culovez, the Slovene leader.

4 Generals Pensioned.

The tenseness was heightened by disclosure that four of Yugoslavia's most prominent generals were pensioned early in the week as a "mere routine matter."

Observers said army circles have been among the most vigorous opponents of a surrender to Germany. But Government circles said the remaining high officers had agreed to the Government's decision.

Nervousness in the capital was accentuated by paralysis of the city's trolley, telephone and lighting services for a short period at noon. Engineers said the trouble was technical.

German circles claimed the formalizing of Yugoslavia's entry into closer relations with the Reich would be swift, with Premier Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markavic due to leave tonight or tomorrow for Vienna, where they would sign the document Sunday.

The degree to which Yugoslavia's decision will facilitate German action in the Balkans, possible against Greece to bolster the faltering Italians, was uncertain in the absence of details of the agreement that has been reached. But a responsible government leader said it would provide economic and "semi-military aid to the Reich.

PostWarFinance Setup House Debate

OTTAWA, March 21.—(CP)—A glimpse into the financial problems of the post-war world was afforded the House of Commons yesterday as the biggest money bill ever presented to a Canadian Parliament passed the first milestone of its progress into law.

Finance Minister Isley expressed his conviction Canada could meet all financial and social obligations in the future with properly designed taxes and need have no "abject fear" of the mounting national debt.

The minister spoke shortly before the $1,300,000,000 war appropriation bill passed out of the resolution stage and received first reading. This brought to an end almost a month of debate. The resolution was introduced Feb. 18, and except for a few days devoted to other matters has been under discussion ever since. There may be further debate on second reading of the bill which will be moved today.

"There is not justification for an abject fear of the problem raised by our increasing national debt," Mr. Isley said. "Certainly the in-

Matsuoka To London?

Berlin, March 21 (AP)

USUALLY reliable Japanese sources in Berlin indicated today that Yosuke Matsuoka, Japanese foreign minister, now en route here for Axis conferences, might visit London while in Europe.

They were unable to say whether this might mean he would return by way of the United States.

Confirmation of the reports was not obtainable and surprised Nazi spokesmen said it was the first they had heard of any plan to extend Matsuoka's visit.

Ilsley Explains Borrowing

Less Inflation Using Chartered Banks' Cash Than Own Bank's

OTTAWA, March 21.—(CP). — Finance Minister Ilsley Thursday in the House of Commons, gave the Government's answer to suggestions from new democracy members that money for war purposes be obtained by having the Government-owned Bank of Canada issue in it terms of public need without interest.

Victor Quelhc (N.D. Acadia) asked the following question:

"When we have obtained from the people all the money we consider it wise to take, whether by taxation or by the sale of savings certificates, and when we deem it necessary to indulge in a form of borrowing of an inflationary character, why do we not obtain the money from our own bank, the Bank of Canada, instead of from chartered banks who will merely create the amounts of payment?"

Mr. Isisley replied: "It would be far more inflationary to borrow from the Bank of Canada than it would be to borrow from the chartered banks."

Mr. Quelch asked the Minister why it would be more inflationary. The text of Mr. Ilsley's reply follows:

Because if we borrow from the chartered banks the amount of new money, or the additional deposit liability, is the amount that we borrow.

For instance, if we borrow $250,000,000 from the chartered banks there are deposits immediately in existence, after the loan, of $250,000,000 more than there was before. That is inflationary, to a certain extent, other things being equal.

If we borrow from the Bank of Canada the result of a loan of $250,000,000 which, when we use it, finds itself in the possession of the chartered bank, as bank reserve.

The banks, in order to carry on a banking business along lines commercial banks have always carried on business the world over, must loan a good deal more than $250,000,000 to the public. The ratio is nine or 10 times as much as that,

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, March 21 (CP))—British Imperial forces have reoccupied Hargeisa, in British Somaliland, it was announced officially today, and are trying to establish contact with the occupying force at Berbera, the recaptured capital.

Berbera is about 100 miles northeast of Hargeisa which lies about 30 miles inside the British colony's Ethiopian border.

Serb Feeling Soars Rapidly Against Crown Council; Hun Supplies To Go Through

Million Troops Are Kept Under Arms While Cabinet Stand Wavers Belgrade Press Get Call To Vienna

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 21—(AP).—A Yugoslav Cabinet crisis developed today as three Cabinet Ministers were reported to have resigned following a Crown Council decision to swing into the Axis camp.

A fourth Cabinet member who voted against giving in to the Berlin demands was said to be planning similar action.

Serb feeling against the government decision was said to be mounting rapidly, with pictures of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill being displayed publicly alongside portraits of national heroes in many towns.

The Crown Council approved last night a program described by a responsible government leader as offering economic and semi-military aid to Germany and the plan was approved later by the Cabinet by a reported vote of 13 to 4.

Strongest support for the plan, which it was said would clear the way for a predicted German attack on Greece to help the faltering Italians in Albania, was reported to have come from Croats and Slovenes. The four who voted "No" are Serbs.

Unconfirmed border dispatches which pictured the Fascist forces in Albania as "rapidly disintegrating" seemed to lend urgency to the situation.

Four Important Men

The fourth was said to be Milan Protisch, Minister of Supplies.

The official version of the approved program remained undisclosed but one source said it called for Yugoslavia to become the fifth nation to affiliate with the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis in all respects save that she would not furnish active military aid and would forbid passage of German troops across Yugoslavia to get at the Greeks.

(Such an agreement would insure Nazi forces striking at Greece from Bulgaria against being hit on the flank exposed to neighboring Yugoslavia.)

The pro-German newspaper Vreme said flatly that Yugoslavia would tie up with the Axis but would be exempted from military clauses of the Axis pact The country would allow transportation of war materials and hospital trains through her territory and would agree to halt anti-Axis propaganda within her borders, the paper added.

MORE ABOUT—

Isley Explains

and that in turn creates deposit liabilities, which adds to the total deposits in the country a very large sum and is very much more inflationary in its effect than borrowing from the banks would be.

This could be nullified or offset if we were to raise the reserve ratio. The legal reserve ratio at the present time, as the honorable gentleman (Mr. Quelch) knows, is five per cent.

If we were to make it 100 per cent. we would have no more inflationary effect if we borrowed from the Bank of Canada than if we borrowed from the banks because when that $250,000,000 found itself in the commercial banks as cash reserve the banks could not lend a thing on it. There would be a deposit liability of $250,000,000 and a reserve of $250,000,000.

But there is a certain cost for carrying deposits, and in addition to the cost of carrying on the banks there is the interest which the banks have to pay on their savings bank deposits. When that money comes back to the bank in the form of savings bank deposits they have to pay 1½ per cent interest on it.

It is estimated that merely one per cent is paid in interest. So that to create a 100 per cent reserve ratio which would nullify or equalize the inflationary effect in the way I have mentioned would mean that you would in effect be asking the banks to carry on at a substantial loss in respect of that transaction.

In other words, it would be a tax on the banks which would be passed on either for the depositors of the banks or the shareholders of the banks or passed on in some over way.

If as a matter of policy we decided to lay that additional tax on the banks we could borrow from the Bank of Canada instead from the commercial banks and have exactly the same effect.

But unless we take some steps like that, if we merely change that feature of the present system which is the only feature which the honorable member is talking about now, we would be setting in motion forces which would have a very powerful inflationary effect.

program last night and the cabinet later voted for it, 13 to 4, after a bitter wrangle.

As in the recent history of so many of Yugoslavia's southeastern European neighbors, internal divisions played a part. The four cabinet members who held out until the last and then backed up their opposition by their resignations were reported to have been Serbs, the racial element which had formed the nucleus of modern Yugoslavia. The elements most favorable to Germany's last offer were said to be Croats and Slovenes.

Prince Paul was said to have declared to the Serbs who sought to leave the government, that they could not do so until the agreement with Germany is signed.

Although the general staff was reported to have counselled acceptance of the German demands, military circles said feeling was high among lesser officers and the rank and file.

Pictures of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill were displayed prominently in public places alongside portraits of national heroes in many towns, as Serb resentment apparently mounted against the government's decision.

As yet, however, the country had not been acquainted with the action except by "grapevine." Morning newspapers had carried only an officials announcement that "foreign affairs" had been discussed at a late night cabinet session. The papers printed Berlin dispatches, however, which said "the confidence displayed by Yugoslavia in Germany will be rewarded."

work necessary in its own country or an equivalent portion of the general works, approve all contracts, and finally pass on all completed works.

The Canada-United States agreement provides that by exchange of notes the two countries will arrange for free passage across the border in the works area of personnel engaged on construction or other related tasks, and to exempt such personnel from immigration regulations, and where one country is doing works within the territory of the other, customs, excise, and other imposts may be lifted in order to facilitate the work.

Canada agrees to construct the works allocated to the Dominion and to operate and maintain or arrange for operation and maintenance of all works in the international rapids section situated within Canada.

The Dominion also agrees to complete, not later than December 31, 1948, essential Canadian links in the deep waterway, including deepening of the Welland Canal and other canals in the Canadian system.

It is provided that if war conditions justify modification of this undertaking such modification may be arranged by exchange of notes.

The United States agrees to complete its allocation of works, to operate and maintain those located in that country, to provide funds for construction, including design and supervision of all works in the International Rapids section except machinery and equipment for development of power and works required for rehabilitation on the Canadian side.

The United States also agrees to complete necessary works allocated to that country to complete the deep waterway, within the time limit set for Canada's completion of such works December 1, 1948.

There are provisions in the agreement to preserve scenic beauties at Niagara Falls, maintain water levels at Montreal and other points, and to safeguard the interests of both countries in the event of diversion of waters from the Great Lakes.

No details of costs were contained in the Canada-United States agreement.

War Hits Baby

LONDON, Mar. 21 — (CP). — Britain's baby carriages will be streamlined and privately-owned metal rallings will be torn out in a plan to inject more iron into the veins of Britain's war industries. New designs will reduce by half the metal used in perambulators by building them lower, more rakish, with less undercarriage and smaller wheels.

Nazi Raids Are Manufactured

A letter, received by the Peterborough Branch of the North American Life Insurance Company recently, proves without a doubt that German propaganda exponent Lord Haw Haw uses untruths frequently for home consumption. The letter is from a former Peterborough district boy, Eric J. Lane, who is now a policeman in Mildenhall, Suffolk County, England.

Mr. Lane refers to a broadcast by Lord Haw Haw, on the night of February 24, in which the town Mildenhall was reported bombed by German planes three times, starting five fires, and doing untold damage. The natives feel quite equal to the entire German army, the writer intimates, if this is true, for never a bomb fell on the city, nor were there any fires started. Along with the rest of the nation, Empire, and probably the bulk of the world, the "Mildenhallers" are laughing at the Nazi type raids as described by Haw Haw.

Cologne Plants Raked By RAF

LONDON, March 21.—(CP)—Several factories in Cologne were hit by British bombs and other damage wrought during an air attack by the Royal Air Force last night, the air ministry announced today.

Communications and the industrial quarter on the east bank of the Rhine were the main targets, the air ministry said, and one large building was seen "to disintegrate under the impact of heavy bombs."

Two other factories were left burning furiously. Other fires were started alongside a railroad.

Cologne ranks as a highly important part of Germany's war setup, with munitions factories, oil plants and blast furnaces. The Rhine River, together with canals and railways, makes the city a vital transportation centre.

Last night's attack was the 62nd the R.A.F. has made on Cologne. No aircraft were lost in the night's activities, which also included attacks on oil storage tanks and three airdromes in the Low Countries.

Pay and allowances for those in training will be on the same basis as prevailing for members of the active army forces, but a recruit who marries subsequent to the time of reporting at a basic training centre will not be eligible to claim dependent's allowance for his wife.

Wants Girl Let In

TORONTO, March 21.—(CP)—G. C. Elgie, defence counsel for AC. H. A. W. (Bill) Newell, charged with murder in connection with the death of his wife, said today he would fight an order under which Elna Lehto, Newell's friend, was not allowed to see him in jail.

Crown Attorney James W. Fadden, who directed the prosecution of Newell's first trial which ended in a jury disagreement last Saturday night, said he had issued the order.

Don jail officials said Newell was placed in solitary confinement yesterday when he objected to the food being served him.

Conchies Under Fire

LONDON, March 21 (CP)—A government plan to put conscientious objectors to work under fire was announced today. The "Conchies," as they are called, will be called up for civil defence jobs such as fire watching, rescue work and police duty.

The plan is included in a bill amending the national service act which seeks power for the government to draft, for the upkeep of a full time nucleus of a 300,000 civil defence force, men who have been registered for military service. The necessary number probably will be drawn from the 35-41 age groups.

pids section of the St. Lawrence river. The cost of this is estimated at $266,170,000.

Counter balancing Canadian expenditures already made on the Welland canal link in the deep waterway, the United States agrees to provide funds for all the international rapids work "except machinery and equipment for the development of power and works required for rehabilitation on the Canadian side of the boundary."

Congress was not of one mind on the proposal and even before it came formally before the legislators were aligning themselves with the agricultural and industrial interests of their respective sections.

Senator Styles Bridges (Rep., New Hampshire) expressed fear that the north-eastern ports might lose trade through a deepwater connection between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic. Midwesterners spoke of possible dangers in diversion of lake waters. Old controversies on the public-vs.-private-power and the rail-vs. - water-transportation questions were also involved.

Much Already Spent

Costs also were a factor.

Canada spent $130,000,000 in the Welland Canal development.

Although not provided for in the agreement, New York State was expected to pay about $90,000,000 out of the $266,170,000 on the International Rapids section for the increased power.

Canada agreed to construct its share of the works in the International Rapids section, to operate and maintain the works in Canadian territory, and to complete, not later than December 31, 1948, the essential Canadian links in the deep waterway.

The two governments agreed, however, that the period within which the waterway links are to be completed may be changed by mutual agreement to meet the requirements of continuance of war conditions or of defence.

To complete the entire deep waterway project will require works in addition to those immediately planned in the International Rapids section.

These involve improvement of navigation channels both below and above the International Rapids section to provide a waterway accommodating vessels of 27 feet draft through the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence system from Lake Superior to Montreal.

With the $266,170,000 outlay on the International Rapids section, the $130,000,000 already spent by Canada on the Welland Canal, and other previous expenditures by both Governments on various works, the cost of the whole development was estimated reliably at about $540,000,000.

In addition to the International Rapids project, the United States agreed to complete the works in the Great Lakes system above Lake Erie required to create necessary links in the deep waterway not later than the date of completion of the essential Canadian links.

Some Other Hookups

Other provisions of the agreement include:

Establishment of a joint Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Basin commission of 10 members to direct the project.

That each country may install in its own territory machinery and equipment for development of power at such times as may best meet its power requirements and that, except for the water which Ontario plans to divert from the Albany watershed into the Great Lakes Basin, each may utilize one-half the natural flow of the water available for power purposes in the International Rapid section of the river.

That the flow of the water shall be controlled and regulated so as to protect the navigable depths in Montreal harbor and the navigable channel of the St. Lawrence below Montreal, and to maintain facilities for 14-foot navigation during the construction period.

That either government may construct at its own cost alternative canal and channel facilities for navigation within its own territory and maintain existing rights of navigation in both the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence.

Diversion of Water

That either country diverting waters into the Great Lakes system from other watersheds lying wholly within its borders shall have exlusive right to the use of equivalent amounts of water for power below the port of entry, so long as it constitutes a part of boundary waters.

That if any diversion of water from the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence system other ir greater than diversions permitted in either country on Jan. 1, 1940, is authorized, the government of such country will give immediate considerations to any representations from the other country. In event no settlement is reached the matter will be submitted to arbitration.

Preservation and enhancement of the scenic beauty of the Niagara Falls and River and for the most beneficial use of the waters of that river.

On this, the new basin commission is to prepare for works designed to distribute and control waters of the Niagara to prevent erosion and to insure at all seasons unbroken crest lines on both the American and Canadian falls. The construction of these works will be arranged by an exchange of notes.

Upon their completion, each country would authorize an additional diversion at the rate of 5,000 cubic feet of water per second for power purposes within its borders.

The Niagara River.

After exhaustive tests, the commission also is to recommend for the best and most equitable use of the waters of the Niagara River, with particular reference to preservation of the scenic beauty of the famous Falls and Rapids, the requirements of navigation and power.

By an exchange of notes and concurrent legislation, the two countries then may determine the methods of carrying out these purposes.

Each country assumes responsibility for the acquisition of lands or interests in lands in its own territory for the whole Great Lakes-St. Lawrence development.

Administration officials said the new St. Lawrence plan was similar to that presented by a joint board in 1926 and that embraced in the 1932 treaty which lost in th Senate in 1934 by 46 votes for and 42 votes against, far short of the necessary two-thirds.

But they declared the agreement and the project as a whole were superior to the earlier ones in many respects.

President Roosevelt's message indicated that he would request approving legislation, perhaps in the form of a concurrent resolution requiring only a majority vote in each House, in addition to a request for the necessary appropriations.

The War Today

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Yugoslavia was reported to-day to have yielded to German pressure and offered, in a limited way, to accede to Axis demands for passage of war supplies and ambulance trains, but not troops. The immediate reaction was a threat by three Cabinet ministers to resign and their forecast that serious internal disorders could be expected.

The dissident Cabinet ministers probably are right, for the Yugoslavs, Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes, natural foes of Germany, are noted for their love of freedom, their belligerency and their courage.

Regent Prince Paul, a brother of Alexander, the former King who was assassinated at Marseille in 1934, appeared to have yielded because his country was surrounded on all sides except the south by the Axis armies.

Nevertheless the situation was not entirely clear, for Belgrade reports to-day said 1,000,000 men in the Yugoslav army remained mobilized and noisy air exercises were continued over the capital.

Greek quarters were surprised by the reported Yugoslav surrender, for, they said, they had been assured only a few days ago that the Crown Council would take no immediate action on Axis demands.

The sudden turnabout, if it actually has occurred, probably indicates that the Crown Council was threatened with some dire punishment, such as invasion by Germany, unless it surrendered.

The purpose of the German demands, presumably, was to pave the way for an expedition to help the collapsing Italian forces in Albania, but there were indications that the effort may be too late.

The Italians, fleeing before their enraged Greek enemies, were reported today to be "disintegrating."

The Greeks smashed at them with such fury that they had finally to fall back, leaving on the field, among others, a cousin of the Duce, one Lt.-Col. Tuvier Ciglio.

Few Outstanding Canadians Are Needed To Bolster Cabinet Senator Fallis Tells Tory Women

Touching briefly upon legislation in the present session, the St. Lawrence Waterway, the forthcoming plan, Senator Iva Campbell Fallis addressed a large gathering at the annual meeting of the Women's Conservative Association on Thursday afternoon in the Paragon Hall.

Speaking upon National Government, Senator Fallis referred to the great amount of controversy taking place recently both in the press and in Parliament on the subject of National Government, and stated her own personal opinion, which, she said, "Is also the opinion, I think, held by Mr. Hanson and most of the Conservative members at Ottawa."

"Personally, I have no desire to see a Union Government formed by taking into the present administration the leaders of the various Opposition groups in Parliament, plus enough more of the elected representatives to form a politically balanced Union Government," she said. "I believe that Mr. Hanson and others can perform a greater service to the country at this time by providing an alert Opposition, carefully and conscientiously scrutinizing all legislation and all expenditure, and bringing to the attention of the country shortcomings and extravagance as they encounter it."

Serious Days.

"On the other hand, I believe, in common with many thousands of Canadian electors, that these days are much too serious for the policy and future destiny of our country to be controlled by a Government composed entirely of members of one political party, some, at least, of whom are extremely partisan in their outlook," declared the speaker.

"The people returned the Liberal Party to power at the last election. Technically, they have a right to continue as they are now doing. But if they would rise to the heights where they would place the united effort of the people of this Dominion in one prosecution of the war ahead of party politics, there is only one course to follow. That would be to bring into their Government a few outstanding Canadians from outside the ranks of the Liberal Party, and outside the House of Commons. They should be men chosen for their ability and experience, men who would make a real contribution to the needs of the hour, and who would not be swayed by partisan considerations. No other single step the Government could take would do so much to unite the people behind them and inspire confidence," Senator Fallis stated.

46 Per Cent. Against Government.

"After all, the Government should bear in mind that in spite of their preponderance of elected members, 46 per cent. of the vote cast in the recent election was against the Government and its war policy," the speaker reminded. "Now the Government says in effect to this 46 per cent., 'Give your sons and your husbands; give your money without stint; make every sacrifice possible —but don't expect to have any say as to how these sons are to be equipped and looked after, or as to how your money will be spent.'

"If the Government wish to continue this policy, that is their responsibility, but we will never have the same unity of spirit and purpose in Canada under that policy that they have in England, where every shade of political opinion is represented in the Cabinet.

What About Churchill?

"They talk about having the majority of the people with them — was there ever a leader who had back of him more unanimous public support than the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill when he assumed office? And yet one of his first acts as Prime Minister was to give important Cabinet portfolios to representatives of Labor. Positions of responsibility are entrusted to Liberal, Labor and Conservative alike, and as a consequence we have the magnificent unanimity of the British people, rising as one soul with one fixed purpose always before them. Would that we in Canada could rise to these heights."

Mrs. Fallis declared that Conservatives in Canada to-day have not only an obligation to their party, but a duty to their country in building up their part and making it once more a power in the country. "Few wartime administrations survive in the peace that follows. In all probability this Government will be no exception. Conservatives should begin now to prepare themselves to be in a position to take over if the occasion arises. Otherwise, the administration of the affairs of our country might easily fall into the hands of the minority groups, which would be detrimental to stability and good government," Senator Fallis warned. "While war work and war interests come first in all our hearts and lives," she said, "let us not lose sight of one part we must be prepared to play after the war is over."

Salvage Campaign.

Mrs. J. Cridland, president of the association, was in the chair for the meeting, and stressed the importance of the Salvage Campaign, asking the women of Peterborough to consider it their duty and privilege to assist, sugesting the slogan from now on, "We Will Never Waste Again."

A telegram received from Gordon K. Fraser, Federal member, contained good wishes, and expressed regret that he and Mrs. Fraser were unable to be present at the meeting. Expressions of sympathy were voted by members present toward those who are sick and bereaved.

Senator Fallis took the chair for the election of officers, as follows:

Honorary presidents, Senator Iva C. Fallis, Mrs. G. S. Cameron, Mrs. J. F. Strickland, Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser; honorary vice-president, Mrs. J. Mills; president, Mrs. J. Cridland; 1st vice-president, Mrs. F. Skinner; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. H. M. Wilson; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. W. Hughes; treasurer, Mrs. R. G. Cottrell; secretary, Mrs. R. E Clarke; ward captains, North, Mrs. H. Staunton; centre, Mrs. Pickering; west, Mrs. J. Mills, Mrs. Pogue; south, Mrs. S. Fisher; east, Mrs. D. Miller; Claraday, Mrs. W. H. Andrews.

terest charges will impose some burden on the budgets after the war but it will be far from an intolerable burden.

The minister was giving a carefully-prepared answer to questions from Social Credit members as to how the government proposed to repay the war loans, War Savings Certificates and other debts being contracted in the securing of money to carry on the war.

He said the burden of interest charges would probably make it desirable to reduce the debt out of revenue, but any undue taxation for this purpose might be definitionary The pre-war system of taxation was being improved in order to distribute tax burdens more equitably and he believed Canada would have a fairer tax system after the war.

"We shall have to see to it that we do not discriminate against enterprises requiring the bold assumption of risks by comparison with others," he said.

"I think properly designed taxes will enable us to meet our obligations both financial and social without inhibiting the constructive and venturesome action upon which our economic progress will depend."

Just before adjournment Mr. Ilsley introduced a supplementary estimate for $35,000,000, to cover the cost of the government's wheat acreage reduction program in the coming year. Out of it will be made payments to western farmers for acreage they take out of wheat production and put to summer fallow or seed to coarse grains, rye, clover or grass.

Munitions Minister Howe, on a bill to amend the Trans-Canada Air Lines Act, reviewed the progress of the government-owned airway and explained how it was possible to reduce the rate charged the post office department for mail carriage from 64 to 40 cents per mile, after March 31.

Mail Increases

He said mileage operated and mail carried was steadily increasing. At the 40-cent rate the Post Office department would just about break even on the sale of airmail stamps during the coming fiscal year, after that it could expect to make a profit.

Resources Minister Crerar said the British government was fully aware of the willingness of Canada to take all the British children it wished to send here but the decision on whether last summer's movement of children across the Atlantic should be resumed rested with the British government.

It was a question whether it would be safer to keep the children at home under the perils of air raids or send them across the sea in the face of the submarine menace.

Mr. Ilsley gave the House this brief picture of Canada's financial position in the post-war world:—

"There will be periods of prosperity when we can expect to reduce our debts out of our current revenues. Indeed, such action would be a sensible way of preventing a runaway boom rather than attempting to check it by raising interest rates.

"It would most certainly be a defeatist view to assume that we must expect no prosperity after the war. Indeed it is reasonable to anticipate a better international economic order to result from the victory of our cause.

Every Advantage Here.

"We in Canada have the industrial capacity and skill to take advantage of the opportunities that such a world will offer."

Federal revenues now are coming in at the rate of $900,000,000 a year, the minister said. This would increase even without an increase in the rate of taxation.

Debate of the war appropriation resolution ended with some bickering as to whether it was unduly prolonged and, if so, who was resonsible.

Three Liberal members, Capt. Leslie Mutch of Winnipeg South, Olof Hanson of Skeena and Rev. Daniel McIvor of Fort William, protested that time was being wasted. Gordon Graydon (Con. Peel) blamed this on the way the government had presented its explanation of the bill and Conservative House Leader Hanson complained that the Opposition had to dig information out of the government bit by bit.

Defence Minister Ralston said no blame could be attached to anyone for the length of time taken, since the Opposition had a right to seek information form the government. But he said the government accepted no responsibility for the course the discussion had followed. The government had adopted the same procedure as was followed by Sir Robert Borden with war appropriation bills in the First Great War, he said, recalling that in 1917 the bill was passed in six days.

New Plane Detector

LISBON, Portugal, Mar. 21 — (AP). — Homeward-bound United States army officers who were stationed in Britain as observers said to-day the British defenders now are able to detect Nazi warplanes by short wave radio as they take off on the Continent and keep them located as they fly to attack Britain.

9 Main Features In Joint Seaway Plan

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP) —The joint United States-Canada engineering board which drafted the plan embodied in the agreement to develop the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway, listed the following as its main features:

1. A control dam in the vicinity of Iroquois Point.

2. A dam in the Long Sault Rapids at the head on Barnhart Island, two power houses, one on either side of the international boundary, at the foot of Barnhart Island.

3. A side canal, with one lock on the United States mainland to carry navigation around the control dam and a side canal, with one guard gate and two locks, on the United States mainland south of Barnhart Island to carry navigation from above the main Long Sault dam to a river south of Cornwall Island. All locks to provide 30-foot depth of water on the nitre sills and to be of the general dimensions of those on the Welland Ship Canal. All navigation channels to be excavated to 27-foot depth.

4. Dykes, where necessary, on the United States and Canadian sides of the international boundary, to retain the pool level above the Long Sault dam.

5. Channel enlargement from the head of Galop Island to below Lotus Island designed to give a maximum velocity in the navigation channel south of Galop Island not exceeding four feet a second at any time.

6. Channel enlargement between Lotus Island and the control dam and from above point three points to below Ogden Island designed to give a maximum mean velocity in any cross-section not exceeding 2½ feet a second with the flow, and at the stage, to be permitted on January 1 of any year, under regulation of outflow and levels of Lake Ontario.

7. The necessary railroad and highway modifications on either side of the international boundary.

8. The necessary works to permit the continuous of 14-foot navigation on the Canadian side around the control dam and from the pool above the Long Sault dam to connect with the existing Cornwall canal.

9. The rehabilitation of the towns of Iroquois and Morrisburg, Ontario.

All the works in the pool below the control dam shall be designed to provide for full Lake Ontario level but initially the pool shall be operated at maximum elevation 238.0.

A steamship, four smaller boats and a freight shed on the Burigunga River and many shops in the town were set ablaze.

KOENIGSBERG, Germany—(AP) —Taking a drink leaning against a bar of a restaurant or saloon is now a punishable offence in East Prussia.

Land, Tax Sale Bill Advances

TORONTO, March 21. — (CP) — The Ontario Legislature gave second reading Wednesday to a bill which confirms sales of lands for tax arrears by municipalities, prior to January 1, 1940, despite vigorous opposition by Conservative members.

Leslie Frost (Con., Victoria) asked that the bill be allowed to stand over, claiming an injustice might occur if hasty action was taken. In some cases land sold for taxes had never been advertised or put up at public auction. He contended tax sales should not be confirmed until at least three years after the sale.

FRIDAY MARCH 21, 1941

Making Her Contribution

We have met men who claim some of the stocks they hold have not been doing for them what they hoped for during the war period. The earnings are not quite as good as they were in times of peace. They had expected a great deal, and not getting it, they are disappointed.

Against that we consider for the moment the case of the old lady now living in the Swansea (Wales) municipal flats. She was present when Their Majesties visited some of the bombed sections, and her greeting was:

"I am bombed out and have lost everything, Your Majesties. God bless you both. God bless England.

There is something in that spirit which explains better than it can be done in any other way why Germany cannot defeat Britain. Everything gone that had material value; home gone and all that was in it; living in premises provided by the municipality, and yet her comment: "God bless England."

In expressing that feeling the old lady was making her entire contribution. She had nothing which she could give to helpalong the war funds, for of funds she had none at all; there was little or nothing she could do in the way of service in various organizations, for her years are far spent and her strength would not be great. But from we might call her apparent nothingness and poverty she was able to contribute something which is indeed great, uplifting, full-freighted in its sincerity and emphatic in its sincerity: "God bless England."

Keren Becomes Important

Where is Keren? That is another question raised by the rapidity with which war has been moving in Africa. Keren is in East Africa, in the Italian colony of Eritrea, which has an area of 45,800 square miles and a population of 450,000. We know the weather there is for the most part desperately hot, and yet there is good pasture for cattle, sheep and goats. Camels are numerous.

Keren comes to the front now because the British on that front are striking for quick victory and nothing less. There is time for a stalemate in the Balkans, but there is nothing like that on the Keren front. Its importance is two-fold.

The rainy season is not more than a few weeks away, and during that period military operations are pretty much out of the question, and Britain is anxious to clean up there before the rain. After the rain comes intense heat, so right now is the time and there is not much of it. Certainly none to waste.

The fall of Keren would release considerable British air power which could be transferred to Greece; it would also permit the withdrawal of seasoned troops for the same destination.

That is why this hitherto unimportant Keren comes so boldly to the front in the day's news. A good deal depends on the British being able to drive through there and put an end to Italian influence and military strength.

The Rent Control Board

People with problems on their hands today turn to the Government for redress. They do it probably because the Government has encouraged such action. When houses became scarce in communities where large numbers of people had been attracted by reason of war work there was a tendency to increase rents. The tenants complained and the Government named a rent controller, and he has wide powers. Boards have been set up in a number of communities, and if one follows the cases presented there it will be found that there has to be sufficient justification to raise rents and have the increase sanctioned.

Peterborough has had no Board named yet, but there have been a number of requests forwarded to the civic authorities and also to Ottawa. Possibly in all the requests number thirty or forty. No action has been taken—yet.

Admittedly we know little enough of the details of the various cases, but one thing is quite certain. Just this: If there are more complaints made the Rent Controller will step in and take charge of the situation. We are assured that is just where the situation stands at the moment.

We are not discussing the question of a fair return on an investment, or the fact that certain properties may have been rented for less than usual in recent years. Just the plain fact that if the increasing of rents is continued it will be regarded as an invitation to have a Rent Control Board operating in Peterborough.

The Late John Comstock

The death of John Comstock takes from the business, social and church life of Peterborough a man whose name was woven in the fabric of the community. His father started business here in 1850, and it was that business, enlarged and expanded, over which John Comstock presided. In this age of change there are few businesses which bear the family name for so long a time.

John Comstock lived a natural life; he liked to meet people; he was fond of discussing events old and new; he made full use of the great outdoor district in our lakes territory. He enjoyed to the full his association with the people he knew so well. His last illness was of short duration, and many of the closest friends were unaware of its serious nature. To them news of his passing came as not only a shock but with that feeling of personal loss, which in itself is about as sincere a compliment as one can pay to any citizen.

Worth-While Tag Day

Peterborough will have something on Saturday which it has never had before —a tag day for the Greek War Relief Fund, which operates under the War Charities Act, and that fact alone gives it standing which cannot be questioned.

Events of recent months have placed Greece and her people in a strong position. Definitely allies of British; fighting now on the same ground and fighting a common enemy.

The armies of Greece, a nation which never professed or claimed to be militaristic, have done something which one could well say could not be done. They have turned back utterly the invaders from their own lands, and they have carried the war into one of positive and successful attack, and they have inflicted defeat upon the Italians to a degree comparable only to the drubbing which the British army of the Nile inflicted on them in Africa.

So when we help the Greek cause on Saturday we are actually helping our active Ally.

It Seems Reasonable

The Fish and Game Committee of the Ontario Legislature heard a recommendation made by the Essex County Sportsmen's Association, and it had nothing whatever to do with the usual routine. It concerned those who claimed exemption from military service on the ground of being conscientious objectors.

The contention was that if these people objected to carrying and using guns in time of war for the defence of their country, then they should not be allowed to have access to weapons for the purpose of shooting game. If they were so particular about not desiring to take a human life, then that same trait should be extended to include the lives of animals and birds.

It is a matter which might be argued at length, but at first glance it would seem the Essex county people had brought forth something with a point to it which can hardly be overlooked. A man with a sensitive conscience could hardly object to having its sensitive functions spread over the whole category of life, human or otherwise.

Came As a Surprise

Possibly it came as a surprise to most Canadian people that the St. Lawrence Seaway agreement between Canada and United States had been so suddenly signed. Our House of Commons has just passed the war appropriations bill of $1,300,000,000, and that is a stupendous amount for this young land; nor is it the end. We know well enough that such figure does not represent all our effort, and we had been under the impression that nothing else mattered at the moment. The war came first.

We doubt very much if any expenditure on the St. Lawrence project can be classed as having a direct bearing on the winning of the war. It is something on which the people nave never had a chance even remotely of expressing an opinion.

The announcement that work will be started immediately is something which has in it an element of surprise particularly after having read in the debates at Ottawa from day to day about the trouble in securing skilled help and materials of all sorts. A project of that sort could much better be considered during a period similar to that through which we passed a few years ago when work was badly needed, and when there was not such an insistent demand for materials of all descriptions. Meantime we shall take that announcement about work being started at once with reservations because the direct war effort takes precedence above all else. The war will not wait and the St. Lawrence development can.

A Father's Hard Task

A coroner's jury was gathered together at Kitchener to hear evidence regarding the death of Alcide Gauthier, 31, in a car accident. If there was one distressed witness it was the father of the dead man, George Gauthier, who had been driving the car at the time of the accident.

The story was that father and son had taken out a used car which had been purchased only the day before. The son drove it at such speed that the father finally took the wheel. The son had been drinking and was in no condition to drive. When they approached a curve in the road the son, desiring more speed, put his foot over on the accelerator and grabbed at the steering wheel, and then the fatal spill came. The report includes this brief passage:

"I hate to say it, but it was my son's fault," said Gauthier, tears filling his eyes. "It was the first time I ever saw him like that."

It must have been a desperately difficult moment for that father to stand up and explain that his son was drunk beside him, and that his drunken conduct had caused him to loose his own life.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Plane with a spread of 195 feet and weighing 200,000 pounds is to be made in California. The idea is to carry battleships across the Atlantic in a hurry.

Rome reports two earthquakes, with the epicentre in the Balkans, and for once there seems to be truth in the claim from that city.

Maple syrup made in 1941 has been offered for sale on the market at London, Ont. The running season in 1941 started rather early, first start being in Libya by the Italians.

United States does not intend to just go in paddling. It looks as though Uncle Sam's clothing had been tossed on the bank when he headed in off the deep end.

Japan announces a process for making gasoline from sardines. That should not be much more difficult than causing all the sardines to lie so close together in a can.

German minister prayed that the Turks might be spared from the miseries of war. The one sure way to bring that to pass would be for the Germans to go home and mind their own business.

What is going to become of Morrisburg on the St. Lawrence? According to the plans for the St. Lawrence Waterways scheme the place will be flooded, in which case it would seem advisable for the residents to move out.

Three airmen from Fingal were in a taxi when it jumped the ditch, broke off a power line pole, went through a wire fence and stopped in a farm field. After which the three got out unhurt, having made what is called a perfect three-point landing.

Robert F. Rich, Republican Representative for Pennsylvania, has asked the House for a vote of $5,000,000 for "ten red-blooded Americans to go over and get Hitler." On the face of it the scheme looks strange, but if it could be accomplished at that price it would be the world's best investment.

PREFERENCE

(By A.R.K.)

¶ I heard the music as it came, it ironed the troubles from my mind, it took the kinks from out my frame, it was indeed the peaceful kind. I watched the men blow many horns, I marvelled how they knew each note, 'twas like the coming of the morn, the lapping water on the boat.

¶ And then when they were done and through, I kept on watching them some more, I noted all they had to do, the cases, boxes, on the floor. The man who had the big bass horn would need a tent to house the thing, upon his neck 'twould grow a corn, it weighed like woollen wear in spring.

¶ The man who beat upon the drum he needed help at closing time, he waited for his friend to come to ease the load from off his spine. The man who sawed the big bass viol he wrapped a shroud about his pet, upon his face there parked no smile, instead he oozed great drops of sweat.

¶ If I were playing in the band I'd like to choose my instrument, I'd have the people understand I am a rather lazy gent. I'd blow upon the piccolo and toot a very pretty air, and when they ended up the show I'd drop it in my pocket there.

Debating Gets Small Grist On Certain Days

From Parliamentary Hansard

Mr. EDWARDS: Mr. Chairman, on Monday, March 10, the hon. member for Bow River (Mr. Johnston) in the course of his remarks on this resolution made a statement which will be found at pages 1513-14 of Hansard, with respect to a vital and important part of the war effort initiated by this government, namely, the war savings certificates campaign. His statement was grossly misleading and falsely represented the stand and position, with respect to the war savings certificates campaign, of the members of the Independent group comprising the official opposition in the Alberta legislature, which is now in session. The hon. member, either in his ignorance of the facts, or else with the deliberate intention of placing a false face upon the facts of the case, stated—

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, I should like to know what the hon. member is reading from.

Mr. EDWARDS: I am reading from my notes.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, the hon. member is imputing motives. He said that I deliberately placed a false face upon the facts. I demand that he withdraw that statement. I deliberately imputed motives to no one.

Mr. EDWARDS: In order that the record may be absolutely straight I will repeat what I said. The hon. member either—or if he is Irish, ayther—in his ignorance, I say, of the facts or else with deliberate intention of placing a false face upon the facts of the case, stated—

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): I would ask you, Mr. Chairman, to give a ruling on that word "deliberate." That is definitely imputing motives to a member of this house, and I demand that the hon. member withdraw that word and erase it from his notes.

The ACTING CHAIRMAN (Mr. Fournier, Hull): I suggest that the hon. member withdraw the word "deliberate," which is against standing order 41, paragraph 298 of Beauchesne's Parliamentary Rules and Forms.

Mr. EDWARDS: I would bow to your ruling, Mr. Chairman, if there was no alternative, but my remarks were prefaced with the statement that the hon. member was "either ignorant of the facts" or else speaking with the deliberate intention of placing a false face upon them. I would like to believe, sir, that he was ignorant of the facts, and I believe that when I have finished he will admit that he was ignorant of the facts of the case when he spoke to this house on March 10.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, I ask that your ruling be enforced and that your ruling be enforced and that your ruling be enforced and that there be an unconditional withdrawal of the word "deliberate."

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver Centre): It was withdrawn.

The ACTING CHAIRMAN (Mr. Fournier, Hull): I believe that the last statement of the hon. member was in order. His statement was to the effect that the hon. member was ignorant of the facts.

Mr. COLDWELL: Do we understand, Mr. Chairman, that the objectionable statement was withdrawn?

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver Centre): It was withdrawn.

Mr. COLDWELL: Then that is all right.

Mr. FAIR: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, I believe that the hon. member for Calgary West said "if there was no alternative." That is not an unconditional withdrawal. Even if he is a Liberal, he should have no more rights than other members.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): According to your ruling, Mr. Chairman, the hon. member should withdraw unconditionally.

The ACTING CHAIRMAN (Mr. Fournier, Hull): I understood that the hon. member did withdraw.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): He did not say so.

The ACTING CHAIRMAN (Mr. Fournier, Hull): I would suggest that the hon. member withdraw his statement.

Mr. EDWARDS: Just what is it that I am desired to withdraw—my whole statement?

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): Mr. Chairman, the words "deliberately" and "intentionally" should be withdrawn.

Mr. EDWARDS: I quite readily withdraw "deliberate" if that is what is objected to.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): Also "intentionally."

Mr. EDWARDS: I assume that the hon. member intends what he says.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): I was giving the facts.

Mr. HANSON (York-Sunbury): Mr. Chairman, I think the hon. member should be allowed to proceed.

The ACTING CHAIRMAN (Mr. Fournier, Hull): I would ask the hon. gentleman to proceed with his remarks.

TOO EASY DIVORCE?

Divorce is becoming altogether too free and easy in Ontario, thinks Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier, who is disgusted with the tricks attempted by some of the applicants.

We don't want divorces in Ontario to get down to the dime-a-dozen level. Leave that to Reno.—Windsor Star.

IF ANY?

"One, and six you owe me. Make it two bob and I'll tell your fortune."

—London Daily Herald.

• The Day of the Gentiles

EDITOR EXAMINER: Sir,—Apparently "Subscriber" somehow got the impression from my letter of objection to British-Israelism that I questioned the inspiration of scripture, especially the O.T. May I hasten to assure him that on this I stand shoulder to shoulder with him, accepting all the Bible as the infallibly-inspired word of God.

Again, I fully agree that from the time of I Kings 12 to the Captivities there is a clear distinction drawn between the ten-tribed Israel and the two-tribed Judah.

But I sharply disagree with "Subscriber's" claim that that distinction prevailed after the return from the Babiyonian Captivity. The N.T. frequently uses the term "Israel" to include all twelve tribes. Paul says he was "of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin." Again in Rom. 9:4, 5, he refers to "my kinsmen according to the flesh who are Israelites." In the same passage we read that of Israel Christ came, yet from Heb. 7:14 we learn that "our Lord sprang out of Judah." Again: Paul speaks of "our twelve tribes," and James wrote his epistle "To the twelve tribes scattered abroad." At Pentecost Peter began his address thus: "Ye men of Judah," and a few moments later said, "Ye men of Israel," and as a climax, cries out, "Let all the house of Israel know assuredly that God hath made this same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." Are we to believe that Peter, in mentioning Judah is thinking of the two tribes, and only of the ten when speaking of Israel? If so, then only the members of the ten tribes crucified our Lord. We know that this contradicts the facts.

In I Cor. 10 the inspired Apostle divides the human race into "Jews, Gentiles and Church of God." Why doesn't he mention Israelites? Surely if he had been informed of the important distinction between these and the Jews he would have included them.

"Israel is swallowed up: now they shall be among the Gentiles as a vessel wherein is no pleasure." "O, Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself." "The children of Israel shall abide many days without a king." "Blindness in part is happened unto Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in." How absurd to apply these passages to Britain! If they could be made to fit it would only serve to show that Britain is under Divine disfavor.

In conclusion, permit me to point out that since the Cross Israel and Judah are terms that apply to one and the same people, the natural posterity of Abraham, and that this people have been definitely set aside until the second coming of Christ, and in the meantime God is "visiting the Gentiles to take out of them a people for His Name,"—the church, which is the body of Christ.

If Mr. "Subscriber" objects to this may I ask him to explain the above scriptures.

C. ERNEST TATHAM.

Lakefield, March 20.

MAN'S WOODPILE

A MAN'S WOODPILE is one of those precious, time - defying links with the pioneering past. On the farms where oil and coal are used, the farmer still gets up a woodpile for the fireplace.

Splitting wood is an artist's work. Each block has its individuality. There are knots and curves in the grain. One imagines how the rail-splitters of earlier days studied their logs before setting the wedges.

Hour by hour, day by day, the woodpile shrinks. At one side are the small pieces for the kitchen stove; another pile has the pieces for the fireplace. The third has the largest, knotty chunks for the furnace.

Before spring's work starts, the wood is stacked in the shed to dry for the cold months after a season of growth and harvest has passed. A woodpile, too, is a tangible, satisfying harvest. — Christian Science Monitor.

SLIGHT DIFFERENCE

A WOMAN whose husband had joined the Navy gave a note to the minister the following Sunday. The note said: 'Mr. Tom Smith, having gone to sea, his wife requests that the congregation pray for his safety."

The minister was nearsighted and as he read aloud, the congregation heard: "Mr. Tom Smith, having gone to see his wife, requests that the congregation pray for his safety."—Prairie Messenger.

NOT SO BAD

ACTIVE OLD LADY

ON her ninety-ninth birthday Mrs. Lilian Halle heard an incendiary bomb crash through the roof of her house in Chesterton Road, Ladbroke Grove. Though alone she carried sand and water to the top of the house and put them on the bomb. She kept the flames in check and sought help only when a ceiling fell on her. "Had it not been for the old lady's bravery," a neighbor said, "the whole place would have been burned down." Mrs. Halle, who was a friend of Florence Nightingale, has been three times round the world in her husband's ship and has crossed part of the Sahara on a camel. She has now been bombed three times.—London Times, Jan. 22.

CHANGING OPINION

AN important shift in American attitude toward Japan has occurred in the last month, according to the Gallup poll.

Whereas in February the predominant sentiment was against risking war with Japan, today that is not the case.

Today the group willing to risk war is slightly greater numerically than the group opposed to gambling on a war in the Orient.—Minneapolis Star Journal.

And being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way. And when they were departed, behold, the angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him.

When he arose, he took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt: and was there until the death of Herod: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Out of Egypt have I called my son.—Matt. 2: 11-15.

London Takes Life In Its Stride With Death Above Constantly

By SAM ROBERTSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

OTTAWA, March 21—(CP)—Only a few seconds separated the banshee wail of London's air raid sirens and the sinister drone of airplane motors that told you German bombers were overhead.

There was no escaping the realization that a hatch in the belly of one of the planes might already have opened to aim a high explosive at the old stone building you were approaching.

An historic landmark, steeped in England's rich history, it was one of the secret meeting places of parliament.

But there was the thought that the jealously-guarded secret somehow might have reached Germany—that the sprawling structure was the objective of Nazis that day.

But no bomb fell. The A.A. rifles became silent after sending a dozen rounds into the clear.

House Carries On

During those few moments when death hung directly overhead, the members of parliament had carried on with their deliberations. When you entered the chamber they were still carrying on, patiently listening to a back-bencher expound his theory on how Britain's system of convoying ships might be improved.

The scene was important in that it was symbolic of the way in which the Old Country is getting "on with the show" even in the face of danger.

It was not that way early in the Battle of Britain. Last September when the Nazis opened their campaign of aerial terror, and even on into the fall, the sound of an air raid siren froze a great deal of normal activity.

The long months during which the Old Country folk have lived under bombs have changed that. The choice usually rests with the employee but few of them go to shelter during day raids. The "show" must go on.

In day raids the planes may fly six or more miles high and the roar of their motors may not be audible on the ground. People in the street would not know they were overhead but for the trail of vapor which pours from the plane's exhaust and draws billowing patterns against the sky.

People may pause on the street to gaze at the patterns, but if they do it is only briefly. Then they get on with their shopping or whatever their mission may be.

Take Life In Stride

They do not regard themselves as heroes for going about their chores under the peril. They have adjusted themselves to it, or become accustomed to it. They take life in their stride much as they did before the floodgates of war were thrown open.

There are cases where they pay for it—with their lives. If a German airman is low enough and not under pursuit by a British fighter he may dip lower to rake the streets with machine gun fire.

Only a few days before I left England three Nazi pilots in Messerschmitt fighter-bombers swooped over the main shopping section of Newmarket.

The planes came over at mid-afternoon, when the streets were heavy with housewives and other shoppers. Machine-gun bullets and air-cannon shells screeched down. It was all over in a few seconds. When the scrambling and screaming had stopped almost 200 persons—most of them women, many of them children, sprawled grotesquely in death.

By no pull of imagination could that peaceful street have been classed as a military objective.

Bombs Fail To Halt Posties In Empire's Hub

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, March 21.—(CP)—A stick of bombs screams down in the night from a raider over blacked-out Britain. The high explosives demolish the business premises of John Blank and Sons.

Next day the postman on his rounds finds a heap of stone and brick where John Blank's building stood. But delivery of letters continues with the minimum of delay.

There have been many John Blank "incidents." Destruction of the Guildhall compelled many offices of the Corporation of the City of London to move. Scores of City firms were burned out in the fire-raising raid last Dec. 29, among them a famous eating house, Simpson's Fish Ordinary in Cheapside.

Change Of Address

But the postman with his letters for bomb victims gets there just the same. Here's how it's done.

Usually the day following a raid he will find a notice posted on a wall near the bombed-out premises, telling him of the victim's temporary addresses. When Blank and Sons or their fellow-sufferers, find new accommodation, they fill out a "redirection" form at the nearest Post Office. This gives their new address and telephone number. Mail and phone calls are then automatically forwarded.

(Britain's postal, telephone and telegraph services are publicly operated under control of the Postmaster-General, a government minister.)

Improvised measures also help to reduce delay. Heavy raids have wiped out whole blocks of buildings in London, Coventry and other cities. In one such case a group of bombed-out firms set up a joint outdoor bureau to handle incoming mail beside the barricade closing their street to traffic.

When a number of businesses in a single area is affected the Post Office promptly sticks up notices in the district asking the firms involved to fill out redirection forms as soon as possible.

Charred Letters

The tremendous City fire-raising raid last December confronted the Post Office with a series of major problems, apart from damage to their own City offices. Nearly 30 letter boxes (they call them pillar boxes in Britain) were buried under debris from buildings that collapsed. It took a week to dig them all out. Many letters were charred beyond salvage. Others were damaged but still legible. They were sorted out and delivered. Every letter and parcel was stamped "delayed by enemy action."

A Post Office safe with contents valued at £40,000 ($178,000) was retrieved from the wreckage of one office 12 days after the City fire raid. Though intense heat from the flames had played on the thick steel walls the treasury notes, postal order and stamps it contained were unscathed.

Sorting and delivery of letters proceeds in spite of enemy air raids. Sorters continue working through air raid "alerts" until tipped by roof spotters that planes are in the vicinity. The postman on his rounds also carries on until danger is imminent. Then he's expected to take shelter.

Mixed Jury Move Stirs Flurry In Ontario House

TORONTO, March 21.—The Ontario Legislature returned to the calm of the budget debate to-day after the contention provoked by a measure which would place women on juries. William Duckworth (Con. Toronto Dovercourt) will resume the debate which opened to-day.

An insurrection in the government ranks developed during second reading yesterday of a bill introduced by Attorney-General Gordon Conant to amend the Jurors' Act. Core of the trouble was the question of mixed courts.

Mr. Conant received support from a member of the Opposition, Leslie Frost (Con. Victoria) but encountered strong opposition from J. Anaclet Habel (Lib. Cochrane North) and Thomas P. Murray (Lib. Renfrew South.)

Mr. Habel said he didn't think the women had asked to sit on juries and he thought they should be shown more respect than be compelled to sit through the hearing of evidence which in some cases was "filthy."

He wanted to know what the mother of a large family would do with her children if she had to serve on a jury. In the rural riding which he represented, 80 per cent. of the women were against the measure, he declared.

Foresee Confusion.

Mr. Murray, who adjourned discussion on the bill opposed the measure because it would "bring confusion to the home and confusion to the court." Women, he continued, had enough work to do without having additional responsibilities to handle.

Mr. Conant, who termed the amendment "another step in the emancipation of women," saiad it had been recommended by a select committee which inquired into court administration in the province.

The presiding Judge was provided with wide powers as to the naming of a jury and determining the proportion of women and men on it. If necessary he could order a jury consisting solely of women or one comprising men only depending upon the nature of the evidence to be heard. In no case would a wife and husband be included on the same jury.

Contending the principle of the bill was good, Mr. Frost declared the only argument that could be advanced against it was based on prejudice.

Mr. Frost said that he was one of the members of the select committee and while he realized their recommendations were not perfect he thought the principle of women jurors was good.

In England and New York State the system had worked satisfactorily and in addition there was the endless argument of improving the quality of juries. Inclusion of women would help bring this about. He asked tht a free vote, outside of party lines, should be granted because of the wide diversion of opinion on the matter.

"Aren't you trying to force something on women they don't want?" queried R. G. Croome (Lib. Rainy River).

"I think the women appreciate an oppotrunity to participate in the administration of justice to this extent," replied Mr. Frost.

Can They Stand It?

"Do you think women could stand it," asked G. C. Elgie (Con. Toronto Woodbine).

"Well, we understand women will be working in the fields this summer," answered Mr. Frost.

Referring to the section whereby selectors of juries would have to take an oath as to their honesty of purpose, Mr. Frost said that if these selectors performed their duties in good faith good juries would inevitably result.

"As it is now everybody and his brother is exempted," he declared.

Col. F. Fraser Hunter (Lib. Toronto St. Patrick) said he objected to clause eight of the bill which authorized the presiding Judge to determine the make-up of the jury.

A Judge might be a "woman hater" in which case the women would be discriminated against, declared the counsel.

Hull Volants Hope To Romp Home With The Cup

By GORDON HEADLEY
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

OTTAWA, March 21.—Four years ago they called them "The Little Giant Killers." This season they strike out again on the Allan Cup trail and just what the future holds for them nobody seems to know.

Hull Volants, champions of the Ottawa and district, will carry this district's colors into the Allan Cup playdowns and perhaps they may go on to duplicate their amazing conquests of 1936-37 when they knocked off the Maritimes and then achieved the greatest upset of all by humiliating Quebec Aces, champions of the Quebec Senior league. There are a few faces left from that great team. Maybe Bob Guertin has landed another team of giant-killers. Time alone will tell the answer.

Volants are known to play their best hockey in the playoffs where the chips are down. That is one reason why hundreds of hockey fans in this district are convinced that the little black shirts are on the march again. They seem to be going better every time out since they started the City League playoffs, and if they succeed in hurdling the Martimes then it will be time to place the stamp of approval on them.

Have Experience

Experience is a great asset to any hockey club and Volants have it in large bundles. Jack Moussette, Pete Devine, Gene Sauvageau, Eddie Finnigan, Ab. Cholette, Bill Moran and Goalie Aurel Bordeleau are in this closs.

Moussette was one of the first players to bring hockey to France and he was the idol of thousands in the French metropolis 10 years ago when his style, and naturally his nationality and name, brought packed houses to see him play. Moussette is a right winger and centre, and fits in on a line with Sauvageau at centre and Jack Seymour on the other side.

Devine was in line to turn professional several years ago and that alone speaks for itself. He alternates with Sauvageau at centre on this shift. The tall blonde is a tricky stickhandler and one of the best players in the east.

Sauvageau needs no introduction to Ottawa and Hull hockey fans. Ever since he was able to lace on a pair of skates he has been playing hockey, and playing with some of the best teams around here. He is close to 35 years of age, but when the occasion demands it he can turn on the speed. He was rated as the fastest skater around here at one time.

Good Strategy

Guertin has placed his experienced men where they count most and that is right in the centre of each forward line. It's good strategy. Eddie Finnigan, former Ottawa professional, is the pivot on a second string flanked by Patsy Guzzo on the left side and Cholette on the other wing. Eddie is a brother of Frankie Finnigan, of Ottawa and Toronto N.H.L. teams and Eddie is a carbon copy of his brother. He skates exactly like Frankie, that free-swinging, deceptive style that makes defencemen fanning, so to speak, at something they just can't find to hit. Finnigan weighs abouts 165 pounds but he gets around very fast when he's needed.

Guzza is the speed merchant on this line with Cholette, one of the members of the 1936-37 champions, still packing the same deadly shot. Cholette didn't see much service at the start of this season but has come along by leaps and bounds, and today Coach Guertin places a whale of a lot of faith in the right winger.

Good Defence

Volants have Bill Moran on defence and the husky Irishman, standing about 5 ft. 11 inches, but weighing close to 200 pounds, is about as good a rushing defenceman and blocker one will find in amateur ranks.

Gordie Pantalone played with Brighton Tigers in the British Ice Hockey League three years ago and Moran was on the same club. Linus Morin, not particularly brilliant but a steady blocker, and Jack Charron, a big gent who must weigh all of 215 pounds and standing fully six feet, round out the rearguards. Charron is a policeman on the Hull force and he's capable of taking care of himself.

Aurel Bordeleau in goal completes the team and once again the note of experience is sounded here. Bordeleau played with Cornwall Flyers in the Quebec Senior Hockey league and with Harringay Racers in England before he came to Hull.

Coach Guertin sums up the team nicely. "I always feel better when I have a team of experienced men in the playoffs. When the club is in the tight corners the boys know how to take care of the situation. I have Seymour, Guzzo, Moussette and Sauvegeau who will skate with any of them. What more could anyone ask for on a hockey club?"

Peterborough's juvenile team lost their first game of the season in Lakefield last night when they were beaten 9 to 5 by a big and fast Regiopolis College team from Kingston in the first of home-and-home games in the O.H.A. playoff series.

It was a fast, tensely fought battle and the result was in doubt until the last ten minutes when the Petes tired a little and the Kingston kids ran in three goals to cinch the verdict. The winners led 4 to 1 at the end of the first period and 5 to 4 at the close of the second. Midway through the final period they were in front 6 to 5 with the Petes pressing but the Regiopolis team pulled away in the final ten minutes.

Kingston outskated and outshot the losers. On the other hand the Petes' teamwork and stickhandling were superior and the result the game was an interesting exhibition between two different systems.

There was not four goals difference between the two clubs on the night's play. The fast skating and aggressiveness of the Kingston team earned them a win, but not by that margin

Kingston's defence pair, Pearson and McCarney were sturdy and effective while up in front Sweetman was always a threat around the nets and Ashley and O'Connor showed a lot of speed and packed rifle shots. Most of the winners were fast afoot but they failed to combine as effectively as the Petes. Bill Huard, right-winger for the losers was outstanding. He performed the hat trick by scoring three goals and set up the play for another. The tall youngster stick-handles cleverly and he ghosted around the Kingston defence smartly. Garvey and Murphy gave him good support. The Petes defence checked well and Leether in the nets made many smart saves.

Kingston Opens Scoring

Kingston opened the scoring five minutes after the start when O'Conner cut loose with a long hard shot from the right boards and the rubber was deflected into the net off one of the Petes. Four minutes later, with Pearson serving a penalty, the Petes evened it up, when Murphy scored at close range after Huard had carried the rubber in.

At the 166.05 mark with Jones of the Petes off for hooking Kingston took the lead again Leether stopped Pearson's hard drive from the blue line but lost the rubber as he went down and O'Connor pushed it into the net. The Petes protested that the scorer had been in the crease but the goal was allowed. Shortly before the period ended two quick goals by Sweetman gave Kingston a 4 to 1 margin. The Regiopolis centre man got the first when he worked his way out of the corner to register at close range and came right back from the face off to score another in five seconds on a solo effort.

Early in the second period McCarney went down the ice on a breakaway and put Ashley into the clear with a perfect pass. That made it 5 to 1 for the Kingston team. Then the Petes started to come. Their passing plays began to click and for the rest of the period they outplayed the ultimate winners by a large margin. Huard made it 5 to 2 when he scored from just outside the crease on a passing play with Garvey and Murphy. The Petes kept storming in and were rewarded when Gillespie back-handed a beauty high into the rigging on a pass from Garvey. Then Garvey and Huard teamed through the Kingston defence and Huard coolly lifted the puck over McDonald's shoulder for a goal to leave the count 5 to 4 at the close of the period.

The Final Period

With McGregor and O'Connor off for mixing, Kingston increased their lead early in the final session when Harrison scored on on assist from Smith. A little later the teams were five a side again when Gillespie and McCarney were penalized in quick succession. Huard closed the gap by stickhandling through the Regiopolis defence for the prettiest goal of the night. That left it 6 to 5 and anybody's game but Kingston drew away in the last ten minutes when the Petes tired a bit under the pressure. A pass from behind the net by Ashley to Sweetman increased their lead to two goals and soon after Keyes took Sweetman's pass and slapped in goal No. 8 for the winners. Just before the close Pearson, the big kid on the Kingston defence, went in alone to register the last counter of the game.

SPORTS - DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Peterborough's last hockey entry, the local juvenile team, had their victory parade halted last night when they were beaten at Lakefield by a fast-skating, powerful team from Regiopolis College, Kingston, by 9 goals to 5. The Petes battled their heavier opponents all the way and until the last few minutes it was a tossup as to the ultimate winners. Kingston had more speed and more sting behind their shots but in other departments the Petes had an edge, their passing plays accounting for most of their goals. Some good prospects for future hockey team in Peterborough were prominent for the losers particularly Bill Huard, a tall, shifty right-winger and Reg. Leether, who has all the earmarks of a goal-keeping star. The score hardly indicates the play. The Petes had a big share of the battle and they claim they scored a couple of goals that the Kingston goal umpire missed.

There is one thing about the first string All-Star team chosen by Canadian Press from the N.H.L. list. It certainly does not put the accent on youth or inexperience. The figures show that the average age of the six players chosen is 28 1-3 years and their average professional service is nearly seven years. Had not Stanowski who is only 21 and in his second year in the big show been selected the average in both departments would have been higher. Clapper is the oldest player in the list. He is 34 and has had 14 years pro experience. Broda is 27 and has had five years in the cash and carry loops. Cowley is 29 and Hextall 28 and both have had six years in professional hockey while Sweeney Schriner is 30 and his connection with the pro stuff goes back seven years.

Says the Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer: "Remember Ken Murphy, who bounced 'em around for the Belleville Redmen, intermediate O.H.A. champions of 1937? Well, Ken was a visitor to the sport department of this G.F.J. and tells us he had a good season with the McIntyre Mine seniors, who were eliminated by the Buffalo Ankerite sextette. Ken says the Toronto Marlboros needn't expect any push-over in the N.O.H.A. winners. "I saw the Kingston-Hamilton senior "B" game last Friday and we play a much studier game of hockey up north," he stated as he added he has been moved to the centre position for the past two years. Incidentally the sympathy of the local sporting clientelle is extended to Ken and his dad following the death of a sister and daughter at Napanee recently. 'Murph' says he would consider remaining "down south" and lining up with the Reliance team next season, that is providing he was given continued employment. We saw a lot worse hockey players in the local loop this past winter than Ken Murphy, to say the least."

High Finance

Ken Colling has been airing his views on the action of Kingston and Hamilton in ignoring the rules and playing a third game instead of going overtime. Says the Belleville scribe: "There is no doubt the Kingston and Hamilton club violated these rules but then in this present day and age it would appear as though the clubs were running hockey and baseball, to say nothing of football....Today is an age of high financing and every penny counts so why blame the individual clubs too much. After all they have to exist." In other words amateur sport has become nothing but a financial racket and the main thing is to get the money, regardless of the rules. That is about the only meaning that can be attached to Scribe Colling's words and they indicate a sorry condition in sport.

* * * * * *

If the whole thing has boiled down to a question of gate receipts, then in the name of common sense let us be honest enough to admit and run up the proper flag at the masthead. It would be fare more honest and far more sensible to abandon all pretence of being amateur and operate the O.H.A. on a purely professional basis. The trouble with that course would be that once the professional status were adopted all concerned would have to obey the rules and that would be tough on those clubs and individuals who seem to think that regulations were made only to be broken. Professional sport is wise enough to control its activities by rules that have to be complied with. The amateur organizations seem to have thrown control out of the windows and anything goes so long as you have a friend or two at court.

Bruins Go Out In Front

Boston Bruins broke from the barrier in the Stanley Cup playoffs last night when before over 16,000 home town fans they defeated the Appsless Toronto Leafs 3 goals to 0. It was typical cup hockey. The Bruins got the first goal and protected it stoutly with the result that Leafs were kept off the score sheet entirely and in the last two minutes of play when Toronto was taking all kinds of chances, as they had to, the winners ran in two more goals to make it decisive. The best tip-off on the superiority of the winners is that they outshot the Leafs 47 to 27 on the night's play. As is often the case it was unsung members of the Boston cast who played the hero role. The versatile Flash Hollett, rookie Terrance Reardon and the Leafs' castoff Art Jackson had a big share in the triumph of the N.H.L. champions.

* * * * * *

The victory might prove costly for the Bruins inasmuch as they lost the services of Bill Cowley, their ace playmaker and Bobby Bauer their great little right-winger in the last two minutes of play. Cowley hurt his knee when tripped by Schriner and may be out of action for some time. Bauer's injury was a cut on his thigh that is not likely to keep him on the shelf. The loss of Cowley would balance up with the Leafs' loss of Syl Apps. The two teams will meet again tomorrow night in Boston and another win for the Bruins would give them a big lead in the race for the fixtures and the law of averages should certainly be working for the Leafs at this time.

* * * * * *

The other two games last night were of the usual playoff brand. with goal scoring down to a minimum. Rangers found Red Wings their usual jinx in Detroit and went down 2 to 1 after a little over twelve minutes of overtime. Detroit took the lead in the second period, Lynn Patrick tied it up in the third and the teams battled along in the extra session on even terms until the reliable Syd Howe came through with the winning shot and the Rangers were behind the 8-ball. At Chicago the Black Hawks eked out a 2 to 1 win over the luckless Canadiens who not only were beaten but lost the services of Red Goupile. their defence star who injured his knee and is not expected to start Saturday. Elmer Lach who had been out with injuries scored for Canadiens to give them the lead in the first period but George Allen tied it up and the Bentley brothers came through with the winning play in the final session.

He Substitutes 'Fly'

TORONTO, March 21.—(CP)—Speaker James Clark, in the Ontario Legislature, checked Col. F. Fraser Hunter (Lib., Toronto St. Patrick) yesterday on the use of the word "nigger." It was offensive, he said, and should not be used.

In objecting to a section of a bill amending the Juror's Act, which would authorize among other things, mixed juries, Col. Hunter said the clause was "the nigger in the woodpile."

After he was checked, the Colonel, a former member of the Bengal Lancers, said to the Speaker:

"With your permission, I'll substitute 'the fly in the ointment'."

"Bud" Weese Rolls Record Score Of Season In City Five-Pin League

Fred Martin's Nationals hurdled all but one remaining obstacle which stands in their way to a third straight City League bowling title when they rolled off a near record team score against the Westclox at Duffus Alleys last night. They mowed down 3941 pins in their final workout before they meet the Tamblyn outfit on the last night of the schedule, which ends next Thursday. The Tamblyn boys stayed with them as far as points went last night, winning four from Raine's with a 3274 team total and maintained their one-point lead in the league standing over the National outfit.

It was strictly a National night. Not only did they have high team total, but they rolled a record single game of 1495. Leading his team to victory, "Bud" Weese smashed the year's high three record when he gave the hardwoods a real pounding for a total of 965. This scores cinches him the high three for the City League. Weese was ably supported by his teammates, Frank Wood turning in 816 and Tommy Miller carding 801. The Nationals also monopolized the single games with Weese hitting 378, Bill Martin 317, Frank Wood 315, Tommy Miller 301 and Fred Martin 203.

Capitols downed the Big Five 4 to 0 while Peterborough Lock took Grafton's 3 to 1 and ruined the Gimblett boys' chances of finishing in third place. Huffman's and Green's ended up with a couple of points each while Centre nosed the Kinsmen out of all 3 games in a thrilling battle to see which outfit would keep out of the cellar.

Sid Trowbridge of the Big Five outfit was the only bowler outside the National outfit to finish in the charmed 800 circle, Sid spilling the maples for a nice 808 total. Other good singles included "Bud" Goodson's 347, George Robertson 307, Henry Wiley 306, Tom Curvin 302.

BRUINS SHUT OUT TORONTO 3 TO 0 IN FIRST TILT OF THE SERIES

Hollett, Reardon Wiseman Score; Brimsek Shines

BOSTON, Mar. 21 — (CP). — Boston Bruins, with the first game won by a 3-0 score and assured by physicians that injuries to two stars were not serious, to-day ruled outstanding favorites to take the four-of-seven Stanley Cup series which they opened here last night against Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League's anual post-season playoffs.

Leafs built up their hopes on the fact that their great centre, Syl Apps, and defenceman, Mingo Kampman, will probably be back for the third game.

To-morrow night Toronto will go out on Boston Garden ice in a desperate effort to tie the series here and return home for the games on Tuesday and Thursday with an even break.

It looked for a minute last night that Boston was going to share Toronto's bad luck and be short two stars for the second game. First, Bill Cowley was hurt, falling heavily with his knee buckled beneath him, when checked hard by Dave Schriner. Then Bobbie Bauer was aided off with a skate cut from his teammate, Milt Schmidt.

Both Back for 2nd Fracas.

But club physicians predicted that both men would be back for the second game.

Boston's marksmen were Bill Hollett, young Teddy Reardon, and Eddie Wiseman.

Hollett's goal, at the three-quarter mark of the second period, scored while Roy Conacher and Jack Church were off for high-sticking, looked like the winning goal all the way as Frankie Brimsek, playing faultless hockey, refused to yield on hard drives by Bill Taylor, Schriner, Hank Goldup, and Gus Marker, who carried much of the offensive load for the Leafs.

Late in the third period Marker and Woody Dumart tangled behind the Boston net and came to blows. Marker threw his opponent with a wrestling grip before they were pulled apart. While they were off, with major penalties, Reardon and Wiseman applied the clinching blows, each flicking in a short shot after clever passes had placed them in positions where Turk Broda, Toronto's all-star goalie and Vezina Cup winner, had no chance of saving.

Bentley Sparks Hawk Win 2-1 On Canadiens

CHICAGO, March 21.—(CP)—Little Max Bentley, who almost wasn't good enough for Chicago Black Hawks, wore a hero's mantle today as trigger-man in a victory that backed Montreal Canadiens to the wall for the second match of their Stanley Cup preliminary with the Hawks.

The 145-pound rookie centre, whom Manager Paul Thompson demoted to the minors at one stage in the National Hockey League season, fired the goal that gave Chicago a 2-1 triumph over the Canadiens here last night. It left the Habitants needing a victory in their return engagement at Montreal Saturday to remain in the Cup hunt.

One of 14 rookies on the two teams who got their baptism of playoff fire in the first game of the best-of-three series, Bentley was sent to the minors late in the regular season for "indifferent play." Injuries forced his recall soon after, however, and his performance earned back a regular berth.

A crowd of 12,306 watched the 21-year-old native of Delisle, Sask., cap his return by driving home the winning goal in the eighth minute of the final frame to break up a tight duel. The count had been deadlocks from the initial frame, when Elmer Lach scored for Canadiens and George Allen evened for the Hawks.

A Close In Shot

Bentley ticked the puck into the net from just outside the goalie's crease on a play with brother Doug Bentley and the veteran Harold (Mush) March.

Both clubs went into the match crippled in manpower and the heavy bumping in the tight game put two more Canadiens on the sidelines. Defenceman Red Goupille, who injured his right knee in a collision, was expected to be out for the balance of the season while Lach was twice hurt but probably will be ready for next game.

The hardy young rookie centre was crashed to the ice by big Earl Seibert late in the second period and was hurt again in a pile-up just before the final bell. Both injuries came after he had highlighted the Montreal attack by rounding the Chicago defence to give the Canadiens a 1-0 lead early in the game.

The Hawks got the goal back at 16:21 of the initial frame when Allen fired a screaming low shot that beat Goalie Bert Gardiner. After that, it was nip-and-tuck until Bentley's goal.

Hershey Blanks New Haven 1-0

NEW HAVEN, March 21—(CP).—Hershey Bears, conquerors of New Haven Eagles in a first-round series, occupied the enviable position today of standing idle while the other four championship aspirants in the American Hockey League continue their hard-fought playoffs.

The Bears gained a respite from the battling by defeating New Haven, 1-0, last night to take their series in two straight games. Both other rounds were evened at 1-1 in games meanwhile when Springfield Indians beat Pittsburg Hornet, 4-1, and Cleveland Barons defeated Providence Reds, 2-1.

The Barons went into 20 minutes of overtime to square up the best-of-five semi-final at Providence between the two first-place clubs. Playing at home, Springfield won handily to force a deciding game at Springfield Saturday in their best-of-three round with Pittsburg.

A goal by Pat McReavy seconds after the opening face-off proved the only counter of the game, and gave Hershey their victory at New Haven. The Bears, who finished second in the loop's Western section, had won 2-1 in the first game of their series with the Eastern section Eagles.

Indians Hold Lead

The Indians meanwhile opened up an early lead and never lost it in their series with Pittsburg for the right to meet Hershey in a semi-final round. The Indians got first-period tallies by Larry Thibeault and Pete Kelly to take a 2-0 lead in the initial session. In the second, Harry Currie scored to put the Hornets back into the running, but Max Kaminsky increased the score to 3-1 just before the end of the frame. Glenn Brydson clinched the verdict in the second minute of the final period.

A goal by Dick Adolph after 19.11 minutes of overtime gave Cleveland the victory that evened their series with Providence, who won the first game 4-1 at home. The next two games of the round will be played on the home ice of the Barons, who finished on top of the Western section during the schedule.

In regular time, Joe Jerwa gave Cleveland a 1-0 lead in the first period and Jack Shill evened the score halfway through the third session.

Sam Snead Cops Hot Springs Open

PINEHURST, N.C., March 21—(CP)—The pros get better year by year, says Joe Thompson who ought to know.

Joe used to be one of Canada's crack amateur golfers before he joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in which he now is wireless and gunnery sergeant. He's been spending a 10-day leave here viewing the North-South Open Championship which Slammin' Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., won yesterday with a 72-hole score of 277.

"It used to be that a shot to the green was pretty good if it landed 10 feet from the pin," Joe said as he watched Snead go around in his final 18-hole tour in 69, three under par. "But that was two years ago. Now it has to be within six feet or you're likely as not to lose the hole."

Rangers Beaten 2-1, Overtime, On Howe's Tally

DETROIT, March 21.—(CP). — New York's champion Rangers, who couldn't do anything wrong as the National Hockey League wound up its regular schedule, couldn't beat the Detroit jinx in the preliminary series of the Stanley Cup playoffs and were faced to-day with elimination in the opening round of play for the prized trophy.

In a bruising, close-checking game, the Red Wings last night won the first game of the best-of-three series 2-1 after 12:01 of overtime play. Syd Howe scored the winning marker on a back-hand shot that Goalie Dave Kerr didn't have a chance to stop. The goal wrecked the Rangers' hopes of breaking a jinx that has allowed them to win only one game on Detroit ice in three years.

Detroit took a one-goal lead at 14:39 of the second period when Carl Liscombe scored on a pass from Alex Motter. Lynn Patrick squared the game for the Rangers in the third period.

The Wings attacked strongly as the 20-minute overtime session got under way. Howe broke up the game when he took a pass from Ebbie Goodfellow and Gus Giesbrecht and slapped it into the net. In the dressing room later, Kerr said the winning goal caromed off Giesbrecht's stick.

Cattle Market Wavers; Hogs Slump 15

TORONTO, March 21.—(CP). — Heavy snow falls hampered cattle deliveries and caused erratic markets on the livestock market here this week. The opening was steady for cattle, followed by a 25 per cent. gain on Wednesday's light supply. The gain was lost on a liberal Thursday run.

Calves were strong.

Sheep and lambs were steady.

Hogs were down 15 to 25 cents for the week.

In the cattle section the general top for weighty steers was $9.25 with a few selling up to $9.60 on Wednesday. Other weighty steers sold downward to $7.75. Butcher steers and heifers were mostly $7.50 to $8.60 with some light steers on Wednesday up to $9.25. Fed calves sold at $8.75 to $10. Butcher cows brought $5 to $7 with canners and cutters at $3.25 to $4.75. Bils sold from $5.50 to $7 with some light butcher bulls at $7.50. Stockers sold at $6 to $7.60 cwt. Good milkers and springers were in demand at $70 to $90 each.

Calves opened at $11.50 to $12.50 for choice with common light vealers downward to $6.50.

Hogs opened lower at $11.25 dressed and at $8.50 live weight and the market was unchanged for the balance of the week. Sows were quoted at $7.25 to $7.75 dressed.

Sheep and lamb receipts included 1,400 westerns. Lambs were steady at $11.25 for good westerns with others from $10 to $11. Common to medium local lambs sold at $7 to $10. Sheep were steady at $3 to $6 cwt. for locals with good western ewes at $6.50.

were reported in London, but seven families were buried in the wreckage of their homes in a town near the capital. Rescue squads extricated some of the persons and were still digging for others at dawn.

The British raid on the nazi submarine base at Lorient in German-occupied France was the second on that target in two nights.

The air ministry news service said that one one patrol flight off the Netherlands coast yesterday afternoon a Beaufort reconnaissance bomber:—

Machine-gunned "thoroughly" two German E-boats.

Bombed a German supply ship, the crew of which took to boats.

Raked gun positions on the Frisian Islands with machine-gun fire.

Fought two Messerschmitt 110's which broke off the engagment after each received a long burst.

A member of the crew of the Beaufort and the pilot were slightly wounded in the air battle.

King Misses Attack.

PLYMOUTH, England, Mar. 21 — (CP).— Attacking only a few hours after King George and Queen Elizabeth had visited the city, the German air force rained high explosive and fire bombs on Plymouth during the night.

Three churches, a motion picture house, commercial buildings, and many private homes were damaged by the raiders.

Loads of incendiary bombs were dropped and even as fire-watchers jumped to the task of extinguishing them fresh showers of fire burst over the city.

Officials said that although there was much fire damage, casualties were not expected to be heavy.

The King and Queen in the tour of Plymouth yesterday spent their time visiting shipyards and went aboard a former United States destroyer. The warship was one of the 50 over-age vessels gained by the Royal Navy in the exchange in which the United States acquired sites or bases under leases.

Later the attack was officially described as one of the heaviest yet made on the city. Bombs ravaged a number of streets which had escaped damage in previous attacks. Two surface shelters sustained direct hits.

A movie theatre was set afire while the show was going on. The crowd filed out into flame-lit streets amid the thunder of bombs. The theatre burned to the ground.

The thousands of incendiaries dropped at the start of the raid were followed almost at once by showers of high explosives.

In return, Vreme said, her territorial integrity would be guaranteed by the other signers, who, at the end of the war, would agree to consider Yugoslav aspirations for an outlet to the Aegean.

People Miss Explanation

Censorship expunged this article from the paper, however, and the Yugoslav public generally remained officially uninformed as to the crown council decision.

Morning papers carried only a communique issued after the cabinet session which said "foreign affairs" were discussed.

Military planes, meanwhile, resumed their noisy manoeuvrings over the capital and 1,000,000 men remained under arms.

One cabinet minister after a meeting which did not break up until early today said:—

"Because of Yugoslavia's delicate foreign situation, it is necessary that her position of strict neutrality should be modified in some way so that she should become more closely connected with the Axis.

"Because she is surrounded on all sides by Axis troops, it is necessary for Yugoslavia to form a new foreign policy in order to maintain her independence and prevent her from being involved in war.

"Therefore, an agreement is being made with the Axis providing for more intimate relations."

The actual date for any signing up with the Axis was not known. Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovic are slated to leave for Berlin Monday.

Reports that Yugoslav newspapermen in Berlin had been called to Vienna —frequently a scene of signing ceremonials—were taken as an indication that the signing might take place there.

Spring Arrives Camouflaged

Though the beginning of spring is traditionally associated with today, Frank O'Donnell of the Meteorological Bureau said that the new season may arrive the twentieth, the twenty-first or even as late as the early hours of the twenty-second, depending on when the sun crosses the Equator on its trip north This year the sun crossed the line yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock D.S.T. to usher in the new season.

VOL. LXXXV, No. 68 — PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, MARCH 21, 1941 — PAGE 9

INQUEST TONIGHT

An inquest into the death of William Dent, fatally injured in an accident at one of the new buildings of the C.G.E. will be held tonight in the police court. The proceedings are not expected to be lengthy as the number of witnesses to be heard will be small.

SPRING NOTES.

On the first day of spring more signs of that season are in evidence on George street. In many of the shop windows showcards of that familiar pink and green shade shout the tidings of the warm weather to come, and spring clothes predominate.

ON ACTIVE SERVICE

Captain Edward Preston, popular commanding officer of E Squadron, Legion of Frontiersmen has been called up for active service in the Canadian Army and reports for duty on Saturday. He held the rank of Lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery in the last war. He will report to headquarters at Kingston for posting to a unit.

IS PROMOTED.

Corporal Clifford Smith, who is on active service with the 48th Highlanders in England has received a promotion, according to a letter his wife has received from him. He is now a sergeant. Sergeant Smith was employed by the Peterborough Lumber Company at the time of his enlistment, and has been on active service since July, 1940.

ARTIFICAL THAW.

The city Board of Works men have spent a few busy days recently with the steam boiler used in thawing out frozen storm drains. The changeable weather has threatenen the drainage of many of the streets, and the men are working in anticipation of the torrents usually present around this time of the year.

NEW CONSTABLE HERE

Provincial Constable Price Morris of Bowmanville, who will take over the territory here now under Provincial Constable David Silvester, was in town today making arrangements for his transfer to Peterborough. He and Constable Silvester will solve the housing problem by trading houses as well as jobs.

MISFORTUNE APLENTY

William Dent, the Toronto workman who was killed while working on the new C.G.E. building on Tuesday evening has had more than his share of bad luck. The man was 49 years of age and according to his fellow workers, his daughter has been an invalid for three years and his wife has been ill and in bed for more than a month. The electricians wiring the building chipped in and made up a purse of $50 which has been sent to Mrs. Dent in Toronto.

INITIAL SALARY IS $1,200.

A typographical error in the report of the meeting of the Police Commission in Thursday's issue caused it to be stated that J. F. Morrow, new member of the police force, would start at a salary of $1,000 a year. That of course was wrong. Constable Morrow will start with the usual initial salary of $1,200 a year.

WINDOW REMOVED

The canoe named "Victory" which has been given to the British War Victims' Fund by J. B. O'Dette and Sons has finally come to rest in Grafton's window. On Thursday, several of the staff labored nervously as they removed one of the large plate glass sheets to allow the craft to enter the show window.

BOTH HAVE COMMISSIONS

Dr. Tom Peterson, dentist who had been practicing in Waterloo is now on active service with the Royal Canadian Dental Corps with the rank of captain. He is a brother of Lieut. Jack Peterson of the Glengarry Highlanders, who was on the Examiner editorial staff when he enlisted.

COLLIDE ON RUBIDGE STREET.

Cars driven by L. McLaren, Wescott Street, and Robert Hughey, 28 New Chamberlain Street, were damaged in a collision on Rubidge Street Thursday. The first-named driver was travelling south on Rubidge Street and Hughey proceeding north. As the automobiles were passing the rear of the McLaren machine skidded in a rut and came into contact with Hughey's car.

THE SUN WAS STRONG

Spring arrived today at least according to the almanac and just before noon the sun started its work of melting the ice and snow in typical spring fashion. By one o'clock streams of water were coursing down the streets, to gladden the hearts of local people who were still shivering after three days of dirty March weather. Motorists who had trouble thawing frozen brake bands earlier in the week were still skeptical and many of them took the trouble to dodge the puddles of water.

BEGONE SNOW DRIFTS.

Thursday at noon while factory workers were hurrying home, a flock of fifteen wild ducks plopped into the Otonabee river south of the Hunter street bridge. Heading northward the ducks apparently took time out to feed and rest in the river, figuring perhaps from the appearance of the snowy landscape that something had gone wrong with their calculations and that Spring was more distant than they believed when they started the long journey from the south.

FIRST TO CHANGE OVER.

Wm. Lech and Sons, local fur dealers, are the first merchants on George street to switch to the new fluorescent lighting. Five composite lighting fixtures are used on the main floor and they claim this type of lighting shows the color and quality of the furs to advantage. They had the fluorescent light units installed in the factory part of the building last fall, and workmen completed the store installation this week.

Threshing Fires Show Decline

Safety Measures Explained To Threshermen

Fires during the threshing season of 1940 were fewer than for many years, C. W. Caskey, of Toronto, Deputy Fire Marshal, told the eastern Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen at their convention Friday morning in the City Council chamber.

The total fire loss in threshing operations last year was $60,252, according to reports to the Fire Marshal, and the amount of insurance paid was close to $45,000. Mr. Caskey recalled in contrast that the corresponding loss in 1935 was $198,000, more than three times the total of 1940.

"It is a wonder to me that so few fires occur during threshing," he said. "All the circumstances and conditions which represent fire hazards seem to be set against the operator, and it is a great tribute to the men looking after the threshing machines that the number of fires is not greater."

Emphasis On Safety.

The topic of threshing fires and their causes actually turned the emphasis in the morning's discussion on factors of safety. Mr. Caskey said fires from tractor causes showed some increase, and because of this observation a special campaign might be undertaken before long to call attention to this new danger.

"There was an increase of fires from tractor operations in barns last year that were not caused during threshing operations," Mr. Caskey said. "The tractor is coming into a great many uses on the farm, and I believe that some farmers are getting careless. I have seen tractors in use on a barn floor with straw and chaff strewn around it and the tell-tale black drip of motor oil showing it, and streaks of it across the floor. That is a new hazard some farmers are neglecting. Of seven or eight of these fires last year, only one was caused during threshing operations."

Mr. Caskey said there were twenty-seven fires in the course of threshing work in 1940, and most of them were found to have been caused by the careless use of matches, especially in small boxes. Definite evidence showed that they had caused certain fires. Another cause was static electricity at the blower mouth, especially during dry, hot weather. Use of the water pump and spray as an improvement was regarded as the best practical guarantee against fires from static electricity.

Four or five of the threshermen related their experience with the use of the water spray. It was considered a practical precaution against fires, they agreed, and it also made working conditions favorable by eliminating dust.

In regard to fires, Mr. Caskey said that in a great many instances threshermen were absolutely blameless, and according to several statements by members of fiction originating from mortgages, "chattel and otherwise" was a primary cause. "The year in which the moratorium was lifted we noticed that fires increased 100 per cent., but the number has gradually decreased since then. It is gratifying to know that the number of fires has been decreasing, but losses in Ontario are still far in excess of what occurs elsewhere in Canada. We must urge that more care be taken, that floors be kept clean, where tractors are used in barns."

Insurance Branch.

Byrell Harris, president of the Ontario Threshermen's Mutual Fire Insurance Company, reported a cash surplus of $27,149 at the end of 1940 with other assets of $32,947. The insurance rate for this year will be down to $2.20 per $100, a reduction from the rate of $2.50.

U.S.-Canada Signs St. Lawrence Waterway Agreement

Automobile Slides Into Train; Driver Has Close Call

When his automobile skidded into the side of a Canadian National freight engine at Downer's Corners Thursday afternoon, Donald Murray of Keene had a close call from death or serious injury.

Murray was driving east along Highway 7 and just before reaching the railway crossing turned out to pass another vehicle going in the same direction. In doing so he failed to notice the approaching train or the warning signals until he was almost on the crossing, he told police.

Then when he tried to apply his brakes he couldn't stop on the slippery surface and his automobile slid into the side of the locomotive which was travelling toward Peterborough.

Fortunately Murray escaped without injury. The right front fender, bumper and grill of his car were damaged by the impact.

Hidden Officer Nabs Young Boy Entering Store

Caught in the store of Ned Vitarelli, Rubidge Street, early Friday morning by a constable hidden on the premises, a boy who said he was eighteen, but who looked years younger, faced six charges of breaking-and-entering in police court this morning.

Although the accused repeatedly said that he was eighteen and had been working for several years, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., was so impressed by his youthful appearance that he refused to ask him to plead or elect and remanded him until Saturday in order that proof of age may be secured.

Bail was fixed at $500.

The boy was charged with three break-ins at the store of Max Rose-boro and three at the Vitarelli place. From the latter establishment between $50 and $60 in cash has been stolen recently.

The boy now charged with the six offences was taken into custody by Constable Bruce Menzies, who was hidden in the Vitarelli store and watched the accused enter the place by climbing up a pole and swinging in through a fanlight.

Fund To Aid British War Victims Is Registered

Confirmation that the Peterborough British War Victims' Fund is registered and approved under the War Charities' Act came through to the Examiner office today, and with it comes a word of commendation from E. W. Stapleford, director of Voluntary Services. His letter reads in part: I am very pleased to note that your Fund has no operating expenses and that the total amount collected is sent to the Lord Mayor's Air Raid Distress Fund, London, England. The certificate of registration is now on display at the Examiner office, and is assurance to all contributing that the Fund has the approval of the proper authorities in Canada.

F. G. Mann announced this morning that only $400 is needed now to boost the Fund to the fifth £500 and just as soon as this amount is obtained the aid will be sent to England. The need grows every day and with the approach of good weather the Hun air blitz will be intensified bringing more distress to the people who are taking the blows so that we in Canada may live in comparative security.

Today's list of donors brings an interesting item from the C.G.E. Vernon Tarkington, a messenger at the plant fractured his wrist a few weeks ago, and when the cast was put on, Vernon secured signatures on the cast from his colleagues and the result is $7.55 for the fund. Thus from one person's distress, comes help for others who are suffering in a much larger degree.

George Street United Church Young People's Association sent along $15.00 today proceeds of a concert held on March 3. Today also it was announced that the C.G.I.T. are showing pictures in the George Street United Church Sunday School at 7.30 tonight. All proceeds go to the fund and the admission prices are 20 cents for adults and 10 cents for children.

The surplus from the Canadian General Electric Company Golf Tent Fund was $20.00 and this money also found its way to the coffers of the fund this morning.

The list is as follows:

Previously acknowledged	$10,655.87
George St. United Church Young People's Assoc.	15.00
Vernon Tarkington, proceeds of names on cast	7.55
Surplus of C.G.E. Golf Tent Fund	20.00
	$10,698.42

Threshermen Are Meeting In Convention

Mayor Hamilton Thursday night welcomed the members of the Eastern Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen in their fifteenth annual convention which this year has been extended from one to two days.

About sixty members from the area east of Toronto were present for the first day, but the main attendance was expected at today's sessions concluding with a dinner in the Legion Hall this evening.

"Ever since I was a boy I have always been interested in threshing," Mayor Hamilton said. "It is a very important part of agriculture, especially when you see at night in the west the big straw-burners in action. It is a pleasure on behalf of the citizens to welcome you to Peterborough, and to extend to you our greetings and good wishes. We hope you will come back on other occasions, and I should like to remind you personally that we are having the provincial plowing match here this fall, and we hope you will come and see it."

L. C. Thompson of Bowmanville thanked Mayor Hamilton for the city's goodwill. "I'd like to say that we are grateful to Mayor Hamilton and his council for a donation they gave us, and also to merchants and others. We have been used most cordially, and we thank you very much."

Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, was called on for an address. He appealed to the threshermen to observe results in their work and to make recommendations and encouragement to farmers in undertakings such as the use of more productive seed, modern pasture and hay ideas and others that would help them in improving their own farms and income.

James Lamey, secretary-treasurer, Warkworth, reported a credit balance of $35.22 from last year. Receipts were $228.78 and the expenses $193.56.

7,500 Treshing Machines

W. W. Dawson of Otonabee mentioned at the Thursday afternoon meeting that there are between 7,400 and 7,500 threshing machines registered in the province. The fee of one dollar a year goes into the provincial treasury, and the only assistance the Brotherhood receives is $200 to the Western Ontario association.

The committee in charge of the dinner and dance at the Legion Hall this evening is composed of: W. W. Duncan, Lorne Northey and George Rogers of Peterborough, Charles Mills and Herb Jones of Omemee, and Wallace Dunn and H. E. Dunn of Cameron.

Mr. Dawson is the first vice-president and Herb Jones is second vice-president.

The first day program included a visit to the De Laval Company's plant and the local offices of Massey-Harris and also the Waterloo Manufacturing Co. of which George Rogers is representative.

200 Girls Tag For Greek Aid Saturday

Two hundred girls of the city have enlisted for the Greek War Relief tag day on Saturday.

These girls from the Collegiate Institute, St. Peter's High School and St. Mary's Covent, will be representatives of the Greek people from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday, working in two hour shifts.

Permission to hold this tag day was granted by the Peterborough Police Commission in recognition of the bravery and wonderful campaign of the Greek forces in Albania.

The young "taggers" will make the Elite Restaurant their headquarters. Lunch is being provided by the proprietor, Louis Yeotes, and he is offering prizes of boxes of chocolates to the girls who collect the most money.

The people of Kingston contributed $1,100 to the Greek War Relief Fund in a tag day two weeks ago, and the same boxes which were used there have been sent to Peterborough for Saturday's appeal.

"Any money the people of Peterborough feel like giving to this fund will be greatly appreciated," Mr. Yeotes said today. "All Greeks throughout Canada know what the council of this city gave to the fund, and that remembrance has made us all proud of Peterborough. We realize that the need is great in England and Scotland, too, but maybe a lot of the citizens will feel like making a little extra effort to remember the Greek people in this Tag Day. It is not a big country and not a rich one, but it is far better known today than it was a year ago, and we think everybody appreciates that."

Restaurant Owners Form Association

Peterborough has a new organization in the Peterborough Restaurant Owners' Association which came into being on Tuesday at the first meeting, held in the Empress Hotel. Officers were elected, including Lou Brooks as president, Jim Hum, vice-president, and Ross Payne, secretary-treasurer.

Those who are now members of the association say they have long felt the need of an organization of this nature to leviate the problems with which they come in contact from time to time. It is felt that the formation will benefit owners and patrons alike and new movements in the eating establishment line will be investigated at the meetings which will be held once a month.

450 Uniforms For P.C.I. Cadets

Supervision committee of the Board of Education in special session to consider tenders for cadet uniforms gave the contract for 450 pairs of trousers to Art Bacon's Men's Style Shop on Hunter street. At an earlier meeting the Board had ordered 450 sweat shirts and berets from the Albion Knitting Company.

The trousers are a cotton bedford cord, pre-shrunk and are in the traditional grey of the school. The sweat shirt is also grey but has a large school crest on it in garnet and the beret is also of garnet, so that the ensemble consists of the school colors. It is hoped to have the uniforms on hand by April 7th and inspection of the cadets may be postponed until after Easter. No further information is available on the drums, and the members decided they would shop around until something suitable was located.

Requisitions covering first aid equipment and a new filing cabinet for the Collegiate were passed. This filing cabinet is part of a trade in deal as the salesman is taking an old one in part payment.

Those at the meeting were T. J. Carley, K.C., chairman, D. G. H. Melton, Dr. A. Moir and C. A. Sollitt.

Singe For Chickens

OSHAWA, Ont., March 21.—(CP) "In small quantities and well diluted it could be drunk and gotten away with," A. R. Bonham, chief provincial analyst, testified in police court, of a bottle of liquid which police seized in a raid. Mike Dubyk, Oshawa, was charged with illegal possession.

Only a liquor addict could "get away with it" and even in that case he would be "taking a chance," said Mr. Bonham.

Mrs. Dubyk explained that the liquor had been given to her by a friend to singe 36 chickens which she had purchased for a wedding feast for her daughter.

North West Rebellion Veteran Wm. Wedlock Marks 80th Birthday

A veteran of the North-West Rebellion in 1885, William Wedlock, Port Hope Highway, will be honored tonight at a dinner given by his daughters and sons on the occasion of his 80th birthday. He is enjoying the best of health and can still outdo most of the young men today in bending from the waist and touching his hands to the floor.

Born in County Cavan, Ireland, he came to Canada at the age of six months with his parents who settled at Keene. Mr. Wedlock said Lord Monk came to Canada on the same ship. "I'm not sure, but I think he was Canada's first Governor General," he told The Examiner.

Joined Midland Battalion

When the Riel Rebellion broke out in Western Canada, Mr. Wedlock offered his services with six other men from Keene. "We joined the Midland Battalion here in Peterborough. There were seven men from Norwood and seven from Havelock in addition to many from Peterborough. I understand I am the only veteran left in the district now," he said. "If there is another veteran in or near Peterborough, I would like to meet him for a shat."

"We left Peterborough by train, but when we reached Lake Nipissing, the C.P.R. Railway had not been completed. The battalion had to walk across the ice to some distance on the other side, where we again took a train and proceeded west. At the Saskatchewan river, we were put on barges which had to be poled. On either side of the barges, long oars were operated by the men."

William Wedlock, who lives on the Port Hope highway, is today observing his 80th birthday. Mr. Wedlock is a veteran of the North West rebellion in 1885 and was born in County Cavan, Ireland. He came to Canada at the age of six months, his parents taking up residence at Keene.

"When we approached the battle area, the right half of our battalion went forward to engage the half-breeds while the left flank, which I was in, brought up supplies. In the matter of a few days, we arrived at Frog Lake where an Indian Chief, Big Bear, had led his tribe to massacre the whites. The little village lay in ruins and dead were to be seen.

For some time, Big Bear was sought, and when his capture was effected, the authorities hanged him for the deed."

"We returned to Ontario in August of 1885, after spending six months in the West. Not many men from this district were killed but, I understand, there were many from Toronto missing. Captain Burke, then editor of the Norwood paper, and Lieut. Brennan of Norwood were the officers in our "G" battalion."

A year after the rebellion, Mr. Wedlock married Sophronia Harris in Keene. About 40 years ago he purchased a grist and saw mill which he operated for more than 15 years. Power for the mills was furnished by waterfall. About 25 years ago, he sold the mills and came to live in Peterborough at 99 Aylmer street. "I entered the coal, wood and cartage business with my brother Tom, and it was not until three years ago, I retired," he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Wedlock had eleven children, ten of whom are living today. They are: Mrs George MacIntyre, Mrs. Lottie Fletcher, Mrs. William Jeffries, William, Irwin, and Tom of Peterborough; Mrs. Wesley Montgomery and Mrs. Amelia Boyle of Hastings; Mrs. Joseph Gibson of Toronto, and Jack of Baldwinsville, N.Y. In 1936, Mr. and Mrs. Wedlock observed their 50th wedding anniversary. About three months later, Mrs. Wedlock died.

"If I was young again, I wouldn't hesitate to join the army for a chance at the Germans," the veteran declared. "They would kill more in one day now than in six months of the type of fighting at the Rebellion. I think there is going to be an awful slaughter when this war really gets going, and I'm hopeful Britain will win the war before it goes too long. In fact, I can't see the war lasting very long under any circumstances."

Mr. Wedlock took a keen interest in curling years ago at Keene, and played in several competitions at Peterborough and Toronto. He was also an excellent marksman with a gun.

KINGSTON, March 21. — Pte. Walter Shannon, a member of R.C.O.C. training centre, was sentenced to twelve months and three months in the Ontario Reformatory on six charges of theft when he appeared in city police court here this afternoon. Corporal Malcolm Ault received sentences of seven months on one charge and two months each on two other charges of robbery, the sentences to run concurrently.

Pte. Hilton McKinnon received suspended sentence for one year on payment of court costs of $25 and Pte. John Smith was placed on suspended sentence for the same period and was assessed $20 costs. The magistrate dismissed charges of harboring stolen property against Miss Irene Trippe of Campbellford.

Walter ODonnell, Kingston truck owner, was fined $100 and costs for buying stolen property, three heavy duty truck tires, from Corporal Ault.

In this case, Magistrate James Garvin stated he was imposing a rather severe fine as a warning to all civilians in a military district, not to purchase military equipment from men in the uniform of the armed forces.

The charges arose out of the recently discovered theft of military stores of the ordinance corps from a Government warehouse building on Ontario street. A check-up of stolen property brought six persons into court and covered an area from Campbellford and Brighton to Kingston. Four of the accused were members of the R.C.O.C. stationed here and had moved from outside points to take up residence in this city. Shannon, Ault and McKinnon pleaded guilty to eleven charges of theft in the morning session of the court.

In sentencing Shannon, a former Provincial constable at Campbellford, Magistrate Garvin criticized him severely for the position in which he placed Irene Trippe. Military stores, alleged stolen by him, were left at her home for safekeeping and found there by Provincial Officer David Adair. As a result Miss Trippe was arrested and held in custody until today.

No Rod License For Ontario Due This Year

TORONTO, March 21.—(CP)—Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon yesterday told the Legislature's Fish and Game committee that there was no possibility of instituting a rod licence for fishermen in Ontario this year.

Mr. Nixon was referring to recommendations that a rod fee of $1 be imposed on anglers. He said Premier Hepburn had already announced in his budget speech that there would be no new taxation this year, and that applied to fishing licences. "In addition public opinion has not yet crystallized on the matter, and a licence would have only an irritating effect," he said.

The provincial secretary said he thought that the government might partly meet the request of the Essex County Sportsmen's Association, which urged that commercial fishing be prohibited in Lake St. Clair and the Detroit River. He suggested the government might restrict this commercial fishing in this area.

Levying a licence was advocated by Len Hughes of the Northern Ontario Tourist Trade Association and H. V. Sutton of the Essex County Sportsmen's Association. Charles Kingan of Peterborough Game and Fish Association and V. E. Taplin of the Toronto Anglers Association supported the suggestion.

Would Mean Poaching

George McGarvin of the Kent County Sportsmen's Association and D. A. Massecar and T. C. Savage of the Norfolk Association opposed the fee. Mr. Massecar said that a family man who earns only $15 a week would not pay the dollar and would resort to poaching.

Mr. Hughes, in advancing the idea, said that the money derived from such a licence should be used solely for the propagation and protection of fish.

Mr. Kingan suggested that if there was opposition to a straight fishing licence, a combination rod and gun licence to be used for fishing and hunting, be issued for $1.50.

All but a few of the members supporting the fee agreed with Mr. Sutton that it be assessed against adults only.

A petition presented by Dr. H. C. Bliss on behalf of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, showed that member clubs in Toronto, Stratford, St. Catharines approved the licence and those in North Waterloo and Ottawa were against it.

Wants Lakes Examined

There should be a biological examination of Lakes in Hastings and Tweed with a view to restocking, Dr. H. C. Bliss told the committee.

The Ontario Federation of Anglers suggested game wardens be appointed on a civil service basis and take examinations to qualify. They should also be given a course of instruction, Dr Bliss said.

"It has also come to our attention that ducks, bass and grouse are being bootlegged," because there are not enough wardens to adequately police the province.

Fight Over Bass Season

Strong opposition developed to changing the opening of the bass season. The present opening date is July 1, and Charles G. Kingan, president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association, asked that it be advanced to June 21.

Mrs. S. C. Cork and Jack Hambleton of the Northern Ontario Tourist Trade Association, opposed the early opening, claiming the bass had not finished spawning. If in certain sections of the province spawning had been completed, the older fish were still guarding the young.

Deputy Minister James Taylor of the Department of Game and Fisheries asked if by way of compromise, the opening date be the first Saturday before July 1. Mr. Kingan said this would satisfy his organization and E. W. Davis of Gore Bay added that the extra week-end would be appreciated by Manitoulin Islanders.

The matter was dropped when H. H. Mackay, biologist of the Department, said that in his personal opinion the season for all fish should not open until July 1.

Index Buildings Against Damage

LONDON, March 21. — (CP) — To the new National Buildings Record has been allotted the important wartime task of recording bomb damage to famous buildings.

The record is a centre for making, collating and indexing records of buildings of all kinds, including medieval churches, Georgian squares and palaces, Victorian banks and clubs, and, in some cases, modern buildings.

"The National Building Record is expected to become a national institution of considerable importance," a spokesman said.

"It will play its part, after the war, in matters of reconstruction and re-development by helping to settle vexed questions of what to preserve, what to rebuild, and what not to rebuild.

"It will be of vital importance where the decision to reinstate an old building has been taken. And it will provide for practising architects, students, artists, war historians, historians of architecture, and the general public a body of easily accessible information on the architecture of Britain."

A committee drew up a detailed scheme for the establishment of the record and approached Lord Reith, Minister of Works and Buildings. Lord Reith approved the scheme, and on his representations the Treasury made a grant sufficient for the National Buildings Record to come into being and tackle some of its more urgent objectives.

Walter Hindes Godfrey, who was responsible for the restoration of many famous buildings, is director of the record. For more than 40 years he has been engaged in a monumental survey of London. He is chairman of the London Survey Committee.

Duty-Free Bonds Total $2,913,327

TORONTO, March 21. — (CP).— Succession duty-free bonds and stock outstanding at August 31, 1934, totalled $4,607,938, Premier Hepburn, as Provincial Treasurer, reported in a return in the Ontario Legislature Wednesday Since that time these bonds to the value of $1,334,310 have been purchased for cancellation prior to maturity and $36,000 have been retired at maturity, leaving $2,913,327 outstanding as at March 14, 1941.

Arrangements are now in progress to redeem these bonds so that there will be none outstanding after November 1, 1941.

The estimated total cost of the Shand Dam project in Western Ontario is $1,652,333, it was said in another return. This amount will be allocated as follows: $619,624 each to the Dominion and Provincial Governments, and $413,085 to the municipalities involved.

The municipalities shares are as follows: Brantford, $158,748; Kitchener, $118,803; Galt, $67,126; Waterloo, $24,785; Preston, $17,638; Paris, $14,334; Fergus $8,344; Elora, $3,304.

The return said that if the application for abandonment of the Fergus-Cataract branch of the C.P.R. line is rejected, a portion of the line will have to be reallocated, which will increase the cost by approximately $220,000.

U.S. To Turn Out 65,000 Tonners

WASHINGTON, Mar. 21—(AP)— A $3,446,990,644 naval appropriation the largest in United States peacetime history, was passed by the Senate yesterday. On the other side of the Capitol informed legislators reported that the Navy is planning to build five 60,000 to 65,000-ton battleships, biggest warcraft ever to sail the seas.

The Naval Bill, carrying funds to operate the Navy establishment in the next fiscal year and to proceed with the building of the two-ocean navy, now goes back to the House of Representatives for action on the Senate amendments.

Included in the measure are: $1,515,000,000 for new ships, including six battle cruisers of 20,000 to 25,000 tons, and $350,372,000 for airplanes.

Concerning the five super-dreadnaughts, Representative Melvin Maas (Rep., Minn.), senior minority member of the House Naval Committee, said he understood that when fully armed and armored they would displace 65,000 tons. Maas believed the contracts for the ships already have been let and that they would be named Montana, Ohio, Maine, New Hampshire and Louisiana.

There have been reports that Japan is building ships of more than 45,000 tons, but so far as is known the world's largest capital ship now in commission is the British battle cruiser Hood, 42,000 tons. The biggest battleships the United States Navy now has in commission are in the 33,000-ton class.

Maas asserted the big ships might carry 18-inch guns, as compared with the present 16-inch maximum, or they might stick to the 16-inch weapons, but carry a larger number of them than do existing craft.

Express Manager Held For Theft

SIMCOE, Ont., Mar. 21—(CP).—Charles Earls, manager of the Simcoe Canadian National Express office, to-day faced a charge of theft as a result of the disappearance of $3,400 from the office safe on March 11. A few hours after Earls' arrest, police said they were also holding his brother Wilfred, Express Company truck driver, in connection with the disappearance.

According to police reports the money was taken to the Express office on the morning of March 11 by three bank employees to be shipped from the Simcoe branch of the Bank of Montreal to the Bank of Canada in Ottawa. Shortly before 6 p.m., Earls reported the money was missing.

Police said Wilfred Earls was arrested at the Braniford, Ont., Military Training Centre where he had reported for military training.

Aid Bill Whips Through House

WASHINGTON, March 21 (AP)— Backed by the thumping bi-partisan house majority of 336-55, the $7,000,000,000 British aid appropriation bill went to the United States senate today, where administration leaders confidently predicted it would get prompt endorsement early next week.

An irresistible coalition of house of representatives Democrats and Republicans sent the record-breaking peacetime bill to the senate last night without a single change.

Getting ready to match the house record for swift preliminary action, a senate appropriations subcommittee decided to start hearings on the measure this afternoon and called various army officials as the first witnesses.

Only hint of senate feeling was given by Senator Robert Taft (Rep-Ohio), who fought the original lease-lend bill to the last. Now that the program has been adopted, he said, "what we ought to do is send Great Britain all the aid provided under the bill."

As it went to the senate, the bill's provisions included $1,343,000,000 for artillery, machine guns and other ordnance; $2,054,000 for aircraft and their accessories; $362,000,000 for tanks, armored cars and other vehicles; $629,000,000 for ships and water craft of all kinds; $752,000,000 for plants to produce such equipment and $200,000,000 for repairing, testing, epuipping or otherwise servicing any defence equipment for the democracies, including the repair of their warships in United States ports.

611 War Savers In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, March 21.—(ENS)—A total of 611 pledges from local citizens has been reported in a final checking up by the committee sponsoring the sale of War Savings Certificates and stamps locally. This amount gives the committee a margin of eleven more pledges than called for in their objective which was to have twenty per cent of the population among the regular contributors. The total comprises 314 payroll pledges, 180 bank pledges and 117 honor pledges and it is expected there may still be a few more come in from the four wards.

The committee which announces it is well satisfied with the report it has been able to submit, includes Chairman H. N. Carr, M.P.P.; vice-chairman, Dr. E. A. Stuart; secretary, P. C. Double Wedding In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, March 21—(ENS)—A quiet double wedding ceremony took place at the Rear street parsonage of Dr. C. S. Reddick Thursday morning when Effie Thain, daughter of Mrs. Jonathan Thain and the late Mr Thain, became the bride of Pte. Roy Scott of 'B' Company 1st Midland Regiment (AF) son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott, Naseby street, and Hazel Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott, was united in marriage to Charles Southworth, son of Mrs. Robert Southworth and the late Harry Southworth of Seymour township.

Miss Scott chose a dusky rose dress with black accessories and Miss Thain wore eggshell blue with matching hat and accessories.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott, when a delightful wedding breakfast was held for immediate relatives of the families. Mrs. E. H. Armstrong and Mrs. Walter Owens assisted Mrs. Scott in receiving. Among those present were Sgt. E. H. Armstrong and Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Victor Free, Mrs. Harold Petherick, Cpl. W. Owens and Mrs. Owens, Pte. Frank Clark and Mrs. Clark, Pte. O. Sarginson and Mrs. Sarginson, Pte. William S. Scott.

Shipping Space Not Allowed Mended Clothes

Over one thousand garments were contained in the bale for overseas shipment sent a few days ago to Red Shield Auxiliary headquarters in Toronto through the Peterborough branch. In a letter received by Mrs. Adjutant Norman Buckley, in charge of the local group, from Mrs. Col. J. Peacock, supervisor of national activities of Red Shield Women's Auxiliary work, deep appreciation is expressed of the "splendid and noble work" done by the various groups and individuals whose contributions have made the shipment possible.

Given emphasis in this letter was that due to new regulations with regard to used clothing, it was absolutely imperative that all garments be either thoroughly washed or cleaned, and because of limited shipping space, no mended or darned clothing is to be sent oversees. It is obvious, of course, that to take precious shipping space for mended garments that will not give long wear would be a needless waste. Made-over garments, such as boys' trousers made from men's overcoats, etc., will be allowed, since the wear would probably equal a new article.

Tentative plans have been announced by Mrs. Buckley regarding a visit from Mrs. Peacock to the local group in the interests of Red Shield work, the visit to be made on the last Thursday of April. It is hoped a masse meeting will be held in the Salvation Army Temple to which all groups and individuals who had helped with Red Shield work, both in town and out, will be invited.

The play committee to arrange for musical numbers, and Mrs. M. Davey was named to arrange for parcelling and sale of home-made candy between acts.

Letters of appreciation were read from Rev. E. Beech for expression of sympathy from the society during a bereavement; from Mrs. E. J. Milne for birthday greetings, and from Mrs. D. Brisbin and Miss Golda Thackeray for convalescent cards.

Mrs. L. Tucker, program convener, presided over a program, including readings by Mrs. L. Sherwin and Mrs. E. Braithwaite; a piano solo; a waltz by Johannes Brahms, was played by Miss Irene Brown; Miss D. Reith contributed a short sketch on the life and works of Pauline Johnson, concluding with the poem, "That he was born in Canada beneath the British flag."

Community singing concluded the program.

Mrs. Charles Sandercock, president, was in the chair.

The devotional period, 'The study of Matthew,' with roll call from same was conducted by Mrs. A. Nill.

Refreshments were served at the close by the hostess. Upwards of twenty-five were present.

Men's Influence Makes Girls What They Are. When Femininity Is Demanded, It Will Be Forthcoming, for Women Follow the Call of Popularity.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I was greatly interested in your article about men having more influence over women than women have over men. Your argument sounds plausible, but still leaves two questions unsettled to which I can find no satisfactory answer. First is, why are women, young and old, devil-possessed to get into pants? Most men detest seeing them in pants, for it makes them lose feminine charm. In plain English, they look like hell. Is it because they wish to be like men in everything. Second, why do girls drink. The poor little fools! Don't they know they are cutting their own throats? Women have always been the peculiar victims of booze. Always they have suffered from drunken men folks. Ninety per cent of men hate to see women drink. Do not misunderstand me. I like women and respect them more than most men do. I have a wife and three daughters, all splendid types of American womanhood. Not one of them drinks, but the girls do, on occasion, go in for pants. Help, please. Tell me the answer.

W. M. S.

ANSWER—Why women do many things that they do is a mystery past all finding out. Why women will put on their heads hats that make them look like figures of fun; why they will wear knee-length dresses that expose how fat or thin or bowlegged their legs are; why they will starve themselves into anemia or T.B. in order to look like a rack of bones; why they will wear slacks and shorts looking the way you say they do, nobody can even guess.

Why girls brought up in decent homes will sell themselves out cheaper than the lowest woman of the streets and pet and kiss for the sake of being taken to the movies or on a joyride; why girls will drink when they know that the most loathesome sight on earth is a drunken woman, is another riddle.

Influenced By Men

My guess at it is that they do these fool things because they think that it makes them attractive to men, and they are not canny enough to perceive that woman's best bet is femininity and that when she threw away her seven veils of mystery and put on britches she made the mistake of her life.

But all of this merely emphasizes the truth of my contention that men's influence over women is all-powerful and that they have only to use it to make them what they want to be. The modern girl drinks and smokes and jitterbugs with men because the boys won't take her out on dates unless she does.

But if modesty and purity and propriety were the price of popularity, she would turn into a little Puritan before you could say Jack Robinson.

Dear Miss Dix—My wife and I have had some very heated arguments on the subject of dancing. She comes from a small town where they hold their dances on a week night other than Saturday nights, and she insists that I take her to them. This would necessitate our riding about 60 miles each way on a bus, dancing until about 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning and, as I have to be at work at 7 o'clock, I insist that it is asking too much of me.

I am perfectly willing to take her to dances at home, provided they are held on Saturday night, but this isn't what she wants. I have a good position and I feel that I owe it my best efforts, and this I cannot give if I am worn out and half asleep from attending a dance the night before. What shall I do about it,

HUSBAND.

ANSWER—Undoubtedly a husband owes it to his wife to provide her with some amusement and, if she likes to dance, to take her to dances when he can do so without jeopardizing his job or ruining his health, but he is very foolish if he lets her desire for pleasure wreck his career.

Yet many women do this. After staying at home all day, they want to step out at night and they drag their poor, tired husbands around to dinners annd parties and night clubs until they break down with nervous exhaustion or fall behind in their work. Then they complain about John being sick and not getting along as some other man does.

And the fault is theirs, because few men have the strength to toil all day and play all night, and no man who goes to his job dull and stupid from lack of sleep, with a stomach upset from too much liquor and indigestible food, and who is tired and worn in body and mind, can compete with the one who has had a quiet, peaceful evening at home, a long night's sleep and who is rested and refreshed.

Perhaps if you can make your wife understand that your ability to make money and give her the luxuries and comforts she craves depends on her not wearing you out in making you take her to dances, she will see that you are neither selfish nor tyrannical in refusing to take her to her country dances.

Don't Bother to Chase the Men

Dear Dorothy Dix—A man who has been making love to me for several months has suddenly ceased coming to see me. What can I do to find out what is wrong? Should I call him up and have a showdown with him face to face, or is indifference the best policy? He tells me that he is not financially able to get married right now. I am willing to wait, but don't like not knowing where I stand. What should I do?

WORRIED.

ANSWER—When a man drops a girl after he has been making love to her, it is because he is through with her and she saves her face by not asking for any explanation or making any protest. For there is nothing she can do about it. It is just that the game is over. The little romance is washed up. Finished.

Evidently that is your case. There is no rational explanation of the young man's conduct. There has been no lovers' quarrel. He just faded out of the picture because he had got tired of you, or because he realized that you were taking his love-making seriously and that if he didn't break away he would become involved in an engagement, while the last thing he wanted to do was to get married.

Love-making is just a line with many men, and it is a thousand pities that girls haven't some way of telling the real article from the spurious. It would save them many a heartache.

Study of Food Values Is Help In Home Defence

Eating our own Canadian fruits and vegetables in season is a form of patriotism women may adopt, in order to assist their country during war-time, according to Miss Edith Elliott of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, who spoke at a meeting of the Local Council of Women Thursday afternoon on "Food for Home Defence." With recently passed laws limiting certain food importations to conserve exchange for purchase of needed war materials, it was with much interest that women heard Miss Elliott explain something of the new laws and make suggestions concerning Canadian products which may be substituted for imports so as to get the same food values.

In 1939 Canada imported from the United States approximately $14,000,000 worth of fruit and vegetables, a great deal of it going for preseason products which Canadians could have had cheaper and of better quality from their own orchards and gardens a few weeks later. "We could have had these products here if we had waited until they came on the market, but we took the edge off our appetites by serving them on our tables out of season," Miss Elliott said. Tomato juice was mentioned as a substitute for orange juice, although apple juice, in itself a nourishing drink, does not contain the amount of Vitamin C necessary.

Milk and dairy products, fruits and vegetables are the two groups listed as "protective foods." "It is these foods," Miss Elliott stated, "that will help us to build healthy Canadian citizens who will be able to resist disease." Two rules for their use included consumption of one pint of milk per day for every adult, one quart for each child, and the serving of two vegetables a day in addition to potatoes.

"In the past twenty years Canada has built for herself an extensive overseas market," Miss Elliott said in explaining why there is a surplus in some foods. "Since ships are allowed space only for essentials since the outbreak of war, it naturally means an over-abundant supply in some products." As an illustration of how this may be overcome, she stated that the per capita consumption of apples was raised from 30 to 40 pounds in response to a widely-advertised appeal from the Canadian government.

That women can definitely "do something" if they but keep their "ears to the radio and their eyes on the newspapers," is Miss Elliott's belief. It is in this way that they find out about the foods on which there may be a temporary or permanent surplus, and in assisting the Government to dispose of this surplus, they are helping to provide money for the purchase of arms and armaments.

Miss Elliott was introduced by Mrs. N. Stanger, and thanked by Mrs. B. F. McNeely.

Mrs. E. Wand presided at the meeting, and stressed the need of more garments for men of the Navy. Announcement was also made of the National Salvage Campaign to open in May. Of much interest was the article read by Mrs. W. H. Morton, and clipped from the Family Herald and Weekly Star, concerning the work of Miss Elizabeth Walker, former Deaconess of St. Paul's church, at Rocky House, Alberta

DRAFTED . FOR LOVE

By RUTH AYERS

YESTERDAY: April finds Ann at Carter's and her last chance to talk to Kent before the trial is gone. In court, Kent wrecks Winkie's case by testifying the man was drunk, produces the young rookie to prove it. The case is dismissed. Kent comes to April. "You've been running away. You've got to tal' to me, now."

GOODBY TO LOVE
CHAPTER XXII

Still holding her hand, Kent walked to his car with April. She tried to keep her head averted but there was something compelling in his look, something that drew her to him.

"What is it you want?" she asked.

This was the first time she'd seen his eyes clearly since he had been blinded. They were gray, serious, and yet holding a warmth like no other eyes she's ever known.

"Your eyes," she began, "they're all right now?"

He nodded. "Oh, maybe not quite as good as new," he said, "but I'll never be in the dark again."

Then without speaking further, he guided the car through the traffic tangle on Capitol street and crossed the bridge to the river road. April sat quietly, only the twisting of her handkerchief in her hands to betray the inner tremor.

Abruptly, Kent stopped the car and turned to her. "I can't get the thought of you out of my mind!" he said.

"No, Kent, you've no right to say that."

"You'll have to hear me through. I said I couldn't get the thought of you out of my mind. It's more than that. I can't get you out of my blood, out of my heart. It's because of those three days when I was home on leave. Something happened to me then to change everything. I fell in love with a girl, really in love for the first time. The girl was you."

"Kent—Kent, darling." She whispered it under her breath.

He drew her to him, his shoulders sagging, his hands unsteady.

"If you've never been honest before, if you'll never be again, this time you must tell me the truth," he began to plead. "Everything depends on it, the beginning and the end, I guess, of our future. I've got to know if you fell in love with me or if you were only playing a part, sorry for me, as you said once. If you love me I'll have the courage for anything, even to facing Ann." His voice broke, every line in his face showed the pain these words had cost him.

But April Burnett had edged away, sitting stiffly, unbending in her corner.

Ann! The name had blasted like a bomb into that brief paradise where she had soared when Kent told her she was the girl with whom he'd fallen in love.

Ann was at home this minute, likely pinning the tulle on her small brown head for the wedding veil. Ann, with her eyes starry, a song whispering along her lips.

"I'll have the courage for anything even to facing Ann," Kent had said.

April remembered that only the other night, when Dad had been in her room, he had spoken of the deep disappointment Ann would always feel because she had failed before the great Vivano. She thought of what she herself had said, "All the more reason why nothing must spoil her happiness with Kent."

Inwardly, something cried out, "But you, April, what about you? You love Kent. He wants you to speak honestly."

She tried to make a decision, her hands twisting at her handkerchief, knotting it. A silly handkerchief with a spidery lace edge.

Many men had fallen in love with her. But they'd recovered and gone their way to find girls who would make better wives. Kent would be the same. He would forget her, or if he remembered, it would be to think that she had dazzled him, charmed him momentarily.

She began slowly, uncertainly, and yet with a sore goal ahead. "You're very gallant, Kent."

"Gallant!" He bridled at the word, alert at once.

"It's too bad," she went on, twisting the spidery lace until it was like a string in her hands, "if I misled you. That night when I took you up to the train, I told you I had pretended to be Ann because I felt sorry for you."

She saw him straighten, his head lift.

She managed a shrug. "It was more than being sorry for you, of course. I liked you and thought that it would be sort of a masquerade for those three days and no one would ever know the difference."

"Masquerade?" There was loathing in his voice.

She turned her face away. "Well—a lark," she whispered.

"You're lying, April."

"No, I'm not lying. I never thought you'd take it this way. It was something that happened and yet as you said that night, was over and done with as if it had never happened at all. Really, Kent, we'd both better forget it. As for me, I'm in love with someone else, Hal Parks. I'm going to up and marry him one of these days."

There, that would let her out, soften the blow for him.

The white anger in Kent's face died out. He looked gray, haggard, beaten. He started the car and soon the familiar streets of Pattonsville loomed ahead.

"If you don't mind," she said, "I'd like to get out at the next corner. Have some errands to do."

"Very well."

"And, Kent," she tried to touch his hand timidly, "it was better, don't you think, that we didn't try to kid ourselves. You and Ann were meant for each other, you're going to make a happy couple."

The corner was just ahead. If he would only speak, say something kind that she could keep as a treasureof him for the rest of her life! His eyes had been so warm, so searching when he had met her outside the court. But now they were hard as the hailstones that had pelted down the day when the outing had ended in storm.

"Here you are," he said, opening the car door.

If he had been angry with her the night she'd taken him to the train, this was beyond anger. His face held a look of hatred, a look that spoke plainer than words how deeply he despised her.

Then he said, "Thank God you told me in time. For the rest of my life I'm going to be humbly grateful for the love of a girl like Ann."

Well, she could carry it through to the end. She stepped out of the car and, leaning against the door, made a pretense of dabbing at her eyes with her handkerchief.

"You'll have me weeping here in a minute," she said.

"You weeping?" Kent laughed. "You don't know what tears are."

No? Well, something was surely blurring her lashes as she stood on the corner long after Kent Carter was out of sight.

FASHIONS

North, south, east and west, we all love the comfort of jumpers. This new version with its waist hugging set-in belt and full skirt is equally smart made of cotton or silk. Now is the time to make this button-back style that is neat and free as a breeze for sports or dress up. You'll wear it later as a sun-back frock or make it in the shorter play dress length if you are going south for a visit. The tailored shirt blouse that you will wear with other skirts and jumpers is also included in the pattern.

Style No. 2841 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch fabric for jumper; 1⅝ yards for blouse.

With The Girl Guides

First St. Andrew's Company are planning a Home Baking Sale on the market tomorrow, and the proceeds will go to the British War Victims' Fund. The Guides, and especially the patrol leaders, are putting a lot of effort into this and they ask your support. Try to visit their table tomorrow and buy something from them—by helping them you help swell this worthy fund.

Another recruit joined the great Sisterhood of Guides on Wednesday, when Marlie Jobbitt of the Canary Patrol made her promise to Commissioner Mrs. Whalon. Several new recruits were welcomed, and the Company now numbers thirty-eight. We hope that these recruits will find Guiding worthwhile, and will soon become full-fledged members of the Company.—"The Scribe."

Spring Tea Is Held By W.A.

Mrs. A. E. DeNure of 577 Armour Road opened her home Thursday afternoon for a delightful spring tea held by Group One of Mark Street Women's Association. Mrs. E. W. Rowland received with Mrs. DeNure, and Mrs. C. Larmer, W.A. president, was tea room hostess.

Daffodils and snapdragons filled a silver basket on the tea table, and tall green tapers in matching holders were used. Pouring were Mrs. L. Musgrove and Mrs. Bert McCarrell. Tea was served by Mrs. H. Cheel, Mrs. Frank Timlin, Mrs. C. Aker Mrs. G. Eason was general convener, and Mrs. H. Cooper, assisted by Mrs. M. McNeely, convener of kitchen arrangements. Miss Elsie Samis was treasurer for the afternoon.

During the tea hour pleasant musical numbers were heard. Two vocal numbers were given by Mrs. Stuart Mitchell, and a vocal number and piano selection by Miss Helen Wilson. Mrs. DeNure was accompanist. A piano duet was also given by Glen and Lorrine Hunter.

Two-Tone Dinner Dress

By ALICE ALDEN

ONE style that seems to have made a tremendous success is the one which combines a monotone top or bodice of simple design and an elaborate print skirt. It is taking honors for both day and evening in every part of the country. Here is a Hollywood interpretation of this mode worn by youthful, pretty Joan Leslie. The top is of banana yellow jersey and has a U-shaped neckline and brief puff sleeves. In striking contrast is the voluminous skirt. The background is burnt orange and the tropical flower print is in white, green and blue. A perfect frock for evenings at the country club.

DO YOU KNOW . . .

After frying fish in lard, put in a slice of bread and fry it for a few minutes, then drain the lard and it will be free from all taint and ready to use again when required.

Adding fresh or canned fruit to cream pies will give your desserts nice variety. Slice the fruit into the baked pie shell. Cool the cream filling before pouring over fruit. Top with whipped cream or a fluffy meringue.

When knitting children's socks, run three or four lines of rounded elastic under the turnovers, so making them self-supporting. This is much better than garters, which are always being lost.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, March 22.

A DAY of excellent promise is presaged from a propitious combination of astral influences. Things should move on a large and expanding scale, with big business as well as those in power and authority contributing to the onward course of events, especially if these concern either public or community interests or fraternal, political or diplomatic bodies. Tact, finesse, compromise will be found more constructive than any sort of high pressure methods. There may be certain treacheries or undercurrents to cope with. Be sagacious.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is should find themselves launched in a year of excellent opportunities for doing things in a large, strategic and expansive manner, with superiors, employers, those in authority lending ready assistance of a constructive nature. Financial aid as well : public or collective support are to be counted upon. But tact and cleverness may be used to better advantage rather than forceful or direct action. Have a care as to treachery or dubious situations even with friendly interests.

A child born on this day should have many exceptional graces and faculties, possibly turning to art, poetry, music or drama of a moderistic form. It should be equipped for group welfare work, the diplomatic service or some unique profession.

TO PEOPLE WHO CANNOT SWALLOW PILLS

If you feel sluggish, depressed, liverish or are inclined to constipation—just try this treatment for two weeks: Take enough Kruschen to cover a dime, in warm water every morning.

Nothing could be easier to take and Kruschen is not harsh, but is a mild, gentle laxative.

Constipation is caused mainly by lack of moisture in the large intestine. Kruschen contains carefully blended mineral salts that bring back the moisture. Besides cleaning out stagnating poisonous waste matter, Kruschen helps to rid the bloodstream of other poisons resulting from constipation.

Get a 25c size of Kruschen from your druggist and within two weeks you'll feel your old good health coming back. Other sizes at 75c.

Royals Perk Up Wallop St. Jerome 5-3

TORONTO, March 21 — (CP). — Sidetracked temporarily, Montreal Royals were back on the Allan Cup trail today as the time drew near for showdowns among the six clubs still in the running to represent Eastern Canada in the Dominion hockey final.

The Royals, set back by the Quebec Intermediate champions in their provincial final Tuesday, took no chances of another upset as they turned on their power to defeat St. Jerome Papermakers, 5-3, last night. The result gave them a 2-1 edge in the best-of-five series with the Intermediates.

With the Royals favored to eliminate St. Jerome in the fourth game at Montreal tonight, a showdown is also near in the Ontario division, whose winner meets the Quebec champion in an Eastern semi-final. Toronto Marlboros lead South Porcupine Bisons by one game in their best-of-three clash and can end the series for the Ontario title at Toronto tonight.

The time is also near for a line-up on the relative strength of the two clubs in the other semi-final, with Hull Volants scheduled to meet Sydney Millionaires, Martime champions, in the first game of a best-of-five series Saturday at Sydney, N.S.

Curling Notes

By HERB MARTIN

To Tom McArthur and his rink go the honors of winning the Benefit Bonspiel in aid of the Red Cross, with 3 wins and a total of 44 points, and to Douglas Carlisle and his rink go the second place honors with three wins and a total of 43 points, or just one shot short of the winner.

In all twenty-two rinks played aid while it took doube-headers for three nights we believe all the curlers, winners and losers were glad that they did play, if nothing else but to help along the good cause.

Information comes to us that around forty-one dollars will be handed over to the Red Cross.

To-night at 7.30 p.m. we are holding a 25c bonspiel for men, draw from the board; three 4-end games. Telephone your name in early and then "be on time." We are looking forward to a full house.

Now, about to-morrow. At this stage all we can do is to hope. If the weather holds we intend running a final mixed bonspiel at 1.45 p.m. Anyway keep in touch with rink and we'll see what happens.

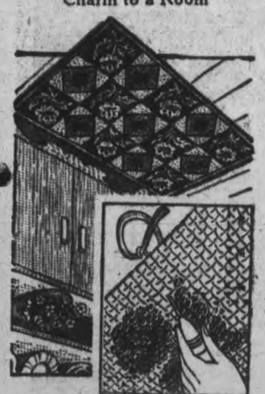
Colorful Hooked Rug Lends Charm to a Room



Simple and Inexpensive to Make

A hooked rug gives your home such a warm, intimate air! And you can hook this charming design easily.

Use any material you have on hand (though woollen is best) and as for colors—the more the merrier! Lovely together are rose, green, black, beige, orchid.

How to begin? On a large piece of burlap draw the shape of the rug, 23 by 37 inches. Then draw a 1-inch border and rule off 15 boxes, each 7 inches square. The floral and geometric designs you draw from patterns.

Now, after sewing carpet binding round your rug and tacking to a wood frame, you can hook.

With one hand, hold a strip of fabric (cut ½-inch wide) under the rug. With the other hand thrust the hoop through the burlap and pull up the strip, leaving a loop ¼-inch high on top of the burlap. Carefully following your color scheme, hook the same way until the rug is finished.

Our 32-page booklet gives exact instructions and patterns for making this beautiful hooked rug. Also tells how to make other lovely hooked styles, as well as woven, braided, knitted, tufted and crocheted rugs.

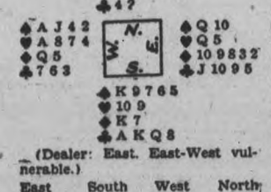
Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO MAKE YOUR OWN RUGS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

ESCAPING DANGERS

WHEN A HAND is over, and you have made your contract after playing it for all it was worth, don't you get a special sort of kick out of thinking about what the opponents could have done to you in spite of yourself? Perhaps there were two or three chances for them to beat you, but each time they did something else and gave you an opportunity to keep on trying.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 ♥
Pass	3 NT

South had to feel pretty strong to refrain from passing the week 3-Hearts, but his 3-No Trumps constituted the contract he should have chosen if North had made his correct second round bid of 3-Diamonds. This deal was a typical example of the sort of human-interest bridge seen with great frequency in the Grand Bridge club headed by the old billiard champion, Charley Ellis, in Pittsburgh. The declarer had to steer a course between many threatening shoals and rocks.

West passed up the correct lead of the club 7 to make perhaps the worst lead in his hand, the heart 4, which the Q won. A spade shift here would have beaten the contract, but East chose the club J to the A. The heart 10 scored. Then, to bring in that suit, two entries to dummy were needed. Seeking them, South led the diamond 7. The Q would have cooked this plan, but West played low and the J won. The heart K then went to the A, East tossing a diamond. West returned the club 7 to the 9 and K. The diamond K was now overtaken by the A, for a run of the last two hearts.

East put a second diamond on one of these hearts, but couldn't on the next. He had to hold the 10 to block the dummy's 6-4 and also needed two clubs to guard against South's Q-8. So he tossed the spade 10, though the Q would have beaten the contract. The declarer then led a spade, on which East put the Q, South ducking. West could do no good by overtaking it, so ducked. East now could do nothing but cash his diamond 10, on which South had the acumen to discard his spade K. East then was obliged to lead into the club Q-8, his 5-spot, so those cards took the last two tricks. That gave south game, with four clubs, two diamonds and three hearts without taking a single trick in the suit he used to open the bidding.

Saved All Cars

LONDON, March 20 (CP)—Two members of the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps, Armament Staff Sgt. W. N. Tripp of Yorkton, Sask., and Pte. R. R. Graham of Regina, were on duty in the neighborhood of the laundry when high explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped. The laundry was set afire and, ignoring the falling bombs, Tripp and Graham entered the building, started one of the automobiles inside and towed all the transport vehicles to safety. They were mentioned in orders.

Slav Fairy Tale Sets Axis Chiefs Fuming

BELGRADE, March 21.—(AP).—A simple tale told in bedtime story fashion, like the stories of the animal kingdom that lull children to sleep the world over, blew up a furious diplomatic storm last night, particularly among the Italian and German diplomats seeking to woo Yugoslavia into the Axis.

The newspaper Pravda, which is close to the Government, printed the story. Axis diplomats immediately expressed displeasure and admitted that only the delicacy of present negotiations with Yugoslavia prevented strong official protests—if not worse.

Here's the story:

In the forest one day the WOLF decided things were all wrong in the animal world. Some smaller animals were getting more to eat than they deserved. The LION was too completely master of the situation, so the WOLF decided something had to be done about it—only those of WOLF blood should be allowed to rule.

The WOLF started out by gobbling up all the BEETLES in sight on the ground—they lacked WOLF blood in their veins and were a nuisance anyway. Then he started swallowing a few smaller animals living near him.

The LION paid no attention to their pleas because he himself had eaten a few smaller animals in his day. But as the WOLF came nearer the LION'S den, the LION got nervous and announced he would fight the WOLF "to the last little animal."

Then the HARE, admiring the WOLF, said he would like to become the WOLF'S ally.

"You are a coward by nature," the WOLF replied, "but if you disguise yourself I will accept you."

The HARE agreed.

The FOX, allied with the LION, at first pretended to fight the WOLF, but soon gave up because he was old, worn-out and lazy. The HARE, in disguise, entered the battle just as it was ending, seizing the FOX'S tail as a trophy. Then, swelling with pride, the HARE began attacking the weakest animals —BIRDS, FISH, FROGS.

But when the HARE heard the LION'S ROAR he started fleeing across the desert. None was able to catch him. Finally his disguise fell off and other animals realized that although he had taken on the teeth of a PANTHER, he was no PANTHER; although he could run backward like a DEER, he was no DEER; although he wore the EAGLE'S feathers, he was no EAGLE.

The WOLF finally told him: "If only I had you as an enemy I could quickly dispose of you, but inasmuch as you are my ally, I must protect you. The best I can say for you is you at least have a good ally."

Mobile Kitchen Tours United States

A mug of specially prepared English tea is enjoyed by Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States on the embassy grounds in Washington, D.C. The tea was served from the "Iron Duke" veteran mobile tea kitchen from England now touring major U.S. cities. The "Duke," bomb-scarred and bullet-riddled from its six months' service in the war, is now on furlough in the United States under auspices of the British War Relief Society.

CAMPBELLFORD

Midland Outfit On Furlough

CAMPBELLFORD, March 21.—(ENS). — Mayor F. F. Long had little difficulty in getting volunteers to drive their cars to Belleville to bring members of the 1st Battalion Midland Regiment back to this town for their furlough. For most of the boys who boarded the special train in Ottawa on Monday it was their first trip home since they left for Lansdowne Park, Ottawa, in February, and in conformance with the policy laid down by the Government every effort was made locally to bring the boys to their homes as soon as possible. Not only was there a fleet of cars generously volunteered but one citizen, A. Rappaport, hired a bus just to make sure that all would be taken care of.

Among the boys who are either at home or visiting in town are:

Two Million H.P. Seaway Object

OTTAWA, March 21.—(CP)—Development of 2,000,000 horsepower of new electricity is the main power project proposed in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin seaway and power development agreed upon on Wednesday by Canada and the United States.

This development will be located in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence River, between Prescott and Cornwall, Ont., and will be tied in with the seaway development which proposes to open a 27-foot channel from Montreal to Lake Superior.

When he announced signing of the agreement Prime Minister Mackenzie King tabled in the House of Commons the report of the temporary joint Canada-United States committee of engineers which carried on investigations of the International Rapids section last year.

They agreed unanimously upon a "controlled single-stage project" as the best from an engineering and economic standpoint.

It provides for the development of all power in one stage at power houses located at the foot of Barnhart Island, with a control dam located at the head of the rapids.

Russians Missed It

PITTSBURG, Mar. 21.—(AP).—A conductor testified to-day at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing that he understood there were 44 Russian diplomats or engineers on the Pennsylvania railroad's Manhattan Limited which travelled over the Cleveland-to-Pittsburg tracks Sunday 18 minutes before another train was wrecked, killing five and injuring 114.

Railroad officials announced immediately after the wreck that definite evidence of sabotage had been discovered.

Near Hardtack

Duntroon, Ont., March 21 (CP)

CRACKERS, cheese and canned goods made today's bill-of-fare at Duntroon, a village in the snow-bound part of Dufferin county. Food supplies were dwindling fast as the village entered its fourth day of isolation.

No mail or trains have reached the place since Monday and not even horse-drawn vehicles have been able to cover routes from here to Collingwood, Stayner, Shelburne and Flesherton.

A Canadian National Railways snowplow made a bit Tuesday to open the Collingwood-Beeton line, on which Duntroon is situated, but was reported to have left the rails.

Slav Fairy Tale Sets Axis Chiefs Fuming

BELGRADE, March 21.—(AP).—A simple tale told in bedtime story fashion, like the stories of the animal kingdom that lull children to sleep the world over, blew up a furious diplomatic storm last night, particularly among the Italian and German diplomats seeking to woo Yugoslavia into the Axis.

The newspaper Pravda, which is close to the Government, printed the story. Axis diplomats immediately expressed displeasure and admitted that only the delicacy of present negotiations with Yugoslavia prevented strong official protests—if not worse.

Here's the story:

In the forest one day the WOLF decided things were all wrong in the animal world. Some smaller animals were getting more to eat than they deserved. The LION was too completely master of the situation, so the WOLF decided something had to be done about it—only those of WOLF blood should be allowed to rule.

The WOLF started out by gobbling up all the BEETLES in sight on the ground—they lacked WOLF blood in their veins and were a nuisance anyway. Then he started swallowing a few smaller animals living near him.

The LION paid no attention to their pleas because he himself had eaten a few smaller animals in his day. But as the WOLF came nearer the LION'S den, the LION got nervous and announced he would fight the WOLF "to the last little animal."

Then the HARE, admiring the WOLF, said he would like to become the WOLF'S ally.

"You are a coward by nature," the WOLF replied, "but if you disguise yourself I will accept you."

The HARE agreed.

The FOX, allied with the LION, at first pretended to fight the WOLF, but soon gave up because he was old, worn-out and lazy. The HARE, in disguise, entered the battle just as it was ending, seizing the FOX'S tail as a trophy. Then, swelling with pride, the HARE began attacking the weakest animals —BIRDS, FISH, FROGS.

But when the HARE heard the LION'S ROAR he started fleeing across the desert. None was able to catch him. Finally his disguise fell off and other animals realized that although he had taken on the teeth of a PANTHER, he was no PANTHER; although he could run backward like a DEER, he was no DEER; although he wore the EAGLE'S feathers, he was no EAGLE.

The WOLF finally told him: "If only I had you as an enemy I could quickly dispose of you, but inasmuch as you are my ally, I must protect you. The best I can say for you is you at least have a good ally."

Mobile Kitchen Tours United States

A mug of specially prepared English tea is enjoyed by Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States on the embassy grounds in Washington, D.C. The tea was served from the "Iron Duke" veteran mobile tea kitchen from England now touring major U.S. cities. The "Duke," bomb-scarred and bullet-riddled from its six months' service in the war, is now on furlough in the United States under auspices of the British War Relief Society.

CAMPBELLFORD

Midland Outfit On Furlough

CAMPBELLFORD, March 21.—(ENS). — Mayor F. F. Long had little difficulty in getting volunteers to drive their cars to Belleville to bring members of the 1st Battalion Midland Regiment back to this town for their furlough. For most of the boys who boarded the special train in Ottawa on Monday it was their first trip home since they left for Lansdowne Park, Ottawa, in February, and in conformance with the policy laid down by the Government every effort was made locally to bring the boys to their homes as soon as possible. Not only was there a fleet of cars generously volunteered but one citizen, A. Rappaport, hired a bus just to make sure that all would be taken care of.

Among the boys who are either at home or visiting in town are:

Sgt. I. Blair, Cpl. W. J. Owens, Cpl. D. Russell, Ptes. O. Sarginson, R. Scott, W. Scott, B. Relf, D. Clark, R. Clark, F. Clark, H. Cubitt, D. Southworth, D. Nicholas, K. Pryke, G. Frederick, J. Democrats Call All Members Off Government Jobs 6 Senators Quit On Regent

Premier's Vienna Session Is Cancelled Paul Finds None To Fill Posts; Berlin Indignant, London Optimistic

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 22—(AP).—A spreading political revolt against the Yugoslav Government's plan to capitulate to German demands for closer alignment with the Axis today caused the Independent Democratic party, fourth most important in the country, to order all its members holding government jobs to resign.

The resignations were ordered as an immediate protest.

Following up the resignation yesterday of three Serb members of the Cabinet, six opposition senators, members of the Serbian Peasant and Independent Democratic parties, also were reported planning to leave office, and two Independent Democrats were declared to have already stepped out.

Sources close to the senators said one of them had left for Greece or Egypt to organize co-operation with Britain.

Leaders of the Serbian Peasant party, which includes most of Yugoslavia's Serb farmers, announced they had called a meeting, probably for tomorrow, at which all its members also would be ordered to leave their state jobs.

As this opposition spread through Yugoslavia, German Minister Viktor Von Heeren conferred at length with Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovic.

Their plans to go to Vienna tomorrow to sign an agreement with Germany already had been postponed indefinitely.

Informed sources said Von Heeren told Cvetkovic and Cincarmarkovic that the German government is "extremely angry and impatient" at Yugoslavia's failure to sign the agreement quickly, and furthermore that the Nazi government "suspects" Yugoslavia of attempting to "stall for time until the British armies can be well installed in Greece close to the Yugoslav frontier."

Only 2 Ways Open

Bulky Homework For Members In Seaway Bill

OTTAWA, March 22—(CP)—With the war appropriations bill advanced a further stage and the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin navigation and power agreement before them for future consideration members of parliament today made plans for a long Easter vacation.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday announced he would propose an Easter adjournment from April 9 to April 28. This, he said, would give members who lived a long distance from Ottawa a chance to visit their constituencies.

The $1,300,000,000 war appropriations measure received second reading yesterday but stands for further consideration in committee of the whole on Monday. Discussion brought from Munitions Minister Howe an assurance that the program for building Avro-Anson twin-engined training planes under the direction of government-owned Federal Aircraft, Limited, now was in complete running order.

London's Mop And Duster Army

With all available men at the front, these women form part of the "mop and duster" army that replaces them as porters in all branches of industry. This particular brigade is attached to the subway trains. Each day they go underground to declare war on dirt and grime.

Greek Batteries Pick Off Fascist Dumps

ATHENS, March 22 — (AP). — Greek mountain troops holding strategic positions on the Central Albanian front destroyed munition and fuel dumps behind the Italian lines with concentrated artillery fire yesterday, a Government spokesman said today.

This action was coupled with sporadic fights in which the Greeks were said to have repulsed a tank onslaught and a Greek patrol was credited with a quick stab into Italian lines in which 15 prisoners including an officer were taken.

NEW YORK.—Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe of Callander looked on as guest-of-honor last night as a letter signed by the Dionne quintuplets was raffled, with proceeds going to the Canadian Red Cross Society. Approximately $100 was realized.

No Horse Masks

Washington, March 22 (CP)

MEMBERS of the house appropriations committee who okayed billions for defence drew the line at spending $1,505,075 for gas masks for horses and the plants to produce them. They eliminated the item from the $4,073,000 appropriation bill passed today although Maj.-Gen. Walter C. Baker of the chemical warfare service had testified the masks were "absolutely essential to the protection of the horse."

List 9 Ship Loss For Last Week

LONDON, March 22—(CP)—The sinking by enemy action of nine British and Allied merchantmen aggregating 65,596 tons was reported in advices received by New York marine circles in the week ended March 21.

A good portion of this tonnage, however, was believed sunk in a German attack on an Atlantic convoy March 6-7 and therefore included in the official British Admiralty summary for the week ended March 9, which listed 98,832 tons of British and Allied shipping sunk in the period. This was some 30,000 tons above the weekly average of the war.

The seven British ships of 48,527 tons reported sunk in New York advices included at 20,638-ton whaler. The other sinkings were two Netherlands ships and one Norwegian merchantman in the Allied service.

WASHINGTON — (AP). — Rejecting a proposal to cut the amount in half, the Senate Appropriations Committee approved unanimously to-day a $7,000,000,000 appropriation to carry out the administration's British aid program.

Slavs Deliver Ex-Premier To The British

Will Be Kept "Safe" Tried To Turn Country Pro-Axis

CAIRO, Egypt, March 22.—(AP)—It was officially reported in British circles today that former Premier Milan Stoyadinovich of Yugoslavia is in British hands.

The announcement said he was handed over to British headquarters by the Yugoslav Government for safe keeping. He will be detained in British territory.

(It was reported authoritatively in Belgrade this week, as the situation grew tense over German demands for alignment of Yugoslavia with the Axis, that Stoyadinovich had been exiled to Greece on charges that he had attempted to regain power and swing the nation into the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo camp.)

Want No Rumanian Deal

LONDON, March 22.—(CP)—An authoritative source said today that British minister in Belgrade, Ronald Ian Campbell, had been in touch with Regent Prince Paul of Yugoslavia for several days concerning Axis demands which "have evidently produced, as might be expected, a government crisis in Belgrade."

"Yugoslavs," he commented, "have no wish to place themselves in the humiliating position of the Rumanians or Bulgarians and their own passionate desire for independence has been strengthened by the wonderful achievements of the Greeks and by the utter futility of Italian efforts to subdue the Greek nation."

He said that the Serbs "will appreciate how important it is to the political and economic life of Yugoslavia that Salonika should remain in friendly Greek hands."

"Nor will the people of Croatia, with their democratic traditions and their zeal for Slav ideals, welcome the dictates of the German, or still less, the Italian dictator."

They Crowded Home

Montrose, Colo. March 22 (AP)

AFTER wandering, almost hopelessly lost in the desolate and snowbound southwestern Colorado Horsefly Basin, for six days, Mrs. Laura Boyd, 22, and her six-year-old daughter were under hospital treatment today for severe exposure.

The young ranch mother and child, Leona, were found at their own mountain cabin yesterday shortly after they had reached it by crawling over ice-crusted snow.

The two were rushed to a hospital at Telluride, part of the way by toboggan. Mrs. Boyd related that they had battled through drifts up to 10 feet deep and snow four feet on the level, crossing and re-crossing their own tracks trying to reach town 11 miles off. She climbed 20 feet up in a pine tree yesterday, sighted a roof which proved her own, a quarter of a mile away, and dragged herself to it on her hands and knees.

20,000 U.S. Planes

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)

A PRODUCTION schedule to supply Britain with some 20,000 United States-made fighting planes in the next 18 months—10,700 of these under terms of the $7,000,000,000 British aid bill—was reported to have been worked out by high administrative officials.

Supplementing this tremendous program, there were authoritative reports that surveys now are under way looking toward establishment of an aerial route to Britain over which pursuit ships, as well as bombers, could be flown by easy stages.

A course beginning at Newfoundland and touching Greenland, Iceland and possibly Ireland was described as under contemplation.

Niagara Railway Bill Reaches Final Reading

TORONTO, Mar. 22 — (CP). — Only the formality of a third reading remained to-day to validate a bill which would relieve municipalities in the Toronto-Niagara area of a debt that has been outstanding since 1914.

In the Ontario Legislature yesterday Highways Minister T. B. McQuesten obtained second reading of his measure that would wipe out the debt incurred by a score of municipalities in the financing of Hydro-Electric railways which were never built. The railways were from Toronto to Port Credit and from Port Credit to St. Catharines.

To guarantee the financing the municipalities deposited bonds and debentures to the value of $16,499,733. After preliminary work costing $2,246,622 the project was dropped and the collateral was never redeemed by the municipalities.

In his budget address on March 14, Premier Hepburn announced the Government's intention to correct this 'injustice" by wiping out the debt and burning the debentures.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission, which holds the bonds, is co-operating with the Government in the matter and in return receives $500,000 from the Highway Improvement Fund.

Premier Hepburn advised the members before the orders of the day that Wendell Willkie would speak from the floor of the Chamber on Monday. He added that he hoped all the members would be present.

Leopold Macaulay (Con. York South) said the electric railway measure was "justice" but he questioned whether $1,000,000 in inter-

Hundreds Wandering Streets Blasted From Homes; Scores Buried Amid Debris

Heaviest Type Of Bombs Thunder Down On Trail Of Myriad Incendiaries; One Big Shelter Holding 250 Is Struck

LONDON, March 22—(CP),—The German air force poured tons of fire bombs and explosives on Plymouth for six hours last night and early today as the oft-bombed port still staggered under the effects of a devastating assault the night before.

The Government announced that damage in the latest attack was extensive and that casualties were "fairly heavy."

At the same time the Royal Air Force raided the Nazi submarine base at Lorient, on the French coast for the third successive night and the 49th time since the war began. Lorient has been identified as a submarine assembly point and repair and supply base for many of the U-boats preying on Britain's Atlantic shipping.

Some of Britain's latest types of super bombers were reported to have participated in the Lorient raid, which was described as very heavy.

Londoners experienced their second successive comparatively quiet night.

In Plymouth, however, many business blocks and rows of homes were razed in the rolling raid that began shortly after dark and lasted until just after midnight.

Use Largest Bombs

An eye-witness said "the raiders started coming over in terrifying numbers and dropped the heaviest explosives this town has felt."

"Many fires were started," a communique said. "These were promptly fought by the fire services but considerable damage was done to some public buildings, to shops and to houses."

Air raid precautions workers had to dynamite some buildings lest toppling walls crush rescue crews digging in the wreckage.

Many persons were known to be trapped in the debris. The authorities said: "Full reports as to casualties are not yet available, but it is feared they may be fairly heavy."

The raid apparently followed the pattern adopted in recent weeks by the Germans, a fiery shower of incendiaries to light up the target, followed by trailing waves of bombers laden with high explosives.

In the war at sea, the Admiralty announced the trawlers Kerryado and Gulfos had been sunk, adding the inevitable note: "The next of kin of casualties have been informed."

Battle Seesaws Fiercely Outside Cheren

LONDON, March 22—(CP).—The battle for Cheren, gateway to the Eritrean capital of Asmara, has developed into a fight of fierce attacks and counter attacks by British forces and Italian defenders, authoritative sources said today.

Meanwhile, they asserted, British forces from Jijiga who recaptured Hargeisa, British Somaliland, "are moving on and it is possible that by this time they have come into contact with our column moving inland from Berbera."

This would strengthen the British thrust from the east toward Addis Ababa, Ethiopian capital.

British warplanes raided the Nazi submarine base at Lorient in German-occupied France last night, the Ministry of Information announced today.

It was the 49th raid on Lorient and the third in three nights.

The Air Ministry announced that British bombers attacked German warships and supply vessels off the Frisian Islands, off the Heligoland Islands and in Heligoland Bight in daylight yesterday.

The Ministry also reported night air raids on the German submarine base at Ostend at Lorient, it said, many high explosive bombs were seen to burst in various parts of the harbor.

Chinese Mines Work

Hong Kong, March 22 (CP)

MORE than 150 Japanese troops were killed or injured and a considerable quantity of military supplies was destroyed when a train struck Chinese land mines four days ago, the Central (Chinese News Agency reported today. The train was southbound on the Canton-Hankow Railway when it struck the mines near Yochow in Huan province, the report said.

Raiders off Newfoundland?

Believe 2 Freighters Sunk Only 300 Miles Southeast Colony

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, March 22—(CP).—Reports indicating the loss of eight merchant ships in convoys reached this Atlantic port yesterday.

One sea-going officer contradicted a previous New York report that submarines sank five vessels in a 38-ship convoy. He was aboard one of the ships that escaped and was "quite sure" only three of the merchantmen were victims of the undersea craft. The ships attacked were close to his own, the officer said, and by his observations he concluded the enemy accounted for three of the ships.

A report of another attack on a convoy backed up a statement by Prime Minister Churchill that enemy surface warships of a heavy type were collaborating with submarines in preying on shipping on this side of the Atlantic.

Freighter crews said two British vessels may have been sunk by an enemy surface raider 300 miles southeast of Newfoundland. Wireless messages had been received, they said, from a tanker and a cargo ship saying an enemy surface raider was shelling them.

No further word was received and the two ships that picked up the messages were unable to determine the fate of the shelled vessels. They estimated the location of the attack as the Grand Banks off Newfoundland.

Loss of three merchant ships in convoy from Gibraltar to Britain was reported by a sailor in a letter. This convoy was attacked by dive bombers and the sailor said that missiles from the planes fell so close to his ship that "we rocked just like a dory in rough water."

"Stories of Nazi cruelty appear indeed to be true," the sailor said. "The Germans literally sprayed the crews of the sinking vessels with machine-gun fire."

Youth 18 Tumbles 200 Feet

Returned Soldier Found In Gorge, Chest Crushed

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 22—(CP).—Stirling Gunn, 18, is lying at the bottom of the Gorge, and Niagara Falls firemen are attempting to bring him to the surface.

Two hundred feet below the level of the roadway, he is believed to have his chest crushed and at least one leg broken.

Firemen by means of ropes got to him and covered him with blankets and efforts are being made to rig up tackle with which to bring him to the surface in a basket.

In conscious moments, all he would say was that he had slipped on the ice.

There is a cave in the Gorge near where he must have fallen and it is believed he had been going in or out when he tumbled over the cliff.

U.S. Guards Beat Canadians To Capture On St. Lawrence Ice

OTTAWA, March 22. — (CP) — Capture by United States authorities of two German navy officers who escaped late yesterday from the prison camp at old Fort Henry near Kingston, Ont., late yesterday was announced early today by internment headquarters here.

Officials also disclosed that two other prisoners of war in the Fort Henry camp were prevented through the vigilance of guards from making a getaway by the same means.

Aside from their announcement that the men who reached United States territory were naval officers, officials declined to identify the escapees. They said it was improbable the names would be released in Canada, but "what the United States authorities decide to do is another matter."

Only a matter of feet separated the escaped prisoners from recapture by Canadian authorities. When apprehended they were still on the ice covering the St. Lawrence river. Canadian officials attempted to secure their custody but the Americans who captured them declined to permit their return to Canada on grounds they had crossed the International Boundary line, in midstream at that point.

Face Internment in U.S.?

What would happen to the men was not known definitely, but as members of the armed forces of a belligerent nation they may face internment in the United States for the duration of the war.

The German officers became the second and third war prisoners from Canada now in the United States. A Nazi airman who identified himself as Baron Franz von Werra escaped from a prison train last Jan. 24 and made his way across the St. Lawrence in a stolen rowboat. He was taken into custody at Ogdensburg, N.Y., and has not been returned to Canada.

WASHINGTON, March 22—(AP)—Congressional clevage over the projected St. Lawrence Seaway and Hydro-electric power project was emphasized today by a split in the sentiment of New Yorkers.

Representative Hamilton Fish Rep., New York), predicted that a majority of the New York delegation would align themselves against the proposal. Some representatives from the northern section of the state were reported favorable to the plan.

1-Day Assault Finishes Giarabub

800 Italians Taken As Last Armed Oasis Surrenders

CAIRO, Egypt, March 22.—(AP).—A one-day assault after 15 weeks of siege has captured the desperately defended oasis of Kiarabub and broken Italy's last stand in Eastern Libya, Britain's African army headquarters declared.

An announcement late last night said the garrison's commander and 800 soldiers surrendered yesterday afternoon after "a short operation" started the day before by Australian and British troops.

The oasis, a cluster on sun-baked native buildings around an ornate mosque of the Senussi Mohammedan sect, has held out since the first Australian mechanized cavalry and British artillery units arrived there Dec. 4, cutting off its defenders from retreat or reinforcement.

The garrison, 150 miles south of Bardia and 30 miles west of the Egyptian frontier, has had only such supplies as Italian planes could drop.

The nearest Italian force, in the Cufra oasis 350 miles farther south, surrendered to "Free French" forces March 1.

"While more important operations were continuing in Cirenaica," British headquarters announced, "it was decided not to attack Giarabub but to leave it under observation only by night reconnaisance troops.

British, Aussies Do Job

"Within the last few days an opportunity arose finally to clear up the situation. A detachment of British and Australian troops was detailed for the task. After a short operation starting Thursday the Italian Commander of Giarabub capitulated Friday afternoon."

Three Boys Held Theft Of Truck

HASTINGS, Mar. 22—(ENS). — The three boys held for theft of a truck owned by Richard Walsh, drover, of Hastings, from a garage owned by Chief of Police William Welman, were remanded for another week. Bail of $500 was set.

Elmer Mouncey and Kenneth Dowler of Roseneath, in company with a minor, are alleged to have taken a truck owned by Hilliard O'Connell from the United Church sheds at Roseneath on the night of March 9. The truck ran into the ditch and was damaged, near Hastings.

Walking into Hastings, they took a truck owned by R. Walsh and drove it to Belleville, where a set of chains valued at $18 were disposed of for $2 to obtain gasoline for the return trip. However, on their return, they are said to have run out of gasoline and abandoned the car on the side of the road on the Cuff's Line, a few miles from the village.

O'Connell said the damage to his truck and the cost of towing it to Roseneath amounted to $22.94.

Albert Scriver of Hastings is charged with selling liquor to the two young men.

Bulky Homework

agreement between the Dominion and Ontario Government concerning waterway development work in that province, gave the members a bulky t of homework for the week-end.

10-Man Rule.

The agreement provides for a 10-man joint commission to carry out the seaway development which involves construction of a power dam and navigation canal in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence River, completion of a 27-foot navigation channel from the Head of the Lakes to Montreal, and works in the Niagara River to preserve the beauty of Niagara Falls.

It was the general understanding here that cost of the entire project will be divided about equally between Canada and the United States but Canada will get credit for large expenditures already incurred on the Welland and Beauharnois Canals which will form part of the seaway to the Lakehead.

The Ontario agreement gives that province the use of Canada's share of the water for power purposes and calls for a contribution of $64,125,000 from Ontario to the Dominion on account of power developments.

Completion of the whole undertaking by 1948 and of power-generating facilities by 1945 is contemplated under the agreement. The total expenditure, including outlays already incurred, is expected to run to more than $500,000,000.

Congress To Act First

Parliament will not be asked to approve the agreement until after the United States Congress acts upon it. In turn, the Dominion-Ontario agreement is conditional on the Canada-United States arrangement coming into effect and the Ontario Legislature may not be asked to endorse that document until both Parliament and Congress have acted on the larger arrangement.

Mr. Howe turned aside suggestions offered in the House that someone be given a free hand with aircraft production. He said he did not believe in giving anyone a free hand to spend public money and did not believe such a course would expedite public business.

The Anson program in which Federal Aircraft Limited is co-ordinating the manufacture of aircraft by contracting for parts of the Anson plane with various aircraft manufacturers, was delayed by the necessity of redesigning the original British Anson, said the minister.

Opposition In US To Waterway

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—Some opposition developed in Congress today against the freshly-signed Canada-United States agreement to harness the St. Lawrence River for power and open its turbulent waters for navigation by ocean-going ships.

Most senators who successfully fought ratification of a St. Lawrence treaty submitted in 1934 were immediately critical of the new agreement, advocated by President Roosevelt as a vital defence move.

Senator Alva Adams (Dem.-Colorado) said that from a defence standpoint he could not see much immediate benefit in a project requiring four or five years to complete.

Declaring power was needed for defence industries, Senator George Norris (Ind.-Nebraska) sided with the President and said the project would benefit the entire nation.

Senator Walter George (Dem.-Georgia), who voted against the treaty when it failed of ratification seven years ago, said the new agreement would have to be studied in relation to current plans for national defence and aid to Britain.

Those favoring the St. Lawrence project considered its chances enhanced by the fact that the agreement would come before congress in the form of legislation requiring only a majority vote in each house of congress, rather than as a treaty, which requires confirmation by two-thirds of the senate.

Senator Styles Bridges (Rep.-New Hampshire) declared the waterway improvements might open a way for easier invasion of this nation.

The two navy officers, however, were the only ones to escape outside the camp boundaries.

Tag Day

Mr. Clarke of Toronto, representing the Greek War Relief Fund, paid a visit to the school on Thursday morning and made a stirring appeal to the girls of P.C.V.S. He called for 67 volunteers to tag today (Saturday) for this fund. In a short address he told us how the young children of Greece were doing all work behind the front lines, usually done by soldiers. The youth of 12-16 attended to transporting provisions, wounded men, and also keep up all communications with the front line. When Greece is making such a gallant bid for freedom, it is not too much for Canadian girls to come forward to this cause, as was shown at the meeting held in the Auditorium at four p.m., yesterday. The girls had to tag for only 2 hours. The returns of the tag day will be announced later.

We are glad to see that the girls of our school are ready to donate their services to promote the war against Hitlerism. The school has outdone itself this term in the many war efforts carried out by the students. Stamps, Certificates and paper collections were outstanding and the girls are still knitting steadily in their wartime classes. The war has united the Collegiate in a manner never equalled before and without doubt this spirit will prevail for many years in P.C.V.S.

Swingarooing

This week it was decided that we should try swinging "Down By the Old Mill Stream." The try-out took place in the Tuesday morning assembly. The once-popular song was falling into disuse, because it had a rather slow aspect about it, and it was worn out, anyway.

However, a new version, or a variation of the song has resulted in pepping it up considerably. It works out all right, provided you don't get tongue-tied. Take, for instance, the first line. You start off with 'Down by the old..." and then, to avoid any ambiquities, you add "not the new, but the old mill stream, not the river but the stream," and so on. The addition is accomplished by some very quick singing. Although this type of singing was new and different to many of the students, they waxed harmonious and the song proved very successful. On the first try-out, part of the school was finishing up the last line while the rest was straggling along behind. The second attempt was much more successful. Here's hoping we have another chance to practice our vocal abilities upon this melodious tongue-twister.

Teasette

The sale of War Savings Certificates topped that of Stamps this week. $716 worth of Certificates were sold and $710 worth of Stamps, making a total of $1,426. Think of the $360 per week of not so long ago.

To date, 1,266 Echoes have been ordered, and there were three high forms for the total amount of copies ordered. XIII A Academic ordered 85 copies, XII B Academic came second with 81 copies, and XII A was third, with 78 copies ordered.

A Marionette Theatre was the centre of attention on Monday morning. Ten puppets performed for the students. The show was put on by girls from X A and X B Commercial and was an excerpt from "The Mill on the Floss." The girls have almost reached perfection, and are quite deft in the manipulation of the tiny figures. The marionettes possessed a curious knack of taking a flying leap off the stage while they had yet six inches to go with the help of their remote controllers. They also bounced furiously up and down while talking. The puppets staged another show on Wednesday morning for the first forms. The puppets were put on display above the showcase on the main landing, and were the cause for much merriment. We hope those figures weren't attempting to model the latest fashions in "Vogue" as implied by the background.

Inspectors will be here next week, so govern yourselves accordingly. This is but a prelude to the approaching Easter examinations.

The members of the Dramatic Club held a party on Wednesday from 4 to 6:15 p.m. Favorite scenes were re-enacted before 50 club members, and lunch was served at the conclusion of the get-together.

The Glee Club was present at the Thursday morning assembly and sang the ever-popular song, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling.' This was the only audible, celebration of St. Patrick's Day at P.C.V.S., but many students were seen in wearing bits o'green on Monday in recognition of the day.

Since were are told that fastidious Oscar the Snake refused a fresh, warm mouse not so long ago, we conclude that it may be because he had some foreboding of St. Patrick's Day. The patron Saint of Ireland was responsible for ridding the isle of snakes some time ago and no doubt Oscar has been told of this episode by one of his sleezy forefathers.

The desk for the War Savings Certificates office was lengthened some 22 inches to take care of increased business. There is now ample room for three teachers so it won't take as long now to apply for Certificates.

The fashion parade dated for last Tuesday was postponed till yesterday but has been postponed again till next Tuesday. The orchestra has faithfully practiced each night before the parade so has had two extra practices.

The Union Jack and our own school flag have been left in the Assembly since the school play and give the Assembly a patriotic touch.

The Camera Club showcase is still void of any work of the Camera Club members.

Victory

Last night in the Bowmanville High School gymnasium our P.C.V.S. senior basketball team defeated B.H.S. by the score of 35-24. This win gave our team and school the Lakeshore championship of the C.O.S.S.A. Despite the valiant efforts of one Brown, so widely publicized by another columnist, our boys led the game all the way. Jim Ferguson, Bill Hall and Chum Gillespie led our scorers with eight points each. Doug Moore, whose blocking and checking was miraculous, procured four points, and George Richardson came through with five points. Eric "Tip" Taylor got two points and Stuart Saunders proved his worth also.

Brown led the attack for Bowmanville with nine points, and some lightning fast single rushes, and Sleming tallied up eight points. Tamblyn, Cashburn and Mitchell procured two points each for B.H.S.

The score at half was 22-10 for P.C.I. This proves that our team had that necessary edge all the way.

Mr. H. L. Bamforth and his boys are to be congratulated on their fine successes this year in basketball and we wish them, on behalf of the school, every success in their future games for the Eastern Ontario championship. Nice work and good luck to you.

Commentaries

Excluding the team members, six carloads of P.C.I. students travelled to Bowmanville to see the game. It is interesting to note that approximately 30 P.C.I'ites outcheered a following of more than one hundred Rubbertown fans in the matter of school yells.

The referees were very nattily attired in white shirts with black stripes, grey pants, and regulation basketball shoes. They were kept on the jump most of the game by the fast-moving teams and deserve credit for the manner in which they handled their jobs.

The low ceiling of the B.H.S. gym proved to be a hazard when long shots were attempted. Our own gym ceiling is spotted with numerous smudges where the balls have hit but after seeing the Bowmanville gym we believe ours to be very high indeed. The absence of a balcony proved to be a nuisance since one had to be careful of flying feet and hurtling balls.

After the game lunch was served to members of both teams and a dance was held in the B.H.S. auditorium. Music was ably supplied by the school's own nine-piece orchestra which was assisted by three girl vocalists. The orchestra was distinguished by having some of its own arrangements of Pennsylvania six-five thousand.

A soft drink booth did a rarin' business and we believe this to be a new innovation at a school dance. Bill Hall drew a number out of a box for a box of chocolates that was given to the person having that number. The band's drummer beat out a really "hot" number at the conclusion of the dance and he was very wildly cheered by the dancers who had clustered around the platform to see his performance.

The game, dance, etc., met with the appreciation and enjoyment of all P.C.V.S. students, and left a lasting memory of good sportsmanship and fellowship between schools.

Quiz On Slaying Wife's Lover Put To Officer

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, March 22—(CP).—Lady Diana Broughton listened calmly in court yesterday to a police inspector's testimony that her husband, Major Sir Henry John Delves Broughton, had inquired six days after the murder of the Earl of Erroll:

"If you found your wife in bed with a man and shot him, would you be hanged for murder?"

The inspector testified in the second day of a preliminary inquiry into charges that the major murdered the high-spirited Lord Erroll, his friend for twenty years, in a fit of jealousy.

The peer was found dead in his automobile Jan. 24 near the Town of Nanyuki, almost exactly on the equator and at the foot of the towering 17,004-foot Mount Kenya.

The inspector said two bullets had been fired at him, that he apparently ducked the first and was struck in the head by the second. Four bullets were found near the scene, the inspector said, but ballistic experts have not identified them.

He related that Major Broughton made the inquiry when he was being questioned Jan. 30, and that a smouldering rubbish heap in the Broughton yard yielded fragments of a blood-stained golf stocking and some charred sacking.

The woman proprietor of a roadhouse in this tropical East African colony testified that Lord Erroll and Lady Broughton left her place shortly before midnight, the night before the murder was discovered.

Lady Broughton was a bride of less than a month at that time, but the court heard a statement yesterday that Major Broughton had said she was in love with Lord Erroll and wanted to marry him.

Lord Erroll, Lord High Constable of Scotland, was a 39-year-old widower, who years ago abandoned the social centres of Europe to establish an estate in Kenya. He was divorced by his first wife, and his second died recently.

Major Broughton, 57, was described in testimony yesterday as having reacted so philosophically to the whole affair that he complied with his wife's request to drop a farewell note from her into Lord Erroll's grave.

Democrats Call

substitute ministers to replace three Serbs had been unsuccessful up to this afternoon.

One after another of the possible candidates flatly refused to enter into any cabinet for the purpose of making a deal with Germany which would place their country in the Axis orbit.

The Yugoslav high military council, including all the general staff members, four corps commanders and the war minister, met this morning. Details of the meeting were closely guarded.

As Prince Paul wrestled with the Cabinet crisis which blocked the plan to link his country with the Axis powers, mobilized Serb soldiers paraded in the provinces singing pro-Allied war songs and students in Belgrade assembled to play "Tipperary."

Up to noon Prince Paul had been unable to find three prominent personalities willing to pledge themselves to support the axis agreement in return for Cabinet posts to replace those who resigned.

Both the Serbian Peasant and Independent Democratic parties were attempting to keep their membership in line and persuade each leader to refuse offers of Cabinet posts.

The departure of the special train which would take government leaders to Vienna for the ceremonies to place Yugoslavia in the axis was postponed indefinitely.

Working with the Regent, Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic summoned Vice-Governor Dr. Ivkovic of the Province of Crotia to Belgrade, and political circles said he might be offered one of the three cabinet posts vacated yesterday by anti-Axis ministers.

Customarily, ministerial vacancies are filled from the same party, but observers considered it unlikely that any prominent member of the Serb Peasant party would serve in a pro-axis cabinet to approve the Crown Council program of modified alliance with the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis.

Serbs Represent Third.

Serb leaders—representing a third of the kingdom's 15,000,000 population, largest of Yugoslavia's many nationalities — bitterly oppose the plan. The cabinet approved it by a vote of 13 to 4 Thursday night, but the Yugoslav constitution requires that such a proposal have unanimous approval.

The uproar in the wake of the swiftly-circulated reports of the government's intention to tie up with the axis—a move generally interpreted as giving German forces in Bulgaria a green light to attack Greece and thus aid faltering Italian troops in Albania—forced the Premier and Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovic to delay their departure for Germany to sign up.

Previous reports said they had expected to affix Yugoslavia's signature to some kind of an agreement in Vienna to-morrow, but the Government leaders said to-day they probably would not be able to leave before Monday or Tuesday.

Germans Upset.

The hitch brought expressions of deep indignation from German quarters. British circles expressed optimism that the popular resentment, coupled with the seriousness of the Cabinet situation, might block permanently the plan to swing Yugoslavia into the Axis camp.

As Prince Paul struggled with the crisis yesterday afternoon, students assembled in a park near the Royal Palace and played "Tipperary," the famous British song of 1914-18, on native instruments.

A London broadcast in Serbian in the early evening, in which Yugoslavs were warned against 'making the pact," was the subject of conversation in cafes during the night.

The broadcast said Yugoslavia "must decide whether she wishes to be another Rumania or follow the road to freedom and independence."

Despatches from Berlin in the morning papers said the country had been "left free to make her own decision as to whether she would join the side of England or go the way of freedom in her own self-interest."

Grave Trouble Brewing

Neutral observers said the danger of real internal trouble was grave. It was disclosed, for example, that the powerful independent democratic party had approved the action taken by its cabinet representative, Welfare Minister Srdjan Budisavijevic, in resigning.

Another of the ministers who defied Prince Paul's declaration yesterday that no resignations would be accepted until the Axis agreement was signed, Dr. Branko Cubrilovic, minister of agriculture, was scheduled to report on his action to the Serbian Agrarian party today.

The other minister who resigned was Mihajlá Konstantinovic, who held the justice portfolio. Milan Protisch, minister of supplies, was said to have been the fourth dissenter.

Friends of Milan Gavrilovic, Yugoslav minister to Russia and a leader of the Serb peasant party, said he was about to leave Moscow for Belgrade to take up the fight against capitulation to the Axis.

In the midst of the crisis, Yugoslavia inaugurated her first attempt at censorship of foreign correspondents. Until now Yugoslavia has been the only country in southeastern Europe giving foreign newsmen full freedom of expression.

Russia will honor aviation experts.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Mar. 22 — (CP). — A weak display at Chicago kept most buyers out of the wheat futures pit on Winnipeg Grain Exchange on Friday and prices were ½ cent lower.

With no export business in Canadian wheat reported and mill buying confined to minor amounts, only lack of persistent selling pressure prevented wheat values from falling to even lower marks. Argentine prices remained unchanged.

Coarse grain values recorded few changes. Southern interests were credited with picking up a little rye and shippers bought some barley but otherwise operations were unimportant.

In the cash wheat market, small quantities of No. 1 Northern were taken for shipment from the Lakehead in May and there were indications that some No. 2, 3 and 4 Northern changed hands.

Waterway Pact Binding As Any Treaty

OTTAWA, March 22 — (CP). — Formal opinions from law officers of both Canada and the United States to the effect the procedure adopted in the St. Lawrence Waterway agreement will constitute a binding obligation on both countries were tabled in the House of Commons yesterday.

The agreement signed Wednesday differs from a formal treaty in that it does not need to be ratified in the constitutional sense of the word. It is an agreement between governments which becomes effective on approval of the legislatures of both countries.

The question was referred to Stuart Edwards, Deputy Minister of Justice, by the Department of External Affairs, who suggested the Government of Canada ask for an opinion by the United States Attorney-General.

John E. Read, legal adviser to the Department of External Affairs, tendered an opinion that the agreement after the procedure proposed would give rise to a valid obligation recognized by the courts of the United States.

Robert H. Jackson, United States Attorney-General, gave the opinion of his department that "It is legally unobjectionable so far as this country is concerned for the executives of the United States and Canada to enter into an agreement regarding the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Deep Waterway project conditioned for its effectiveness on the subsequent enactment of necessary legislation by the Congress and the Canadian Parliament.

"If an agreement is executed and approved on this manner its provisions would be binding on the United States as respects Canada."

Comfort In the Dark Days Offered By Apostle John

By REV. E. R. JAMES

Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on Me, the works that I do shall he do also.
St John 14:12.

How strange the word "verily" sounds to modern ears. Yet four hundred years ago, when this translation was placed in the hands of the English people it was understood by all, otherwise it would not have found a place in a book intended for the common people. It has a two-fold meaning:— "It is true; so be it." The repitition of the word is peculiar to St. John. Our Lord uses it as an introduction to an important statement.

Hearken to the Truth Who cries: "It is true, it is true, I say unto you, he that believeth on Me, the works that I do shall he do also." Are you startled and amazed? For perhaps fifty years St. John has been pondering upon these words and with deep conviction he writes the statement our Lord uttered just before His crucifixion. Countless multitudes have tested it and proved it true.

At His Baptism in the River Jordan the Lord was filled with the Holy Spirit. By that Spiritual power He performed His mighty deeds of healing and of raising of the dead. He never used His spiritual power for His own benefit. It was always used in the spirit of love and compassion for others. This is very important to keep in mind. His followers did likewise. St. Paul had some physical trouble—"a thorn in the flesh"—but received no power to cure himself and had the assurance:—"My grace is sufficient for thee."

During His earthly ministry our Lord endowed His Apostles with this spiritual power when He sent them on a mission. When He sends back the disciples of John the Baptist he gives them a list of miracles in a rising order of importance, the last being the most important:—"The poor have the Gospel preached to them."

Our Lord's rising from the dead was the result of that indwelling Spirit in Him "Death was not able to hold Him" That Spiritual Life in Him was deathless.

AND GREATER WORKS THAN THESE SHALL HE DO, BECAUSE I GO UNTO MY FATHER. What are these greater works? Three thousand souls on the day of Pentecost were added to the Church through St. Peter's preaching; something which never happened during our Lord's earthly ministry. St. Paul's marvellous success in founding the Church throughout the Roman Empire was a greater work

What is a greater work? It was a great work to turn water into wine. It is a greater work in every generation to turn unstable men and women, weak as water, into strong, virile, joyful Christians, who testify by their lives of the living power of Christ in their characters. They were broken earthenware but now they are the sons and daughters of God transformed and changed by the indwelling power of the risen Christ.

WHATSOEVER YE SHALL ASK IN MY NAME, THAT WILL I DO. The believer must ask in the Name of the Lord. It means that he identifies himself with the Beloved Son—that he believes that "the Son is the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth." The Father looks upon the Son and the petitioner is seen in and through Him. We close our prayers with the very familiar words:—"Through Jesus Christ our Lord" They are not intended as magic. But that the petitions are "in His Name." They are in accordance with His mind. But sometimes the Master does not answer them because in His wisdom a refusal is better for us. But with the refusal He gives us the grace to drink the Cup. We always receive grace when we pray in His Name even though the answer may be a refusal. He whispers in our hearts:—"What I do now thou knowest not but thou shalt know hereafter." "Thanks be unto Thee, O Lord."

COMFORT YE, COMFORT YE, MY PEOPLE, SAITH THE LORD.

Trial before Pilate

"What then shall I do unto Jesus who is called Christ?"—Matt. 27:22

Jesus Is Condemned To Die On Crowd's Plea to Pilate

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 23 is Luke 22:39-23:56, the Golden Text being Matt. 27:22. "What then shall I do unto Jesus who is called Christ"?)

SO MANY events are crowded into today's lesson that we cannot fully cover them all. They are tragic events and show how far cruel men will go to remove from their paths One who has done them no harm, only good, but whom they fear because of His power. Also how low man can sink in treachery.

After the supper with his disciples, they all went, as was their habit, to the Mount of Olives. Jesus told the disciples to "pray that ye enter not into temptation," and went aside to pray by Himself, saying, "Father if Thou be willing, remove this cup from Me: nevertheless not My will, but Thine, be done." The cup must have been the awful suffering on the cross and the ill-treatment He was to experience before that dreadful fate.

Returning to the disciples after an agony of emotion, Jesus found them sleeping, and sorrowfully asked them, "Why sleep ye? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation." As He spoke, a great multitude approached, soldiers, chief priests and just plain people. Judas was among them, and he went up to Jesus, intending to kiss Him, but Jesus said, "Judas, betrayest thou the Son of Man with a kiss"?

Cuts Off Servant's Ear

The disciples got ready to fight, in fact, one of them cut off the ear of a servant of the chief priest, but was rebuked by Christ, who healed the man. Jesus looked over the mob and said mildly, "Be ye come out, as against a thief, with swords and staves?

"When I was daily with you in the temple, ye stretched forth no hands against Me; but this is your hour, and the power of darkness."

Jesus was taken to the house of the chief priest. A fire was kindled in the middle of the hall, and Peter joined the crowd around it. A woman asked him if he wasn't one of Jesus' followers, but Peter quickly denied it. Two other people accused him of being a disciple, and when he denied it for the third time he heard the cock crow, and remembered Jesus' words. He saw the Lord look at him, and he went out and wept bitterly because of his disloyalty.

Some of the rabble who surrounded the Master struck at Him and mocked Him. Next day they took Him before Pilate, who questioned Him, but found no fault with Him and sent Him to Herod, in whose territory lay Galilee. Herod was interested in seeing this man he had heard so much about, and hoped He would perform a miracle for him. When he was disappointed, and Jesus stood silent, he sent Him back to Pilate. Pilate appealed to the people to let him scourge Jesus and set Him free, but they cried out, "crucify Him, crucify Him."

Pilate was not strong enough in character to stand up for what he knew was right, and when that cry went up he gave way. Instead of setting Jesus free, he freed a man who was accused of murder and other wickedness, and gave Jesus to His enemies.

The Master was led out to be crucified. One Simon, a Cyrenian, was told to carry Jesus' cross and, with a multitude following, some of them women, many of whom "bewailed and lamented Him," they came to the place of torment. Two others who really were criminals were also crucified, one on each side of Him. Nailed to the cross Jesus prayed, "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do." The soldiers took His garments and cast lots for them, and they mocked at Him and others with them, saying, "He save others; let Him save Himself, if He be Christ, the chosen of God." Over His head were put the words, "This is the king of the Jews."

Sinner Is Saved

One of the criminals also mocked the Lord, telling Him that if He was the Lord, to save Himself and them. But the other hushed him, saying that they deserved the punishment, but not Jesus, and to Jesus he said: "Lord, remember me when thou comest into Thy Kingdom." And Jesus answered, 'Verily I say unto thee, today shalt thou be with Me in paradise."

At the sixth hour it grew dark and suddenly the veil that hung between the holy place and the holy of holies in the temple was torn. It was a heavy veil more than 30 feet long, and this miracle and the darkness all about must have terrified the wicked men who had killed their Lord. With the rending of the veil Jesus cried in a loud voice, 'Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit," and died. A Roman soldier, seeing what had happened, 'glorified God, saying, certainly this was a righteous man."

"And behold, there was a man named Joseph, a counsellor; and he was a good man, and a just." He had not consented to the condemnation of Jesus and was himself a follower of the Master, He was a rich man, and he came to ask that he might take the body of Christ and give it proper burial. He took the body down, wrapped it in linen and laid it in a sepulchre that was hewn of stone. And the women brought spices and ointments and saw how the body was laid, but it was now the Sabbath and they rested, according to the law.

Springville W. M. S. Has Busy Spring Rally

SPRINGVILLE, March 22.—(ENS) In spite of bad roads and weather conditions, nineteen ladies were present at the W.M.S. meeting at Mrs. Fred Clarke's on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. S. S. Staples, the president, conducted the worship period, choosing 'Spring" as the subject. Mrs. Shaw gave a much-enjoyed reading, "Spring Flowers."

It was decided to start a "Travelling Basket," to help make up the allocation. Also "Holiday Calendars" are to be given to each member.

Reports were given from the quiltings which have been held. Seven Red Cross quilts have been sent by the Society, and a number more are to be quilted. A quilting will be held each week in the basement, ontil they are finished.

Miss Jessie Schaeffer gave the report of the Presbyterial held recently at Peterborough.

Missionary readings were given by Mrs. Lloyd Whittington, Mrs. George Dew and Miss Esma Johnston.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Clarke and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Finlay Clarke of Port Hope.

Mr. Dick Clayton of Trinity Church, Peterborough, was guest speaker at this week's meeting of the Y.P.S. He gave a splendid address on "Missions." Miss Nora Staples was in charge of the devotion period and Mr. Duncan Seymour gave a much apreciated solo.

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH

This branch entertained the Young People of Mark Street United Church on Monday, March 17. We were very pleased to see so many out, and all enjoyed the contests and games under the direction of Miss Hope. Mrs. F. Curtis, president, extended a warm welcome to the visitors.

The Apaches of this branch won the bowling league honors and the Mohawks lost second place by only a few pins. Congratulations to both teams.

The meeting Monday night will be an open meeting. An invitation is extended to all members of the congregation, including senior Sunday school, friends and A.Y.P.A members in the city to come and hear Miss Dorothy Allen. She will tell her experiences while teaching at Bishop Borden's School in the West. This talk will be illustrated with slides, and there will be no charge of any kinds.

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH

The Lenten Rally was held last Wednesday night in St. John's Sunday school.

The members attended the church services first and then gathered in the Sunday School for a district meeting. There was an attendance of about 45. Miss Queenie Hope, St. Luke's, president opened the meeting with prayer. Items of business were discussed. Mr. Bo Pammett, vice president led the prayer to finish the meeting.

Refreshments were served by Miss Kay Chivas and group.

Some Important Questions To Be Frankly Faced

A celebrated artist has said that he would like to have painted a picture of Jesus when he went steadfastly up to Jerusalem on His last journey. This artist however could not make up his mind as to what were the feelings in the heart of Jesus as He went on the journey to His death.

Was it the recklessness of the gambler who stakes his all on the turn of the wheel of fortune and is prepared for irretrievable loss, or stupendous gain? Was Jesus just in the mood when He did not care what happened to Him?

Was it on the other hand a spirit of restlessness, and bravado that brought Him into the camp of His enemies to see what they would do to Him? Did He thinks that His followers would take the sword and fight for Him if necessary?

Other questions arise also, why did He not continue His quiet ministry in Gallilee, the northern province? He had many friends there, and He could go on His way unmolested? Was He not foolish in going into the lions' den in which He was bound to be devoured?

What are the motives that lead men to deeds of daring and adventure? Is it possible for a person to do more good by suffering than by living happily and quietly? Was His death a more effective weapon for God than His life had been?

These questions will be frankly faced in St. Andrew's Church on next Sunday night.

Bonarlaw Irish Meet

BONARLAW, March 22—(ENS). The regular meeting of St. Mark's Y.P.A. was held in the rectory on Tuesday evening of this week and despite the inclement weather there was a good attendance.

President Carl Heath took charge of the business portion. The roll call was taken by the secretary, Miss Iva Brown and each member responded with the name of an Irish song.

J. F. Baker, convenor of the program committee conducted a St. Patrick's program. A very interesting and educational talk on the life and work of St. Patrick was given by Rev. Canon Swayne who also contributed a humorous Irish song. Other vocal solos, all Irish, were given by Miss Marion Richardson and Messrs. J. F. Baker and Ray McLaren.

Mrs. W. G. Swayne conducted an interesting "animal" quizz. During lunch yarns were exchanged and riddles given.

Mrs. Jason Baker has been in Belleville for several days visiting her sister, Mrs. Dorland Young who is very low in the General Hospital there.

Easter Mass Is Cancelled

VATICAN CITY, Mar. 22 (AP). —Authoritative sources said to-day that Pope Pius had cancelled the usual Papal Easter Mass in St. Peter's and benediction from the church's balcony for the first time in nine years because of war conditions.

Transportation restrictions on Sundays, when private motoring is forbidden and public transportation reduced, were given as one of the principal reasons for cancellation of the Easter service.

Jesus Condemned and Crucified — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 22:39-23:56.

After the Last Supper, Jesus and His disciples went to the Mount of Olives. Jesus told the disciples to "pray that ye enter not into temptation," and He kneeled down apart and prayed, "Father if Thou be willing, remove this cup from Me."

And there appeared an angel from heaven to strengthen Him. When He arose from His prayer, He came to where the disciples were, and found them sleeping, and He said to them: "Why sleep ye? Rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation."

While Jesus thus spoke to His disciples, a multitude of people drew near, and Judas went before them and drew near to Jesus to kiss Him; but Jesus said to him, "Judas, betrayest thou the Son of Man with a kiss?" The disciples drew swords.

The Lord was taken to the high priest's house, and Peter followed and sat with others around a fire in the hall. Three times he was asked if he was one of Jesus' followers and he denied it, then the cock crowed.

Why Feed The Germans?

A group of thirty-five prominent American citizens have signed a letter addressed to U.S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull, and the object is to make pointed protest against the plan of sending food supplies from United States to "unoccupied" France.

Their view is that such shipment is merely playing upon the humanitarian instincts of the Americans, and "playing into the hands of those who seek to destroy America."

The first duty of United States, the letter urges, is to supply those who are resisting aggression, because it was on that ground and for that reason that the Lease-Lend bill was passed by Congress.

If one looks carefully at the map of France today, and sees where and how it is divided into "occupied" and "unoccupied" areas, it is not possible to come to any other conclusion than that the names mean nothing at all. The entire border country of France is occupied; the whole length of the water front over against Britain is occupied. The word "unoccupied" may well be used for creating the belief that the German invaders are paying little attention to it, and are allowing the residents there to do pretty much as they please. And that is absolutely not the case. The whole of France, regardless of the names applied to it, is under German domination.

Possibly there are many persons in United States and in Canada too who are not aware that the silk factories of Lyons are making parachute silk for the use of German airmen, and Lyons is in what is referred to as "unoccupied" France. It is treated just the same as French industry in "occupied" territory which today is engaged in turning out war goods for the Germans.

The gentlemen who prepared that letter knew well enough the ground on which they were working. In one place they put this plain charge:

"The American people do not know that last autumn the Nazis took over 1,000,000 tons of wheat, as well as other foodstuffs, from unoccupied France and are holding them in the occupied areas as a lever over the head of the Petain Government in order to make the Petain Government in its desperation cry out to America for food."

"We think the American people should be told these things in order that they may not in the kindness of their hearts be made into dupes of Nazi propaganda."

Shipping food supplies to "unoccupied" France is exactly the same as sending supplies to Germany. The spectacle of hunger is a great force on which to base a plea for help. But help for whom? There can be but one answer to that—help to Germany.

It is not possible to forget the reports which have been coming from what we know to be reliable sources. For example: On the day when 600 pigs were taken to the Paris market and two-thirds of that number were at once tagged for immediate and direct shipment to Germany.

United States right now is all but at war with the Axis powers, and United States is pledged to give aid to all those who are fighting aggression, so why tinker and sputter around with a question which runs head-on into the chief aim and hope of the Government of the country? It is not possible to feed "unoccupied" France without feeding the Germans.

Italy's New Warfare

Italy, we learn, is getting ready to fight United States. Not by way of sending ships loaded with men to invade the republic, but by a process which is more subtle and not highly dangerous.

They are sticking up large posters in the streets of Rome, and the posters say "Against the North American menace, all the European continent has come together behind the Axis, and is organizing its own economic and commercial life outside the United States, whose blindness will have to be atoned for in the future."

So your Uncle Sam will have to duck while that blow is being delivered. It begins to look as though a venture of that mild nature is about as far as the Italians are now prepared to go. If they cannot do anything notable outside of their own boundaries they can at least stick posters on the walls at home and thus hurl defiance at the outside world. It's a new form of warfare, where the milk of ferocity is much watered by the addition of parochial timidity. We wonder how much impressed will be the widows and children of Italian soldiers whom Mussolini has driven to the slaughter.

Cornwall Expects Too Much

A report from Cornwall tells of changes which will eventually come with the completion of the St. Lawrence seaway and power development scheme. The village of Iroquois with a population of 1,100 will be flooded and about two-thirds of Morrisburg, which has a population of 1,400, will disappear. Other communities will be similarly affected, and in all some 4,000 people will have to move.

It is predicted that the new plans which will have to be made will make it better for highway conditions as many of the existing roads are not at all suited to four-lane treatment such as No. 2 is going to receive.

The Mayor of Cornwall sees busy days ahead, and it is likely a number of people living near Cornwall will have to come within the city limits. There will be booming times during the course of construction. The Mayor looks ahead to the day of completion and says: "After it is in operation our attraction for industries should be the best possible. We will be in the area for the cheapest power and can offer water shipping facilities."

And to that claim we would like to ask the plain question: "Why should Cornwall have cheaper power than any other community served from that development?"

Are the people there putting up the money for the power scheme? They are not. Ontario has been informed what its share of the cost will be, and it will be born by people all over the province just the same as the people in Cornwall area will have to pay their portion.

That being the case it would seem to be logical to claim that a community one hundred or two hundred miles from Cornwall should be given exactly the same power rate as Cornwall itself. If that policy is not followed then public money, paid in by all sections of the province, is going to be used to create a special advantage for Cornwall, and we doubt very much if the Mayor of Cornwall can advance sound argument as to why any such thing should be done.

A Very Poor Story

The report was persistently circulated in Europe that the first load of war material leaving United States under the Lend-Lease bill had been torpedoed and sunk. Careful reading shows no correspondent mentions where the sinking took place, nor what sort of a vessel made the attack. After waiting a day and a-half for confirmation or denial—nothing has come. In which case the report can be listed as propaganda.

It would be necessary for the Rome-Berlin axis to have something ready to present to their people to offset the effect of the United States legislation. To use a phrase which is admittedly rather common, it would be necessary to "buck up" the people at home.

The intensive bombing of Portsmouth can be explained. Portsmouth attacks can be classed as part of the battle of the Atlantic. The newer attacks on London can be interpreted as evidence that R.A.F. bombs have been falling in Germany in increasing numbers. It can hardly be a pleasant thought for German citizens to find that after months of pounding by their air force Britain is able to hit back harder today than when the bombing campaign first opened.

Hitler has made a dual pledge and boast that American aid will never be able to reach Britain, but the increased number of bombers which use the skyways of Germany must convince them that new strength and new aid is coming to Britain from some source. Hence the story which was rushed into print about the American war goods being sent to the bottom.

As It Was On The Tenth

A man from Sherbrooke, Que., was in this office recently, and he was telling of the plans which some of the people in his province made for producing maple syrup. It is one of the crops on which they depend, and in a good season it is fairly profitable. After listening to his descriptions and explanations we came to the conclusion that making syrup in the modern way is something about which we know little, or perhaps nothing at all.

On Lot 4, Concession Ten, it was not regarded as big business. It never became a source of profit, and grandfather was certain it was a nuisance. He always claimed if the sap season held out for any length of time there would be a poor showing of fall wheat. The weather that would keep the sap going would kill the wheat, and probably he is not far from being correct, for he had seen a lot of weather and a lot of wheat.

The reason why grandfather was not enthused about making syrup was that it was hard to keep it on the premises. They'd set up the big iron kettle back in the bush and try to find enough brush and dry sticks to keep the fire going, and of course it was the same kettle we used to boil the water on the day when a pig was killed in the fall. The bush land was away at the back of the farm and it was hard enough to get the stone boat in there to haul the sap so it was generally carried in buckets. Primitive we admit.

About sap time the road along the Tenth was in for a break-up. It came on about as regular as molting used to strike the hens in fall, and the Tenth was then a worse road than when it was decorated with the pitch holes of sleighing time.

It was just an even eight miles to the village and using horse and buggy was tough going, but it was a caution the number of relatives and friends from the village who were moved to come out toward Lot Four about the time boiling down was finished. We never saw hide nor hair of them in winter when the sleighing was good, but when it turned on toward sap time they felt the urge to move. And move they did.

They'd drive up through the lane where there was mud and they'd start asking about our health before the farm dog had quit barking at them. There had been nothing much wrong with any of us during the winter season, but the folk in the village always said they were somewhat concerned about our condition and then they'd feel easier about it and sleep better at nights.

Never were they in a hurry just to inquire and then turn around and go home the eight miles before it got dark. They wanted to know what we were doing; they inquired about the pigs and the cattle and the milking cows and the chickens and the sheep, and by the process of elimination they'd wear down everything until they got on the question of maple syrup. It's hard to recall that any of them ever suggested they'd like to buy some, but they used to say what they got in the store was poor stuff and they kind of yearned or longed for a taste of the real thing from a real farm.

Possibly grandfather was right enough, because when it was suggested there was some in the cellar the people from the village suddenly remembered there was a sealer in the back of the buggy, and they'd trip out and raise the flap at the back and there would be the sealer, and they always brought along one of the imperial quart size.

After that the callers seemed satisfied that our health was quite all right. We'd never see anything more of them until next spring, and the only chance to even the score was to call there for dinner when we were in town the day of the fall fair.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If there is going to be such a shortage of men shortly it may be the little lady of the house will have opportunity to go forth and mow the lawn this summer.

One lady who has lived through much in England says that personal ambition there is now a dead thing and the people are happier as a result. They have a common ambition now, to retain their freedom.

The way in which Germans have been taking live stock from the conquered countries of Europe suggests that Hitler should make a change in his book title and call it "Mine Calf."

ADVICE

(By A.R.K.)

¶ The young folk used to come to me to ask advice on this and that, the girls talked frankly like and free on growing slim and shedding fat. They talked about their future hopes, about the men they'd like to wed, some feared being tied by hempen ropes by men whose hair was long and red.

¶ And thus it was I talked with Kate, I knew her as a little child, within her coursed no stream of hate, her outlook was serene and mild. I told her not to aim too high but grab a humble man and good, nor bother with some haughty guy who could not split the kinding wood.

¶ Much better wed the plumber's lad or take the village butcher's son, than hitch unto some worthless scad who'd wander home when rose the sun, who might be rated as a sport by those who chanced to pass his way, but on provisions he'd be short, nor could he buy the oats and hay.

¶ And Kate took in the words I said and promised she'd remember them, she'd park my warning in her head, beware of gay and jaunty men. I thought I'd done a goodly thing in setting up the standard high, I might be hearing in the spring that Kate had hooked a worthy guy.

¶ But Kate she up and ran away, she picked a man scarce five foot tall, most times he never works a day—but bootlegs in the early fall.

CAP and BELLS . .

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

I SHALL conclude today the discussion of the recently published book, "They'll Never Quit," written by Harvey Klemmer, formerly an attache at the American Embassy in London....Mr. Klemmer is frankly amazed by the way in which the people of England, and particularly of London, have stood up to attack from the air. He has innumerable stories of heroism and endurance which are very heartening to read. But there is another side of the picture: We know that Britain was prepared for anything up to 30,000 casualties a day from air raids, and so far nothing even approaching this number has been suffered, and for this reason we are rather apt to tell ourselves that the bombing is not so bad as it might have been. But though the number of casualties has been comparatively small the nature of those casualties has been indescribably dreadful. Mr. Klemmer has seen bodies, and parts of bodies, and things that once were bodies, removed from wreckage and the tale he tells of this side of the Battle of Britain, is one of horror and desolation. Like the great majority of Americans, Mr. Klemmer is a man of very strong humanitarian feeling and he admits frankly that the sight of the rescue parties at work was more than he could bear. But for this very reason it increased his respect for the British.

C & B

In his book Mr. Klemmer has some pungent things to say about Nazi war methods, and particularly about indiscriminate bombing. Now every sensible person must recognize that any claim to hit military objectives only is so much eyewash; it cannot be done. All that is possible is for the bombing plane to aim at military objectives only, hoping not to do too much damage to non-military objectives in the process. This is the course which is pursued by the R.A.F., we are assured. British planes which could not find their objectives or were driven back by German anti-aircraft fire used to return to their bases with their bombs in their racks. But when Sir Charles Portal, the Chief of Air Staff, took command he announced that any flier who brought bombs back from Germany would be courtmartialed.

C & B

BUT the German idea of a military objective seems to be anything that can be hit with a bomb or a machine-gun bullet. Children, civilians, farms and country houses have been attacked ruthlessly. We have become familiar with the reports that hospitals and churches have been bombed intentionally; several Nazi pilots have explained that this was because the deceitful British were known to use these supposedly sacred edifices as munitions stores! Mr. Klemmer adds his assurance to that of many other witnesses that the damage done to military objectives is infinitesimal compared with the destruction of slums and ordinary business premises. Concentrations of troops are almost conspicuously avoided. Indeed so marked is this that Britain has now a catchphrase, "Join the Navy and see this world; Join the Air Force and see the next; Join the Army and avoid the war.'

C & B

There are some interesting references in this book to the Canadian troops in England. To say that the boys are getting restless is to understate the case. They are spoiling for a fight, and in the meantime they are quite a handful for the military authorities. There are a number of hard-rock miners and a few men with careers of startling eccentricity behind them who do not accept discipline easily. It is interesting to ponder the probable result if an invading German force were to encounter this element in the Canadian Expeditionary Force. On the one side would be a body of men trained to the last degree in disciplined action, on the other would be a group of rugged individualists, full of resource and novel ideas about repelling an invasion. Acknowledging the extreme cleverness of the German High Command, I doubt if they have foreseen anything quite like the tougher element in the Canadian force; it will be a surprise to the Germans, and they hate to be surprised.

C & B

THE HEROES of Mr. Klemmer's book, however, are not the fliers of the R.A.F. nor the special troops who undertake the sporadic raids on the French coast, but the civilians of Britain. He cannot say enough in praise of their valor, good humor, and resolution. He tells a score of tales about men and women who have borne loss of property and the more tragic loss of friends and relatives with a fortitude which seems more than human. As an American, used to extravagant expressions of emotion, he is thunderstruck by the phlegmatic attitude of the British toward misfortune. He tells of an A.R.P. warden whom he met, helping to clear up the ruins of an explosion in Chelsea. When the work was done this man remarked calmly: "They got my house last night." Mr. Klemmer asked him what he would do to the Nazi bomber who had done this, if he could get at him. The man thought briefly and replied: "Well, I don't think I would give him a cup of tea." It is this attitude of extreme conservatism combined with unshakeable resolve which leaves Mr. Klemmer, and us when we read his book, agape with wonder. It is this which convinces us that there is only one possible end to the war, an end which the welcome aid of Mr. Klemmer's country brings much closer. It is this which makes us say with him—They'll Never Quit.

U.S. Appreciates Churchill

(Editorial from the Augusta, Georgia, Chronicle)

AMERICANS who heard Winston Churchill's magnificent address to the empire Sunday feel infinitely more encouraged about the outcome of the war, because it was impossible to listen to the dynamic and scholarly message of the Prime Minister without realizing that here, indeed, was the spokesman of a great free people who would endure every conceivable form of sacrifice, suffering and torture rather than knuckle down to evil enemies like Hitler and Mussolini.

When the reassuring voice of the indomitable leader came into the homes of millions of American listeners, it was as though he were speaking directly to those faint-hearted individuals, those isolationists and incurable defeatists, who in theory scurry into their mind-made bomb shelters every time Adolf Hitler shakes his fist at his democratic enemies.

Churchill's was the voice of a people who neither contemplate defeat nor doubt their growing strength and ability to triumph in the end, no matter what the cost in human life and suffering.

In Churchill's words there was none of the vain boastfulness or bombast which characterize the frenzied outbursts of the German Fuehrer whenever he mounts the speaker's platform to exhort his people and issue threats against his foes. They were, rather, the words of a leader who has the utter confidence in his people to withstand all the assaults of their enemies, no matter how savage they might be, and outfight and outlast them in the end.

To those who shrink from the proposal to open wide our "arsenal for democracy" to meet the material needs of our embattled British friends, for fear that it would mean "the ploughing under of every fourth American boy," the Prime Minister had the reassuring disclaimer that "we do not need the gallant armies which are forming throughout the American union. We do not need them this year nor next year nor any year that I can foresee."

The timeliness of Prime Minister Churchill's message did not go unnoticed, either in the British Empire or elsewhere. Even as he spoke mighty units of the Royal Navy, in a daring and dangerous manoeuver, were pouring tons of shells into the great Italian port of Genoa; Royal Air Force planes were blasting at the so-called "invasion ports" of the continent in daylight, and Mussolini's empire in Africa was collapsing under the relentless assaults of the Imperial Army of the Nile.

Churchill pointed pridefully to these exploits as undeniable proof of the ever-growing strength of Great Britain. Yet, he was not blinded by these triumphs to the Nazi power and the ever-present threat of new and violent strokes which everyone expects the Axis to make soon before Britain becomes too strong.

His realistic outlook, and his readiness to admit the dangers that lie ahead which must be met and overcome before ultimate victory, made his message all the more impressive.

Mr. Churchill can be assured that it will not be many weeks before his message will have borne fruit. The tools of war for which he so earnestly pleaded will be furnished him in abundance, because congress will pass the British aid bill over the heads of the short-sighted, the calamity-howlers, the defeatists and all the other Americans who have shown themselves to be more timid and less brave-hearted than the courageous and undaunted race of people for whom Winston Churchill speaks.

STORED PORK IN U.S.

INCREASES in pork prices probably can be explained on the ground of distribution of cuts since there are as many differences in pork as in beef. Pork in storage in this country is much more than normal, having reached 741,000,000 pounds last month. That seems like a heavy weight hanging over the market but apparently it cannot be dealt out to consumers in a way to have the desired effect on prices—at least not until prices for the better cuts reach a higher level.

It may be that under the lease-lend bill much of the stored pork can be sent to Britain, where it would help supply the great need for fats. Because its movement will depend more upon anything else any prediction as to its immediate future would be mere guessing. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

L. G.'s HEALTH

I AM SORRY to hear rather disquieting reports of the health of Mr. Lloyd George. Apart from the shock of the sudden death of his wife, the ex-Premier had a trying experience in endeavoring to get through the snow to Criccioth when the news reached him at Churt. For a whole night he suffered considerable exposure to the weather.

Mr. Lloyd George recently celebrated his 78th birthday, and his experience on that terrible journey might well have tested the strength of a younger man. It was largely because of considerations of health that he felt constrained recently to refuse Mr. Churchill's suggestion that he should enter the Government, if not in an administrative at least in an advisory capacity.—London Cor. Ottawa Journal.

A Bit of Nonsense

Always Slower

Complaints still come from America that the Germans get their lies in before the British censors release the true version.

This "time-lag" recalls a telegram sent to King George during the last war by the Arab leader after an important victory over the Turks. Handicapped by having to express himself in a foreign tongue, he wired:

"Our victorious troops have captured one of the enemy's divisions near Tafileh. The truth follows by post.

His One Desire

A celebrity was placed next to a talkative and inquisitive maiden lady, who bored him excessively with her questions.

"Tell me, won't you, what was your greatest ambition as a child, and have you attained it?" she asked.

The celebrity looked at her sadly and said: "Madam, I regret to say I have never attained my boyhood ambition."

"And what was it?"

"Madam, my great ambition was to throw an egg into an electric fan!"

2-Day Ship Loss Is 88,586 Tons

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)—Maritime circles said today word had been received of the destruction of three British freighters and the 4,028-ton Finish freighter Wirta, which was wrecked on the Iceland coast while en route from Baltimore and New York to Petsamo with a cargo of sugar.

The loss of these ships totalling 18,926 tons followed upon yesterday's reports of British, Allied and neutral losses of 14 ships totalling 88,586 tons—a two-day total which gave added emphasis to the stepped-up war at sea. Most of the 18 vessels were sunk this month.

Authorities said the Wirta's cargo was salvaged and would eventually reach Finland.

They said these British freighters had been added to the lost list:

Trelayny, 4,689 tons, sunk between Boston and Liverpool; Cape Nelson, 3,807 tons, sunk between Philadelphia and Liverpool, and the City of Bedford, 6,402, lost en route from New York to England.

Regina Eliminates Yorktown 5-4

(By the Canadian Press.)

For the third time in the Thunder Bay playdowns club officials and Thunder Bay Amateur Hockey Association representatives battled with words today as Geraldton attempted to keep a team in the running for Dominion honors.

Twice before Geraldton lost protests in the senior division but felt confident the third case stated last night, after Port Arthur juniors took the first of a two-game total-goal district championship 14-2 over Gold Miners, would result in a replay. Second game was scheduled for tonight.

After Geraldton lost by the one-sided count T.B.A.H.A. officials were considering awarding the district title to Port Arthur when Gold Miners protested that a military transfer made earlier yesterday to the juniors was ineligible.

Protest Replacement

The juniors received Defenceman Joe Gollat of Port Arthur West Ends as a military replacement for Robert Raby, now a member of the Royal Canadian Navy. The Northwestern Ontario mining town's club said that Raby, a star of juniors a year ago, was over the junior age limit now and therefore the transfer would not be permitted.

Whether a replay is ordered apparently will make little difference on the final outcome.

The Thunder Bay District winner will meet Rangers at Winnipeg Monday in the opener of a best-of-five Memorial Cup playdowns series.

Four teams remained in the Western Canada senior section with Regina Rangers getting into the semi-finals last night on a 5-4 triumph over Yorkton Terriers. Regina took the best-of-five series 3-2 despite the fact that on the round Terriers outscored them 14-11.

Rangers travel to Port Arthur to meet Bearcats Monday in one semi-final while Lethbridge Maple Leafs and Trail Smoke Eaters open the other semi-final at Trail tonight.

Ross Suggests A New Set Up

By H. M. PETERS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

BOSTON, March 22—(CP)—Art Ross, manager of Boston Bruins in the National Hockey League, said today that he believes new capital and an independent executive should take over New York Americans and said that Boston is "prepared to offer Americans players who can help them if reorganization can be affected."

He said he and Weston Adams, president of the Boston Club, "feel the present set-up of the Americans is unsound" and that Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, "should not be president of the Americans." Americans finished last in the N.H.L. this season.

Ross paid tribute to Red Dutton as "a fine manager" who has done "a great job with his material," and said that all Americans need to keep pace with other teams is "an independent executive." (It is understood that the future of the Americans will be considered at the league's annual meeting in May).

"Weston Adams and myself have been accused in various publications in the United States and Canada of starting propaganda to eliminate the Americans from the National Hockey League. We have never made for publication any statement to that effect. We have definite views on the subject, however.

"We feel that new capital should be arranged in order that the Americans can compete with other clubs of the league, on even terms, so far as purchasing and developing players, and maintaining a scout system.

"Since the league took the Americans over, the club has made a remarkable record financially in that it has not lost money. However, its purchases of players were made out of earnings, and these have not been sufficient to keep pace the progress made by Canadiens, Detroit and Chicago.

"Give the Americans a good, sound setup and they will be a big asset to the league, and an attraction to the league, and an attraction everywhere they play."

Helene Rains Wins Swim

BUFFALO, N.Y., March 22—(CP) Helene Rains of New York became the new 300-yard individual medley champion Thursday by winning the event in a new national record time of 4:09.9 at the United States Amateur Athletic Union's women swimming and diving meet. Lorraine Fischer, defending titleholder, who set the former record of 4:10.2 in Miami last year, withdrew after narrowly qualifying for the semi-finals.

Miss Fischer's old record was also broken twice last night by two other aquatic stars who entered the finals. Dorothy Leonard of Worcester, Mass., was the first to shatter the mark when she was timed in the fourth elimination heat in 4:09.2, beating out Betty Bemis, Indianapolis, and Marjorie Thompson, Hamilton, Ont. Miss Bemis duplicated the feat in the first semi-final heat in 4:09.8. She finished second in the finals ahead of Ruth Howarth, Whitingsville, Mass.

Miss Rains' new record was just 1.7 seconds off the American mark for the distance, 4:03.2, set by Katharine Rawls in Indianapolis, May 1, 1938.

The Multnomah Athletic Club, Portland, Ore., successfully defended its 400-yard free-style relay title with another record-shattering performance. The Multnomah mermaids, Suzanne Zimmerman, Nancy Merki, Joyce MacRae and Brenda Helser, covered the distance in 4:12.4, clipping a full second from the previous American mark set in Chicago, April 2, 1936, by the Washington Athletic Club of Seattle, Wash.

The Women's Swimming Association, New York City, was second, and the Worcester Women's Swimming Association, Worcester, Mass., third.

Winning Streak Of Aces Is Finally Broken

Westclox and St. John's moved one up in their separate two out of three series for the senior and junior Ladies' Basketball League titles at the Y.W.C.A. on Friday night. With the season's largest crowd in attendance both games turned into nip and tuck struggles with St John's taking the opener of the junior finals 22-16 from Y Gym and Westclox stopping the winning streak of the Quaker Aces and capturing the first of the senior final series 19-15.

St. John's, who finished in fourth place in the final league standing, played the best basketball they have shown for some time to turn back Y Gym, the third place team, 22-16, and take the first step towards the junior title. They moved into a 6-5 lead in the bitterly fought first half and turned on the offensive heat in the last period to win going away. It was a close checking, fast ball game all the way, with play about even in the first half and St. John's pulling away in the last quarter as Y Gym were tiring.

No Scoring Punch.

Neither team seemed to be able to unleash any kind of scoring punch in the first half, with defence being the theme, but in the final stanza attack took the spotlight. The winners had better passing and more opportune shooting to earn the decision although it was anybody's game most of the way. The losers battled hard and were in the game to the end, although they had but five players in their lineup.

E. Clark and T. Laws led the winners with I. Young and S. Zacks best for the Y Gym.

The teams:

St. John's 22 —A. Bowler 2, T. Laws 2, T. Gynane, E. Clark 6, E. Gynane 4, E. Foster 2, E. Harte-Maxwell, H. Chivas 2, D. Groombridge.

Y Gym 16 — B. Flynn 3, I. Young 6, R. Sullivan 2, D. Ackford 1, S. Zacks 4.

Referees— J. Cooper, W. Thirnbeck.

Rather a Surprise.

Westclox pulled something of a surprise in turning back the Aces 19-15 in the first senior series play-of, in as much as the Aces had not been defeated in the final weeks of the regular schedule. The Westclox got the jump in the opening half and moved into an 11-6 lead in that period to take the verdict. The Quaker team battled back in the final half and managed to outscore the winners 9-8, but they could not quite catch up. It was a good ball game all the way, with the winners earning the verdict on their early scoring edge and their last half defensive stand. They played good offensive basketball in the early minutes and broke from the barrier at top speed, taking the lead in the opening minutes and never relinquishing it. Aces, usual high pressure scoring, was stopped by the checking efforts of the winners and some mediocre shooting from in close added to their downfall. The winners' passing and shooting was good and they cashed in on a much better percentage of their chances than did the Aces. The winners converted three of the seven free throws given them, and the Aces counted only one of their eight tries.

E. Craig and A. Flynn each had six points for Westclox, and B. Saunders also starred. D. Weese, P. Lawless, and J. Fowler were prominent for the Aces.

The teams:

Westclox 19 — B. Saunders 4, M. McFadden, J. Crowe, A. Flynn 6, D. Gibbs, A. Highe 1, F. Bestard 2, E. Bestard, E. Craig 6.

Quaker Aces 16— P. Lawless 5, D. Weese 6, A. Grady 2, M. Duncan, E. Alexander 2, J. Fowler, H. Howden, V. Wood, E. Kirn.

Referees—L. Grose, J. Cooper.

Curling Notes

By HERB MARTIN

If last night's curling is to be the last curling for the 1940-41 season, we would like to quote J. Gordon Grant. What he says expresses our sentiments exactly. It is taken from his book called, "The Complete Curler." He says:

"In every thing I have ever written about curling I have been actuated by a desire common to all curlers—the desire to further the best interests, and to uphold the prestige of our old game. May the true curler aye flourish like the green bay tree; and, if I may use the words of a curler, and poet, words that were written many years ago:

"I wish he may when active labors close,
Enjoy a period of well-earned repose,
And peace and comfort; and, when that is past,
And human dissolution comes at last,
His "better being" purified, forgiven,
May, like a cloud of incense, curl to heaven."

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Although baseball talk in Peterborough just "ain't been," the fact that spring has arrived on the calendar at least has got some folk thinking about the game and what can be done to give it a blood transfusion. One of the most hopeful ideas in that direction is the proposal that the Lakeshore intermediate loop and the old Central Ontario League should be amalgamated with Oshawa, Peterborough, Belleville and combined Cobourg-Port Hope and Bowmanville-Newcastle clubs making up a five-club loop. At the end of the schedule the two top teams would play off for the right to represent the league in the senior O.B.A. playdowns and the third and fourth teams clash in another series, the winner to continue on in the intermediate A provincial competition.

* * * * * *

It is understood that some difficulty is being experienced in getting the Lakeshore Loop under way this season and the executive of that organization might welcome a proposition such as is outlined especially if President Ray Dodge and Secretary Brown of the Lakeshore organization were continued in office at the head of the suggested amalgamation. Belleville should be ripe for senior ball again and with the possibility of a league such as is outlined in this article the Reliance outfit which put the Quinte town on the hockey map this winter might be quite willing to take a fling at baseball. Oshawa, too, would probably get more kick out of the revived Central Loop than out of the Toronto set-up. Bowmanville has had a well-balanced team in intermediate ball for several seasons and would provide plenty of opposition for all and sundry and Port Hope and Cobourg combined would be able to field a smart club.

* * * * * *

And here is something else again. It comes from Red Burnett's column in the Star:— "There is a move on foot to form a new senior league similar to the Intercounty senior section and Niagara Peninsula group. This new circuit would include teams from Toronto, Oshawa, Hamilton, Port Credit and Peterborough. This would take grade "A" senior ball right out of the hands of the T.B.A. in Toronto. It seems the big fellows became fed up when the T.B.A. insisted on taking the Intercity Senior Baseball League playoffs and classing them as T.B.A. finals. This league included teams from Oshawa and Peterborough, with the Motor City team winning the Toronto title, which is truly a fine kettle of fish....If the T.B.A. wanted playoffs they should have run a special series amongst the Toronto teams and let the Intercity loop run its own show until a champion was declared. This new idea of having one good team in Toronto, one in Port Credit, Hamilton, Peterborough and Oshawa sounds like a solution for a baseball situation that gets worse as the seasons roll by. This city could field one topnotch team and provide the fans with good ball when playing outside nines....Men behind the new idea would play all the Toronto games at the Maple Leaf Stadium.

* * * * * *

Last night's doubleheader in the Ladies' Basketball League playoffs in the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium lived up to advance notices for both games were packed full of excitement and action. In both cases the team had finished lower down the league standing than its opponent came through with a win. In the battle for the senior title Westclox who wound up in second place, two games behind the Quaker Aces got the jump on the league leaders by defeating them 21 to 15 and thus the Aces have to win the second game next Friday night to even up the series or it will all be over and the Clockmakers will be 1941 champions. Similarly in the clash for the junior championship the fourth-place St. John's team last night took a cleanout win at the expense of the Y. Gym team who had finished third in the race and had come within an ace of winding up in the second slot. The church team led at half time by 6 to 5 and increased their lead in the second stanza to triumph by 22 to 16.

Says the Kingston Whig-Standard: "The finals are expected to bring together two of the best teams to ever play in the Senior B series. Owen Sound is rated as a top team and the Combines, on their play all season, have compared with many Senior A clubs and far better than most teams that have been granted an entry in the Allan Cup eliminations. Although not champions by any means officials of the Kingston Club will question the banning of the Senior B teams from the Canadian senior title series this year as, according to the O.H.A. constitution, which can only be changed at annual meetings, Senior B team is entitled to meet the N.O.H.A. winners in the all Ontario playoffs. The N.O.H.A. champions were granted a direct bye into the provincial finals this year with Toronto Marlboros, O.H.A. Senior A titleholders, and the winner will oppose Quebec in the Eastern Canada senior semi-finals. The Hamilton team deserves credit for its play, considering that it had only two previous games in organized hockey. Pinkey Lewis, coach of the Hamilton Club, only took charge of the team about a month ago and developed a good defensive unit. Dave Timms, a former Kingston resident, managed the Hamilton team. Not getting any support at home the Hamilton team was even figuring on playing the finals with Owen Sound in Kingston had the Combines been beaten last night. The size and enthusiasm of the Kingston crowd more than pleased the Hamilton players and officials.", Incidentally Ray Smith of the Kingston Combines who refereed the Regiopolis-Peterborough juvenile game in Lakefield Thursday night in a fanning bee between periods declared that the Petes were the hardest team the Kingston outfit has had to face this season. Smith said they were tougher than the Hamilton crowd and that the opinion in Kingston was that the Combines would not meet any more formidable opposition in their battle for the title. They draw the Owen Sound team next and they do not expect the northerners to be any harder than Hamilton to overcome. The Combine player said that Honey Tompkins had been playing great hockey for Kingston since he replaced Walter Gerow.

Coach H. L. Bamforth's Collegiate senior basketball squad threw a surprise into the Bowmanville camp last night when they defeated the fast-stepping Rubbertown team 35 to 24 in Bowmanville and took the round by 11 points. When the Bees stepped into Peterborough a week ago and held the Peterborough students to a tie on their own floor they thought the result of the second game was only a matter of how big their margin of victory would be. The P.C.V.S. team however had other ideas. They wanted a trip to Toronto for the Cossa finals and accordingly they opened out so fast at Bowmanville that the surprised Brown-Clemen-McIlveen combination never did succeed in getting back on its feet and into a winning stride. It was 22 to 10 for Peterborough at the half and they held on during a Bowmanville rally in the second period.

Big Abe Simon, of Long Island, kept a lot of folk out of bed last night by lasting thirteen rounds against Champion Joe Louis in a 20-roud bout at Detroit. Simon wasn't figured to go more than a couple of rounds but he upset the dope by giving Louis quite a battle before he lost on a technical knockout in the 13th. Newspaper reports say that the champ was not exactly a ball of fire and that Simon hadn't much difficulty in hitting him with a left. However, the fight fans got their money's worth and that was a little more than they have been getting from recent heavyweight fights.

Weiland Rates Apps Ahead Of Bill Cowley

BOSTON, March 22 (CP).—Cooney Weiland, chosen by newspapermen of Canadian and United States National Hockey League cities as coach for The Canadian Press All-Star team released on Thrusday, said last night he had been given a great—if mythical — team with which to work. Then he confessed that it differs a little from the squad he would have picked himself.

The Boston coach said he is an Apps-man. Throughout the balloting Bill Cowley of Boston and Syl Apps of Toronto monopolized attention in their battle for the centre position. Cowley eventually was chosen, with Apps placed on the second squad, but Weiland said he would have reversed that order.

"Both are marvellous attackers, but Apps is a little bit better backchecker," he explained.

Puts Brimsek in Goal

He would give Boston's Frankie Brimsek a slight edge over Toronto's Turk Broda in goal, although Broda was chosen on the CP first team. The CP defence agreed with his own ideas, with Dit Clapper of Boston ("who's going to argue about that") and Wally Stanowski of Toronto ("full of color, a wonderful rusher —the model that young defencemen of the future will copy").

Weiland endorsed the choice of Dave (Sweeney) Schriner of Toronto at left wing, and commented: "How could Schriner be left off with his record this year?" But on his own all-star team he would have chosen Bryan Hextall of New York Rangers at left wing, for Hextall is a left-hand shot although a right-winger. That would have allowed him to place Boston's Bobby Bauer at right wing.

Drillon on Second Team

Weiland's second team would have been: Goal, Broda; defence, Heller, Rangers, and Crawford, Boston; centre, Cowley; right wing, Drillon, Toronto; left wing, Dumart, Boston.

Weiland, who played on two Stanley Cup champion teams for Boston, likes nothing better than to talk hockey. Last night he reminisced of the days when Owen Sound Greys won the Memorial Cup and the Canadian Junior hockey championship back in 1924. "There was a team," he reflected. "We had Herbie Lewis and Vic Ripley and a grand gang generally. We beat North Bay and Westmount, then won the final against Calgary, in Winnipeg."

Soon after that he turned professional with Minneapolis. Others on the team were Tiny Thompson, Taffy Abel, Ching Johnson and Vic Ripley. Weiland was centre.

He joined Boston in 1928-29 and centred the Clapper-Gainer line that played a big part in Boston's Stanley Cup victory that year. His next cup-winning team was in 1939, back again with Boston after a couple of years at Detroit.

Should "Win in Five."

How does he feel about the series now going on with Toronto Maple Leafs?"

"Barring injuries, and that should be underlined, I believe we can win in five games. I think Toronto is too strong not to take at least one game at home. But Thursday's win gave our boys confidence.

"And don't forget we have a great club. Our third line is really playing magnificent hockey."

Then Weiland spoke of his golf. He won a handsome tray in an invitation tournament here last summer, and is a seven-handicap man.

Quickly he broke in:

"By the way, young Quilty of Canadiens is a real comer. He's my rookie of the year. He has size, aggressiveness, ability, and is young."

Rice Wins Another Distance Race

Porcupine Team Even Their Series

TORONTO, March 22 — (CP). — South Porcupine Bisons, the team that everybody thought was only "out for the ride," stood in a fair way today to creating a major upset by knocking the more highly-regarded Toronto Marlboros out of the Allan Cup hockey hunt.

Beaten 2-1 in their first game with Marlboros for the Ontario Senior title, the Bisons stepped back into the picture last night by defeating the Toronto team by the same score in overtime. They play the final game of their best-of-three series here this afternoon.

After the game last night, Manager Charlie Brown of the Bisons, a broad smile lighting his face, remarked in the dressing room: "When we left to come down to Toronto there were people who told me that if we managed to come within two goals of Marlboros in each game we could consider it a moral victory. A moral victory... Heck, we're going to win!"

Last Minute Application

The Bisons nearly didn't get into the series with Marlboros, for the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association hadn't taken them into consideration at first in drawing up playoff and playdown plans. But the Bisons made a last-minute application that saw them granted the right to play Toronto.

Bisons, who attracted only a smattering of hand-claps from the crowd of close to 5,000 persons in the early part of last night's game, ended up as heavy favorites with the customers due to their scrappy play throughout.

Cheered By Crowd

An almost deafening roar was raised, with the cheers lasting for a full minute, when Hugh Allan blasted a high, hard shot by Goalie Baz Bastien of Marlboros midway through the extra period. The other two goals came in the second period, with Eddie King putting Marlboros ahead early in the session and Jack Young tying it up about five minutes later.

Although Brown and Coach Hobe Esseltine are confident that Bisons can make their way past Marlboros they stressed that they do not think their team good enough to get much further along the Allan Cup trail. Both believe that Montreal Royals will represent the East.

Expect Cowley Will Be Out Of Game Tonight

By H. M. PETERS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

BOSTON, March 22.—(CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs planned today to throw everything they have into a blistering attack tonight in the hope of drawing even with Boston Bruins in their four-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final in which the Bruins took a one-game lead Thursday night when Goalie Frankie Brimsek scored a 3-0 shut-out victory.

Leafs, knowing that re-inforcements will be ready for the later games, were eager to depart from Boston with an even split in the first two contests. The teams, which finished first and second in the regular season, will resume their series in Toronto next Tuesday and Thursday, returning here for a fifth game if necessary next Saturday.

Apps Is Still Out

For a time Friday night rumors ran through Boston that Syl Apps, Toronto's first-string centre, would arrive in the morning to take his place beside his team-mates. But Leaf officials frowned upon the report, stating that Apps' injured knee was not quite ready and that he was not expected to see action until Tuesday at the earliest.

While Coach Cooney Weiland of Boston confidently predicted that the Bruins were good enough to clean up this series in five games, there were indications that the Leafs may make him swallow those words.

In the first place, Hank Goldup, who returned to action Thursday after being out out with an injury, was not at his peak, and may prove to be a potent point-getter for Toronto tonight.

Has Knee Injury

Then again, there was a distinct possibility that Bill Cowley, Bruins' stellar centre, may not be ready. Cowley, felled by a check from Dave Schriner in Thursday's game, suffered a knee injury. While there was no serious result, the knee was bruised and Dr. Martin Crotty may decide later today to keep the all-star centre out of one game.

It was considered possible that Lex Chisholm, Toronto wingman left off the team in the first game, may see action tonight, but it was not immediately evident whose place he would take.

Probable line-up:

Toronto		Boston
Broda	Goal	Brimsek
Hamilton	Defence	Clapper
McDonald		Smith
N. Metz	Centre	Schmidt
Drillon	Wings	Bauer
Davidson		Dumart

Toronto Subs—Stanowski, Church, Taylor, Schriner, D. Metz, Langelle, Marker, Goldup, Heron.

Bees, Imperials Tie 6-6, Fifth Test

TWEED, Mar. 22—(ENS). — In the fifth game of the finals of the East Hastings League for the Dr. Welsh Trophy, Farnsworth Bees and Roslin Imperials battled to a 6-all overtime tie at the local arena on Friday night, in the closest game in years, before a capacity gathering. Over eighty minutes of gruelling hockey was played without a decision being reached, with Porritt hefty defenceman, playing the full stretch.

Play opened with Farnsworth scoring two goals in the first period, the first by Wager on a solo down the ice, and the second by L. Meraw on a pass from Arber outside the Roslin blue line.

In the early minutes of play in the second period, D. Meraw took a pass from Wager to put the Bees three up. However, the tide of play changed hands, and Imperials put on a strong play, to rap home four goals before the end of the period, with Brough banging in a pass from Empson, and Empson from Collins. Imperials then tied the count when Jarrell rapped home a pass from the corner in a scramble around the nets. Parks then took a neat pass from Green to put the Imperials one up. Brough went to the box for tripping.

Wide open hockey featured the last period, with Roslin gaining a three-goal lead when Jarrell rapped home a pass from Clare, and then Clare scored unassisted. Wager took a pass from Marsh and Shanques to cut the lead to two goals. Marsh whittled the lead when he flipped in Wager's pass. The tying goal was scored by Shanques on a pass from Wager. Penalties were handed out freely in this period, with Arber, Collins, Green, Porritt, and then Green and Shanques going off together, either for tripping or holding.

Two ten-minute overtime periods were played in which both goalies played brilliant hockey. Empson and Shanques went off in the second overtime for tripping. Another game will be played to decide the winner.

The lineups:

Roslin — Goal, Hinton; defence, Parks, Guay; forwards, Clare, Green, Jarrell; subs, Empson, Collins, Chisholm, Gray, Sharpe, Brough, Hart.

Farnsworth — Goal, Mouck; defence, Porritt, R. Palmateer; forwards, G. Wager, D. Meraw, L. Meraw; subs, Marsh, D. Palmateer, J. Marsh, J. Lajole, W. Arber, Shanques.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Washington Nats: On the Way Back

By JACK SORDS

If Manager Bucky Harris of the Washington Nationals can find a couple of winning pitchers among his holdovers and rookie help, the Washington team may go places this year.

In Dutch Leonard, Ken Chase and Sid Hudson, the Nats have three fine pitchers. Chase won 16 last year, Leonard 14 and Hudson, only a rookie, 17. Outside of this trio, the list is poor for most of the rookies have had very little experience. Only veteran addition was Danny MacFayden, from Pittsburg.

Best looking rookie hurling prospect is the left-hander, Sam Cunningham, from Charlotte. Cunningham has impressed the Nat bosses in camp. Others hoping to stick are Arnold Anderson, a 210-pound righthander from Springfield, where he won 12 games last season; Jimmy Dean, from Charlotte; Alex Zukowski, a 22-game winner with Greenville, and Hardin Cathey, from Thomasville.

The return of John (Buddy) Lewis to the infield will help the Senators there. And the most publicized rookie in camp, George Archie, from Seattle, will be the first baseman. Charles (Buddy) Myer, 37 years old, still is being considered as the regular second baseman. With Cecil Travis completing the quartet, the Nats' infield is one that could become one of the best in the league.

Rick Ferrell, Jake Early and Al Evans will do the catching.

In the outfield, the Nats are much stronger. The addition of Ben Chapman, from Cleveland, and Roger Cramer, from Boston, will give the Nats two offensive guns. George Case is the regular centre fielder with Johnny Welaj and old Sam West around to help out if needed.

Big Challenger Is Surprise Of The Fight

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

DETROIT, March 22 (AP)—Slide over, Al McCoy, Red Burman and Gus Dorabio and make room for Comrade Abie Simon — a fighter with courage almost beyond imagination.

Ponderous Abe Simon, 254 pounds of him, has joined the ranks of 14 other futile contenders for Joe Louis' world's heavyweight championship, but in so doing he gave the Brown Bomber the hardest and most surprising fight he has experienced as title-holder, fooling everybody in a standing-room crowd of 18,908 in Detroit's Olympia Arena last night. Three thousand were turned away.

Figured on 4 Rounds

Simon, figured to last no longer than four rounds, fell victim to a technical knockout after one minute and 20 seconds of fighting in the 13th round. Referee Sam Hennessy humanely stopped the sensational battle after Louis had knocked Simon down twice in quick succession for counts of nine in that fatal round. Simon was on his feet, his hands gripping the top rope of the ring in his own corner, but he was helpless and could not continue.

As a reward for his courageous and surprising showing, Promoter Mike Jacobs planned today to give Simon another shot at the title. He intends to rematch the pair for a 15-round engagement in New York, May 16.

Protest Is Made

Simon and his manager, Jimmy Johnston, protested ending the fight. Simon declared that Louis' blows did not hurt him at any time, although when the fight was ended he might have appeared to be in distress because of three cuts over his eyes and a blood-smeared face. Three stitches were required to close a gash in the lid of his left eye.

He shouted defiance at Louis even when the doctors were closing the wound:

"Why did they stop it?" he demanded. "It was the 13th round, wasn't it? And th's was Friday, too. Holy, Jumping Bolivar! The next time I fight him I hope it's on Thursday."

Gameness Praised

Louis, with a big shiner under his left eye, praised Simon's gameness, declaring he was tougher than Carnera. The champion's hands pained him so terribly after he reached the dresing room that he was ordered to soak them in buckets of ice water. Louis said he was no more tired than usual after a championship bout, and that Simon never really hurt him.

The battle was a thriller from the start, producing four knockdowns, all scored by Louis. The bout was only a few seconds old when the champion, letting fly with his first right hand blow, landed it flush on Abe's jaw and knocked him down for the first time in his life. He got up at the count of two, smiling.

Louis let go with another right hand smash in the third, flooring Simon for a count of nine. Louis must have thought this was the end, for he walked away slowly, looking at Simon over his shoulder. At the count of nine, however, big Abe dragged himself to his feet and, to the surprise of the shouting spectators, began pumping tantalizing lefts into the champions' reddening nose and left eye.

Royals Defeat St. Jerome 9-4

(By the Canadian Press.)

Three Eastern Canada semi-finalists girded for action today while Toronto Marlboros and South Porcupine Bisons prepared for the deciding game in their Ontario final that will decide the fourth club in the running to represent the East in the Dominion hockey final.

One of the semi-final brackets will get under way tonight, with Sydney Millionaires, Maritime champions, meeting Hull Volants, Ottawa and District winners, in the first game of a best-of-five series. Montreal Royals are waiting the outcome of the Ontario final to start the other in Montreal Monday.

Represent Quebec

The Royals won the right to represent Quebec in Allan Cup playdowns by whipping St. Jerome, 9-4 last night in the fourth game of a provincial final with the intermediate champions. South Porcupine meanwhile forced a deciding match in their series with Marlboros by winning, 2-1, in overtime at Toronto.

Champions of the Northern Ontario Association that gave the east the Allan Cup through Kirkland Lake Blue Devils last season, South Porcupine went into overtime to tie up their series with the Marlboros. A goal by Hugh Allan after 5:15 minutes of extra play forced a deciding game tonight at Toronto in the best-of-three clash.

Wins Series 3 to 1

In Montreal, the Royals romped to their decision over St. Jerome with Russ McConnell and Jimmy Haggarty each scoring three goals to pace their fleet offensive. The victory gave the Montrealers the series, 3-1 in games, after St. Jerome had pulled an upset to win the second match of the round, 5-3.

In the junior ranks, action gets under way again tonight when Pembroke Little Lumber Kings meet the Canadiens at Ottawa in the deciding match of a clash for the Ottawa and District title. The Maritime champions, Charlottetown Royals, meet the winners in a Memorial Cup round, with Montreal Junior Royals, Quebec champions, standing by to meet the Maritime-Ottawa district winner in an eastern semi-final.

In the other bracket, Toronto Junior Marlboros and Oshawa Generals, Memorial Cup champions, resume their best-of-seven series at Toronto tonight for the Ontario title and a berth in the eastern final. The teams are tied at 1-1 in games.

Farmers Urged To Support Weed Seed Act

More than half the farmers of Ontario would have been in court last year if the Weed Seed Control Act had been enforced, Dr. William Stephens of the Department of Agriculture said in an appeal for the co-operation of members of the Eastern Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen at their convention in the Canadian Legion Hall on Friday afternoon.

Dr. Stephens said the threshermen could be of considerable help in the Department's campaign against the spread of noxious weeds, but the Control Act would simply defeat itself if it were rigorously applied.

"Of the 185,000 farmers in Ontario, 100,000 could have been prosecuted in 1940 if the Government had adhered to the letter of the law," Dr Stephens told the hundred or more members of the Brotherhood. "More than that, five hundred municipalities could have been hailed to court and fined, but there would be nothing gained in doing that because we would simply be defeating the purpose of the legislation. It must have the sympathy and active support of the people before it can be enforced. Municipalities are coming gradually to realize the seriousness of the noxious weed situation."

$30,000,000 Loss.

Dr. Stephens estimated that noxious weeds cost Ontario the huge sum of $30,000,000 in 1939. Municipalities are spending $275,000 a year cutting weeds on their roadsides, and that expenditure was on only 5 per cent. of the roads. If weeds were cut on all the roads the cost of that work would be around $5,500,000. Weeds should be cut twice a year, and that extension of the control efforts would increase the cost to $11,000,000.

Loss in production and to property amounted to another $15,000,000 chargeable against weeds, and the entire bill totalled a huge sum which too many people did not realize.

Dr. Stephens read the statute requiring threshermen to keep their machines clean in moving from one farm to another, and also discussed mechanical devices which would facilitate that detail of operation.

Election of Officers.

Most of the officers of the Eastern Ontario Brotherhood were re-elected at the Friday afternoon session as follows: President, L. C. Thompson of Bowmanville; 1st vice-president, W. W. Dawson of Otonabee; 2nd vice-president, Herbert Jones, Omemee; secretary-treasurer, James Lamey of Warkworth; executive, Arthur McIntyre, Peterborough, Reg. Atchison, South Monaghan, Arthur Bailey, Blackstock. James Moore of Hastings was elected to the Legislative Committee.

V. S. Milburn, secretary of the Canadian Dairy Federation, reviewed the purposes and accomplishments of the Federation of Agriculture, W. B. Elder of Henshall, secretary of the Western Ontario Brotherhood, and W. H. Nelson of Warkworth were other afternoon speakers.

T. J. Carley, K.C., at Banquet.

T. J. Carley, K.C., was the guest speaker at th banquet in the evening at which the president, L. C. Thompson, was chairman. Mayor Hamilton extended a civic welcome to the assembly of two hundred farmers and their wives, and Reeve M. H. Johnston of North Monaghan recounted the progress of the Peterborough branch of the Federation of Agriculture, recommending unity of agricultural groups to farmers of other counties in which this movement may not yet have been organized.

Mr. Carley's subject was a historical sketch of the co-operative movement especially in Great Britain. He said that men were thinking to-day of some new order which they expect will evolve after the war has been won for democracy. Some are of the opinion that a remedy for the economic and social ills of recent times may come from the legislative halls of Parliament, that the State will take a predominant part in bringing about some desirable change. Others suggest that some person will conceive an idea born of inspiration to meet the needs of the people. Mr. Carley said it was most likely that change would come about society's pragmatic methods of trial and error, of going forward step by step testing new ways, trying to develop a system that would offer more security for the individual man and his family. It might be that the new order for to-morrow is already in existence, and that it remains only for society to put into effect changes already appearing in the old order.

Co-operation Voluntary.

Co-operation is the voluntary association of consumers into a society controlled in a democratic manner for the purpose of directly supplying their immediate needs by observing certain definite and generally accepted rules, Mr. Carley said in defining the subject. The co-operative movement in Great Britain was development from the industrial revolution in the eighteenth century brought about by Hargreave's invention of the spinning "Jenny," Arkwright's spinning "mule," and James Watt's steam engine.

The first attempt to deal with the problem created by the onset of production of goods by mechanical means was made by Robert Owen, a manufacturer who established company stores selling goods at reasonable prices, and also making workers owners of their factories. He died a poor man in 1858, but his ideas and humanitarian enterprises served to focus attention on the new issues created in industry.

Rochdale Co-operative.

The first co-operative movement was begun by the flannel workers of Rochdale in Northern England in 1844. They opened a store in an old basement with stock valued at $70 and capital of $140. Their first annual report showed they had done $3,500 of business at a saving of $160. In 1861 they had a membership of 2,000 and their capital had grown to $75,000. By 1894 their membership was 12,000 and their volume of business $1,500,000 a year. They started a flour mill, and after facing impending failure they united with other groups employing the Rochdale plan, and found an outlet for their surplus flour. Mr. Carley said that prior to the war it was estimated that one hundred million families were identified with this Co-operative system which virtually enveloped the world.

Rochdale Principles.

Mr. Carley said that the element of success of the Rochdale co-operative enterprises was found in its sound basis principles. One factor was democratic control, only one vote for one member without regard to the number of shares held. Members vote as persons, and not as owners of certain shares of capital stock. Another principle required that returns to capital should not be more than the prevailing rate of interest. Dividends do not soar with earnings. This principle eliminates speculation. The shares in the Co-operative do not fluctuate with the earnings. Again, interest is paid on the basis of patronage dividends. The member who spends the most with the society gets the most in return.

Secondary principles were also outlined by Mr. Carley. It was decided by the Rochdale Co-operative that membership should be open; there was to be political and religious neutrality, members being left free to support any or no political or religious sect as conscience dictated; fair treatment of labor; business to be for cash, and current market prices charged.

Society's Expansion.

Interests of the Rochdale expanded with its success. It established a newspaper in 1860, and nine years later branched into home building. By 1874 the number of co-operative stores in England was nearly 900, with a membership of 300,000 families, capital investment of $15,000,000, and annual sales of $50,000,000. It extended its activities into manufacturing and shipping, and to-day the Co-operative Wholesale Society is the largest food distributing business in the world.

Its flour mills are the largest in the Empire; it owns nearly 150 manufacturing enterprises, making food, clothing, even radios and automobiles. It owns a tea plantation in Ceylon and clive farms in Africa. Its banking department is second in strength only to the Bank of England.

Mr. Carley enlarged the scope of his subject to similar movements in Sweden, Denmark, Finland, the United States, Canada, and even Iceland. The breadth of modern co-operatives at the outbreak of the war commanded the attention of thoughtful men. It eliminated the profit principle, and demonstrated that its central idea was practicable and served a great purpose. In conclusion Mr. Carley said that the co-operative movement might contain the solution "of our economic ills." It was a voluntary association for the benefit of all its members. Here and there mistakes had been made, especially on this continent, but co-operatives were reappearing to-day in new strength, and in spite of the problems of the war.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Carley for his address and was conveyed by the chairman, Mr. Thompson. Mr. Lamey paid a fine tribute to the ladies of Stewart's Hall for their fine banquet. The convention was ended with a dance in the Legion Hall.

Canadian Soldiers Training In The Snows

As winter draws to an end, more and more white-clad ski-troopers may be seen at army training camps all over Canada. During the winter months many hundreds of the country's fighting men were given intensive training in the art of waging war on skis. In the UPPER photo two typical ski-troopers are shown as they rest on the brow of a hill. Life in the outdoors has made them bronzed and healthy. In the BOTTOM photo, a patrol is shown as it strikes off across a bush clearing.

Tenderless Jobs Only Taken In Urgent Cases

OTTAWA, March 22 (CP).—G. K. Sheils, deputy minister of munitions and supply, Wednesday gave the House of Commons committee on war expenditure explanations why occasionally the department awarded contracts without calling for tenders.

When the defence department required goods delivered quickly the extreme urgency might make it inadvisable to wait to call for tenders, he said. Generally in such cases the department turned to firms already having orders for the same goods and gave them further orders.

Departmental officers in such circumstances negotiated with the contractors to seek lower prices on the second orders because of the greater total volume.

Another occasion when tenders were not called was when the order was so great the entire industry had to be mobilized to fill it. Mr. Sheils instanced the case of woollen cloth for uniforms early in the war. The department turned to the textile industry committee.

"I might say," Mr. Sheils said, "that these industry committees have been of great assistance to us."

In that particular case the industry committee advised on placing the orders. They had to persuade some plant owners to take on the job because already they were busy with their own work. The committee policed the industry to see the orders were promptly and properly filled.

A similar practice was followed when the big order came in for steel truck bodies that took the entire Canadian industry to handle. The industry committee in that case advised the department and policed the firms in the industry.

Secret Equipment.

Another case where no tenders were called was when secret types of equipment were required such as range finders or fire control instruments. One firm was usually selected and made acquainted with the secret device. It would likely be a secret of Great Britain and great care has to be taken to protect it.

Usually such orders were for both United Kingdom and Canada. A "target" price was fixed. Mr. Shiels explained the term. Should the order be for 500, the price would be placed on the first 50. It might be $200 for each unit. The firm would be allowed a $10 profit on each unit. If it was able to produce the goods under the $200 cost, the firm would get 25 per cent. of the saving as a bonus. If the cost exceeded $200, the excess would cut into the firm's profit.

The price on the remainder of the order would then be negotiated on the basis of the cost of the first 50.

"We call it a target price because it is something we shoot at," Mr. Shiels said.

Italian Land Mines Removed By Aussies

Land mines were used freely by the Italian troops in an effort to impede the advance of Gen. Archibald Wavell's Army of the Nile when it started rolling across Africa. Excellent work was done by these Australian engineers in removing the land mines from the path of the advancing infantry.

Lady Astor Tours Plymouth Aiding Bombed

PLYMOUTH, England, Mar. 22—(CP). — Viscountess Astor, member of Parliament and Acting Mayor of Plymouth in the absence of her influenza-stricken husband, toured every rest centre in the city yesterday giving words of praise and encouragement to citizens bombed from their homes in Thursday night's Nazi raid.

Obviously fatigued from a sleepless night of directing fire fighters at her own home, she made a thorough inspection, beginning with Virginia House, the city's biggest centre.

Five hundred persons were being cared for at Virginia House, which Lady Astor and her husband established. Lady Astor was born in Virginia.

Many residences, including Lady Astor's, were without heat and water, but all the homeless were accommodated at the rest centres, all equipped to house, feed and clothe them.

Points Jobless Insurance As "Stabilizer"

OTTAWA, March 22 — (CP). — Canada's unemployment insurance scheme will be a valuable 'stabilizer' during the period of post-war reconstruction, J. S. Hodgson, executive assistant on the Unemployment Insurance Commission, said today in an address arranged by the Ottawa Council of Social Agencies.

Princess Alice and members of her personal staff were present.

Mr. Hodgson said the scheme would facilitate the finding of work for demobilized soldiers and workers presently employed in munitions industries. He quoted Lloyd George, former British Prime Minister, and economists as having publicly expressed opinion that unemployment insurance had prevented the outbreak of revolution in Great Britain after the first Great War.

He said it was estimated originally by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics that there would be about 2,100,000 wage-earners insured. Counting dependents, 4,660,000 persons would be protected against unemployment under the scheme. The war would increase this number to 2,500,000 and 5,000,000, because of expansion of employment.

HEALTH PROBLEMS

Dr. L. A. Clarke

However, what we started out to talk about has to do with the baby's life during the first year. His first year of life is important inasmuch as during this time we can give him a good start as far as physical condition is concerned. Some good habits can be established and a start can be made in moulding the baby's career. During the first year the baby grows faster physically and mentally than at any other time of his life. Habits are formed by doing the same things repeatedly. The things he learns gradually and easily are the ones he remembers longest and the pleasure he gets in demonstrating his new accomplishments is ample evidence of his pride in learning.

Regularity is most important to the establishment of a sound nervous system. Control of one's self, an even disposition and calmness are all due to a sound nervous system.

Suggestion and praise are methods that any mother has for training her baby. A child copies good and bad. Have him see and hear only what you want him to repeat. Children are easily led. Make the things you want him to do interesting and worth doing. Praise and encouragement are valuable but may be overdone. Be lenient with failures and encourage successes.

Food habits are learned very early. Likes and dislikes are learned not inherited. A child should be fed regularly according to the doctor's directions and schedule and when first giving new foods such as orange juice, cod liver oil, etc. Children seem to be able to get used to almost anything if the parent or the one offering the new food does not appear to expect the baby to refuse or dislike it. The baby usually responds in the way that appears expected of him. Start new foods in small amounts, one at a time. He should be entirely weaned.

SOMEBODY'S CRUTCHES

The management of the Hotel Champlain is reported to be somewhat mystified about a pair of crutches some one recently left there. Crutches cast aside might be regarded as symbolic of a miracle, but even the Champlain's management would hardly be expecting any intervention of the supernatural about its premises. The bare outline of the story is simply that some guest came in on crutches and left without them, and it has been suggested that if the circumstance does not indicate a miracle then it might point to a fake. If any one around town is wandering around without these supports the information is passed out that the Champlain folks wish they would come and get them.

No Blame Attached In Dent Death

John Comstock Borne To Last Resting Place

As many flags throughout the city were lowered to half mast, the mortal remains of John Comstock were taken from his home to Little Lake Cemetery, their last resting place on Friday afternoon. Mr. Comstock passed away suddenly on Wednesday after an illness of two days.

A friend to many, his funeral was attended by people in all walks of life, and his late residence was the scene of what almost seemed a pilgrimage as hundreds of those who had known him passed through it in silent tribute to one who had lived amongst them for 64 years as an associate and friend.

In speaking of the passing of Mr. Comstock, Canon W. P. Robertson, his rector told of his personal feeling of shock and of a deep sense of loss. They had had occasion to be together on many occasions during the past year and often in times of sadness like the one occasioned by his death, Mr. Comstock had always been appreciated by members of families who had been bereaved. His quiet sympathy, his respectful and understanding attitude had added to his already remarkable efficiency.

"It was only last Monday," said Canon Robertson, "that Mr. Comstock and I stood in Little Lake cemetery, paying our last respects to one of two sisters who had passed on in the space of four days, and there he remarked that the Denne plot adjoined the Comstock lot. Little did either of us think it would be our sad duty to again visit that site today." Canon Robertson was referring to the passing of Miss Margaret Denne and her sister, Mrs. William H. Graham, last week.

The peculiar humor of the man, and his depth of character were always appreciated. He had a somewhat baffling exterior but it yielded with knowledge of him which, as it grew, assured those of respect and love. The better he was known the more a person appreciated him, and each new hour in his presence told more of his quality.

It was a deep personal loss, because Mr. Comstock had been Canon Robertson's warden at St. John's Church during thep ast year, and his fidelity and devotion to his duties had made him seem indispensible to the rector and his fellow workers, Canon Robertson declared.

As more than one hundred friends and business associates stood with heads bared and bowed, the body of Mr. Comstock was born from his house to the hearse bearing his name on its side. Then began his last journey past the store in which he had worked since his youth. Right Worshipful Brothers W. D. Campbell and R. F. Downey and Worshipful Brother C. H. Elliott had charge of the Masonic rites at the graveside.

The acting pallbearers were: Charles Lacheur, J. J. Turner, Willis Garrow, C. S. Cummer, W. C. English, and H. C. Sootheran. Honourary bearers were E. A. Peck, K.C., T. H. Hooper, A. L. Killaly, R. L. Dobbin, W. C. Ackerman, C. H. Elliott, Fred Hills and Dr. J. M. McCulloch.

Raids Increase War Victims Need Your Aid

All local war funds and charities are taken care of by the recent drive raising money for the Community Chest, and the local British War Victims' Fund is the only one locally which is standing alone, and relying on individual subscriptions for its success. Every day the newspapers reveal that the need for help is growing as the Hun raids increase in number and fury.

All groups and individuals who wish to put on social events for the benefit of the fund should get in touch with Mr. F. G. Mann, and they will be afforded assistance in all possible ways with the object of making it a success.

The Peterborough Ladies' Curling Club, with a membership of 35, staged a bonspiel last Monday with small prizes of War Savings Stamps being given the winners. After that Mrs. O. A. DeGraw entertained at tea and the net proceeds of $14.25 was turned over to the fund.

Down at Keene, they went over the top again with a donation of $33.95, the money being raised at a dance held by the Carry On Club. This is one of the largest donations in the last month. The Junior Red Cross, Young Canadians in Grade 5 of Queen Alexandra School added two dollars to the fund, to keep that school in the honor column.

The 14th donation from the employees of the Peterborough Brinton Carpet Company employees came in today, and it amounts to $14. The Red Patch Club also sent alone a substantial donation of $10 to boost the total.

Today F. G. Mann announced that the amount required to make up the fifth £500 was now down to $300, and it is almost a certainty that this amount will come in before next Saturday. There has been several weeks when more than $300 was turned in.

Moving pictures of Bermuda will be shown by Captain Robert White of Lindsay on Monday night at 8.15 in the Salvation Army Temple under the auspices of the Youth Group, headed by Art Tutte. A collection will be given to the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund.

Ladder Slipped Throwing Man Into A Trench

The death of William Dent who was fatally injured in one of the new buildings of the Canadian General Electric Company when a ladder slipped and he was thrown to the ground was "purely accidental" in the opinion of the five-man coroner's jury which sitting under Coroner Dr. Eugene Snider in the police court last night, investigated the fatality.

"We attach no blame to any person or persons" the verdict of the jury concluded.

The evidence which only took thirty minutes to present showed that the cause of the accident was apparently the fact that one side of the ladder cut down into the ice and snow on the ground inside the building and then the ladder slipped sideways carrying Dent with it. The opinion was expressed by witnesses that the melting of the snow during the afternoon may have been a factor in the accident.

It was stated that Dent fell into a four-foot trench striking his head on the side and death was due to brain lacerations and fractured skull.

The witnesses were examined by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

British Empire Beacon Light To Democracy

"Canada's Constitution" was the subject of a most educational address to the members of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club at their weekly meeting in the Empress Hotel on Friday, with Bill Fox, youthful Peterborough lawyer, as guest speaker.

Mr. Fox, who has won many oratorical contests in past years, is still a very young man, and many of the members were amazed at his reference to a previous occasion upon which he had addressed the club, and virtually gasped when he said it had been ten years ago. Upon that occasion, Mr. Fox reminded those present, he had discussed ideas in connection with Canada's economic and political future, and had suggested that three courses lay open to the Dominion, one of which must surely be followed. The courses were annexation with the United States, Canadian independence, or a movement culminating in the Imperial Federation of Colonies. At that time, it had been decided by the speaker that the first two alternatives were not worthy of acceptance for various mentioned reasons, and that the third, Imperial Federation of Colonies, would be the outcome of undeniable forces at work throughout the world.

The Statute of Westminster was passed by the Parliament of the United Kingdom on December 1, 1931, bringing to an early realization the idea then presented. The signing the Bill made Canada, the United Kingdom, the Irish Free State, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and Newfoundland like members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, and, though each possessing a common allegiance to the Crown, al lwere given equal constitutional and legislative powers.

Advantages to Canada.

Mr. Fox proceeded to explain the full significance of the matter, and told of the advantage Canadians were accorded in being no longer a colony with a Motherland to regard, although truly, gratitude and affection still foster the use of the term. Canada was farther enabled to legislate for herself, but through it all, the British North America Act remains unscathed.

The Merchant Shipping Act was cited as an example of the new powers invested in the Government of this country by the Bill under discussion, and the speaker explained the content and advantages it embodied. This is only one of the many advances made by the Dominion and her sister component parts of the Empire, and the full value has probably not been yet felt. By virtue of the signing of the Statute of Westminster, there has been created "a world-wide Empire of Sovereign States in an Imperial Unity....What a challenge to totallitarianism—what a beacon light to Democracy and its sweet spirit of freedom."

At the opening of the meeting, at the direction of President John Troke, the entire club observed one minute of silence in respect for the memory of John Comstock, veteran member of the club, whose funeral was on Friday. It was announced that Monday next would see a joint meeting of the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs, and that the meeting scheduled for the following Friday would therefore be cancelled. Reference was made with regard to the church service to which the members of the club and their friends have been invited at the Salvation Army Temple on Sunday at 7 p.m.

Fall Is Fatal To Workman Washing Ceiling

LINDSAY, Mar. 22—(ENS). — Leo Cuddahee, of Lindsay, died in the Oshawa Hospital on Friday following an accident which he sustained at the Oshawa Collegiate and Vocational Institute. The deceased fell from a ladder in the institution, and suffered a fractured skull. Cuddahee, it appears, was whitewashing the ceiling of the boiler room when the accident occurred. He was born in Ops Township and left for Oshawa last December. He was unmarried and is survived by his father, two sisters, and one brother. Interment ill take place in Lindsay on Monday.

The local Board of Water Commissioners has on hand plenty of problems these days. Some weeks ago the secretary of the Commission, at the request of that body, tendered his resignation because of his failure to attend three meetings. A few days afterwards the Board's superintendent passed away, and the Board has since been without these two officials, although W. E. Reesor, manager of the local Hydro, has been acting as secretary without remuneration. It has since been disclosed that the total arrears on meters amounted to $4,052.98. This amount has been accumulating since 1936. At a meeting of the Board, Chairman John O'Leary sought a 10 per cent. reduction in water rates. Commissioner Flavelle opposed the idea, claiming the Board is just paying its debts and is faced with an uncertain future. The Board, he said, had a debenture debt of $41,000 and no surplus. The Board had lacked management for a long time and this was its greatest weakness. Chairman O'Leary expressed surprise that the auditors had not drawn the attention of the Board to the arrears and Commissioner Flavelle pointed out that they had no way of knowing. Then the question of uniting both the Hydro and Water Boards under one management came up for discussion. No decision was reached. It was said a special act would have to be passed by the Legislature and the consent of the Provincial Hydro Commission obtained before such action could be taken. In the meantime, bills are going out for arrears to those who hav been enjoying free water for a long time.

Still another problem confronts the Water Board. The acting secretary reported that on the occasion of the recent fire on Kent Street the pumpage for the town was roughly 900,000 gallons. The next day the pumpage went up to 1,300,000 gallons, and there was no fire to take that extra water. Where did it go? asked the official.

Withers' Tender Recommended

The council's satisfaction with the work of Herb J. Withers in the collection of garbage was a deciding factor at the meeting of the property committee Friday night in recommending acceptance of his tender of $11,000 plus $500 for removal of the residue at the incinerator. W. T. Hughey submitted a tender for $11,000 for both jobs, but Alderman Dutton's resolution, seconded by Mayor Hamilton, proposed that the contract be left with Mr. Withers. He has the experience, equipment and his relations with the council have been satisfactory. For the difference of only $500 it was felt that there was nothing to be gained in transferring the job to a new man. Alderman Swanston presided, and was asked to arrange with James T. Brown, market clerk, to continue in the position for the next three months.

There has been some rumor in the county that the city considering the closing of the market. This idea has never been seriously proposed, and is certainly not being considered. In fact the property committee is trying to improve the market and make it as useful and attractive as possible without undue expenditure.

Old Latta Mill Swept By Fire

TWEED, March 22.— (ENS). — Poucher's grist mill of Latta, a well-known mark in Hastings county for almost one hundred years, was completely gutted on Friday morning, as fire of an undetermined origin swept the old structure, leaving only the stone walls standing. The mill was owned by Mr. Norman Hall of Plainfield, who for the past several years had operated a grinding business on the site.

The blaze was discovered shortly after 5.30 a.m. by Mr. Jack Cowe of Plainfield, as he was passing the site and saw black smoke and flames rolling from the structure. The entire back part of the mill was blazing like an inferno at the time of discovery and it was impossible to save any of the stock or valuable grinding equipment which had only recently been installed.

Quickly burning up through the roof, the flames, fed by the pine timbers of which the interior of the mill was constructed, were prevented from spreading to other buildings in the vicinity by the stone walls of the building which remained standing. High tension Hydro wires passing the site were quickly put out of commission and it was necessary to send out trouble crews to put the line back into operation.

Originally known as Poucher's mill, the old grinding site had changed hands on numerous occasions and was operated for twenty-five years by Edgar Maynes, and it was only within a comparative recent period that the grinding of flour had been discontinued, it being one of the last mills in this district to discontinue this operation.

Campbellford was the scene of a pretty double wedding this week when a brother and sister were married on the same day. The wedding party is pictured ABOVE and the principals are, from LEFT to RIGHT: Charles Southworth, son of Mrs. Robert Wright and the late Harry Southworth of Seymour; his bride, Hazel Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott of Campbellford. The other bride was formerly Miss Effie Thain, daughter of Mrs. Jonathan Thain and the late Mr. Thain, and the groom is Pte. Roy Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott. Pte. Cigarette Supply Is Now Increased

The supply of cigarettes which the Canadian Red Cross Society distributes overseas has been increased from 50,000 to 75,000a week, or more than 300,000 a month. They are given out to Canadian soldiers who are patients in either Canadian or British hospitals and also to any patient in Canadian hospitals overseas.

The cigarettes come as a welcome note from home to sick Canadian soldiers. One package of 25 is given out weekly by Canadian Red Cross Hospital visitors who call on all the Canadian soldiers in hospitals and fulfil the role of a family friend or relative. At first 100,000 cigarettes a month was adequate for the number of Canadian patients in Britain. This figure was jumped to 200,000 and finally to 300,000. The increase is due partly to the larger number of patients and also to the fact that there are now more Canadian hospitals in England. These include the Canadian Red Cross Hospital at Taplow; No. 16 Canadian General Hospital, Montreal Unit, No. L, the Neurological Unit, Casualty Clearing Stations, and also Red Cross ambulances which are active in the emergency work.

In addition to cigarettes, Red Cross Hospital visitors distribute 150 pounds a week of maple candy to wounded men and bombed civilians in Canadian hospitals.

Choate-Joyes Wedding Is Lovely Ceremony

The marriage took place in St. Luke's Anglican Church at two-thirty o'clock this (Saturday) afternoon of Myrtle Jean Joyes, youngest daughter of Mrs. F. Joyes and the late Francis Ernest Joyes, to Leading Aircraftsman Harold C. S. Choate, second son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. E. Choate; the Rev. G. J. Bousfield officating. The church was decorated with snapdragon and fern, and wedding music was played by Miss Margaret Flowers. During the signing of the register, Miss Phyllis Starr sang, "O Perfect Love."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. H. T. Stewart of Toronto, wore a gown of embroidered mousseline de soie over white baroness satin, cut on Grecian lines, with tight-fitting bodice. It had large puff sleeves, and matching mittens forming points over the hands, the full skirt falling into soft folds that swept into a train. Her veil of silk net was tiara shaped, trimmed with seed pearls and caught at the side with orange blossoms, and she carried Briarcliffe roses. Miss Catherine Joyes, sister of the bride, was the only attendant, frocked in precious aqua blue mousseline de soie over matching taffeta with inserts of lace in the yoke. The neckline was made with a Peter Pan collar buttoning down the front to the waist. The full panelled skirt was gathered at the waist and had inserts of lace. She wore matching mittens and a turban of blue taffeta, and her flowers were Bettertime roses. Mr. Stewart Gardiner was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Wilfred Lee and Mr. Morgan Perry.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, who received wearing a dress of vineyard crepe, with corsage of pink roses and black accessories. The bridegroom's mother was in flowered beige crepe, with corsage of roses and brown accessories.

For travelling the bride wore a frock of romance blue crepe, black boucle coat with silver fox scarf, and blue accessories. Leading Aircraftsman and Mrs. Choate will make their home in Port Dover.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a set of travelling bags; to the groomsman a bill-fold and keycase; to the ushers, bill-folds; to the bridesmaid a gold bracelet, and to the soloist a matching necklace and bracelet.

Women Advised To Take Note Of Grade In Foods

Canadian people pay too little attention to the present regulations with regard to the grading of foods, in the opinion of Miss Edith Elliott of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, who spent most of this week in the city. Good marketing, or the proper expenditure of money, is just as important in peace-time as in war-time, although it is surprising how many women are only now beginning to realize the meaning of the word "graded" as applied to foods.

Beef, poultry, eggs, butter, honey, maple syrup are among the foods one may purchase by grade in Canada. Admitting that it is wise to buy the best one can afford, Miss Elliott also pointed out that it is not always a good buy to purchase the highest priced in graded foods. Products are graded as: "Fancy Quality, Choice Quality, Standard Quality. To reach the first grade, the product must be perfect in every way, but, says Miss Elliott, we pay well for this perfection. If the shopper has a purse where appearance is the most important factor, then buy fancy quality. If, however, the shopper is interested in quality rather than perfection, the choice quality article will supply a product that is just as fine. If one is buying peas or tomatoes with which to make soups or combine with other foods, etc., there is just as much food value in the lowest grade standard quality.

Advising women to keep their eyes open when they are shopping for canned articles, Miss Elliott explained that there is a grade which is best suited to the need of each individual, and that it is not necessary to pay the highest price in order for a shopper to feel she is "buying the best that can be obtained." As an example of how easily women may be fooled, she told of walking into a store where honey was on display. Both cans were marked grade one, and both were identical in appearance, except that the price on once was higher by four cents. Inquiring from the clerk why two products, exactly alike and supplied by the same company, should have a price difference, she was told "Well, you see, madam, some women must feel they are buying the best, so we like to give them a choice." Incidentally, it was the higher priced honey that made the most sales.

"To most people the word 'economize' simply means 'scrimping,' said the Department of Agriculture representative, "but actually its real meaning is to get the most value for every penny spent. In paying attention to grades, we are practicing real economy because we are buying something that suits us just as well for less money."

WE . . . NOTICED

. . . That a smart ensemble suggestion is a blue and white print dress and blue wool jacket with cuffs, revers and facing of the print. A brilliant red wool coat can be worn over a pretty print dress.

. . . Sheer jackets and long coat suits, in navy, beige and pastels, lavishly trimmed with elaborate lingerie and fine lace, suggests weddings, garden parties, bridge and every festive occasion. Prints are vivid and unusual, and cape costumes are young and wearable.

. . . While there's nothing in the world to stop you from having strong shoulders if you wish, most women find it rather a relief to see shoulders becoming more gentle. Not that they're feeble. They're slightly padded and make you look pretty and feminine.

"Marys of Canada Spitfire Fund" Started in City

A campaign has been started by Mary (Mrs. J. H.) Morecraft, Montreal, to raise sufficient funds to purchase an engine for the Dorothys' Spitfire, this fund to be known as "Marys of Canada Spitfire Fund," and the amount when raised of approximately $25,000.00 is to be sent to Lord Beaverbrook in England.

A "Marys of Canada Spitfire Fund" has been established in Peterborough, and should be successful due to the fact that the Women's Auxiliary to the Peterborough War Service Council has turned over the campaign to every women's organization in the city.

All organizations are invited and urged to raise or collect, as an individual society, its share and then have their treasurer pass on the proceeds to Mr. D. B. Falkner, treasurer.
